ABSTRACT

The Negotiation Research Digest (NRD) was compiled by the Research Division of the National Education Association (NEA). It began publication in April 1967 and, after 81 issues, ceased publication in June 1975. A normal publication year involved 10 issues published from September through June, skipping July and August. Each issue contained approximately 25 pages of text. News items were commonly grouped under such headings as: Case Reviews, Board Findings and Rulings, Negotiation Notes, Statistics, Special Reports, and Text (the actual text of laws or regulations). Domestic information of interest to educators was gathered at the federal, state, and local levels. During the eight-year period of its publication, the NRD was a major source of news and information concerning education-related negotiations, court cases, legislation, and regulations. An index of major topics is included. (CJ)

State Statutes on Negotiation C-12

Statutes on teacher - school board negotiation printed in full for the following states: Alaska, California, Connecticut, Florida, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, and New Jersey. Balance of state statutes to be printed in May 1967 issue.

The Negotiation Research Digest is published ten times per year, September through June. Single copy, $3.00; 2-9 copies, 10% discount; 10 or more copies, 20% discount.

Subscription Rate: One year subscription to the Negotiation Research Digest for NEA members and NEA affiliates, $15.00; others, $30.00. Send inquiries to the NEA Records Division.

NEGOTIATION RESEARCH UNIT ESTABLISHED

The National Education Association announces the establishment of a negotiation research unit within the NEA Research Division. This action was taken in response to the need for timely, accurate, and comprehensive research in the area of staff - school board negotiation in the teaching profession. The purpose of the negotiation research unit will be to provide authoritative research information to leaders of the teaching profession, to school officials, and interested laymen. The action has been in the planning and developmental stage since spring 1966.

The unit will collect, store, and analyze negotiation agreements and contracts between boards of education and professional staff members, will survey negotiation procedures and practices, and will compile decisions of judicial and quasi-judicial bodies relative to group procedures in staff - school board relationships. The negotiation research unit of the Research Division will thus maintain a comprehensive body of current materials on the subject.

The first major research study of the new unit got under way in December 1966 with a comprehensive national survey of staff - school board negotiation in public education. The first part of the study consists of a questionnaire mailed to superintendents in the 7,150 school systems enrolling 1,000 or more pupils. The superintendents were asked questions such as:

- What organization is officially recognized by the board as representing the staff?
- Which staff members does the representing organization include?
- How many staff members are represented by the organization?
- How was organization representation verified?
- What is the superintendent's role in negotiation with the representing organization?

The second part of the survey consists of the collection of the individual school system negotiation agreements for the NEA Research Division's depository of such documents.

The negotiation agreements in the depository are coded for speedy search and summary by the Research Division's electronic computer. A 137-item machine useable coding system enables the Division's computer to locate and print a list of all the school systems that have a specific provision in their negotiation agreement. For example, within minutes the computer can identify and list all school systems with negotiation agreements containing class-size provisions. Or, it can identify all school systems in a given state with agreements containing a no-strike clause, the number of personnel represented, or a clause in the agreement specifying negotiable items.

Results of this and other research in the area of negotiation will be made available through the Research Division's Research Reports and through a new monthly publication, Negotiation Research Digest, a publication designed to provide maximum utility and reference. The Negotiation Research Digest will be published 10 times a year, September through June, on a subscription basis.

The purpose of the Negotiation Research Digest is to report objectively and comprehensively all significant data, trends, and developments concerning professional negotiations, collective bargaining, and similar types of group action procedures relating to members of the teaching profession. To fulfill this purpose each issue of the Digest will be divided into five sections:

Section A: Description and Analysis

Section B: Data and Statistics

Section C: Judicial Decisions, Opinions, and Statutes

Section D: Negotiation Agreements

Section E: Special Items

The sections have been designed to allow maximum flexibility in providing subscribers with important data and information currently available. Depending upon their relative importance, one issue may emphasize judicial opinions while another may emphasize a statistical treatment of a specific aspect of the results of a survey on negotiation. The commutative issues of the Digest, however, are designed to be a comprehensive and permanent source of significant information on staff - school board negotiations in education. The complete text of important negotiation agreements or new provisions appearing in several negotiation agreements will be published. The decisions of judicial or quasi-judicial bodies, such as state mediation boards, will be analyzed, with texts of the decision published in the Digest.

Since the Digest is planned for permanent reference as well as for timely information, it will be indexed twice a year.

Subscription rates are as follows:

To NEA members and NEA affiliated organizations:
- a. First, or single subscription, per year $15.00
- b. Additional subscriptions shipped to the same address, each, per year $10.00

To other persons, organizations, or institutions:
- a. First, or single subscription, per year $30.00
- b. Additional subscriptions shipped to the same address, each, per year $20.00

MINNESOTA SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS EXCLUSION OF TEACHERS FROM COLLECTIVE BARGAINING LAW

The 1965 Minnesota Legislature passed two bills relating to representational policies for public employees. The first bill was for all the public employees in the state except teachers, and the second law was for teachers exclusively. Governor Karl Rolvaag signed into law the bill which covered all public employees except teachers, but vetoed the bill for teachers.

The Minnesota Federation of Teachers, Local 59 (AFL-CIO), in its efforts to gain recognition as exclusive bargaining agent, brought the case to court. A county judge ruled that the section of the public employee law which excluded the teachers was unconstitutional, and that teachers were entitled to exclusive representation and other benefits under the public employee law.

The county judge's ruling was appealed to the Minnesota Supreme Court by the City of Minneapolis Education Association (NEA). The court reversed the county judge's opinion, holding that the section of the public employee law which excluded teachers was constitutional. It held that exclusion of the teachers from this law was not an unreasonable and arbitrary classification since for the purposes of classification, teachers had previously been treated by the legislature as a separate group, and cited the teacher tenure act, certification act, and other statutes.

The Minnesota Supreme Court ruled further that in the absence of a statute authorizing collective bargaining for teachers, the school board had no authority to conduct an election to designate an exclusive representative of the teachers. In concluding, the majority opinion stated that without express statutory authority, and where no prohibitory state statute exists, there is nothing to prevent collective bargaining entered into voluntarily, although "satisfactory results can hardly be expected." The majority went on:

A statute is needed to spell out procedures to be used in the determination of majority representatives in an appropriate unit. But this is a legislative concern. It may be assumed from the statement expressed in the governor's veto message that H.F. 1504, or some law similar to it, will at the next legislative session provide teachers with rights correlative to those given to other employees of the state. In the meantime, there is nothing to prevent the school board from meeting with representatives of both teacher groups. Certainly, in the past the school board has not dealt individually with its more than 3,000 teachers. Until the legislature provides a better method the parties must resort to the former methods employed to solve their differences.

"LEAVE BANK" ESTABLISHED

To assist the professional staff members who suffer prolonged illnesses, the Center Line Public Schools, Michigan (5,000 ADA), in the agreement between the board of education and the Center Line Education Association (NEA), effective from July 1, 1966, through June 13, 1967, established a "leave bank" for sick leave.

Membership in the leave bank is voluntary on the part of employees. Each participating employee contributes one day of sick leave per year to the bank, and may draw up to 60 days of sick leave per year from the bank, provided the first 30 days of sick leave for that year have been covered by accumulated leave or by absence without pay. The text of the agreement relating to the leave bank follows:

10. Sick Leave Bank

a. The Board of Education will cooperate in the establishment of a sick leave bank on a voluntary basis. Any professional employee whose position requires a teaching certificate is eligible to participate.

b. Each employee enrolling in the bank will donate one day of his sick leave to the bank each year until the bank is built up to a maximum of 1500 days. No more days will be added to this maximum until the bank is depleted to 1000 days. The bank will then be built up to 1500 again and the process repeated.

c. Additions will be made to the bank at the beginning of each fiscal year according to the above limitations.

d. A person withdrawing from membership in the bank will not be able to withdraw the contributed days.

e. The first 30 days of illness or disability will not be covered by the bank but must be covered by the person's own accumulated sick leave or absence without pay.

f. A person will not be able to withdraw days from the bank until his own sick leave is depleted.

g. A maximum of 60 days each school year can be drawn by one individual from the bank.

h. Persons withdrawing sick leave days from the bank will not have to replace these days except as a regular contributing member to the bank.

MICHIGAN LABOR MEDIATION BOARD DETERMINES TEACHERS IN GRADES K-12 FORM "BEST" BARGAINING UNIT

Grand Rapids, Michigan, served as the focal point of a major decision in the determination of a bargaining unit for teachers in 1966. The Grand Rapids public schools comprise kindergarten through junior college. The problem of determining the bargaining unit was brought before the Michigan Labor Mediation Board when the Grand Rapids Education Association (NEA) filed a petition requesting certification to represent teachers in grades K-12, while the Grand Rapids Federation of Teachers, Local 256 (AFL-CIO), filed a petition requesting certification to represent teachers in grades 7-12. The two groups agreed that the personnel of the junior college should form a separate bargaining unit.

Before making its decision, the board studied many aspects of the school district's program, teaching methods, school organization, school hours, teacher preparation, discipline, etc. In determining that the collective bargaining unit should be the teachers in grades K-12, the board concurred with a 1964 decision by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board (Joint School District No. 8, City of Madison, Decision No. 6746 [May 15, 1964]) when it stated:

The employees involved in this proceeding are engaged in a single profession, that of teaching. The Wisconsin Federation of Teachers desires to split the statutorily established unit into various departments or plants. The fact that teachers perform their duties in separate schools under separate immediate supervision does not establish that each school is a separate department or plant. The function of each school is identical, that is, the education of the youth. While the facilities may be separately located, methods and techniques used in such function are for the most part identical in each school. Generally the curriculum for all schools is planned, directed, and supervised by the school board, the superintendent and other high level administrators, as is the employment of all teachers and the conditions thereof. The immediate separate supervision of the principals at the various schools is subject to the scrutiny and control of the board, the superintendent and high level administrators. To fragmentize the teachers in the employ of one school system on a school by school basis for the purpose of conferences and negotiations with their municipal employer would not only interfere with the proper and efficient administration of a school system, but would in the end result frustrate the intent and purpose of Section 111.70.

CREATION OF BARRIERS IN PROFESSION QUESTIONED

IN PITTSFIELD, MASS., DISSENTING OPINION

Under statutory collective bargaining procedures the determination of the "proper" bargaining unit can be a matter for a labor board ruling, as witnessed by the Grand Rapids, Michigan, decision in this issue of the Negotiation Research Digest. The question arose also in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, when the Pittsfield Education Association (NEA) and the Pittsfield Federation of Teachers, Local 1315 (AFL-CIO) both sought representational certification.

The Association requested the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission to include in the bargaining group all certificated personnel, except the superintendent and assistant superintendents, while the Federation wanted only classroom teachers, guidance counselors, and department heads in the bargaining unit.

Determination of the bargaining unit favored the Federation, the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission ruling that the duties and responsibilities of supervisors and administrators differed sufficiently from those of teachers (through department heads) to warrant separate bargaining units. The Pittsfield Education Association (NEA) won elections to represent both groups.

The dissenting opinion included some comments not often considered in labor board opinions, and follows in full:

The Pittsfield Federation of Teachers, Local 1315, a labor organization, seeks to have excluded from the unit all employees above the rank of classroom teachers, but wishes included therein guidance counselors and department heads. The Federation in substance argues that principals, assistant principals and supervisors are in the nature of "supervisory employees"; and hence, should be excluded from the unit pursuant to decisions consistently rendered by both this Commission and the National Labor Relations Board in cases involving industry, trade, and commerce.

We are urged to accept the theory that harm would result in grievance procedures if an overall unit is established. Further, that those above the rank of classroom teacher would dominate and take over the bargaining unit, and that neither of the groups would advance the rights of the other.

The Pittsfield Teachers Association, also a labor organization, seeks to have included in substance all professional employees of the school committee.

Both parties agree that superintendents and assistant superintendents should be excluded.

What constitutes an appropriate bargaining unit in many instances poses a difficult problem.

The evidence in this case clearly shows that all employees are required to hold teaching certificates from the Department of Education based on college degrees and training. Since time immemorial teachers were considered to be engaged in a profession. Today, teaching is a highly specialized field, broken up into many departments. To further fragment the field might prove to be dangerous to our society.

I reject the theory that the same standards used in industry and trade are applicable here in determining what constitutes an appropriate bargaining unit. I find on all the evidence that the supervision exercised by principals down to supervisors is not comparable to the supervision exercised by supervisors or foremen in industry or trade.

On the one hand, a supervisory employee in industry and trade is primarily concerned with the best interests of his employer, and usually has the authority to hire and fire other employees. On the other hand, principals down to classroom teachers are primarily concerned with the proper education of children. They can neither hire nor fire subordinates. The authority devolving upon them is not comparable. The duties with which principals, vice-principals and supervisors are charged is to properly educate students. In order to meet this demand, it is vital that all members of the profession operate as a team.

I can find no precedent for holding that members within the same profession can be excluded from a unit in which other members are admitted. To hold that principals, vice-principals and supervisors should be excluded from a unit consisting of school teachers, in my opinion would create and perpetuate barriers within the teaching profession to the detriment of our children and the profession.

This Commission in the Quincy City Hospital Case, CR-2951, decided that supervisors and head nurses properly belong in the same unit with registered nurses, based on the theory that all were equally and primarily engaged in patient care. Subsequently in the University Hospital Case, CR 2963, and in the Lynn Hospital Case, CR-2982, this Commission followed the precedent established in the Quincy Hospital Case.

The hospital cases above referred to seem to establish the precedent that those in the same profession who share equally in their relationship and duties to others properly belong within the same unit.

I therefore hold that principals, vice-principals, supervisors and others, together with classroom teachers, are primarily and fundamentally engaged in a profession aimed to educate children, and would constitute an appropriate unit for the purpose of collective bargaining.

ADMINISTRATORS ADOPT NEGOTIATION AND SANCTION RESOLUTION

The February 1967 convention of the American Association of School Administrators (NEA) in Atlantic City adopted 21 resolutions on subjects ranging from the "Importance of Quality School Board Members" to "Federal Aid to Education." The eleventh resolution, entitled "Negotiations and Sanctions," follows:

The AASA urges that the teaching profession commit itself to the establishment of truly professional negotiation procedures and, in communities where intolerable educational conditions cannot otherwise be remedied, to the intelligent application of sanctions as the means of demonstrating its determination to obtain suitable salaries, working conditions, and personnel policies. We deplore the use of strikes and affiliations which align educators exclusively with one segment of the American economic system. We recommend that organizations of educators include all professional personnel, and we deplore the current tendency to create, by membership restrictions, artificial barriers among those whose basic interests in education are the same.

The Association commends the Executive Committee; endorses the recent document produced by the AASA, School Administrators View Professional Negotiation; and recommends its study and application by boards of education, teachers, and administrators.

The document, School Administrators View Professional Negotiation, is available from the American Association of School Administrators, 1201 Sixteenth St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. ($1.00; Stock # 021-00636)

AGREEMENT IN LANSING, MICHIGAN, COVERS VACANCIES AND PROMOTIONS

The filling of vacancies in school systems can be a matter of substantial concern to the members of a school district staff. The agreement between the Board of Education of Lansing School District, Lansing, Michigan, and the Lansing Schools Education Association (NEA), effective September 6, 1966, through June 30, 1969, contains an article on the subject as follows:

ARTICLE VIII

VACANCIES AND PROMOTIONS

A. Whenever any vacancy in any educationally certificated position in the district shall occur, the Board shall give written notice to the Executive secretary of the LSEA. No vacancy shall be permanently filled until seventeen days after such notification unless otherwise concurred with by the LSEA.

B. The written notice of each vacancy shall include a job description, stating the minimum requirements necessary for the position.

C. In filling such vacancy, the Board agrees to give due weight to the length of time each applicant has been in the school system of this district, providing all other qualifications are equal. The Board declares its support of a policy of promotion from within its own teaching staff whenever possible.

D. A Promotion and Transfer Committee shall be established which shall consist of five members, three of whom shall be administrators and two of whom shall be teachers.

E. The Promotion and Transfer Committee shall recommend criteria for the selecting of the superintendent, deputy and assistant superintendents, directors, and assistant directors; and shall make recommendations for the filling of any vacancies occuring in the positions of assistant principal, principal, departmental directors or consultants, and coordinators.

NEW YORK COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RELATIONS

When the public transit employees in New York City went on strike in 1966, Governor Nelson Rockefeller established a Committee on Public Employee Relations, and requested it "to make legislative proposals for protecting the public against the disruption of vital public services by illegal strikes, while at the same time protecting the rights of public employees."

The recommendations of the committee were comprehensive and were made for all public employees in New York State. The full text of Part Three, "The Resolution of Deadlocks in Collective Negotiations," is reproduced beginning page E-1.

PRELIMINARY DATA FROM 1966-67

SURVEY OF WRITTEN NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES BETWEEN LOCAL SCHOOL BOARDS AND ORGANIZATIONS OF THE TEACHING PROFESSION

The data which follow are preliminary and were obtained from the survey of written negotiation procedures now being conducted by the NEA Research Division. The data are based on the returns processed as of March 30, 1967.

General Survey Information

- 7,157 school systems in the United States received questionnaires on their written negotiation procedures for staff - school board negotiation.
- 4,653 systems returned completed questionnaires.
- 1,144,269 classroom teachers are employed by the responding school systems.
- 1,259,361 instructional staff members are employed by the responding systems.
- 1,097 school systems have agreements for recognizing an organization representing the instructional staff.
- 449,148 instructional staff are represented in written negotiation procedures.
- 513,594 instructional staff are employed in school systems which have written negotiation agreements.
- 745,767 instructional staff are employed in responding school systems without written negotiation agreements.

Organizational Representation

- 375 school systems have the recognized organization represent the full instructional staff (excluding the superintendent).
- 654 organizations represent a part of the instructional staff, not the full instructional staff (excluding the superintendent).
- 65 school systems have two or more organizations representing the staff:

  32 of the 65 school systems with multiple organizations representing the staff negotiate separately with each organization.

  29 additional systems with multiple organization representation utilize joint negotiation, with representation proportional to membership in the organizations.

4 systems negotiate with equal representation from each of the organizations.

- 77 systems use a type of representation other than by organization. Almost half of the 77 systems are in Oregon where the state statute requires that a committee of individuals be elected, rather than an organization.

- 8 states have no agreements for staff representation reported.

Determination of Representation

- 257 school systems determined the organization to represent the instructional staff by means of a referendum.

- 132 systems determined staff representation by means of signed cards.

- 203 determinations of staff representation were made on the basis of verified membership.

- 396 systems utilized a "request to negotiate" to determine representation.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
LABOR MEDIATION BOARD

In the Matter of GRAND RAPIDS BOARD OF EDUCATION and GRAND RAPIDS EDUCATION ASSOCIATION and GRAND RAPIDS FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, LOCAL 256, AFL-CIO	Case nos. R65-I-91 R65-J-169

Appearances:

For the Grand Rapids Board of Education — Roger D. Anderson, Attorney at Law

For the Grand Rapids Education Association — Theodore W. Swift, Attorney at Law

For the Grand Rapids Federation of Teachers, Local 256, AFL-CIO — A. Robert Kleiner, Attorney at Law

This matter having come on for hearing before Leo W. Walsh, Member of the Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the "Mediation Board", at Grand Rapids, Michigan, on March 22 and 23, and April 19, 20, 27, and 28, 1966, and the Mediation Board having considered the testimony, arguments and briefs of the parties, and being fully advised in the premises, hereby makes the following findings of fact, conclusions of law, and order.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Grand Rapids Board of Education is a public employer within the meaning and intent of the Michigan Public Employment Relations Act, Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended, hereafter referred to as "the Act."

The Grand Rapids Education Association and the Grand Rapids Federation of Teachers, Local 256, AFL-CIO, are labor organizations within the meaning and intent of the Act.

The Grand Rapids Board of Education will hereafter be referred to as the "Board." The Grand Rapids Education Association will hereafter be referred to as the "Association." The Grand Rapids Federation of Teachers will hereafter be referred to as the "Federation."

On September 22, 1965, the Association filed with the Mediation Board a petition for election requesting certification as representative of "all certified personnel K through 12, excluding supervisors and executive personnel, as defined by the Act" of the Board. On October 6, 1965, the Federation filed a similar petition, requesting certification as the representative of "all certified personnel, 7 through 12; excluding supervisory and executive personnel as defined by the Act." Subsequently, and before the hearing herein, the Labor Relations Division of the Mediation Board made an administrative determination that both petitioners met the showing of interest requirement of Section 12 (a) of the Act. Such determination was in each instance based on the unit claimed in the petition. No objection was made to this determination by either petitioner at the hearing.

At the commencement of the hearing, the Federation contended that it could not make a proper determination of the unit it claimed to represent until the unfair labor charge which it had filed alleging domination of the Association by the Board had been determined by the Mediation Board. It, therefore, moved to strike the description of the bargaining unit in its petition for election and for authority to define its claimed bargaining unit at a later time, presumably after the charge case had been finally determined. The charge case was heard by Robert Pisarski, Chief Trial Examiner of the Mediation Board, on January 24, 25 and 26, 1966. The Trial Examiner's Report and Recommended Order was issued June 14, 1966. His Report and Recommendations were, in part, that the Association was not dominated by the Board and, therefore, the Association should not be disestablished as a potential representative of teacher employees of the Board.

The motion was not a motion to amend, but a motion to strike the description of the bargaining unit completely from its petition for election. It was, therefore, denied. There was no later motion made by the Federation to amend its description of the claimed bargaining unit.

Subsequently, on July 14, 1966, the Federation filed with the Board exceptions to the Trial Examiner's Report and Recommendations. Exceptions were also filed by the Association and by the Board on July 15, 1966. Accordingly, the Mediation Board is required to review the Findings and Recommendations of the Trial Examiner. Before doing so, it must have before it a written transcript of the proceedings before the Trial Examiner (Section 16 (b)).

The principal issue presented is what constitutes an appropriate bargaining unit among the teacher employees of the Board. The Board carries on a comprehensive educational program, commencing with kindergarten and covering all grades and non-graded pupils from kindergarten through junior college. The Board has previously consented to recognize an organization of the professional staff of the Junior College to represent them in collective bargaining. There is no representation petition filed with the Mediation Board for the Junior College professional staff. For these reasons, the professional employees of the Grand Rapids Junior College are not under consideration here, although the Federation contends in establishing the appropriate bargaining unit or units of the professional staff of the Board, the Mediation Board should consider the inclusion of the professional staff of the Junior College in the unit or units determined to be appropriate for collective bargaining among all of the professional employees of the Board. Hereafter, in referring to all or any segment of the professional staff of the Board from kindergarten through the twelfth grade, it will be designated as "K through 12", "K through 6", "7 through 12", or any other like designation.

The petitioners have agreed by stipulation on the various job classifications that should be included in the bargaining unit or units, with three exceptions. The exceptions are elementary intern program consultants, elementary program interns and substitute teachers not on contract. The two issues herein under consideration will be treated separately.

APPROPRIATE BARGAINING UNIT OR UNITS

The Federation contends that there is a substantial diversity of interest between elementary and secondary teachers, so that they should not be included in the same bargaining unit. It further alleges that there has been a past history of representation and bargaining with the Board by the Federation for secondary teachers only, and that such history establishes a practice of separate representation by the Federation which should prevail in determining this question.

The Association contends that, although there are some differences in the teaching methods between the elementary and secondary levels, they are incidental; that by and large, the purpose and objectives of teaching, as well as the compensation and fringe benefits, are identical, resulting in a community of interest among all teachers, K through 12. It further contends that in all known instances where teachers have been recognized for collective bargaining purposes throughout the United States, the appropriate unit has always been determined to be K through 12. It opposes the fragmentation of the teachers into two units, contending this would set one group against the other, resulting in dissension and competition inimical to the best interests of the students and the teaching profession.

The Grand Rapids school system has as its responsibility the education of 62% of the children in the City of Grand Rapids, K through 12. It has in its employment some 1,500 teachers, as well as a large administrative staff. The system has a complete educational program, including facilities and staff for retarded and handicapped children, a physical training and athletic program, and special educational activities such as in music, art, and manual training.

It generally divides its students into three groupings, K through 6, 7 through 8 and 9 or 10 through 12. The K through 6 students are known as the elementary group; the 7 through 8 or 9 are known as the junior high school group; and the 9 or 10 through 12 are known as the senior high school group. Some of its buildings are devoted exclusively to housing the students and educational facilities in each of these three groups. Some, however, contain students in all groupings, and some in two of the groupings. This is determined by the available facilities and the best accommodation of the students.

The teaching technique is the same in the elementary group and the junior and senior high school groups, with some minor exceptions. Teaching in the elementary grades is described as being self-contained. This means that the teacher has the same students all day and teaches all subjects to those students with the exception of physical education and other specialized training. In the junior and senior high schools, the educational technique is described as departmentalized. This means that each teacher is a specialist in one or more subjects, and teaches those subjects only. The students circulate from a home room on a pre-arranged schedule to the rooms of the individual teachers to receive training in each subject. The normal assignment for a secondary teacher is five classes each day in addition to a period in which she is assigned to a home room to supervise students who are not attending a class.

There are some exceptions to this differentiation in teaching techniques because of certain problems within the school system brought about by overcrowding or for other reasons. The Board has found it necessary to teach some of the junior high school grades on a self-contained basis or on a partially self-contained and a partially departmentalized basis. These situations are the exception to the rule.

Teachers are required by law to be certified by the Michigan Department of Education. Certification is either in the elementary or secondary area of education, for the reason that secondary teachers need training in specialized disciplines or subjects to comply with the departmental type of program in the secondary schools; whereas, elementary teachers are trained to teach all subjects included in the elementary school curriculum. Teachers may have both elementary and secondary certification and may, therefore, teach in either area. Some of the teachers in the Grand Rapids school system do have such dual certification. There are teachers in the system who have become certified in the area in which they have not taught before and have switched from one area to the other.

Both the Federation and the Association have been in existence as teacher organizations in the Grand Rapids school system for a number of years. Both have members who teach in the elementary and in the secondary areas.

The Board has met and consulted with both organizations in the past in regard to salaries and other working conditions and has given consideration to recommendations and suggestions from both organizations. The Board has not recognized either organization as the representative, either of its members or of all teachers as their bargaining representative.

The current salaries, increments and fringe benefits are the same for all teachers with the same educational qualifications and experience in the elementary and secondary areas.

In 1960, as a result of an alleged breach of its contract with the secondary teachers in the Grand Rapids school system, an organization of secondary teachers was formed, known as the "Secondary Teachers Association." The Association initiated a suit in the Superior Court of Grand Rapids in 1961 alleging that certain working conditions covered in the contract were changed during the course of the school year. The Association became inactive after the litigation and is no longer in existence.

The rules of the Board require a difference in the elapsed time to be spent at school between the elementary and the secondary teachers. The elementary teacher has 30 hours of such time; whereas, the secondary teacher has 35 hours. All teachers are required to do preparatory work for classes. The secondary teachers have some time during their regular school day for preparatory work, while the elementary teachers have none. The amount of time spent by teachers in preparatory work outside of the regular school day varies with individual teachers and cannot be adequately measured.

The number of days in the school year is the same for both elementary and secondary teachers.

Makeup of Bargaining Unit or Units

When the hearing was adjourned between March 23 and April 19, the Federation, the Association, and the Board met in an attempt to reach agreement as to the job classifications to be included in the bargaining unit or units. There are in all 76 job classifications in the administrative and professional personnel of the Board. All interested parties agreed that 42 of the job classifications should be excluded from the unit or units (Joint Exhibit 1A). They also agreed that 31 job classifications should be included (Joint Exhibit 1B). They were unable to agree as to the inclusion or exclusion of 3 job classifications in the bargaining unit or units (Joint Exhibit 1C). The job classifications upon which agreement was not reached are: Elementary Intern Program Consultants, Elementary Program Interns, and Substitute Teachers not on contract. The Board has an arrangement with Michigan State University School of Education wherein candidates for degrees in education do practice teaching in the Grand Rapids school system before they receive their degree in education. These teachers have special certification from the Michigan Department of Education and are a part of the teaching staff of the Grand Rapids system. They are paid for their services at a salary less than the regularly certified teachers. These teachers are known as "Elementary Program Interns" and teach only in the elementary area.

They are supervised by selected teachers, who are employees of the Grand Rapids school system and whose duties are to assist and advise the Elementary Program Interns in their term of practice teaching.

This intern program is supervised by a designee of the School of Education of Michigan State University. The placement of the Interns, their assignments to consultants and the supervision of their work is all done on a co-operative basis between the Board and the designated representative of Michigan State University.

Each consultant works with and assists five Interns. Their function is to teach the Interns the techniques of teaching and prepare them for regular teaching assignments. They make recommendations to the School of Education of Michigan State University in respect to the quality of the teaching skill of the Intern. This information is used by the School in making a determination regarding the granting of a degree in education to the Intern. These recommendations are made directly to the University and are not made to the Board.

The responsibility of the evaluation of the intern teacher and his supervision as far as the Board is concerned rests with the principal of the school in which the intern teaches, the same as with regularly certified teachers.

The job classification of Substitute Teacher involves teachers who have a limited certification for substitute teaching for not in excess of ninety days in the school year by certification by the State Department of Education, life certificate teachers and retired teachers. The Board has a list of such teachers who are available on short notice to substitute for a full-time teacher who is absent for illness or other reasons. The substitute teachers who have limited certification for a maximum of ninety days' teaching in the school year do not meet the educational requirements of regularly certified teachers. The life certificate and retired teachers who do substitute work may or may not have such qualifications.

The substitute teachers do not have a contract with the Board. Upon their indication of willingness to do substitute teaching and upon the condition that they meet the requirements of certification, they are placed on a list and are subject to call when the need arises. Usually, the substitute teacher's availability is limited by location, transportation, other obligations, and her competence in the discipline that is needed. Substitute teachers have no commitment with the Board for any particular amount of availability, and are often on the lists of substitute teachers of other Boards of Education. They are not obliged to serve when called, and may decline for any reason. They will be removed from the list at any time upon request. They do not share in the fringe benefits of full-time teachers and are paid on a per diem rather than on an annual basis. The substitute teacher list is made up in August for the coming school year. However, it is constantly changing, due to requests for withdrawal from the list and for replacement on it.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Act provides the criteria for determining the bargaining unit in Section 13:

The board shall decide in each case, in order to insure public employees the full benefit of their right to self-organization, to collective bargaining and otherwise to effectuate the policies of this act, the unit appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining as provided in section 9e of Act. No. 176 of the Public Acts of 1939:...

Section 13 incorporates into the Act by reference Section 9e of Act. No. 176 of the Public Acts of 1939, as amended, being the Michigan Labor Mediation Act. Section 9e of the Michigan Labor Mediation Act reads as follows:

The board, after consultation with the parties, shall determine such a bargaining unit as will best secure to the employees their right of collective bargaining. The unit shall be either the employees of 1 employer employed in 1 plant or business enterprise within this state, not holding executive or supervisory positions, or a craft unit, or a plant unit, or a subdivision of any of the foregoing units; Provided, however, That if the group of employees involved in the dispute has been recognized by the employer or identified by certification, contract or past practice, as a unit for collective bargaining, the board may adopt such unit.

It is apparent from a reading of Section 9e that the Mediation Board has substantial discretion in determining appropriate bargaining units. It may, but it is not required to, take into consideration the past practice of the parties.

In addition to the statutory guidelines set forth in Section 9e, the Supreme Court of Michigan, in Hotel Olds v. State Labor Mediation Board, 333 Mich. 382 (1952), had occasion to consider what constitutes an appropriate bargaining unit. In this case, the court quoted from a decision of the Massachusetts Labor Commission to the effect that it was a primary objective of the Commission to constitute the largest unit which in the particular case is most compatible with the effectuation of the purposes of the law, and to include in a single unit all common interests.

Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947 was substantially amended in 1965 (Act 379 of the Public Acts of 1965). Prior to the 1965 amendments, the Act made no attempt to define a unit. It provided that "any given group" of public employees could petition for mediation. In construing this provision in Garden City School Board v. Labor Mediation Board, 358 Mich. 258 (1959), the Supreme Court said:

The basic notion of a 'group' or unit suitable for bargaining or mediating employee grievances is that of unity of interests.

The Mediation Board has, on several previous occasions, accepted the criteria of unity of interest or community of interest as being the proper one in determining an appropriate bargaining unit. We have held in Union School District of the City of Jackson and American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, and Non-Teaching Employees Club and International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local Union 933, Case No. R-65-H-26 (January 25, 1966), in City of Warren and International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local No. 299, and American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, Case No. R-65-H-30, and R-65-H-37 (January 18, 1966), and in South Redford School District and American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, and Local 299, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America, Case No. R-65-J-183 (June 30, 1966), that the largest bargaining unit which under the circumstances of the particular case is most compatible with the effectuation of the Act is the appropriate and proper bargaining unit.

In the South Redford School District case we said:

We do not think the electricians have basic interests substantially distinct and different from those of the other crafts in the maintenance group in terms of conditions of employment, qualifications, skills, pay, places of employment, methods of compensation, similarity of duties and the like. (Emphasis added)

In applying the foregoing criteria, we find that all of the K through 12 teachers of the Grand Rapids school system have a similarity of conditions of employment, qualifications, skills, pay, places of employment, methods of compensation and of duties.

There is a difference in the teaching methods between elementary and secondary areas, as described above. However, this difference in methods does not mean that the teaching process is basically different in the one than in the other. Teachers still must perform the teaching function in both areas. They maintain discipline, prepare for class, teach the subject or subjects, consult with parents, keep records, and perform the many other duties of teaching.

The secondary teachers spend more required time at school than the elementary teachers, but they have some time while at school to prepare for classes; whereas, the elementary teachers are required to do all of their preparatory work outside of the hours they are required to be at school. This difference is not basic, and does not result in any diversity of interest among the elementary and secondary teachers.

The past history of relations between the Federation and the Board consists of the Federation presenting to the Board, either in writing or by meeting with the Board, proposals on behalf of its members respecting salaries and other working conditions. It has been the practice of the Board to entertain suggestions and proposals in this area from both the Association and the Federation, and to meet and discuss the proposals with them. The decisions were then made unilaterally by the Board. There is no substantial evidence that the Federation on these occasions held itself out to speak only for the secondary teachers; and it, in fact, has among its membership both elementary and secondary teachers.

In recent years, there has been a tendency throughout the country to recognize organizations as representatives of the teachers in some areas. There are some situations where, without the benefit of legal sanction, boards of education have recognized organizations of teachers to represent them in collective bargaining, and have negotiated agreements with such organizations. More recently, in several states, legal sanction has been given to such arrangements. In some of these states, the bargaining unit for teachers and other public employees has been defined in the legislation. In others, general guidelines have been laid down for determining the appropriate bargaining unit, as under the Michigan Act. Evidence adduced at the hearing indicated that, either where voluntary recognition has occurred, or where it has occurred under enabling state statutes, there is no known instance of a bargaining unit of teachers which does not include all of the teachers in the school system.

The State of Wisconsin has a Public Employment Act similar to Michigan's. In 1964, it was faced with a like problem to the instant case in Joint School District No. 8, City of Madison, Wisconsin Employment Relations Board Decision No. 6746 (May 15, 1964). In this proceeding, the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers urged the Wisconsin Board to fractionalize the teachers employed by the Board of Education of Madison, Wisconsin, on the basis of departments and plants. The Wisconsin Board, in denying this request, said:

The employees involved in this proceeding are engaged in a single profession, that of teaching. The Wisconsin Federation of Teachers desires to split the statutorily established unit into various departments or plants. The fact that teachers perform their duties in separate schools under separate immediate supervision does not establish that each school is a separate department or plant. The function of each school is identical, that is, the education of the youth. While the facilities may be separately located, methods and techniques used in such function are for the most part identical in each school. Generally the curriculum for all schools is planned, directed and supervised by the school board, the superintendent and other high level administrators, as is the employment of all teachers and the conditions thereof. The immediate separate supervision of the principals at the various schools is subject to the scrutiny and control of the board, the superintendent and high level administrators. To fragmentize the teachers in the employ of one school system on a school by school basis for the purpose of conferences and negotiations with their municipal employer would not only interfere with the proper and efficient administration of a school system, but would in the end result frustrate the intent and purpose of Section 111.70.

The Mediation Board concurs in the views expressed by the Wisconsin Board.

For the foregoing reasons, it is the determination of the Mediation Board that the bargaining unit among the teaching personnel of the Grand Rapids Board of Education which will best secure to them their rights of collective bargaining is one consisting of all teachers, K through 12.

Makeup of Bargaining Unit

The Mediation Board concurs in the agreement of the parties that the job classifications in Joint Exhibit 1B are proper classifications to be included in the bargaining unit.

With respect to the three remaining classifications upon which agreement was not reached, the Mediation Board makes the following determinations.

The Elementary Intern Consultants are teachers whose function is to assist in the training of the Elementary Interns. They, as well as the Interns, are under the direct supervision of the school principal. The Consultants do make recommendations with respect to the quality of the work performed by the Interns; however, these recommendations are made to the Department of Education of Michigan State University and not to the Board. They are not available to the Board personnel and, therefore, are not used in evaluating the Interns. The Mediation Board has in the past followed the definition of a supervisor found in the National Labor Relations Act, Section 2 (11). See School District of the City of East Detroit and East Detroit Federation of Teachers and East Detroit Education Association, Case No. R-65-I-49 (January 25, 1966). The Elementary Intern Consultants do not have authority to hire, transfer, suspend, layoff, recall, promote, discharge, assign, reward, or discipline the Interns. Nor do they have the responsibility to direct them or to adjust their grievances or effectively to recommend such action to the Board. It is the conclusion of the Mediation Board, therefore, that Elementary Intern Program Consultants should be included in the bargaining unit.

The Elementary Program Interns are employees of the Board under an arrangement with Michigan State University, wherein, after reaching a certain point in their academic progress toward a degree in education at the University, they are assigned in cooperation with the Board to perform practice teaching in the Grand Rapids school system. They perform all of the functions of other teachers in the elementary area, and are assisted and advised by the Elementary Intern Program Consultants. They are qualified under special certification by the Michigan Department of Education. When they have satisfactorily completed their practice teaching, they receive their degree in education. They are paid a salary which is less than regularly certified teaching personnel salaries. For the foregoing reasons, it is the conclusion of the Mediation Board that the Elementary Program Interns should be included in the bargaining unit.

The third classification upon which the parties could not agree was that of Substitute Teachers. The Substitute Teachers are of two groups, those who are certified but are not under contract with the Board, and a group who, under special certification, are permitted to substitute teach for a period of not to exceed 90 days in any school year. The teachers in the second category do not meet the educational requirements for the fully certified teacher. They are paid on a per diem basis. They do not participate in the fringe benefits received by the regularly certified teachers. They are not obligated to teach when called upon to do so. They may be removed from the Substitute Teacher list at any time upon request. In many instances, whether or not they will accept an assignment depends upon the location of the work available and their other commitments. They are not guaranteed any minimum amount of work. They are often on the Substitute Teacher list of other school boards.

This question was before us in School District of the City of East Detroit, supra., wherein we said:

Because of the temporary and sporadic nature of employment, coupled with no reasonable expectation of permanent employment, both categories of fully certified substitute teachers and ninety-day certificate substitute teachers will be excluded from the bargaining unit.

For the foregoing reasons, it is the determination of the Mediation Board that Substitute Teachers will be excluded from the bargaining unit.

Representation Election

There being before the Mediation Board an unresolved issue regarding the qualifications of one of the petitioning employee organizations to represent the employees in the bargaining unit found herein to be appropriate, a representation election will not be ordered until this issue is resolved.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the following job classifications (K through 12) among the teaching employees of the Grand Rapids Board of Education shall constitute an appropriate unit for collective bargaining:

Coordinator of Office Practice Coordinator of Work Training Program Psychologist
Diagnosticians
Secondary Librarian Director
Secondary Fused Director
Secondary Athletic Director
Secondary Social Studies Department Head Secondary Head Counselor
Secondary Counselor
Secondary English Department Head
Secondary Math Department Head
Secondary Science Department Head
Secondary Coordinator - Trade and Industrial Secondary Coordinator of Retail Practice
Secondary Dramatics
Eighth Grade Director
Seventh Grade Director
Seventh and Eighth Grade Director
Special Education Job Coordinator
Instructional Assistant
Unassigned Classroom Teachers
Art Consultant
Music Consultant
Physical Education Consultant
Speech Correctionist Helping Teacher
Remedial Reading
Visiting Teachers
Classroom Teachers
Elementary Intern Program Consultants
Elementary Program Intern
Any of the above-listed personnel on sabbatical or sick leave and excluding all supervisory and executive personnel.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that upon a final determination by the Labor Mediation Board of the unfair labor charges before it against the Grand Rapids Board of Education, an Order directing an election among the employees in the appropriate unit, as herein determined, will issue.

SYLLABUS

1. A statute should not be construed so as to extend its provisions to cover that which is specifically excluded by the legislature.

2. L. 1965, c. 839, § 7 (Minn. St. 179,572), which excepts teachers from the application of several sections of the so-called Public Employees Labor Relations Act, Minn. St. 179.50 to 179.58, is not unconstitutional as an unreasonable and arbitrary classification denying to teachers equal protection under U.S. Const. Amend. XIV and Minn. Const. art. 1, § 2, and art. 4, §§ 33 and 34. The legislature has historically treated teachers as a distinct classification, and this unique historical recognition, found in numerous other statutes which treat public school teachers as a class apart from other public employees, is sufficient to support its validity. Excepting teachers from provisions of the Public Employees Labor Relations Act expresses a determination by the legislature that a distinction exists between the two classes which justifies applying rules to one class which do not apply to another. In the matter of classification courts have viewed the action of the legislature with great liberality. Courts are not to weigh the merits of a classification in the judicial balance and to reject it merely because they might favor a different standard.

3. L. 1965, c. 839, is a revision of some sections of the former Public Employees Labor Relations Act; sets up a general or exclusive system covering the entire subject matter of that part of the former law; is intended as a substitute for it; and repeals the sections of the former law amended by it.

4. The provisions of c. 839 which revised former provisions of the Public Employers Labor Relations Act did not add to nor detract from prior rights of school teachers as they relate to the right to strike or the right to join labor or other organizations. In the absence of a statute, there is no authority which gives a public employee the right to strike nor is there a prohibition against the right of teachers to join unions or associations organized to promote their mutual interest.

5. There is no authority, either express or implied, which gives the school board the right to hold an election for the purpose of designating an exclusive representative of teachers to negotiate with the school board with relation to wages, hours, and working conditions. Public employees do not have collective bargaining rights in the same sense that private or industrial employees enjoy.

Reversed.

OPINION

MURPHY, Justice.

These are appeals from judgments entered in declaratory judgment actions. Error is assigned in the trial court's holding that L. 1965, c. 839, § 7 (Minn. St. 179.572), which excepts teachers from the application of the rest of c. 839, is unconstitutional and severable. Chapter 839 amended and added new provisions to the so-called Public Employees Labor Relations Act (Minn. St. 179.50 to 179.58).

The parties involved in this appeal are rival groups of public school teachers. Respondent Minneapolis Federation of Teachers, Local 59, is a trade-union-oriented organization affiliated with the AFL-CIO and hereinafter referred to as "Local 59." Appellant, City of Minneapolis Education Association, a nonunion organization, is affiliated with the Minnesota Education Association and the National Education Association. These two organizations have deep and irreconcilable differences which give rise to a conflict between them as to the manner in which teachers should communicate and treat with school boards on subjects relating to wages and conditions of employment.[1] We gather from the extended arguments submitted, the original files which constitute the record, briefs of the parties, and brief amicus curiae, that both groups seek the same objective but differ as to means. A review of the attempts of public school teachers to attain some satisfactory basis for meaningful communication with school boards by which their demands might be made known, considered, and resolved in a manner consistent with individual dignity and the ethics of their calling is a study of frustration.

Some background references should be noted. The threat of a strike as a means of dealing with employer-employee relationships in the public educational systems came to the surface in January 1951, when the Board of Education of the city of Minneapolis sought an injunction restraining a threatened strike by a union composed of school maintenance employees. Board of Education of City of Minneapolis v. Public School Employees' Union, 233 Minn. 144, 45 N.W. (2d) 797. The disposition of that dispute turned upon the interpretation of a procedural statute and contributed nothing to the law with which we are here concerned aside from raising a spectre of dangers of strikes by public employees, a subject which the legislature promptly acted upon at its next session. By L. 1951, c. 146, the legislature adopted an act "to prohibit strikes by certain public employees; to provide certain disciplinary action with respect thereto; to provide for the adjustment of grievances and reporting the facts relative thereto; and to provide conditions of reemployment." This act was amended by L 1957, c. 789, which provided that public employees "shall have the right to form and join labor organizations" and prohibited intimidation or coercion in such activity. Apparently, the act was also intended to aid public employees in their dealings with heads of government agencies. The act comprehended that the services of the Labor conciliator should be utilized to investigate controversies and to ascertain representatives of employee groups by means of a secret ballot. By our decision in Richfield Federation of Teachers v. Richfield Education Assn. 263 Minn. 21, 27, 115 N. W. (2d) 682, 686, this provision of the act was found to be lacking in vitality. We there held that "the Conciliator has no implied authority to specify units of representation for purposes of implementing the provisions of the act governing meetings between public employers and public employees under §179.63."

The next development occurred when President Kennedy promulgated an executive order on January 17, 1962, on "employee-Management Cooperation in the Federal Service." Exec. Order No. 10988, 27 F.R. 551. This order provided definite means of communication between associations of Federal government employees and agency heads, which would make it possible to focus public attention upon the merits of employee claims. Apparently, the Minnesota Legislature intended that the 1965 Public Employees Labor Relations Act should be patterned after the proposals contained in President Kennedy's executive order. In amending prior laws on the subject, the legislature in L. 1965, c. 839, recognized in its statement of policy that "adequate means should be provided for preventing controversies between governmental agencies and public employees, and for resolving them when they occur.: Because of the nature of governmental service required "special limitations upon public employment," it was incumbent upon the state to provide "orderly procedures for the participation by public employees and their representatives in the formulation of personnel policies and plans to insure the fair and considerate treatment of public employees, to eliminate employment inequities, and to provide effective means of resolving questions and controversies with respect to terms and conditions of employment." The legislature expressed the policy that governmental agencies should "enter into discussions with affirmative willingness to resolve grievances and differences" and that there was a "mutual obligation to endeavor in good faith to resolve grievances and differences  within the framework of laws and charter provisions." It is unnecessary to go into the various provisions of c. 839 except to say that in substance it provides for a collective bargaining arrangement for meaningful negotiations subject to the limitation that it does not insure binding arbitration--a limitation inherent in the nature of governmental employment. The act reaffirms denial of the right to strike; affirms the right of public employees to form and join labor or employee organizations; and provides for the election of a representative who may bargain and treat with agency heads as the representative of all employees if the organization represents a majority of the employees.

The part of c. 839 which gives rise to the controversy is §7 (Minn. St. 179.572), which states that the act shall not apply to public school teachers as defined in Minn. St. 125.03, subd. 1. The reason for this exception was that the legislature intended to make special provision for the manner in which school teachers should treat with school boards with relation to questions growing out of their employment. Simultaneously with the enactment of c. 839, the legislature enacted a bill which provided teachers with grievance and representation machinery differing from that provided for other public employees. The bill, H.F. 1504, was entitled "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE TEACHING PROFESSION AND PROVIDING FOR THE SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES BETWEEN SCHOOL BOARDS AND CERTIFICATED SCHOOL PERSONNEL IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF THIS STATE." This bill expressed the policy that it would be in the best interests of public education "that a legal procedure be established on a professional level for the orderly, equitable and expeditious settlement of  disputes." The bill affirmed the right of teachers "to join and form organizations" to deal with the terms and conditions of professional public education and their right "not to join and form such organizations." It affirmed the right of certificated school personnel "to designate representatives for the purpose of meeting with the school board or any committee thereof in an effort to reach a solution to problems" arising from terms and conditions of employment. It recognized the right of representatives to meet and to confer "in good faith" with school boards or their committees and recognized that the parties should make every reasonable effort to resolve disputes. It imposed upon the school board the duty to provide an opportunity for hearing upon request and delegated to the boards the right to establish procedures "for carrying on meetings and for reaching agreement." The bill provided for a form of appeal to the commissioner of education under circumstances where a school board would refuse to meet and confer. In the event of failure to reach a settlement, the commissioner of education was to "act to resolve such disputes by appointing a mediator who shall be qualified, trained and experienced in the field of public education." The bill delegated to the commissioner the power to "prescribe rules regulating the time and manner" of taking such appeals. The bill provided that if conferences with the mediator were not satisfactory, at the request of a majority of the "certificated school personnel" an adjustment panel should be constituted to hear the dispute.

The bill passed both the house and the senate, but was vetoed by the governor. Both it and c. 839 were part of a package relating to an entire field, but, because of the governor's veto, only one became law. In his letter informing the secretary of state that he would not sign the bill, the governor said:

> Since good results were achieved by the non-partisan committee appointed by me to recommend improvements to the public employees labor relations law, I see no reason that a similarly constituted committee could not work out answers to the problems with which we are faced. I will appoint such a committee and charge it with the responsibility of investigating these problems and making recommendations to the 1967 session of the Legislature.

With the legislation in this freak posture, where one or two concurrent bills relating to the entire field of public employees labor relations was vetoed and the other signed into law, Local 59 insisted upon proceeding to have elections held and a representative determined to negotiate in behalf of the school teachers pursuant to the provisions of c. 839. In the proceedings before the lower court, it was held that this could be done. The trial court held that §7 was unconstitutional as an unreasonable and arbitrary classification of teachers separate and apart from other state employees and concluded therefore that in spite of the clear intent of the legislature, the governor's veto of the concurrent bill fortuitously brought the teachers within the compass of c. 839.

1. Since we hold that §7 is a constitutional classification, it is unnecessary for us to discuss the issue of severability (Minn. St. 645.20) upon which the decision of the lower court rests. If there is anything clear from the standpoint of legislative intent and contemporary history of this legislation, it is that the teachers were not to be included in the provisions of c. 839 and that they were to be governed by other provisions. It may be said by way of dicta that even if it is assumed that §7 is unconstitutional, we have been cited to no authority to the effect that the court may extend the application of the statute beyond the limits of its provisions. To construe a statute so as to extend its provisions to cover that which is specifically excluded by the legislature seems to us to be an exercise of lawmaking power which courts do not possess. 16 Am.

Jur. (2d) Constitutional Law, §192.

2. The principal issue presented is raised by the contention that §7 is unconstitutional as denying to public school teachers employed by boards of education the statutory benefits granted to all other employees, including teachers employed by the state university and state colleges. We find no definite rule of universal application to determine whether a particular classification is reasonable or unreasonable. It must be recognized that all legislation involves classification since the very idea of legislation implies distinctions and categories of one sort or another. The mere presence of inequality does not in itself determine the question of constitutionality. 16 Am. Jur. (2d) Constitutional Law, § 494; 3B Dunnell, Dig. (3 ed.) § 1669.

The standards of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution are the same as the standards of equality under art. 1, § 2, and art. 4, §§ 33 and 34, of the Minnesota Constitution. C. Thomas Stores Sales System, Inc. v. Spaeth, 209 Minn. 504, 297 N.W. 9.

When the legislature has determined that a sufficient distinction exists between the two classes of persons to justify applying rules to one class which do not apply to the other, such determination is binding upon the courts unless it appears that the distinction is purely fanciful and arbitrary and that no substantial or logical basis exists therefor. Classification can never be a judicial question except for the purpose of determining, in a given situation, whether the legislative action is clearly unreasonable. In the matter of classification courts have viewed the action of the legislature with great liberality. Courts are not to weigh the merits of a classification in the judicial balance and to reject it merely because they might favor a different standard. These principles are supported in numerous Minnesota authorities including Fairview Hospital Assn. v. Public Bldg. Serv. Union, 241 Minn. 523, 64 N.W. (2d) 16; State ex rel. Ging v. Board of Education, 213 Minn. 550, 7 N.W. (2d) 544; Mathison v. Minneapolis St. Ry. Co. 126 Minn. 286, 148 N.W. 71; Eldred v. Division of Employment and Security, 209 Minn. 58, 295 N.W. 412; State v. International Harvester Co. 241 Minn. 367, 63 N.W. (2d) 547, appeal dismissed, 348 U.S. 853, 75 S. Ct. 78, 99 L. ed. 672; Arens v. Village of Rogers, 240 Minn. 386, 61 N.W. (2d) 508, appeal dismissed, 347 U.S. 949, 74 S. Ct. 680, 98 L. ed. 1096; Dimke v. Finke, 209 Minn. 29, 295 N.W. 75; Anderson v. City of St. Paul, 226 Minn. 186, 32 N.W. (2d) 538; Fabio v. City of St. Paul, 267 Minn. 273, 126 N.W. (2d) 259; Kaljuste v. Hennepin County Sanatorium Comm. 240 Minn. 407, 61 N.W. (2d) 757; William v. Rolfe, 262 Minn. 284, 114 N.W. (2d) 671. It is unnecessary to discuss the numerous points of comparison and differences suggested by the opposing parties in support of their contentions. Our authorities support the proposition that the provisions of the State and Federal Constitutions which apply to classification of subject matter prohibit only unreasonable or arbitrary classification. Police and fire department employees have been recognized in separate classifications for various purposes. Fabio v. City of St. Paul, supra; Kellerman v. City of St. Paul, 211 Minn. 351, 1N.W. (2d) 378. This court has repeatedly recognized the right of the legislature to treat classes of employees separately and differently for purposes of legislation in granting privileges or imposing burdens on members of the same general class. Fabio v. City of St. Paul, supra (police retirement); Kellerman v. City of St. Paul, supra (occupational diseases of firemen); Burns v. City of St. Paul, 210 Minn. 217, 297 N.W. 638 (police retirement); Kaljuste v. Hennepin County Sanatorium Comm. supra (workmen's compensation for public hospital employees who contract tuberculosis in the course of their employment).

It is well recognized that the legislature may classify professions, occupations, and businesses according to natural and reasonable lines of distinction, and if such legislation affects alike all persons of the same class, it is not an invalid classification. Legislation with reference to the teaching profession has generally been sustained as a valid classification. 16A C. J.S. Constitutional Law, § 496. The Supreme Court of Illinois has held that a classification of public school teachers as a distinct class for appropriate legislation "cannot be successfully challenged." Gorham v. Teachers' Retirement System, 27 Ill. (2d) 593, 599, 190 N.E. (2d) 329, 332. The court said in Krebs v. Board of Trustees, 410 Ill. 435, 443, 102 N.E. (2d) 321, 325, 27 A.L.R. (2d) 1434, 1441:

> The State legislature is charged with the duty of providing the residents of this State a free and public educational system. Such a system requires qualified and competent teachers. The legislature requires these teachers to have certain qualifications. The legislature, by tax laws, provides the means by which these teachers are paid during their teaching careers and thereby, at least indirectly, fixes the amount of their compensation. Under these circumstances, for the legislature to determine that the welfare of the public school system required that a system of retirement allowances be set up for them as a group does not seem unreasonable, and there seems ample justification to distinguish them as a class for that purpose.

In Minnesota, teachers have been treated as a separate group for the purpose of classification in numerous instances. Separate classification has occurred in the Teachers Tenure Act, Minn. St. 125.17. Public school teachers in school districts outside cities of the first class are covered by the Continuing Contract Law, §125.12. Public school teachers in cities of the first class are included in local teacher retirement associations established pursuant to §§354.15 to 354.23. Public school teachers outside cities of the first class come under §§ 354.05 to 354.14 and 354.31 to 354.61 of the Teachers Retirement Association law.

It should be noted that while the Continuing Contract Law and the Teachers Tenure Act of the cities of the first class apply to public school teachers, they do not apply to the University of Minnesota or state college faculty members. Public school teachers are required to be certified under the Certification Act, §125.03.

On the other hand, the legislature has chosen to group other employees apart from public school teachers by the Civil Service Act, Minn. St. c. 43, which applies to state employees; the Veterans Preference Act, §§197.45 and 197.46; and the Public Employees Retirement Act, c. 353. Accordingly, it seems to us that the most persuasive argument in support of the constitutionality of L. 1965, c. 839, § 7, is that the legislature has historically treated teachers as a distinct classification, and this unique historical recognition is sufficient to classify the teachers for the purpose of this legislation.

Finally, we are committed to the principle that unless a law is unconstitutional beyond a reasonable doubt, it must be sustained. The burden of proof in this respect is on the party seeking to set the law aside. In re Taxes on Property of Cold Spring Granite Co. 271 Minn. 460, 136 N.W. (2d) 782; Williams v. Rolfe, supra.

Under all the circumstances, including the past and contemporary history of the legislation before us, we cannot say that the claim that § 7 is unconstitutional has been sustained.

3. This brings us to the present status of the law as it bears upon the statutory rights of teachers with relation to bargaining or negotiation of wages and working conditions. As we view c. 839, it repeals prior laws dealing with public employee labor relations as it affects teachers, except §§179.51 and 179.53 to 179.56, which include the "no strike" section and provisions imposing sanctions in the event of strikes. Counsel for respondent school board suggests in his brief that c. 839 should be construed so as to preserve for teachers the provisions of Minn. St. 1961, §179.52, which provided for an election to select representatives to meet with the school board. We fail to discern what purpose would be served by the innocuous provisions of that section which could not be attained by discussions or conferences conducted in good faith between the school board and representatives of the two teacher organizations. In any event, we are confronted here with a situation where c. 839 covered some of the same subject matter as that dealt with in the previous act. It revised the former method of procedure and provided a different manner of conducting negotiations with heads of state agencies. It is well established that "[w]hen a law purports to be a revision of all laws upon a particular subject, or sets up a general or exclusive system covering the entire subject matter of a former law and is intended as a substitute for such former law, such law shall be construed to repeal all former laws upon the same subject." State v. Elam, 250 Minn. 274, 281, 84 N.W. (2) 227, 232; 17 Dunnell, Dig. (3 ed.) §8928.

As we view the provisions of c. 839, it covers the whole subject matter of those earlier provisions of the Public Employees Labor Relations Act which it amended; plainly shows that it was intended as a substitute for them; and consequently operates as a repeal of them. State v. Roselawn Cemetery Assn. 259 Minn. 479, 108 N.W. (2d) 305.

4. It is also argued that c. 839 should be construed so that with respect to teachers the provisions of the Public Employees Labor Relations Act amended by c. 839 remain in effect. It is asserted that if the provisions of the former act are construed as having been repealed, public school teachers will be left with the denial of the right to strike without the benefit of the right to join labor or other organizations.2/ On this point it should be observed that provisions relating to the denial of the right to strike and the affirmation of the right to join labor organizations neither added to nor detracted from existing rights of state employees. Even in the absence of a statute, we know of no authority which gives a public employee the right to strike. In Norwalk Teachers' Assn. v. Board of Education, 138 Conn. 269, 274, 83 A. (2d) 482, 484, 31 A.L.R. (2d) 1133, 1138, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was certainly no enemy of labor unions, is quoted as saying:

> [A] strike of public employees manifests nothing less than an intent on their part to prevent or obstruct the operations of Government until their demands are satisfied. Such action, looking toward the paralysis of Government by those who have sworn to support it, is unthinkable and intolerable.

Nor did repeal of the statute affirming the right to join labor unions or other associations operate to their prejudice. The law in its present posture does not prohibit membership in a labor union. The right of freedom to assemble granted under the First Amendment permits teachers to join unions or associations organized to promote their mutual interest. Obviously, membership in a union which is committed to the use of a strike as a weapon in negotiations with the school board violates the spirit of the law and according to some authorities would justify prohibitory sanctions. Annotation, 31 A.L.R. (2d) 1142, 1159 to 1164. In the absence of a prohibitory statute or regulation, no good reason appears why school teachers should not organize as a labor union. Norwalk Teachers' Assn. v. Board of Education, supra; 1961 Wis. L. Rev. 609.

We gather from the briefs that there is no serious controversy on these points. The teachers' problem arises from the denial of proper means for communication. The right to join a union or other organization is of little benefit if there are no means by which teachers can communicate with school boards through representatives of such organizations.

5. The next point raised is whether the school board has implied power to conduct an election and bargain with elected representatives of teacher organizations. The school board possesses only such powers as are granted by statute. Board of Education v. Sand, 227 Minn. 202, 34 N.W. (2d) 689. There is no authority either express or implied, by which the school board can hold an election for the purpose of designating an exclusive representative of the teachers. This subject is dealt with in an extensive annotation contained in 31 A. L. R. (2d) 1142. The decisions generally hold that the manner in which public authorities must determine the wages, hours, and working conditions of public employees is governed entirely by the Constitution, statutes, municipal charters, civil service rules and regulations, and resolutions setting out the authority of the public employer. Public employees do not have collective bargaining rights in the same sense that private or industrial employees enjoy them. There must be some statutory provision authorizing collective bargaining. The reason is that the public employer cannot abdicate or bargain away continuing legislative discretion and is not authorized to enter into collective bargaining agreements without specific authority. The fact that statutory provisions grant the right of collective bargaining to employees in private industry does not confer such right on public employers and employees. Richfield Federation of Teachers v. Richfield Education Assn., supra; 31 A. L. R. (2d) 1170.

There is nothing to prevent the heads of governmental agencies from meeting with, or discussing wages, hours, and conditions of employment with, groups, or individuals representing groups of the employee class. The question of collective bargaining for public employees generally, and school teachers particularly, was considered in Norwalk Teachers' Assn. v. Board of Education, supra. The Norwalk teachers' association had a membership consisting of all but two of the teachers in the school system. In the absence of express statutory procedures, the association and the board had in fact entered into an agreement. In this context the court laid down its rules as to recognition and collective bargaining in this statement (138 Conn. 277, 83 A. [2d] 486, 31 A.L.R. [2d] 1140):

>  * * There is no objection to the organization of the plaintiff as a labor union, but if its organization is for the purpose of 'demanding' recognition and collective bargaining the demands must be kept within legal bounds. What we have said does not mean that the plaintiff has the right to organize for all of the purposes for which employees in private enterprise may unite, * * *. Nor does it mean that, having organized, it is necessarily protected against unfair labor practices * * * or that it shall be the exclusive bargaining agent for all employees of the unit, * * . It means nothing more than that the plaintiff may organize and bargain collectively for the pay and working conditions which it may be in the power of the board of education to grant.

The court there held that it was permissible to have a teachers' organization recognized as a representative as long as it was not the exclusive representative for teachers.

It would appear that even without express statutory authority, there is nothing to prevent collective bargaining when it is entered into voluntarily and no prohibitory state statute exists. Even though courts may sanction voluntary bargaining in the absence of statute, satisfactory results can hardly be expected.3/ A statute is needed to spell out procedures to be used in the determination of majority representatives in an appropriate unit. But this is a legislative concern. It may be assumed from the statement expressed in the governor's veto message that H.F. 1504, or some law similar to it, will at the next legislative session provide teachers with rights correlative to those given to other employees of the state. In the meantime, there is nothing to prevent the school board from meeting with representatives of both teacher groups. Certainly, in the past the school board has not dealt individually with its more than 3,000 teachers. Until the legislature provides a better method, the parties must resort to the former methods employed to solve their differences.

2/ Authorities dealing with this area of the law are collected and discussed in numerous articles including Note, 45 Minn.L. Rev. 249; Anderson, Labor Relations in the Public Service, 1961 Wis. L. Rev. 601; Note, 55 Col L. Rev. 343; Note, 75 Harv. L. Rev. 391; and Seitz, Legal Aspects of Public School Teachers Negotiating and Participating in Concerted Activities, 49 Marquette L. Rev. 487.

Reversed.

THOMAS GALLAGHER, Justice (dissenting).

1. The right to strike is not involved in this case Respondent Minneapolis Federation of Teachers Local 59, AFL-CIO, in a separate action brought in the district court was enjoined from engaging in any strike. The federation did not appeal from this injunction and no issue is now presented involving the constitutionality of Minn. St. 179.51 prohibiting strikes; or of §§179.54 and 179.55, imposing forfeitures and penalties upon public employees who strike.

It is undisputed that some 1,613 employees of Minneapolis Special School District No. 1, including clerks, stenographers, nurses, building tradesmen, part-time teacher aides, janitory-engineers, and others, are covered by the 1965 Public Employees Labor Relations Act L. 1965, c. 839.

In addition, it is not disputed that some 6,500 faculty members of the University of Minnesota and several thousand faculty members of the five State Colleges and all classified employees of the state's public school boards are included within the act. But by virtue of c. 839, § 7 (Minn. St. 179.572), all public elementary and high school teachers are excluded from its terms.

2. In my judgment this exclusion constitutes a discrimination against such public elementary and high school teachers and is therefore unconstitutional. The majority seeks to uphold the validity of the exclusion upon the theory that "[a] statute should not be construed so as to extend its provisions to cover that which is specifically excluded by the legislature." While this principle is well established, it can have no application where the constitutionality of the specific exclusion is in issue. Certainly if the exclusion is of itself unconstitutional, it cannot be upheld upon the theory that the language creating it is clear and definite.

The Minnesota Public Employees Labor Relations Act, L. 1965, c. 839, provides a mechanism whereby all public employees, except elementary and high school teachers, may participate in the formulation of personnel policies governing their employment. The purposes of the act and the public policy are defined in § 1 (Minn. St. 179.50) as follows:

> Unresolved disputes in the public service are injurious to the public, the governmental agencies, and public employees; therefore, adequate means should be provided for preventing controversies between governmental agencies and public employees and for resolving them when they occur. Because the paramount interest of the public and the nature of governmental processes make it necessary to impose special limitations upon public employment, it is incumbent upon governmental agencies to provide orderly procedures for the participation by public employees and their representatives in the formulation of personnel policies and plans to insure the fair and considerate treatment of public employees, to eliminate employment inequities, and to provide effective means of resolving questions and controversies with respect to terms and conditions of employment. It is the public policy of the state of Minnesota that governmental agencies, public employees and their representatives shall enter into discussions with affirmative willingness to resolve grievances and differences. Governmental agencies and public employees and their representatives shall have a mutual obligation to endeavor in good faith to resolve grievances and differences relating to terms and conditions of employment, acting within the framework of law and charter provisions, and giving consideration to personnel policies, position classification and compensation plans, and other special rules governing public employment.

Under these clearly expressed purposes and public policies I find no justification for differentiating between the benefited public employees and the excluded public school teachers. Many of the former are lawyers, doctors, professors, assistant professors, instructors, and administrators employed by the University and by the State Colleges. They are professionals who may or may not have an interest in utilizing the protection and rights afforded by the act, but if they desire its protection, they may seek it. What valid reason is there for excluding public school teachers from these same benefits? Certainly they are in the same professional class as are teachers and instructors employed by the university or other state educational institutions.

To justify the exclusion of any particular group of citizens from the benefits of a legislative enactment, it must be shown that there is a substantial difference or distinction between the group excluded and the groups covered by the enactment. As stated in State ex rel. Bd. of Courthouse & City Hall Commrs. v. Cooley, 56 Minn. 540, 550, 58 N.W. 150,153:

> *The fundamental rule is that all classification must be based upon substantial distinctions, which make one class really different from another. * * * [It must be based upon some natural reason, - - some reason suggested by necessity, by some difference in the situation and circumstances of the subjects placed in the different classes, suggesting the necessity of different legislation with respect to them. By necessity is meant practical, and not absolute, necessity; but the characteristics which will serve as a basis of classification must be substantial, and not slight or illusory.* [Emphasis supplied.]

3. Chapter 839 created a new public policy which made sweeping changes in the laws relative to public employees by establishing for the first time certain rights and privileges for them. Obviously, the enactment was based upon the legislature's carefully considered conclusion that public employees, including public school teachers, like their counterparts in private enterprise are subject to the same vicissitudes of rising prices, accident, illness, and old age. Everywhere people are seeking to assert a measure of control over the conditions under which they work and live. By its enactment of c. 839, the legislature recognized this and the right of some 160,000 public employees of the state to be represented by labor organizations of their choice in matters pertaining to their employment contracts. The exclusion of public school teachers from the benefits of this enactment, while at the same time leaving them subject to the forfeitures and penalties provided for in other statutory enactments now in effect, in my judgment constitutes a discriminatory treatment of this group which is entirely without a valid basis.

4. The majority seeks to justify this special classification for public school teachers on the ground that the "legislature has historically treated teachers as a different classification," citing Minn. St. 125.17; 125.12; 354.05 to 354.14; 354.31 to 354.61; 125.03; the Civil Service Act, Minn. St. c. 43; the Veterans Preference Act, §§197.45 and 197.46; and the Public Employees Retirement Act, c. 353, as statutes illustrative of this. While these statutes demonstrate that teachers, like most classifications of public employees, have working conditions distinct to them with respect to tenure, continuing contract rights, retirement benefits, and the like, if the validity of statutory classifications under a public employees labor relations act is to be tested by such factors, then the same distinctions as applied to hundreds of other classifications of public employees, each with distinctive working conditions, would justify the exclusion of any one of such classifications from the benefits of the act, and the possible loss of the benefits to be derived from a general enactment covering all public employees.

5. It also seems clear to me that the exclusionary provision embodied in section 7 of the act constitutes a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution, which provides that no state shall "deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." Under this amendment, it is well settled that all residents of a state have the right to equal treatment and that a state must act without discrimination as to any of them. While a state is not under a duty to provide specific benefits, privileges, or services for its people, if it chooses to do so it must do so on an equal basis for all of them. Missouri ex rel. Gaines v. Canada, 305 U.S. 337, 59 S. Ct. 232, 83L. ed. 208; McCabe v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. 235 U.S. 151, 161, 35 S. Ct. 69, 71, 59 L. ed. 169, 174. As stated in Quaker City Cab Co. v. Pennsylvania, 277 U.S. 389, 400, 48 S. Ct. 553, 554, 72 L. ed. 927, 929:

>  * * The equal protection clause does not detract from the right of the State justly to exert its * * * power or prevent it from adjusting its legislation to differences in situation or forbid classification in that connection, 'but it does require that the classification be not arbitrary but based on a real and substantial difference having a reasonable relation to the subject of the particular legislation.'* [Emphasis supplied.]

Here I can find no real and substantial difference between public elementary and high school teachers, and many or the other classifications of public employees now covered by c. 839.

6. Collective bargaining between public employees and local, state, or Federal government agencies is no longer a novelty. Under presidential executive order, 4/ 531 exclusive recognitions covering over 700,000 Federal workers were given by Federal agencies to various unions representing Federal employees by November 1965 and it was recognized that such workers were authorized to bargain collectively through unions of their choice. Weisenfeld, Public Employees - First or Second Class Citizens, 16 Labor L.J. 685, 691. The American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, with which the respondent local is affiliated, has conducted collective bargaining elections in school systems in Philadelphia, New York, Detroit, and Cleveland, as well as in numerous smaller cities and communities. The Minnesota Legislature by its enactment of c. 839 has recognized this trend and adopted it as a part of the public policy of the state. No reason whatever exists for excluding public school teachers from this public policy, or for granting other public employees of a similar professional character rights and privileges denied to public school teachers.

In my judgment §7 of c. 839 is unconstitutional. Such a determination, of course, would not invalidate the remaining provisions of the act. State ex rel. Foster v. Naftalin, 246 Minn. 181, 74 N.W. (2d) 249; Hunter v. Zenith Dredge Co. 220 Minn. 318, 19 N.W. (2d) 795.

STATE NEGOTIATION STATUTES

Beginning on this page and continuing through page C-24 the various state negotiation statutes are presented for 8 states. Although New Jersey has a resolution of the State Board of Education rather than a statute, it is included as one of the eight. The statutes for the remaining four states (Oregon, Rhode Island, Washington, and Wisconsin) will be printed in the May issue.

ALASKA

23.40 LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Section 23.40.010. Union contracts with state and political subdivisions.
(a) The state or a political subdivision of the state, including but not limited to an organized borough, municipal corporation, independent school district, and public utility district, may enter into a contract with a labor organization whose members furnish services to the state or the political subdivision.

(b) Nothing contained in this chapter requires the state or political subdivision of the state to enter into a union contract.

Section 23.40.020 Enforcement of certain contracts only if union registers. No labor contract executed in this state by a labor organization which has no local in this state or which contract is not to be executed by one or more of its locals in this state may be enforced in the courts of this state unless the labor organization has registered with the department (of labor) and complied with all regulations made by it.

Section 23.40.030. Definition of labor organization. For the purpose of this chapter "labor organization" includes an organization constituted wholly or partly to bargain collectively or deal with employers, including the state and its political subdivisions, concerning grievances, terms, or conditions of employment or other mutual aid or protection in connection with employees.

CALIFORNIA

California Statutes 1965, Chap. 2041

Section 1. Section 3501 of the Government Code is amended to read:

3501. As used in this chapter:

(a) "Employee organization" means any organization which includes employees of a public agency and which has as one of its primary purposes representing such employees in their relations with that public agency.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in this subdivision, "public agency" means the State of California, every governmental subdivision, every district, every public and quasi-public corporation, every public agency and public service corporation and every town, city, county, city and county and municipal corporation, whether incorporated or not and whether chartered or not. As used in this chapter, "public agency" does not mean a school district or a county board of education or a county superintendent of schools or a personnel commission in a school district having a merit system as provided in Chapter 3 (commencing with Section 13590) of Division 10 of the Education Code.

(c) "Public employee" means any person employed by any public agency excepting those persons elected by popular vote or appointed to office by the Governor of this state.

Sec. 2. Article 5 (commencing with Section 13080) is added to Chapter 1 of Division 10 of Part 2 of the Education Code, to read:

Article 5. Employee Organizations

13080. It is the purpose of this article to promote the improvement of personnel management and employer-employee relations within the public school systems in the State of California by providing a uniform basis for recognizing the right of public school employees to join organizations of their own choice and be represented by such organizations in their professional and employment relationships with public school employers and to afford certificated employees a voice in the formulation of educational policy. Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to supersede other provisions of this code and the rules and regulations of public school employers which establish and regulate tenure or a merit or civil service system or which provide for other methods of administering employer-employee relations. This article is intended, instead, to strengthen tenure, merit, civil service and other methods of administering employer-employee relations through the establishment of uniform and orderly methods of communication between employees and the public school employers by which they are employed.

13081. As used in this article:

(a) "Employee organization" means any organization which includes employees of a public school employer and which has as one of its primary purposes representing such employees in their relations with that public school employer.

(b) "Public school employer" means a school district, a county board of education, a county superintendent of schools, or a personnel commission of a school district which has a merit system as provided in Chapter 3 of this division.

(c) "Public school employee" means any person employed by any public school employer excepting those persons elected by popular vote or appointed by the Governor of this state.

13082. Except as otherwise provided by the Legislature, public school employees shall have the right to form, join and participate in the activities of employee organizations of their own choosing for the purpose of representation on all matters of employer-employee relations. Public school employees shall also have the right to refuse to join or participate in the activities of employee organizations and shall have the right to represent themselves individually in their employment relations with the public school employer.

13084. The scope of representation shall include all matters relating to employment conditions and employer-employee relations, including, but not limited to wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment.

13085. A public school employer or the governing board thereof, or such administrative officer as it may designate, shall meet and confer with representatives of employee organizations upon request with regard to all matters relating to employment conditions and employer-employee relations, and in addition, shall meet and confer with representatives of employee organizations representing certificated employees upon request with regard to all matters relating to the definition of educational objectives, the determination of the content of courses and curricula, the selection of textbooks, and other aspects of the instructional program to the extent such matters are within the discretion of the public school employer or governing board under the law. The designation of an administrative officer as provided herein shall not preclude an employee organization from meeting with, appearing before, or making proposals to the public school employer at a public meeting if the employee organization requests such a public meeting.

Notwithstanding the provisions of Sections 13082 and 13083, in the event there is more than one employee organization representing certificated employees, the public school employer or governing board thereof shall meet and confer with the representatives of such employee organizations through a negotiating council with regard to the matters specified in this section, provided that nothing herein shall prohibit any employee from appearing in his own behalf in his employment relations with the public school employer. The negotiating council shall have not more than nine nor less than five members and shall be composed of representatives of those employee organizations who are entitled to representation on the negotiating council. An employee organization representing certificated employees shall be entitled to appoint such number of members of the negotiating council as bears as nearly as practicable the same ratio to the total number of members of the negotiating council as the number of members of the employee organization bears to the total number of certificated employees of the public school employer who are members of employee organizations representing certificated employees. Each employee organization shall adopt procedures for selecting its proportionate share of members of the negotiating council, provided that such members shall be selected no later than October 31 of each school year. Within 10 days after October 31, the members of the negotiating council shall meet and select a chairman, and thereafter such negotiating council shall be legally constituted to meet and confer as provided for by the provisions of this article. Employee organizations shall exercise the rights given by Section 13083 through the negotiating council provided for in this section.

13086. Public school employers and employee organizations shall not interfere with, intimidate, restrain, coerce or discriminate against public school employees because of their exercise of their rights under Section 13082.

13087. A public school employer shall adopt reasonable rules and regulations for the administration of employer-employee relations under this article.

Such rules and regulations shall include provision for verifying the number of certificated employees of the public school employer who are members in good standing of an employee organization on the date of such verification, and where a negotiating council is required by Section 13085, for the size of the negotiating council. The public school employer may require an employee organization to submit any supplementary information or data considered by the public school employer to be necessary to the verification of the number of members in an employee organization and such information or data shall be submitted by the organization within 10 days after request, provided that membership lists, if requested, shall not be used as a means of violating Section 13086. In addition, such rules may include provisions for (a) verifying the official status of employee organization officers and representatives, (b) access of employee organization officers and representatives to work locations, (c) use of official bulletin boards and other me ns of communication by employee organizations, (d) furnishing complete and accurate nonconfidential information pertaining to employment relations to employee organizations and (e) such other matters as are necessary to carry out the purposes of this article.

13088. The enactment of this article shall not be construed as making the provisions of Section 923 of the Labor Code applicable to public school employees.

CONNECTICUT

Public Act 298 of 1965: AN ACT CONCERNING THE RIGHT OF TEACHERS' REPRESENTATIVES TO NEGOTIATE WITH BOARDS OF EDUCATION

Section 1. (a) Any organization or organizations of certificated professional employees of a local or regional board of education may be selected for the purpose of representation in negotiations concerning salaries and all other conditions of employment. Representatives may be designated or selected for the purpose of negotiating by the majority of the employees in the entire group of employees of said board of education or school district below the rank of superintendent or by the majority of the employees in separate units as described in subsection (b). (b) All certificated professional personnel below the rank of superintendent, other than temporary substitutes, employed and engaged either (i) in positions requiring a teaching or special services certificate or (ii) in positions requiring an administrative or supervisory certificate, may select a separate representative by a secret ballot decision of a majority of the personnel voting in each of the two said categories. If twenty per cent or more of the certificated professional employees of a local or regional board of education below the rank of superintendent in either the entire group or in the separate units described in (i) or (ii) above file with the secretary of the state board of education a petition requesting that a teacher representation referendum be held to select an organization for the purpose of representation, said secretary shall file notice of such petition with the local or regional board of education. The signatures on such petition shall remain confidential with the secretary of said board. Any organization having an interest in representing teachers in any of the units authorized by this section may intervene within fifteen days by filing with the secretary of the state board of education a petition supported by ten per cent of the employees of such unit. The local or regional board and the petitioning organization and any intervening teacher's organization may agree on an impartial person or agency to conduct such a referendum consistent with the other provisions of this section, provided not more than one such referendum shall be held in any one school year. In the event of a disagreement on the agency to conduct the referendum, the method shall be determined by the board of arbitration selected in accordance with section 2 of this act. An election shall be held to determine the representatives of the appropriate unit or units, as the case may be, within forty-five days after the filing of the petition with the secretary of the state board of education. (c) The representatives designated or selected as provided in subsection (a) of this section shall be the exclusive representatives of all the employees in such unit for the purposes of negotiating with respect to salary schedules and personnel policies relative to employment of certificated professional employees, provided any certificated professional employee or group of employees shall have the right at any time to present any grievance to such persons as the local or regional board of education shall designate for that purpose.

Section 2. Any dispute as to the eligibility of personnel to vote in an election, or the agency to conduct the election required by section 1 hereof, shall be submitted to a board of arbitration as provided by section 5 (b) of this act except that, where there are two or more organizations seeking to represent employees, each shall be permitted to name an arbitrator and such arbitrators, together with an equal number designated by the board of education, shall select an additional impartial member thereof. The agency selected to conduct the election shall decide on matters relating thereto.

Section 3. The local or regional board of education and the organization designated as exclusive representatives for the appropriate unit, through designated officials or their representatives, shall have the duty to negotiate with respect to salaries and other conditions of employment, and such duty shall include the obligation of such board of education to meet at reasonable times, including meetings appropriately related to the budget-making process, and confer in good faith with respect to salaries and other conditions of employment, or the negotiation of an agreement, or any question arising thereunder and the execution of a written contract incorporating any agreement reached if requested by either party, but such obligation shall not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession. The local or regional board of education, and its representatives, agents and superintendents shall not interfere, restrain or coerce employees in the rights guaranteed by this act, and in the absence of any certification as the exclusive representative as provided by section 1, all organizations seeking to represent members of the teaching profession shall be accorded equal treatment with respect to access to teachers, principals, members of the board of education, records and participation in discussions with respect to salaries and other conditions of employment.

Section 4. No certificated professional employee shall, in an effort to effect a settlement of any salary disagreement with his employing board of education, engage in any strike or concerted refusal to render services.

Section 5. (a) In the event of any disagreement as to the terms and conditions of employment between the board of education of any town or regional school district and the organization or organizations of certificated professional employees of said board, selected for the purpose of representation, the disagreement shall be submitted to the secretary of the state board of education for mediation. The parties shall meet with him or his agents and provide such information as he may require. The secretary may recommend a basis for settlement but such recommendations shall not be binding upon the parties. (b) In the event mediation by the secretary of the state board of education provided by subsection (a) of this section fails to resolve the disagreement, either party may submit the unresolved issue or issues to an impartial board of three arbitrators. Each party to the dispute shall designate one member of the board and the arbitrators so selected shall select the third. The decision of such board, after hearing all the issues, shall be advisory and shall not be binding upon the parties to the dispute. If the parties are unable to agree upon a third arbitrator, either party may petition the superior court or, if the court is not in session, a judge thereof, to designate the third arbitrator in the manner provided by section 52-411 of the general statutes or, if either party refuses to arbitrate, an action to compel arbitration may be instituted in the manner provided by section 52-410 of the general statutes.

Section 6. This act shall take effect from its passage.

FLORIDA

CHAPTER 65-239

230.22 POWERS AND DUTIES OF COUNTY BOARD. The county board, after considering recommendation submitted by the county superintendent, shall exercise the following general powers:

(1) DETERMINE POLICIES. - The county board shall determine and adopt such policies as are deemed necessary by it for the efficient operation and general improvement of the county school system. In arriving at a determination of policies affecting certificated personnel, the county board may appoint or recognize existing committees composed of members of the teaching profession, as defined in the professional teaching practices act. sections 231.54-59, Florida Statutes. When such committees are involved in the consideration of policies for resolving problems or reaching agreements affecting certificated personnel the committee membership shall include certificated personnel representing all work levels of such instructional and administrative personnel as defined in the school code.

MASSACHUSETTS

Massachusetts Acts of 1965, Chapter 763:

AN ACT PROVIDING FOR THE ELECTION OF REPRESENTATIVE BARGAINING AGENTS WITH POLITICAL SUBDIVISIONS OF THE COMMONWEALTH

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Section 1. Section four C of chapter forty of the General Laws is hereby repealed.

Section 2. Chapter 149 of the General Laws is hereby amended by inserting after section 178 F the following eight sections:

Section 178G. When used in this section and in sections one hundred and seventy-eight H to one hundred and seventy-eight M, inclusive, the following words shall, unless the context requires otherwise, have the following meanings:

"Municipal employer", any county, city, town, or district, and any person designated by the municipal employer to act in its interest in dealing with municipal employees.

"Employee", any employee of a municipal employer, whether or not in the classified service of the municipal employer, except elected officials, board and commission members, police,[a] and the executive officers of any municipal employer.

"Employee organization", any lawful association, organization, federation or council having as a primary purpose the improvement of wages, hours and other conditions of employment.

"Professional employee", any employee engaged in work which is predominantly intellectual and varied in character as opposed to routine mental, manual, mechanical or physical work, which involves the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment in its performance, of such a character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given time period, and which requires knowledge of an advanced type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study in an institution of higher learning or a hospital, as distinguished from a general academic education or from an apprenticeship or from training in the performance of routine mental, manual or physical processes.

Section 178H. (1) Employees shall have and be protected in the exercise of, the right to self-organization, to form, join or assist any employee organization, to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing on questions of wages, hours and other conditions of employment and to engage in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection free from actual interference, restraint or coercion; provided, however, that an employee organization recognized by a municipal employer or designated as the representative of the majority of the employees in an appropriate unit, shall be the exclusive bargaining agent for all employees of such unit, and shall act, negotiate agreements and bargain collectively for all employees in the unit, and shall be responsible for representing the interests of all such employees without discrimination and without regard to employee organization membership.

(2) Whenever, in accordance with such regulations as may be prescribed by the state labor relations commission, a petition is filed with said commission by a municipal employer alleging that one or more employee organizations have presented a claim to be recognized as the representative of a majority of employees in a specified unit, or by an employee or group of employees or an employee organization alleging that a substantial number of employees wish to be represented for collective bargaining by an employee organization as exclusive representative, or that the employee organization currently certified or recognized by the municipal employer as the bargaining representative does not currently represent a majority of the employees in the unit, said commission shall investigate such petition and, if it has reasonable cause to believe that a question of representation exists, shall provide for an appropriate hearing upon due notice.

(3) If, after hearing, the commission finds that there is a controversy concerning the representation of employees, it shall direct an election by secret ballot or shall use any other suitable method to determine whether and by which employee organization the employees desire to be represented and shall certify the results thereof. No election shall be directed in any bargaining unit or any subdivision thereof within which in the preceding twelve-month period a valid election has been held. No election shall be directed during the term of a collective bargaining agreement; except that for good cause shown the commission may direct such an election. An employee organization which receives a majority of votes cast in an election shall be designated by the commission as exclusive representative of the employees in the unit. In any election where none of the choices on the ballot receives a majority, a run off shall be conducted, the ballot providing for a selection between the two choices receiving the largest and the second largest number of valid votes cast in the election.

(4) The commission shall decide in each case whether the appropriate unit for purposes of collective bargaining shall be the municipal employer unit or any other unit thereof; provided, uniformed employees of the fire department shall be in a separate unit; and provided, further, that no unit shall include both professional and nonprofessional employees unless a majority of such professional employees vote for inclusion in such unit.

Section 178I. The municipal employer and the employee organization recognized or designated as exclusive representative of employees in an appropriate unit shall have the duty to bargain collectively. In such bargaining other than with an employee organization for school employees, the municipal employer shall be represented by the chief executive officer, whether elected or appointed, or his designated representative or representatives. In such bargaining with an employee organization for school employees, the municipal employer shall be represented by the school committee or its designated representative or representatives.

For the purposes of collective bargaining, the representative of the municipal employer and the representative of the employees shall meet at reasonable times, including meetings appropriately related to the budget making process, and shall confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours, and other conditions of employment, or the negotiation of an agreement, or any question arising thereunder, and shall execute a written contract incorporating any agreement reached, but neither party shall be compelled to agree to a proposal or to make a concession. In the event that any part or provision of any such agreement is in conflict with any law, ordinance or by-law, such law, ordinance or by-law shall prevail so long as such conflict remains. If funds are necessary to implement such written agreement, a request for the necessary appropriation shall be submitted to the legislative body. If such request is rejected, the matter shall be returned to the parties for further bargaining. The preceding two sentences shall not apply to agreements reached by school committees in cities and towns in which the provisions of section thirty-four of chapter seventy-one are operative.

Section 178J. (a) If, after a reasonable period of negotiation over the terms of an agreement, a dispute exists between a municipal employer and an employee organization, or if no agreement has been reached sixty days prior to the final date for setting the municipal budget, either party or the parties jointly may petition the state board of conciliation and arbitration to initiate fact finding.

(b) Upon receipt of such petition the board of conciliation and arbitration shall make an investigation to determine if the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) exist. If the board finds that such conditions do exist, it shall initiate fact finding. Prior to such fact finding, or prior to fact finding ordered by the state labor relations commission in accordance with the provisions of section one hundred and seventy-eight L, the board of conciliation and arbitration shall submit to the parties a panel of three qualified disinterested persons from which list the parties shall select one person to serve as the fact finder and shall notify the board of conciliation and arbitration of their choice. If the parties fail to select the fact finder within five calendar days of receipt of the list, the board of conciliation and arbitration shall appoint the person who shall serve as fact finder.

(c) The person selected or appointed as fact finder may establish dates and place of hearings which shall be where feasible in the locality of the municipality involved. Any such hearings shall be conducted in accordance with rules established by the board of conciliation and arbitration. Upon request, the board of conciliation and arbitration shall issue subpoenas for hearings conducted by the fact finder. The fact finder may administer oaths. Upon completion of the hearings and within sixty days from the date of appointment, unless extended by the board of conciliation and arbitration for good cause shown, the fact finder shall make written findings of fact and recommendations for resolution of the dispute and shall cause the same to be served on the municipal employer and the employee organization involved.

(d) Only employee organizations which are designated or recognized as the exclusive representative under section one hundred and seventy-eight H shall be proper parties in initiating fact finding proceedings.

(e) The cost of fact finding proceedings under this section shall be divided equally between the municipal employer and said employee organization. Compensation for the fact finder shall be in accordance with a schedule of payment established by the board of conciliation and arbitration.

(f) Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the fact finder from endeavoring to mediate the dispute in which he has been selected or appointed as fact finder.

Section 178K. The services of the state board of conciliation and arbitration shall also be available to municipal employers and employee organizations for purposes of conciliation of grievances or contract disputes and for purposes of arbitration of disputes over the interpretation or application of the terms of a written agreement. Nothing in this section shall prevent the use of other arbitration tribunals in the resolutions of disputes over the interpretation or application of the terms or written agreements between municipal employers and employee organizations.

Section 178L. Municipal employers or their representatives or agents are prohibited from: (1) interfering with, restraining or coercing employees in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in section one hundred and seventy-eight H; (2) dominating or interfering with the formation, existence or administration of any employee organization; (3) discharging or otherwise discriminating against an employee because he has signed or filed any affidavit, petition or complaint or given any information or testimony under this section; (4) refusing to bargain collectively in good faith with an employee organization which has been recognized or designated as the exclusive representative of employees in an appropriate unit; and (5) refusing to discuss grievances with the representatives of an employee organization recognized or designated as the exclusive representative in an appropriate unit.

Employee organizations or their agents are prohibited from (1) restraining or coercing a municipal employer in the selection of its representative for purposes of collective bargaining or the adjustment of grievances; and (2) if recognized or designated as the exclusive representative of employees in an appropriate unit, refusing to bargain collectively in good faith with a municipal employer.

When a complaint is made to the labor relations commission that a practice prohibited by this section has been committed, the commission may issue an order dismissing the complaint or may order a further investigation or a hearing thereon. If a hearing is ordered, the commission shall set the time and place for the hearing, which time and place may be changed by the commission at the request of one of the parties for cause shown. Any complaint may be amended with the permission of the commission. The municipal employer, the employee organization or the person so complained of shall have the right to file an answer to the original or amended complaint within five days after the service of such complaint or within such other time as the commission may limit. Such municipal employer, such employee organization or such person shall have the right to appear in person or otherwise to defend against such complaint. In the discretion of the commission any person may be allowed to intervene in such proceeding. In any hearing the commission shall not be bound by the technical rules of evidence prevailing in the courts. A transcript of the testimony taken at any hearing before the commission shall be filed with the commission.

If, upon all the testimony, the commission determines that a prohibited practice has been committed, it shall state its findings of fact and shall issue and cause to be served on the party committing the prohibited practice an order requiring it or him to cease and desist from such prohibited practice, and shall take such further affirmative action as will comply with the provisions of this section, including but not limited to the withdrawal of certification of an employee organization established by or assisted in its establishment by any such prohibited practice. If it is alleged that either party has refused to bargain collectively, the state labor relations commission shall order fact finding and direct the party at fault to pay the full costs thereof. It shall order the reinstatement with or without back pay of an employee discharged or discriminated against in violation of the first paragraph of this section. If, upon all of the testimony, the commission determines that a prohibited practice has not been or is not being committed, it shall state its finding of fact and shall issue an order dismissing the complaint.

Section 178M. It shall be unlawful for any employee to engage in, induce, or encourage any strike, work stoppage, slowdown or withholding of services by such employees.

Section 178N. Nothing in sections one hundred and seventy-eight F to one hundred and seventy-eight M, inclusive, shall diminish the authority and power of the civil service commission, or any retirement board or personnel board established by law, nor shall anything in said sections constitute a grant of the right to strike to employees of any municipal employer.

Section 3. Section 9R of chapter 23 of the General Laws, as appearing in section 1 of chapter 345 of the acts of 1938, is hereby amended by inserting after the word "inclusive", in line 4, the words:, of this chapter, sections one hundred and seventy-eight H and one hundred and seventy-eight L of chapter one hundred and forty-nine.

MICHIGAN

An act to prohibit strikes by certain public employees; to provide review from disciplinary action with respect thereto; to provide for the mediation of grievances and the holding of elections; to declare and protect the rights and privileges of public employees; and to prescribe means of enforcement and penalties for the violation of the provisions of this act.

Section 1. As used in this act the word "strike" shall mean the concerted, failure to report for duty, the wilful absence from one's position, the stoppage of work, or the abstinence in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment, for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions, or compensation, or the rights, privileges or obligations of employment. Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to limit, impair or affect the right of any public employee to the expression or communication of a view, grievance, complaint or opinion on any matter related to the conditions or compensation of public employment or their betterment, so long as the same is not designed to and does not interfere with the full, faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment.

Section 3. No person exercising any authority, supervision or direction over any public employee shall have the power to authorize, approve or consent to a strike by public employees, and such person shall not authorize, approve or consent to such strike, nor shall any such person discharge or cause any public employee to be discharged or separated from his or her employment because of participation in the submission of a grievance in accordance with the provisions of section 7.

Section 6. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, any person holding such a position who, by concerted action with others, and without the lawful approval of his superior, wilfully absents himself from his position, or abstains in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performance of his duties for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions or compensation, or the rights, privileges or obligations of employment shall be deemed to be on strike but the person, upon request, shall be entitled to a determination as to whether he did violate the provisions of this act. The request shall be filed in writing, with the officer or body having power to remove or discipline such employee, within 10 days after regular compensation of such employee has ceased or other discipline has been imposed. In the event of such request the officer or body shall within 10 days commence a proceeding for the determination of whether the provisions of this act have been violated by the public employee, in accordance with the law and regulations appropriate to a proceeding to remove the public employee. The proceedings shall be undertaken without unnecessary delay. The decision of the proceeding shall be made within 10 days. If the employee involved is held to have violated this law and his employment terminated or other discipline imposed, he shall have the right of review to the circuit court having jurisdiction of the parties, within 30 days from such decision, for determination whether such decision is supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record.

Section 7. Upon the request of the collective bargaining representative defined in section 11, or if no representative has been designated or selected, upon the request of a majority of any given group of public employees evidenced by a petition signed by said majority and delivered to the labor mediation board, or upon request of any public employer of such employees, it shall be the duty of the labor mediation board to forthwith mediate the grievances set forth in said petition or notice, and for the purposes of mediating such grievances, the labor mediation board shall exercise the powers and authority conferred upon said board by sections 10 and 11 of Act No. 176 of the Public Acts of 1939.

Section 9. It shall be lawful for public employees to organize together or to form, join or assist in labor organizations, to engage in lawful concerted activities for the purpose of collective negotiation or bargaining or other mutual aid and protection, or to negotiate or bargain collectively with their public employers through representatives of their own free choice.

Section 10. It shall be unlawful for a public employer or an officer or agent of a public employer (a) to interfere with, restrain or coerce public employees in the exercise of their rights guaranteed in section 9; (b) to initiate, create, dominate, contribute to or interfere with the formation or administration of any labor organization: Provided, That a public employer shall not be prohibited from permitting employees to confer with it during working hours without loss of time or pay; (c) to discriminate in regard to hire, terms or other conditions of employment in order to encourage or discourage membership in a labor organization; (d) to discriminate against a public employee because he has given testimony or instituted proceedings under this act; or (e) to refuse to bargain collectively with the representatives of its public employees, subject to the provisions of section 11.

Section 11. Representatives designated or selected for purposes of collective bargaining by the majority of the public employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes, shall be the exclusive representatives of all the public employees in such unit for the purposes of collective bargaining in respect to rates of pay, wages, hours of employment or other conditions of employment, and shall be so recognized by the public employer: Provided, That any individual employee at any time may present grievances to his employer and have the grievances adjusted, without intervention of the bargaining representative, if the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective bargaining contract or agreement then in effect, provided that the bargaining representative has been given opportunity to be present at such adjustment.

Section 12. Whenever a petition shall have been filed, in accordance with such regulations as may be prescribed by the board:

(a) By a public employee or group of public employees, or an individual or labor organization acting in their behalf, alleging that 30% or more of the public employees within a unit claimed to be appropriate for such purpose wish to be represented for collective bargaining and that their public employer declines to recognize their representative as the representative defined in section 11, or assert that the individual or labor organization, which has been certified or is being currently recognized by their public employer as the bargaining representative, is no longer a representative as defined in section 11; or

(b) By a public employer or his representative alleging that 1 or more individuals or labor organizations have presented to him a claim to be recognized as the representative defined in section 11; the board shall investigate the petition and, if it has reasonable cause to believe that a question of representation exists, shall provide an appropriate hearing after due notice. If the board finds upon the record of the hearing that such a question of representation exists, it shall direct an election by secret ballot and shall certify the results thereof. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the waiving of hearings by stipulation for the purpose of a consent election in conformity with the rules and regulations of the board.

Section 13. The board shall decide in each case, in order to insure public employees the full benefit of their right to self-organization, to collective bargaining and otherwise to effectuate the policies of this act, the unit appropriate for the purposes of collective bargaining as provided in section 9e of Act No. 176 of the Public Acts of 1939: Provided, That in any fire department, or any department in whole or part engaged in, or having the responsibility of, fire fighting, no person subordinate to a fire commission, fire commissioner, safety director, or other similar administrative agency or administrator, shall be deemed to be a supervisor.

Section 14. An election shall not be directed in any bargaining unit or any subdivision within which, in the preceding 12-month period, a valid election has been held. The board shall determine who is eligible to vote in the election and shall establish rules governing the election. In an election involving more than 2 choices, where none of the choices on the ballot receives a majority vote, a runoff election shall be conducted between the 2 choices receiving the 2 largest numbers of valid votes cast in the election. No election shall be directed in any bargaining unit or subdivision thereof where there is in force and effect a valid collective bargaining agreement which was not prematurely extended and which is of fixed duration: Provided, however, No collective bargaining agreement shall bar an election upon the petition of persons not parties thereto where more than 3 years have elapsed since the agreement's execution or last timely renewal, whichever was later.

Section 15. A public employer shall bargain collectively with the representatives of its employees as defined in section 11 and is authorized to make and enter into collective bargaining agreements with such representatives. For the purposes of this section, to bargain collectively is the performance of the mutual obligation of the employer and the representative of the employees to meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment, or the negotiation of an agreement or any question arising thereunder, and the execution of a written contract, ordinance or resolution incorporating any agreement reached if requested by either party, but such obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession.

Section 16. Violations of the provisions of section 10 shall be deemed to be unfair labor practices remediable by the labor mediation board in the following manner:

(a) Whenever it is charged that any person has engaged in or is engaging in any such unfair labor practice, the board, or any agent designated by the board for such purposes, may issue and cause to be served upon the person a complaint stating the charges in that respect, and containing a notice of hearing before the board or a member thereof, or before a designated agent, at a place therein fixed, not less than 5 days after the serving of the complaint. No complaint shall be issued based upon any unfair labor practice occurring more than 6 months prior to the filing of the charge with the board and the service of a copy thereof upon the person against whom the charge is made, unless the person aggrieved thereby was prevented from filing the charge by reason of service in the armed forces, in which event the 6 month period shall be computed from the day of his discharge. Any complaint may be amended by the member or agent conducting the hearing or the board, at any time prior to the issuance of an order based thereon. The person upon whom the complaint is served may file an answer to the original or amended complaint and to appear in person or otherwise give testimony at the place and time fixed in the complaint. In the discretion of the member or agent conducting the hearing or the board, any other person may be allowed to intervene in the proceeding and to present testimony. Any proceeding shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of section 5 of Act No. 197 of the Public Acts of 1952, as amended, being section 24.105 of the Compiled Laws of 1948.

(b) The testimony taken by the member, agent or the board shall be reduced to writing and filed with the board. Thereafter the board upon notice may take further testimony or hear argument. If upon the preponderance of the testimony taken the board is of the opinion that any person named in the complaint has engaged in or is engaging in the unfair labor practice, then it shall state its findings of fact and shall issue and cause to be served on the person an order requiring him to cease and desist from the unfair labor practice, and to take such affirmative action including reinstatement of employees with or without back pay as will effectuate the policies of this act. The order may further require the person to make reports from time to time showing the extent to which he has complied with the order. If upon the preponderance of the testimony taken the board is not of the opinion that the person named in the complaint has engaged in or is engaging in the unfair labor practice, then the board shall state its findings of fact and shall issue an order dismissing the complaint. No order of the board shall require the reinstatement of any individual as an employee who has been suspended or discharged, or the payment to him of any back pay, if the individual was suspended or discharged for cause. If the evidence is presented before a member of the board, or before examiners thereof, the member, or examiners shall issue and cause to be served on the parties to the proceeding a proposed report, together with a recommended order, which shall be filed with the board, and if no exceptions are filed within 20 days after service thereof upon the parties, or within such further period as the board may authorize, the recommended order shall become the order of the board and become effective as prescribed in the order.

(c) Until the record in a case has been filed in a court, the board at any time, upon reasonable notice and in such manner as it deems proper, may modify or set aside, in whole or in part, any finding or order made or issued by it.

(d) The board may petition for the enforcement of the order and for appropriate temporary relief or restraining order and shall file in the court the record in the proceedings. Upon the filing of the petition, the court shall cause notice thereof to be served upon the person, and thereupon shall have jurisdiction of the proceeding and shall grant such temporary or permanent relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper, enforcing, modifying, enforcing as so modified, or setting aside in whole or in part the order of the board. No objection that has not been urged before the board, its member or agent, shall be considered by the court, unless the failure or neglect to urge the objection is excused because of extraordinary circumstances. The findings of the board with respect to questions of fact if supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole shall be conclusive. If either party applies to the court for leave to present additional evidence and shows to the satisfaction of the court that additional evidence is material and that there were reasonable grounds for the failure to present it in the hearing before the board, its member or agent, the court may order the additional evidence be taken before the board, its member or agent, and to be made a part of the record.

The board may modify its findings as to the facts or make new findings, by reasons of additional evidence so taken and filed, and it shall file the modifying or new findings, which findings with respect to questions of fact if supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole shall be conclusive and shall file its recommendations, if any, for the modification or setting aside of its original order. Upon the filing of the record with it the jurisdiction of the court shall be exclusive and its judgment and decree shall be final, except that the same shall be subject to review by the supreme court in accordance with the general court rules.

(e) Any person aggrieved by a final order of the board granting or denying in whole or in part the relief sought may obtain a review of such order in the court of appeals by filing in the court a complaint praying that the order of the board be modified or set aside, with copy of the complaint filed on the board, and thereupon the aggrieved party shall file in the court the record in the proceeding, certified by the board. Upon the filing of the complaint, the court shall proceed in the same manner as in the case of an application by the board under subsection (e), and shall grant to the board such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper, enforcing, modifying, enforcing as so modified, or setting aside in whole or in part the order of the board. The findings of the board with respect to questions of fact if supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole shall be conclusive.

(f) The commencement of proceedings under subsections (e) or (f) shall not, unless specifically ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the board's order.

(g) Complaints filed under this act shall be heard expeditiously by the court to which presented, and for good cause shown shall take precedence over all other civil matters except earlier matters of the same character.

(h) The board shall have power, upon issuance of a complaint as provided in subsection (b) charging that any person has engaged in or is engaging in an unfair labor practice, to petition any circuit court within any circuit where the unfair labor practice in question is alleged to have occurred or where such person resides or exercises or may exercise its governmental authority, for appropriate temporary relief or restraining order, in accordance with the general court rules, and the court shall have jurisdiction to grant to the board such temporary relief or restraining order as it deems just and proper.

(i) For the purpose of all hearings and investigations, which, in the opinion of the board, are necessary and proper for the exercise of the powers vested in it under this section 11 shall be applicable, except that subpoenas may be issued as provided in section 11 without regard to whether mediation shall have been undertaken.

(j) The labor relations and mediation functions of this act shall be separately administered by the board.

Section 2. Sections 4,5, and 8 of Act No. 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, being sections 423.204, 423.205 and 423.208 of the Compiled Laws of 1948, are repealed.

This act is ordered to take immediate effect.

NEW JERSEY

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, employees in local school districts, as public employees, have the right, under the New Jersey State Constitution Article I, section 19, to organize, present to and make known to the local board of education, their grievances and proposals through representatives of their own choosing; and

WHEREAS, the authority of the Commissioner of Education was recently invoked to hear and decide a controversy concerned with the relationships between a board of education and some of its professional employees; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Education in his decision in that case pointed out that local boards of education have "the power to create grievance procedures and an orderly framework within which the complaints of its employees may be presented and resolved," and further that "such procedures are necessary and desirable in order to facilitate and assure the smooth and efficient operation of the local school system;" and

WHEREAS, the New Jersey State Board of Education concurs and recognizes the need for adequate, recorded procedures for the proper consideration of grievances and proposals of local school district employees in order to avoid disharmony and controversy inimicable to the educational welfare of the pupils to be served; now

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the New Jersey State Board of Education require each local public school board of education to formulate and adopt written policies setting forth the procedures to be followed for the presentation, consideration, and resolution of grievances and proposals of its employees; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that at least one copy of such statement of policy for the processing of grievances and proposals shall be available for inspection at appropriate times and places within the local school district, one copy shall be filed with the appropriate county superintendent of schools, and one copy shall be filed with the Commissioner of Education not later than July 1, 1966.

between the WARWICK SCHOOL COMMITTEE
and the
WARWICK EDUCATION ASSOCIATION
Warwick, Rhode Island

February 1, 1967 - January 31, 1969

PREAMBLE

In order to effectuate the provisions of Chapter 9.3 of Title 28 of the General Laws, and to encourage and abet effective and harmonious working relationships between the Warwick School Committee (hereinafter called the "Committee") and the professional staff in order that the cause of public education may best be served in Warwick, THIS AGREEMENT IS MADE AND ENTERED INTO on the 2nd day of December, 1966, by and between the Committee and the Warwick Education Association (hereinafter called the "Association").

ARTICLE I

Recognition

In accordance with the Teacher Arbitration Act of January, 1966, the Committee hereby recognizes the Association as the exclusive representative of all professional employees of the Warwick School System, in teaching or related activities, except temporary per diem substitutes, below the rank of assistant principal. Unless otherwise indicated, the employees in the above unit will be hereinafter referred to as "teachers."

ARTICLE II

Specialists

A. The School Committee and the Association recognize that an adequate number of competent specialists is essential to the operation of an effective educational program, and note that employment of additional specialists is planned beginning with the school year 1967-68. The parties agree to establish a joint committee to study the needs for specialists in the school system and to report their findings and recommendations to the Superintendent when completed.

B. Within ten (10) days after the execution of this Agreement, the School Committee and the Association shall each appoint at least two (2) persons to serve on the joint committee and those persons shall select a chairman from among themselves.

ARTICLE III

Textbooks and Supplies

A. The Committee will provide sufficient textbooks to insure that each pupil in a classroom has textbooks for his own use.

B. The Committee agrees that before a change in textbook or reference texts is made, or a new textbook or reference text is selected, principals in the elementary schools will discuss the change or new selection with the teachers in the school. Before a change in textbook and/or reference text is made in a secondary school, or before a new book is selected, the department head and/or the principal will discuss the change with the teachers in the department. The recommendation of the teachers in the elementary schools and the teachers in the respective secondary departments shall guide the principal and administration in making the final decision.

C. The Committee will provide sufficient teaching equipment and supplies as needed in the school system.

ARTICLE IV

Teacher Evaluation

A. All monitoring or observation of the work performance of a teacher will be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher. The use of eavesdropping, public address or audio systems, and similar surveillance devices shall be strictly prohibited. Teachers will be given a copy of any evaluation report prepared by their superiors and will have the right to discuss such report with their superiors before it is submitted to central Administration or put in their personnel files.

B. Any complaints regarding a teacher made to the Administration by any parent, student or other person will be promptly called to the teacher's attention.

C. No teacher will be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. Whether just cause exists in any case shall be subject to the grievance procedure.

D. The Committee and the Association agree to establish a joint committee to study various possible means of improving the teacher evaluation process. Within 60 days of the execution of this Agreement, the Committee and the Association shall each appoint at least three persons to serve on the joint committee and these persons shall select a chairman from among themselves and the joint committee shall render a report of its findings when completed.

ARTICLE V

Teacher Files

A. All teacher files shall be maintained under the following circumstances:

1. No material, excluding references and information obtained in the process of evaluating the teacher for employment, and which is derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality shall be placed in the files unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material. The teacher shall acknowledge that he has read such material by affixing his signature on the actual copy to be filed with the understanding that such signature merely signifies that he has read the material to be filed. Such signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with its content.
2. The teacher shall have the right to answer any material filed and his answer shall be reviewed by the Director of Personnel and the Assistant Superintendent of the appropriate division and attached to the file copy.
3. Upon request by the teacher he shall be given access to his file.
4. Upon receipt of a written request the teacher shall be furnished a reproduction of any material in his file, excluding references and information obtained in the process of evaluating the teacher for employment.

ARTICLE VI

Promotions

All vacancies in promotional positions, including specialists and/or special projects teachers, excepting the position of Superintendent, shall be filled pursuant to the following procedure:

1. Such vacancies shall be adequately publicized, which shall mean, as a minimum, that a notice shall be posted in every school clearly setting forth a description of and the qualifications for the position, including the duties and salary. During summer vacation, notices shall be distributed with such pay checks as are given out.
2. Such notices shall be posted as far in advance as possible, ordinarily at least 30 days before the final date when applications must be submitted, and in no event less than two weeks before such date.
3. Teachers who desire to apply for such vacancies shall submit their applications in writing to the Superintendent or his authorized agent within the time limit specified in the notice.
4. Such vacancies shall be filled on the basis of qualification for the vacant post, provided, however, that where two or more applicants are equally qualified, seniority in the Warwick School System shall control.

B. Promotional positions are defined as follows: positions paying a salary differential and/or positions on the administrator-supervisory level.

C. All appointments to the aforesaid vacancies and openings shall be made without regard to age, race, creed, color, religion, nationality, sex or marital status.

ARTICLE VII

Teaching Hours and Teaching Load

A. 1. The official length of the school day shall be determined by the School Committee.
2. Teachers on classroom teacher's schedule shall not be required to report earlier than fifteen (15) minutes before the start of the student's school day.
3. Beginning with, and during school year 1967-68, the length of the school day for teachers shall be six and one-half hours, exclusive of the fifteen minutes required before the beginning of the student's school day. Beginning with school year 1968-69 and thereafter, the length of the school day for teachers shall be six and three-quarter hours, exclusive of the fifteen minutes required before the beginning of the student's school day.

B. 1. Beginning with and during school year 1967-68, the work year for teachers will consist of 183 days other than new teachers who may be required to attend additional orientation sessions. Beginning with school year 1968 and thereafter, the work year of teachers shall be 186 days.

C. 1. Teachers may be required to attend the following meetings:
(a) One day each month - General Staff meetings or other meetings called by the Superintendent of Schools.
(b) One day of each month - Building meetings called by the Principal of each school.
(c) One day of each month - Department meetings or Special Groups as authorized by the Superintendent of Schools.
2. Teachers may not be required to attend more than one evening meeting each year for open house and/or parent visitation.
3. Attendance at any other meetings shall be at the option of the individual teacher, except that new personnel may be required to attend additional orientation sessions.

D. Secondary school teachers shall have a duty-free lunch period of the same length as their students' lunch period.

E. All secondary school teachers shall, in addition to their lunch period, have at least five (5) unassigned periods each week in the Junior High Schools and four (4) in the Senior High Schools.

F. In addition to homeroom duty, secondary school teachers shall not be assigned more than twenty-five teaching periods per week in the Junior High Schools nor more than twenty-one teaching periods in the Senior High Schools.

G. Secondary school teachers shall not be required to teach more than two subject matter areas.

H. Teachers shall be permitted to leave the building during unassigned periods with the permission of the principal.

I. When a teacher in a special area is in charge of an elementary school teacher's class, the regular teacher may leave the classroom when his presence is not required.

J. Teacher participation in extracurricular activities will be strictly voluntary. Teachers will be compensated for participation in extracurricular activities in accordance with the provisions of Appendix B of this Agreement.

K. No academic subject area teacher shall be assigned the class responsibility, regardless of the size of his classes, for more than 125 students wherever practicable. The foregoing standards are subject to modifications, for educational purposes, such as the avoidance of split-grade classes or half-classes or specialized or experimental instruction (e.g., music, team teaching, typing classes, physical education).

ARTICLE VIII

Class Size

Wherever feasible under the circumstances (e.g., availability of staff and facilities), in both elementary schools (including kindergartens) and secondary schools (junior and senior high):
1. The regular class shall be approximately 25 pupils, in accordance with the city's ability to provide school plants.
2. The composition and size of Special Education classes shall be in accordance with State Laws.
3. Classes containing concentrations of disadvantaged pupils shall be reduced in size as rapidly as practicable to a number which permits optimum learning opportunities for such pupils.
4. The Committee and the Association agree that there should be a special arrangement for English teachers instructing composition, writing, and functional grammar to be responsible for 15 to 20 students per section to make a genuine contribution to quality education and to prepare students to cope with college demands.

The foregoing standards are subject to modification for educational purposes such as the avoidance of split-grade classes, or half-classes or specialized or experimental instruction (e.g., music, art, typing classes, physical education).

ARTICLE IX

Salaries

A. The salaries of all persons covered by this Agreement are set forth in Appendix "A" which is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

B. All persons on the Teachers' Salary Schedule will be paid in twenty-six (26) equal installments during the contractual year 1967-68. A study shall be made during the contractual school year 1967-68 of possible changes in the salary distribution plan for implementation in the 1968-69 contractual year.

C. New teachers shall be given full increment credit for previous outside teaching experiences. A full teaching year shall be no less than 135 paid days in a school year.

D. Coaches and teachers or sponsors of extracurricular activities shall be compensated as set forth in Appendix "B", which is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

E. The Committee and the Association agree to establish a joint committee to study compensation for all extracurricular activities. Within ten (10) days after the execution of this Agreement, the School Committee and the Association shall each appoint at least two (2) persons to serve on the joint committee, and those persons shall select a chairman among themselves. The Committee shall render a report as soon as possible.

F. It is agreed that a subject matter oriented program in elementary education approved by the Director of Personnel will be accepted as a program in subject matter for the purpose of placing a teacher on the subject matter increment schedule.

ARTICLE X

Non-Teaching Duties

A. The Committee and the Association acknowledge that a teacher's primary responsibility is to teach and that his energies should, to the extent possible, be utilized to this end. Therefore, the Committee agrees to make every effort to reduce the following non-teaching duties by the beginning of school year 1967-68.

1. Non-teaching assignments including supervision of playgrounds, cafeterias and buses.
2. Duplicating instructional and other materials and calculating attendance records.
3. Collecting money from students for non-educational purposes.

B. The Committee agrees to eliminate the following non-teaching duties by the beginning of the school year 1967-68.

1. Health services, such as administering eye or ear examinations and weighing and measuring pupils.
2. Delivering books to classrooms and inventorying books.

ARTICLE XI

Voluntary Transfers and Assignments

A. 1. No later than March 1st of each school year, the Director of Personnel shall post in all school buildings a list of the known vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

2. Teachers who desire a change in grade and/or subject assignment or who desire to transfer to another building shall file a written statement of such desire with the Director of Personnel, not later than March 15th. Such statement shall include the grade and/or subject to which the teacher desires to be assigned and the school or schools to which he desires to be transferred, in order of preference.

3. No later than May 10th of each school year, the Director of Personnel shall post in all school buildings a supplemental list of known vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

4. No later than May 20th, teachers may file an application for reassignment or transfer to positions listed on the supplemental list of vacancies.

5. No assignments of new teachers in the school system shall be made until all pending requests for reassignment or transfer have been acted on.

6. The Director of Personnel shall make available to the Association requested information pertaining to individual reassignments and/or transfer.

B. In the determination of requests for voluntary reassignment and/or transfer, the convenience and wishes of the individual teacher will be honored to the extent that they do not conflict with the instructional requirements and best interests of the school system. If more than one teacher has applied for the same position, the teacher best qualified for that position shall be appointed, and qualifications being substantially equal, seniority in the school system shall control.

ARTICLE XII

Involuntary Transfers and Assignments

The Committee and the Association recognize that some involuntary transfer of teachers from one school to another or reassignment within a school is unavoidable. They also recognize that under normal circumstances transfer or reassignment of teachers should be held to a minimum. Therefore they agree as follows:

A. Notice of an involuntary transfer or reassignment shall be given to teachers as soon as practicable and, under normal circumstances, not later than June 15th.

B. When involuntary transfer or reassignment is necessary, volunteers from among those affected will be transferred or reassigned first. A teacher's area of competence, major and/or minor field of study, quality of teaching performance, and length of service in the Warwick School System will be considered in determining which teacher is to be transferred or reassigned.

C. An involuntary transfer or reassignment will be made only after a meeting between the teacher involved and the cognizant Assistant Superintendent and/or Director of Personnel, at which time the teacher will be notified of the reasons therefor. In the event that a teacher objects to the transfer or reassignment at this meeting, upon the request of the teacher, the Association will be notified and the cognizant Assistant Superintendent and/or the Director of Personnel will meet with the Association's representative to discuss the matter.

D. Openings in the school system will be discussed with the teachers being involuntarily transferred or reassigned. Such teachers may request the positions to which they desire to be transferred. Teachers being involuntarily transferred or reassigned shall have preference over those seeking voluntary transfer or reassignment under Article XI. In consideration of involuntary transfers, those best qualified for a particular position shall receive priority, and, qualifications being substantially equal, seniority in the school system shall control.

E. The Director of Personnel shall make available to the Association requested information pertaining to individual reassignments and/or transfers.

ARTICLE XIII

Teacher Schedules

A. Teachers shall be notified in writing of any change in their programs and schedules for the ensuing school year, including the schools to which they will be assigned, the grades and/or subject that they will teach, and any special or unusual courses or assignments that they will have, as soon as practicable.

B. In order to assure that students are taught by teachers working within their areas of competence, teachers shall not be assigned, except in accordance with the regulations of the State Board of Education.

C. In arranging schedules for teachers who are assigned to more than one school, an effort shall be made to limit the amount of inter-school travel. Such teachers shall be notified of any change in their schedules, as soon as practicable.

D. Teacher assignments and transfers shall be made without regard to age, race, creed, color, religion, nationality, sex or marital status.

ARTICLE XIV

Absence and Leaves

A. Absences Due to Personal Illness

1. Professionally certificated personnel may be absent for personal illness up to ninety days in a school year with full pay except as the deduction hereinafter provided in this section applies to them. Each year the School Committee shall out of its appropriation set aside for absence, illness, and deaths an amount equal to the whole number of certificated personnel multiplied by the salary of a substitute teacher for three days. Any deficiency in this fund shall be made up by deducting from each absent teacher's salary at the end of the year an amount to be determined by the formula.

$$D = \frac{X\ (A-B)}{Y}$$

D equals amount to be deducted
A equals amount needed for substitute salaries
B equals amount appropriated as stated above
X equals number of days of absences of a teacher
Y equals number of days of absences of all teachers

2. The school year of professional personnel for salary purposes shall be that period of time extending from the first Wednesday after Labor Day through Tuesday after Labor Day of the following year. The ninety days of sick leave granted must fall within this stated period of time, and may not be construed to be cumulative or extending from one year to another.

3. In case the illness is long continued, the regular payments shall stop at the end of 70 days of absences; the balance, if any, shall be paid in June after the proper amount of deduction has been determined. The School Committee may require a certificate from a physician for an absence or illness. The School Committee reserves the right to require a physical examination by a physician of its own choice.

B. Absences Due to Illness in Family

1. In case of illness in the immediate family (father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, wife, husband, or other relative with whom teacher may be then living) a regular teacher shall be allowed three days absence with full pay in a school year. Such absence shall be charged to the appropriation outlined above and deducted from the ninety days personal illness allowance.

2. In case of death in the immediate family (father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, husband, wife or other person with whom teacher may be then living) a regular teacher shall be allowed five days with full pay, and for other relatives (grandparents, uncles, aunts, first cousins, nieces, nephews, and grandchildren) the teacher shall be allowed the day of the funeral with full pay. The above regulations shall apply equally to relatives whether by blood or marriage but no allowance with pay shall be granted for days previous to that on which the death occurs.

C. Leave Without Pay

On recommendation of the Superintendent, the School Committee may grant professional personnel up to one year's leave of absence without pay.

D. Military Leave for Training

When requested, the School Committee shall grant a professionally employed person a military leave of absence for training not to exceed ten school days. Such employee shall receive full pay while on leave.

ARTICLE XV

Temporary Leaves of Absence

A. Teachers shall be entitled to the following temporary leaves of absence with pay each school year:

1. A maximum of one (1) day for each of the following:
   --to receive a college or graduate degree
   --to attend the graduation of a member of the teacher's immediate family
   --to attent to financial or legal transactions
2. Teachers may be allowed additional time off for other personal reasons when such reasons are considered valid by the school principal.

B. Teachers shall be entitled to the following temporary leaves of absence with pay each school year:

1. Up to two (2) days professional leave per year for three (3) delegates (or a total of six (6) teacher days per year) to attend conferences, workshops or hearings as official delegates of the Warwick Education Association.
2. Up to one (1) day for the purpose of visiting other schools may be granted.
3. Days to attend meetings or conferences of an educational nature may be granted.
   (A written report of the conference or visitation shall be submitted to the school principal.)
4. Three (3) days leave for religious holidays.
5. The time necessary for appearance in any legal proceeding connected with the teacher's employment or in any other legal proceeding if the teacher is required by law to attend.

C. Additional leave without pay may be granted.

ARTICLE XVI

Extended Leaves of Absence

A. The Committee agrees that up to two (2) teachers who have served for at least three (3) years in the Warwick School Department, designated by the Association will, upon request, be granted a leave of absence for up to one year without pay for the purpose of engaging in Association (local, state or national) activities. The leave may be initiated only within the period of this Agreement, and must be normally requested in writing by April 1.

Upon return from such leave the teacher will be placed on the appropriate step of the salary schedule. By April 1 of his leave year, the teacher must notify the Warwick School Department whether or not he will return.

B. A leave of absence, without pay, of up to two (2) years will be granted to teachers who join the Peace Corps or serve as exchange teachers and are full-time participants in either of such programs and who have completed at least three years in the Warwick School Department. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be considered as if he were actively employed by the Committee during the leave, and will be placed on a salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been absent.

C. Military leave will be granted to any teacher who is inducted or enlists in any branch of the armed forces of the United States. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be placed on the salary schedule at the level which he would have achieved had he remained actively employed in the system during the period of his absence up to a maximum of two (2) years.

D. Maternity leave of one school year will be granted without pay or increment. A teacher who becomes pregnant shall notify the Director of Personnel in writing as soon as pregnancy has definitely been determined. Continued employment will normally be possible until the end of the fifth (5) month of pregnancy, however, if the teacher's physical condition warrants it the cognizant Assistant Superintendent and/or Director of Personnel may require earlier termination of her employment, under this section. Appropriate medical evidence of fitness may be required prior to return from such leave, but a teacher normally may return only at the beginning of a school year. The teacher on maternity leave must notify the Director of Personnel in writing her intention to return to her position by May 1.

E. A leave of absence without pay or increment of up to one (1) year will be granted for the purpose of caring for a sick member of the teacher's immediate family.

F. Any teacher whose personal illness extends beyond the period compensated will be granted a leave of absence without pay for such time as is necessary for complete recovery from such illness. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be assigned to the same position, if available, or, if not, to a substantially equivalent position.

G. All benefits to which a teacher was entitled at the time his leave of absence commenced, will continue to him upon his return.

H. All above requests for extended leaves will be filed with the Director of Personnel in writing normally by April 1, and shall be confirmed in writing by the Director of Personnel within 15 days thereafter.

ARTICLE XVII

Sabbatical Leave

Desiring to reward professional performance and encourage independent research and achievement, the Committee hereby initiates this policy of sabbatical leaves for teachers for study and/or research to be granted upon recommendation by the Superintendent for approved programs whether or not carried on in an academic institution, subject to the following conditions:

A. Requests for sabbatical leave must be received by the Superintendent in writing in such form as may be required by the Superintendent no later than April 1 of the year preceding the school year in which the sabbatical leave is requested.

B. The teacher has completed at least seven consecutive full school years of service in the Warwick School System.

C. Teachers on sabbatical leave should receive the difference between the salary they would normally receive and the first step on the salary schedule.

D. The teacher shall agree to return to employment in the Warwick School System for one full year in the event of one-half year's leave or two full years in the event of a full year's leave. Upon such return the teacher shall be placed on the appropriate step in the salary schedule as though such teacher had not been on leave.

ARTICLE XVIII

Teacher Facilities

A. Upon the adoption of the 1967-1968 school budget the following facilities shall be provided in each school with work scheduled for completion by the end of the school year 1967-68:

1. Space in each classroom in which teachers may safely store instructional materials and supplies.
2. A serviceable desk and chair for the teacher in each classroom.
3. Well lighted, properly equipped and clean rest rooms.

B. Insofar as reasonably practicable, and as expeditiously as possible, each school shall be provided with the following:

1. A teacher work area containing adequate equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.
2. An appropriately furnished room which will include a pay telephone, to be used as a faculty lounge. Said room will be in addition to the aforementioned teacher work area.

C. An adequate portion of the parking lot at each school will be reserved for teacher parking.

D. New construction will include adequate teacher facilities of the nature noted in A, B, and C above.

ARTICLE XIX

Protection

A. Teachers will immediately report to the school principal all cases of assaults suffered by them in connection with their employment.

B. This report will be forwarded to the Superintendent and the Committee, which will comply with any reasonable request from the teacher for information in its possession relating to the incident or the persons involved, and will act in appropriate ways as liaison between the teacher, the police and the courts.

C. If criminal or civil proceedings are brought against a teacher alleging that he committed an assault in connection with his employment, such teacher may request the Committee to furnish legal counsel to defend him in such proceeding. The Committee will evaluate the request and the circumstances of the assault and shall provide counsel or reimbursement of reasonable counsel fees if the teacher's case is deemed meritorious.

ARTICLE XX

Personal Injury Benefits and Property Damage

A. 1. Whenever a teacher is absent from school as a result of personal injury caused by an assault occurring in the course of his employment, he will be paid his full salary for the period of such absence up to one year from the date of injury, and no part of such absence will be charged to his annual sick leave.

2. The Committee shall have the right to have the teacher examined by a physician designated by the Committee for the purpose of establishing the length of time during which the teacher is temporarily disabled from performing his duties, and the opinion of said physician as to the said period shall control.

B. The Committee will reimburse teachers for:

1. Any clothing or other personal property (excluding automobiles) damaged or destroyed in the course of employment, provided such damage has not been caused by the teacher's negligence; and

2. The cost of medical, surgical or hospital services (less the amount of any insurance reimbursement) incurred as the result of any injury sustained in the course of employment.

ARTICLE XXI

Insurance

A. The Warwick School Committee shall, commencing with the fiscal year 1967 (February 1, 1967) provide on a fully paid basis for all certified personnel of the Warwick School Department the following coverage: Blue Cross-semi-private plan, Physicians Service plan A or its replacement plan.

ARTICLE XXII

Summer School and Adult Education

A. All openings for summer school and for adult education teachers will be adequately publicized by the Director of Personnel and shall be posted in each school building as early as possible, and under normal circumstances not later than ten days prior to start of said session. Applications must be submitted within one week of the posting of said notices. Teachers who have applied for such summer school or adult education positions will be notified of the action taken regarding their applications as early as practicable.

B. Positions in the summer school and adult education will, to the extent possible, be filled first by regularly appointed teachers in the Warwick School System.

C. In filling such positions, consideration will be given to a teacher's area of competence, major and/or minor field of study, quality of teaching performance, and attendance record.

D. Teachers shall be paid for teaching in summer school at the rate of their current bi-weekly salary pro-rated on the basis of a four hour day, as a full school day.

E. Adult education teachers shall receive no less than $6.00 per hour and a minimum of $15.00 per evening.

ARTICLE XXIII

Grievance Procedure

A. Definition

1. A "grievance" is a claim based upon an event or condition which affects the welfare and/or conditions of employment of a teacher or group of teachers and/or the interpretation, meaning or application of any of the provisions of this Agreement or any subsequent agreement entered into pursuant to this Agreement:

2. An "aggrieved person" is the person or persons making the claim.

3. A "party in interest" is the person or persons making the claim, any person who might be required to take action or against whom action might be taken in order to resolve the claim, and the Chairman of the PR & R Committee or his designee.

B. Purpose

1. The purpose of this procedure is to secure, at the lowest possible administrative level, equitable solutions to the problems which may from time to time arise affecting the welfare or working conditions of teachers. Both parties agree that these proceedings will be kept as informal and confidential as may be appropriate at any level of the procedure.

2. Nothing herein contained will be construed as limiting the right of any teacher having a grievance to discuss the matter informally with the appropriate member of the administration at Level One, and having the grievance adjusted at Level One without intervention of the Association, provided the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of this Agreement.

C. Procedure

Since it is important that grievances be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each level should be considered as a maximum, and every effort should be made to expedite the process. The time limits specified may, however, be extended by mutual agreement.

In the event a grievance is filed which might not be finally resolved at Level Four under the time limits set forth herein by the end of the school year could result in irreparable harm to a party in interest, the time limits set forth herein will be reduced so that the grievance procedure may be exhausted prior to the end of the school term or as soon thereafter as is practicable.

1. Level One. A teacher with a grievance will first discuss it with his principal or immediate superior, either directly or through the Association's School Representative, with the objective of resolving the matter informally.

2. Level Two. (a) If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level One, or if no decision has been rendered within five (5) school days after presentation of the grievance he may file the grievance in writing with the Chairman of the Association's Committee on Professional Rights and Responsibilities (hereinafter referred to as the "PR&R Committee") within five (5) school days after the decision at Level One or ten (10) school days after the grievance was presented, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the Chairman of the PR&R Committee will refer it to the Director of Personnel.

(b) The Director of Personnel will represent the Administration at this level of the grievance procedure. Within five (5) school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Director of Personnel, the Director of Personnel or his designee will meet with the aggrieved person and the Chairman of the PR&R Committee or his designee in an effort to resolve it.

(c) If a teacher does not file a grievance in writing with the Chairman of the PR&R Committee and the written grievance is not forwarded to the Director of Personnel within thirty (30) school days after the teacher knew or should have known of the act or condition on which the grievance is based, then the grievance will be considered as waived. A dispute as to whether a grievance has been waived under this paragraph will be subject to appeal pursuant to Level Five.

3. Level Three. (a) If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Two, or if no decision has been rendered within five (5) school days after he has first met with the Director of Personnel or his designee, he may file the grievance in writing with the Chairman of the PR&R Committee within five (5) school days after a decision by the Director of Personnel or ten (10) school days after he has first met with the Director of Personnel, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the Chairman of the PR&R Committee will refer it to the Superintendent.

4. Level Four. (a) If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Three, or if no decision has been rendered within five (5) school days after referral to the Superintendent, the Chairman of the PR&R Committee will refer it to the Committee.

(b) The School Committee will meet in executive session at, or before its next regularly scheduled meeting to consider all grievances which have been submitted to it since its last such meeting. Any party in interest shall have the right to appear before the Committee and be heard in executive session.

5. Level Five. (a) If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of the grievance at Level Four, or if no decision has been rendered within five (5) school days after the Committee has heard the grievance, he may appeal the decision of the Committee in accordance with Chapter 39 of the general Laws of Rhode Island; 16-39-2, appeal of School Committee action to Commissioner, 16-39-3, appeal to State Board, and 16-39-4, agreed statement to the Supreme Court.

D. Rights of Teachers to Representation

1. No reprisals of any kind will be taken by the School Committee or by any member of the Administration against any party in interest, any School Representative, any member of the PR&R Committee or any other participant in the grievance procedure by reason of such participation.

2. Any party in interest may be represented at all stages of the grievance procedure by a person of his own choosing, except that he may not be represented by a representative or an officer of any teacher organization other than the Association.

E. Miscellaneous

1. If, in the judgment of the PR&R Committee, a grievance affects a group or class of teachers, the PR&R Committee may submit such grievance in writing to the Director of Personnel directly and the processing of such grievance will be commenced at Level Two. The PR&R Committee may process such a grievance through all levels of the grievance procedure even though the aggrieved person does not wish to do so.

2. Decisions rendered at Levels One, Two, Three and Four of the grievance procedure will be in writing setting forth the decision and the reasons therefor and will be transmitted promptly to all parties in interest and to the Chairman of the PR&R Committee. Decisions rendered at Level Five will be in accordance with the procedure set forth in Section C. Paragraph 5.

3. All documents, communications and records dealing with the processing of a grievance will be filed separately from the personnel files of the participants.

4. Forms for filing grievances, serving notices, taking appeals, making reports and recommendations, and other necessary documents will be jointly prepared by the Superintendent or his designee and the Association and will be reproduced and given appropriate distribution by the Superintendent or his designee so as to facilitate operation of the grievance procedure.

5. The Committee agreed to make available to any grievant and/or his representative all information not privileged under law in its possession or control and which is relevant to the issues raised in the grievance.

ARTICLE XXIV

Negotiation Procedure

A. 1. Not later than ninety (90) days prior to the expiration of this Agreement, the Committee agrees to negotiate with the Association over a successor Agreement in accordance with the procedure set forth herein in a good-faith effort to reach agreement on all matters concerning teachers' wages, hours, and other conditions of employment. Such matters include, but are not limited to, the handling of grievances, salaries, fringe benefits, specialists, class size, teaching hours and teaching load, performance of non-teaching duties, teacher facilities, use of school facilities, teaching assignments, transfers, filling of vacancies, promotions, textbooks, summer school and adult education programs, teacher evaluation, protection of teachers, sick leave, leaves of absence, accident benefits, insurance, health services, substitute teachers, teaching materials, professional development and educational improvement. Any agreement so negotiated will apply to all teachers, and will be reduced to writing and signed by the Committee and the Association.

2. During negotiation, the Committee and the Association will present relevant data, exchange points of view, and make proposals and counterproposals. As of the time it is made available to the Committee, the Committee will provide the Association with a complete tentative line budget for the next fiscal year. The Committee will make available to the Association for inspection pertinent records of the Warwick School System upon request of the Association. Either party may, if it so desires, utilize the services of outside consultants and may call upon professional and lay representatives to assist in the negotiations.

3. If the negotiations described in this Section A have reached an impasse, as defined in Title 28, Chapter 9.3 of the Acts of 1966, then the procedure described in that Chapter shall be followed.

B. 1. The Committee and the Association agree that all negotiable items have been discussed during the negotiations leading to the Agreement and therefore agree that negotiations will not be reopened on any item whether contained herein or not during the life of this Agreement. The Committee agrees, however, to notify the Association of contemplated changes in policy and to meet with the Association upon request to discuss changes which are of mutual interest and concern.

2. The Committee agrees not to negotiate with any teachers' organization other than that designated as the exclusive representative pursuant to the School Teachers' Arbitration Act. The Committee further agrees not to negotiate with any teachers' organization other than the Association in regard to changes in wages, hours, or other conditions of employment during the term of this Agreement.

ARTICLE XXV

Use of School Facilities

A. The Association will have the right to use school buildings without cost at reasonable times for meetings. Request for use of buildings will be made to the Principal of the building in advance.

B. 1. The Association will have the right to place notices, circulars, and other material on faculty bulletin boards and in teachers' mail boxes.

2. It is expressly understood that no member of the Administration will assume responsibility for the posting or distribution of material for the Association or any other teacher organization.

C. The Committee shall provide, as soon as possible, suitable office space for the Association.

ARTICLE XXVI

General

A. The Committee shall not discriminate in any way against any teacher by reason of his membership in or participation in the activities of the Association or his exercise of rights granted under this Agreement.

B. If negotiation meetings between the Committee and the Association are scheduled during normal working hours of a school day, not more than seven (7) nor less than three (3) representatives of the Association shall be relieved from all regular duties without loss of pay as necessary in order to permit their attendance at such meetings. If it is necessary, pursuant to the Grievance Procedure in Article XXIII of the Agreement, for an Association School Representative, member of the PR&R Committee or other representative designated by the Association to attend a grievance meeting or hearing during a school day, he shall, with permission of the Superintendent or his designee, be released without loss of pay as necessary in order to permit participation in the foregoing activities. Any teacher whose appearance in such investigation, meetings, or hearings as a witness is necessary shall be accorded the same right. The Association agrees that these rights shall not be abused.

C. Association Building Representatives shall be permitted to use non-teaching time during the regular work day for the performance of Association business.

It is expressly understood that said Representatives are full-time teachers and that the right to perform Association work during the regular work day which is provided for in this Article will be exercised no more frequently and no longer than necessary.

D. The Committee will provide the Association with an advance copy of the agenda for each official Committee meeting.

E. School Calendar.

1. When the Superintendent is preparing the school calendar for consideration by the School Committee, he will invite the president of the Warwick Education Association or his designee to consult with him and the two assistant superintendents.

2. The schedule for teachers beyond the school year for pupils shall be as follows:

(a) 1967-68

1. One full day prior to school opening for in-service education for all teachers.

2a. One full day for elementary conferences at the end of November.

2b. One full day at the end of the first semester for in-service education for secondary school teachers.

3. One full day at the end of the school year for marking examinations, posting grades, recording, etc.

(b) 1. One full day prior to opening of school for in-service education for all teachers.

2. One full day in November for elementary conference, and one full day in November for secondary in-service education.

3. One full day in the last part of October for in-service education for all teachers.

4. One full day at the end of the first semester for in-service education for all teachers (not to be a part of February recess).

5. One full day in spring for in-service education for all teachers (not to be a part of spring recess).

6. One full day at the end of the school year for marking examinations and posting grades.

F. This Agreement constitutes committee policy for the term of said Agreement and the Committee will carry out the commitments contained herein and give them full force and effect as committee policy. The Committee will amend its administrative regulations and take such other action as may be necessary in order to give full force and effect to the rovisions of this Agreement.

G. Uniform deduction of Warwick Education Association, Rhode Island Education Association, and National Education Association dues shall be made from the 3rd, 5th, 7th, 9th, and 11th payroll checks during the school year.

Upon written request to the personnel office, a teacher may terminate his deductions of Warwick Education Association, and/or Rhode Island Education Association, and National Education Association dues, such request to be made at least sixty (60) days prior to such termination.

ARTICLE XXVII

Cooperation

A. The Association and the Committee agree on the desirability of making the schools community centered and will cooperate in any program designed to accomplish this.

B. The Association agrees to appoint representatives to serve on special committees when requested to do so.

C. The Committee and the Association agree to establish a joint committee to study the provision of differentials in the salary schedule to insure the employment of special area teachers where the supply is short and has been depleted by industry.

D. The Association agrees to make a concerted effort to work with the Committee and the Administration in developing the total educational program into one that is unique to Warwick, and to support the Committee vocally and actively by its presence at hearings and public meetings in the interest of sound education.

ARTICLE XXVIII

Duration

The provisions of this Agreement will be effective as of February 1, 1967 and will continue and remain in full force and effect until January 31, 1969. Said Agreement will automatically be renewed and will continue in full force and effect for additional periods of one year unless either the Committee or the Association gives written notice to the other not later than ninety (90) days prior to the aforesaid expiration date or any anniversary thereof of its desire to reopen this Agreement and to negotiate over the terms of a successor Agreement.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereunto set their hands and seals this 2nd day of December, 1966.

Part Three

The Resolution of Deadlocks in Collective Negotiations

THE AVOIDANCE OF THE STRIKE is substantially the perfection of procedures and policies to provide an effective alternative to conflict. Part Two of this report proposed procedures to settle the difficult disputes and rivalries involved in issues of representation. Part Five is concerned with various suggestions to improve the quality of negotiations and to avoid an impasse; it is also concerned with the present procedures for the settlement of grievances. The present part focuses upon the critical questions of the most appropriate alternatives to conflict in the event that collective negotiations appear to have reached an impasse. What then?

The design of dispute settlement procedures must constantly avoid at least two serious pitfalls. The first is that impasse procedures often tend to be overused; they may become too accessible, and as a consequence, the responsibility and problem-solving virtues of constructive negotiations are lost. Dispute settlement procedures can become habit-forming, and then negotiations become only a ritual. The second pitfall is that a standardized dispute settlement procedure is not ideally suited to all parties and to all disputes. Procedures work best which have been mutually designed, are mutually administered, and have been mutually shaped to the particular problem at hand.

Collective negotiations in government employment need to be closely coordinated with the calendar of the legislative and budget year. Indeed, an impasse is typically identified by the failure to have achieved an understanding or agreement before the approach of budgeting deadlines established by law. It is a fundamental principle in government employment that collective negotiations and the resort to procedures to resolve an impasse be appropriately related to the legislative and budget making process. An impasse may be defined in terms of the failure to achieve agreement sixty days, or some longer period, prior to the budget submission date established by law for the agency or unit of government.

Part One of this report described the wide variety of types of collective relations that now exist in public employment in the State of New York: (a) In some cases more than one employee organization is recognized in a single unit, while in others one employee organization has the right exclusively to represent all employees. (b) In some cases wages and conditions of employment are prescribed by the agency after discussions with employee organizations; in other cases they are set forth in memoranda or agreements signed by employee organizations after joint discussions but with final prescription by the government agency; in still other cases, agreements are formally negotiated by employee organizations and the agency and signed by both. (c) In some cases the range of subjects discussed with employee organizations is very narrow since many of the conditions of employment are mandated by legislation or administrative regulation, while in other cases the subjects discussed range as widely as in private industry. (d) In some cases wages and conditions of employment for non-classified employees are determined under legislative authority by reference or equivalence to the wages and conditions prevailing for other designated employees, while in other cases no such formula or principle has been authorized. (e) In some situations the budget available to the government agency is determined in advance and is fixed for the purposes of any collective discussions, while in other cases it is understood that the agency undertakes to seek the necessary funds; in still other situations discussions over wages and sources of funds proceed simultaneously. (f) In some cases the conditions of employment are determined for a single budgetary year, while in others these terms are fixed across two or more budget years.

This variety in the patterns of collective relations between government agencies and employee organizations in New York State, and the early stage of many of these relations, has led this Committee to conlcude that every opportunity and encouragement should be afforded each collective relationship to develop its own procedures and dispute-settling machinery. No single procedure or style of dispute settlement is likely to prove equally acceptable or effective. Moreover, parties may wish to experiment and to revise procedures in the light of experience. No procedure should be imposed by law without first affording the governmental agencies and employee organizations involved in collective relations the opportunity to develop directly their own procedures for resolving an impasse. It would be unwise to freeze so early in the development of collective relations in government employment a single pattern of dispute settlement and to deprive the future of a more varied and perceptive experience from which to choose.

The time to develop procedures to resolve an impasse is when there is no crisis. The processes of joint discussion and negotiations in each collective relation should be devoted to the development of procedures to resolve disputes and to avoid an impasse. Such procedures, designed to meet the needs of the particular parties and the public interest, should be regarded as a priority subject for collective negotiations. These agreed-upon procedures should be reviewed and perfected from time to time in collective negotiations in the light of experience.

The Committee proposes the principle and policy that every collective relationship between a governmental agency and an employee organization, which is reduced to writing, should incorporate a specific procedure which the parties agree to use to resolve disputes over conditions of employment in advance of budget submission or legislative deadlines. Where the collective relationship involves no written agreement or memorandum, the parties should nonetheless adopt such a procedure which they may elect to reduce to writing.

This Committee recommends that every existing collective relationship between a governmental agency and employee organization promptly undertake discussions seeking to establish a mutually agreeable procedure to be followed in a future dispute over employment conditions. This obligation to search for agreed-upon procedures should apply regardless of any specified term of current conditions or existing memoranda or agreement, but any agreed-upon procedure need become operative, if necessary, only with the expiration of the present term. Among the types of procedures which the parties may wish to consider are the following. They may alter or combine these procedures in a variety of ways. Their resourcefulness and imagination may be expected to create still others more appropriate to their particular situation. The list which follows is identified without preferment or ranking. Any procedure must, of course, conform to provisions of law.

(a) The advance commitment to submit a dispute to arbitration. Specific standards may or may not be designated.

(b) The determination to resolve a question according to a formula specifying that the wages, benefits or other conditions of employment in the locality and type of work in question shall be governed by those prevailing in private or public employment in other designated localities and types of work.

(c) The advance agreement to refer a dispute to fact-finding with recommendations, with or without the advance commitment by one or both parties to accept the recommendations. The procedures may provide a number of variants. The negotiators may jointly agree in advance to accept the recommendations of the fact-finders and to urge their acceptance upon their principals. They may jointly agree in advance to take the recommendations to the appropriate legislative body to advocate jointly the requisite appropriation or change in regulations, recognizing the authority of such legislative body. The procedures to select the fact-finding and recommending body may also take a variety of forms.

(d) The advance agreement to establish one or more study committees to review together complex or difficult problems, such as wage relations among classifications, which may not be amenable to simple and immediate solution. Such joint study committees should be expected to achieve mutually agreeable recommendations to their principals prior to the next budget submission or legislative deadline. Joint study committees have proven to be constructive in many private and public relationships. The study committees could well include several employee organizations depending on the scope of the issue.

(e) The advance commitment to utilize mediation procedures and to designate individuals or agencies, public or private, as the mediators.

Some of the parties to a current collective relationship may be unable to reach agreement on the procedures which they are to follow in the event of an impasse in collective negotiations. In such event, the Committee recommends that the following procedures be required to be utilized if an impasse exists not less than sixty days before the date required for the submission of the budget. These procedures may be invoked by the government agency, by the employee organization, or by the Public Employment Relations Board on its own motion.

(a) The Public Employment Relations Board shall first ascertain whether an impasse exists, the issues in controversy, the status of the collective negotiations and the steps which the parties have taken to resolve the dispute. The Board shall seek to resolve the dispute by further mediation, including the search for mutually agreeable procedures to resolve any remaining differences between the parties.

(b) If an impasse continues, the Public Employment Relations Board shall appoint a fact-finding board, ordinarily of three members, each of whom is to be representative of the public, with power to make public recommendations. The fact-finding board shall be appointed from a list of recognized experts maintained by the Board and drawn up after consultation with representatives of employee organizations, state and local government administrators, and agencies with industrial relations and personnel functions. The Public Employment Relations Board may also appoint non-voting advisors to the fact-finding board from each of the parties, in appropriate cases.

(c) The fact-finding board shall hear the contending parties to the dispute. It may request statistical data and reports on its own initiative in addition to the data regularly maintained by the Public Employment Relations Board. A majority of the members of the fact-finding board shall make a recommendation to resolve the issues in dispute no later than fifteen days prior to the submission of the budget or legislative deadline. The recommendations of the fact-finding board shall be used to facilitate agreement prior to the budgetary or legislative deadline; however, they shall not be binding on either the governmental agency or the employee organization, unless they so agree.

(d) In the event that a fact-finding report with recommendations issued by a board established under procedure adopted by the parties, no further fact-finding board with power to make recommendations, as provided in paragraph (b) above, shall be appointed. However, the Public Employment Relations Board shall have the power to take whatever steps it deems appropriate to resolve the dispute, including the making of recommendations after giving due consideration to the recommendations and facts found by the first body.

This Committee has recommended the above impasse procedures and those incorporated below, because it has concluded that these are most appropriate and most generally applicable to public employment. Fact-finding requires the parties to gather objective information and to present arguments with references to these data. An unsubstantiated or extreme demand from either party tends to lose its force and status in this forum. The fact-finding report and recommendations provide a basis to inform and to crystallize thoughtful public opinion and news media comment. Such reports and recommendations have a special relevance when the public's business is involved. The public has a special right to be informed on the issues, contentions and merits of disputes involving public employees.

The Committee has rejected the proposal for compulsory arbitration not merely because there may be serious questions as to its legality but because of the conviction that impasse disputes may arise less frequently and be settled more equitably by the procedures outlined in this report. In our judgment, the requirement for binding arbitration would likely reduce the prospects of settlement at earlier stages closer to the problems, the employees and the agency; it would tend to frustrate the participation of employees in the determination of compensation and conditions of employment and tend to encourage arbitrary and extreme positions on both sides. Moreover, the procedures here proposed, we believe, are more effective in encouraging proposals which are likely to prove to be mutually acceptable and enforceable. They better preserve the autonomy and authority of the legislative process while achieving a balance between the rights of public employees and the public interest.

A collective relationship between a governmental agency and one or more employee organizations now applies to only a minority of government employees in New York. This Committee recommends that any collective relationship, which results in a written understanding or agreement in the future, incorporate in any such memorandum or agreement a procedure to be followed by the parties in the event of an impasse in negotiations. The parties should preferably design their own procedures, but they may elect to adopt the Public Employment Relations Board procedures outlined above.

The Committee recommends that the Public Employment Relations Board maintain and make available to employee organizations and government agencies, as well as to mediators and fact-finding boards, statistical data relating to wages, benefits and employment practices in public and private employment applicable to various localities and occupations. The Board should also provide data for joint study committees established by government agencies and employee organizations and assist them to resolve complex issues in their negotiations.

The Committee is of the view that the procedures outlined above, providing for the maximum participation by government agencies and employee organizations in the design and administration of the procedures to resolve an impasse, will make a major contribution to the orderly resolution of disputes. As either party is left the alternative to reject the recommendations of a fact-finding board, it is essential to state the views of this Committee as to appropriate procedures in that event.

In public employment, responsibility for the final resolution of any dispute, which has not been settled by the procedures outlined above, lies with the local or state legislative body. The rejection by the employee organization of the recommendations of the fact-finding board does not make a strike legitimate or appropriate. The rejection by a government agency of such recommendations does not constitute a final disposition of the dispute.

Economic coercion involving work stoppages is not to be applied in our society against government. The proper course for the employee organization to take any further complaint, after review and recommendations by a fact-finding board, is the legislative and political arena representing all the people.

Similarly, if the government agency should reject the recommendations, as it too should have the right to do, the employee organization and the administrators should take the remaining controversy to the legislative and political arena rather than to the streets. In the ordinary course, the legislature reviews and evaluates contending views in budget making and in the specification of conditions of work for public employees.

The committee recommends that in the event of the rejection of a fact-finding recommendation, the legislative body or committee hold a form of "show cause hearing" at which the parties review their positions which respect to the recommendations of the fact-finding board. The appropriate budgetary allotment or other regulations are then to be enacted by the legislative body.

It is ultimately the legislature and the political process which has to balance the interests of public employees with the rest of the community, to relate the compensation of public employees to the tax rate and to appraise the extent and quality of public services and the efficiency of their performance to the aspirations of public employees. The methods of persuasion and political activity, rather than the strike, comport with our institutions and traditions as means to resolve such conflicts of interest. It is these methods, moreover, that have been utilized by the wide variety of employee organizations which are indigenous to public employment.

In summary, four basic principles stand out in the design of machinery to resolve disputes which reach a deadlock in collective negotiations:

(a) Collective negotiations need to be closely coordinated with the budget and legislative year; indeed, an impasse is to be defined by reference to failure to achieve an agreement not less than sixty days prior to the final date of the budgetary submission.

(b) All written memoranda or agreements should include procedures which the parties develop themselves to invoke in the event of an impasse. Parties to such memoranda or agreements now in effect should be encouraged to incorporate such procedures.

(c) In the event of an impasse which has not been resolved, the Public Employment Relations Board should appoint a public fact-finding board, ordinarily of three members, to make recommendations.

(d) In the event of the rejection of a fact-finding recommendation by the employee organization or the governmental agency, the appropriate legislative body or committee should hold a form of "show cause hearing" at which the parties review their positions with respect to the recommendations of the fact-finding board prior to final legislative action on the budget or other enactment.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE PASSES PUBLIC EMPLOYEE NEGOTIATION STATUTE

Governor Rockefeller of New York signed into law on April 21, 1967, Senate Bill 4639 which granted representation and negotiation rights to public employees. The new statute, reproduced in full beginning on page C-1, is based upon the Final Report of the Governor's Committee on Public Employee Relations, or Taylor Report. Part III of the Report, "The Resolution of Deadlocks in Collective Negotiations," was reproduced in the April Negotiation Research Digest.

The preamble to the act describes its purposes:

To amend the civil service law and the judiciary law, in relation to granting to public employees the right of organization and representation for the purpose of collectively negotiating the conditions of employment, creating a public employment relations board to assist in resolving disputes between public employees and public employers, prohibiting strikes by public employees and providing remedies for the violation thereof, and repealing section one hundred eight of the civil service law, relating to strikes by public employees.

The Condon-Wadlin Law, which prohibited strikes by public employees and provided specific penalties in cases of violation, was repealed by the law. The new law also prohibits strikes by public employees. Public employees who strike are subject to disciplinary penalties provided by law for misconduct. Injunctive relief from strikes is provided. An employee organization that fails to comply with an anti-strike injunction may be fined $10,000 per day for each day the injunction is disobeyed.

The new statute establishes a public employment relations board designed to assist local governments, including school districts, and employee organizations in obtaining information, resolving representation disputes, providing panels of persons qualified to serve as mediators or members of fact-finding boards, and other specified functions.

The act empowers public employers to establish procedures to determine the organization to represent the employees, in conformity with provisions set forth in the law, and in agreement with the recognized employee organization, to establish procedures to be used to resolve impasses in the course of negotiations. The public employer is required to negotiate with the certified or recognized employee organization and to enter into written agreements.

The statute becomes effective September 1, 1967.

FIVE PROCEDURAL AGREEMENTS

The NEA Research Division depository of negotiation agreements has provided five procedural agreements for Section D (Agreements) of this issue. Four of the five agreements include provisions for resolution of impasses. The five school systems, recognized organizations, and number of personnel represented are:

School System	Recognized Organization	Personnel Represented
Community Unit School District No. 4 Champaign County, Illinois	Champaign Education Association (NEA)	743
Adams County School District 14 Adams County, Colorado	District 14 Education Association (NEA)	398
School District 89 Maywood, Illinois	West Suburban Teachers Union, Local 571 (AFL-CIO)	210
Unified School District #470 Arkansas City, Kansas	Arkansas City Education Association (NEA)	185
Lewes Special School District Lewes, Delaware	Lewes Education Association (NEA)	65

Texts of agreements begin on page D-1.

PUBLIC EMPLOYEE POLICY RECOMMENDATIONS IN ILLINOIS

Governor Otto Kerner of Illinois, on July 29, 1966, appointed a 22-member panel to study the problems of employer-employee relations in state and local governmental agencies. The panel was to explore the need for legislation and, if appropriate, to make recommendations for such legislation.

In his Executive Order Governor Kerner conferred upon the panel the following responsibilities:

1. To consider all aspects of employee-employer relations for State and local governmental agencies.

2. To recommend policies appropriate for promoting fairness, harmony, cooperation, and efficiency in public employment.

3. To consider the need, if any, for establishing additional procedures and machinery

a. to carry out these policies

b. to deal with issues concerning the representation of governmental employees and

c. to provide for prompt and fair adjustment of employee grievances.

4. To enlist the aid, advice, and recommendations of interested groups and of knowledgeable individuals concerning the achievement of the above objectives, in accordance with standards and principles that should govern the relationship of governmental agencies and their personnel and that are consistent with the faithful discharge of the responsibility of governmental agencies to the public.

The text of Sections 1-6 of the Report begins on page E-1.

NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES IN FLINT, MICHIGAN

The written procedures used in the negotiation of a new agreement have been of interest to a number of groups. The comprehensive procedures detailed in the agreement between the Flint Education Association (NEA) and the Board of Education of the City of Flint, Michigan, and effective September 1, 1966, through August 31, 1969, provide an example of such procedures. Article III, Negotiation Procedures, is reproduced in full:

ARTICLE III.

Negotiation Procedures

A. Not later than March 1 of the calendar year in which this agreement is subject to reopener or expires, the Board agrees to begin negotiations with the Association concerning a successor Agreement, in accordance with the procedures set forth herein. Any Agreement so negotiated shall apply to all teachers, and shall be reduced to writing and signed by the Board and the Association.

B. In any negotiations described in this Agreement, neither party shall have any control over the selection of the bargaining representatives of the other party, and each party may select its representatives from within or without the school district. It is recognized that no final Agreement between the parties may be executed without ratification by a majority of the Board and by a majority of the membership of the Association.

C. This Agreement incorporates the entire understanding of the parties on all issues which were or could have been subject to negotiation. During the term of this Agreement neither party shall be required to negotiate with respect to any such matter whether or not covered by this Agreement and whether or not within the knowledge or contemplation of either or both of the parties at the time they negotiated or signed this Agreement.

D. When it is mutually agreed that negotiations referred to in Paragraph A between the Association and the Board shall take place during the school day, any teacher so engaged shall be released from regular duties without loss of salary.

E. In the event the negotiations described in Paragraph A above reach an impasse, the procedure described in Act 379 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1965, as amended from time to time, shall be followed when requested by either party.

UNUSUAL PROVISIONS OF AGREEMENTS

In the process of analyzing agreements, the NEA Research Division's negotiation research unit becomes aware of some unusual provisions in agreements. Reports of unusual provisions will be made periodically in the Negotiation Research Digest.

Recognition of one of a teacher's "occupational hazards" is made in the agreement between the Manchester Education Association (NEA) and the Manchester (Connecticut) Public Schools, in Section B of Article XVII, Accident and Sickness Benefits:

B. If a teacher is absent because of illness due to a childhood communicable disease definitely traceable to contact made in school, the absence will not be charged against him.

Some of the smaller communities tend to restrict the private lives of their school staff members. Two sections of Article VI, Teaching Conditions, in the agreement between the Hancock (Michigan) Public Schools and the Hancock Education Association (NEA) are of interest in this respect:

C. Under no conditions shall a teacher be required to drive a school bus as part of his regular assignment.

F. The private and personal life of any teacher is not within the appropriate concern or attention of the board except when it impairs the teacher's effectiveness in the classroom or position. Notwithstanding their employment, teachers shall be entitled to full rights of citizenship and no religious or political activities of any teacher or the lack thereof shall be grounds for any discipline or discrimination with respect to the professional employment of such teacher.

SECOND PRELIMINARY REPORT, 1966-67

SURVEY OF WRITTEN NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES BETWEEN LOCAL SCHOOL BOARDS AND ORGANIZATIONS OF THE TEACHING PROFESSION

The data which follow are preliminary and were obtained from the survey of written negotiation procedures now being conducted by the NEA Research Division. The data are based on the returns processed as of April 24, 1967.

Four tables, A, B, D-1, and D-2, were selected for their broad coverage. Other tables, which will be reported in later issues of this Digest, from the final report on the survey include the types of negotiation in school systems with multiple recognized organizations, the methods used for determining the organization(s) to be recognized, the types of personnel represented in negotiation, and others.

Data for the Chicago City School System has been included in the "systems without agreements" category in Table B inasmuch as it does not currently have a written agreement. When the Chicago agreement is filed with the NEA Research Division, 20,000 personnel will be added to the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) figures in both the Illinois and the national totals of personnel represented (Table D-1), the Chicago Teachers Union (AFL-CIO) being the recognized organization. In Table D-2 the number of school systems represented by local unions of the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) will, upon the Chicago filing, be increased to 13 of the 51 Illinois systems with agreements, and nationally to 36 of the 1,263 systems with agreements.

SCOPE OF SURVEY

Table A shows the scope of the survey, the percent of school systems responding, and the numbers of personnel covered by the survey. The 7,157 school systems surveyed represent the universe of school systems in the United States enrolling 1,000 or more pupils.

The response rate was highest among the largest systems, and steadily decreased as the enrollment of the school system decreased.

STATUS OF WRITTEN NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES

Table B provides a state-by-state comparison of the extent of negotiation agreements, and shows the number of instructional staff members employed in the school systems with, and without, negotiation agreements.

By policy, only those school systems which file a copy of their negotiation agreement in the NEA Research Division depository of agreements are included in the group of school systems counted as having agreements.

NUMBER OF PROFESSIONAL PERSONNEL REPRESENTED BY NATIONAL AFFILIATION OF LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS FOR NEGOTIATION PURPOSES

Listed state by state in Table D-1 are the numbers of professional personnel represented by organizations recognized for negotiation purposes. It should be noted that this table refers specifically to personnel represented by organizations, and because of this definition, Oregon is listed with zero personnel represented. The Oregon statute does not allow organizational representation, using instead an elected committee of individuals.

In addition, Table D-1 shows for each state the number of professional personnel represented by state and local affiliates of the National Education Association (NEA), by local unions of the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO), and by independent groups.

An analysis of organizational representation by enrollment of the school system in which the personnel are employed reveals that 80 percent of the total personnel represented by the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) are in those school systems with enrollments of 100,000 or more.

In the case of the systems with mixed or indeterminate national affiliation of the recognized organizations, as well as the single organization systems, the number of personnel represented was appropriately distributed to the proper column.

NATIONAL AFFILIATION OF ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENTING PROFESSIONAL STAFF IN NEGOTIATION

Table D-2 presents the same types of data as Table D-1, but on a school system basis.

Listed are the number of school systems with written negotiation agreements, the number of systems where the personnel are represented by local or state affiliates of the National Education Association (NEA), local unions of the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO), or by independent groups. Listed also are the number of school systems in each state where representation of the personnel is by two or more organizations and where the national affiliation of the two organizations is mixed or indeterminate.

Systems with multiple recognized organizations representing the staff were counted as one system for the national organization if all recognized organizations had identical national affiliation. Multiple organization systems with organizations of mixed national affiliation were included in the column, "Two or More."

The lower portion of each table provides comparable data on the basis of school system enrollments. The eight enrollment strata utilized are:

Stratum	School System Enrollment
1	100,000 or more
2	50,000-99,999
3	25,000-49,999
4	12,000-24,999
5	6,000-11,999
6	3,000- 5,999
7	1,200- 2,999

STATE NEGOTIATION STATUTES

The statute for New York State was signed by Governor Rockefeller on April 21, 1967. Also included here are the statutes for Oregon, Rhode Island, Washington, and Wisconsin. (Statutes for Alaska, California, Connecticut, Florida, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, and New Jersey were reproduced in the April issue.)

NEW YORK

Chapter 392 of Laws of 1967: AN ACT GRANTING REPRESENTATION AND NEGOTIATION RIGHTS TO PUBLIC EMPLOYEES

Section 1. Section one hundred eight of the civil service law is hereby repealed.

§2. Such law is hereby amended by inserting therein a new article, to be article fourteen, to read as follows:

ARTICLE 14

PUBLIC EMPLOYEES' FAIR EMPLOYMENT ACT

Section 200. Statement of policy.

201. Definitions.

202. Right of organization.

203. Right of representation.

204. Recognition and certification of employee organizations.

205. Public employment relations board.

206. Procedures for determination of representation status of local employees.

207. Determination of representation status.

208. Rights accompanying certification or recognition.

209. Resolution of disputes in the course of collective negotiations.

210. Prohibition of strikes.

211. Application for injunctive relief.

212. Local government procedures.

§200. Statement of policy. The legislature of the state of New York declares that it is the public policy of the state and the purpose of this act to promote harmonious and cooperative relationships between government and its employees and to protect the public by assuring, at all times, the orderly and uninterrupted operations and functions of government. These policies are best effectuated by (a) granting to public employees the right of organization and representation, (b) requiring the state, local governments and other political subdivisions to negotiate with, and enter into written agreements with employee organizations representing public employees which have been certified or recognized, (c) creating a public employee relations board to assist in resolving disputes between public employees and public employers, and (d) continuing the prohibition against strikes by public employees and providing remedies for violations of such prohibition.

§201. Definitions. As used in this article:

1. The term "board" means the public employment relations board created by section two hundred five of this article.

2. The term "budget submission date" means the date by which, under law or practice, a government's proposed budget, or a budget containing proposed expenditures applicable to such government, is submitted to the legislative or other similar body of the government for final action, and (a) in the case of a school district other than city school districts means the date of the annual meeting, and (b) in the case of city school districts means the first day of July.

3. The term "membership dues deduction" means the obligation or practice of a government to deduct from the salary of a public employee with his consent an amount for the payment of his membership dues in an employee organization. Such term also means the obligation or practice of government to transmit the sums so deducted to an employee organization.

4. The term "chief legal officer" means (a) in the case of the state of New York or a state public authority, the attorney general of the state of New York, (b) in the case of a county, city, town or village, the county attorney, corporation counsel, town attorney or village attorney, as the case may be, and (c) in the case of any such government not having its own attorney, or any other government or public employer, the corporation counsel of the city in which such government or public employer has its principal office, and if such principal office is not located in a city, the county attorney of the county in which such government or public employer has its principal office.

5. The term "terms and conditions of employment" means salaries, wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment.

6. The term "employee organization" means an organization" of any kind having as its primary purpose the improvement of terms and conditions of employment of public employees, except that such term shall not include an organization (a) membership in which is prohibited by section one hundred five of this chapter, (b) which discriminates with regard to the terms or conditions of membership because of race, color, creed or national origin, or (c) which, in the case of public employees who hold positions by appointment or employment in the service of the board and who are excluded from the application of this article by rules and regulations of the board, admits to membership or is affiliated directly or indirectly with an organization which admits to membership persons not in the service of the board, for purposes of any provision of this article other than sections two hundred ten and two hundred eleven of this article.

Explanation--Matter in Roman is new; matter in italics is old; matter in brackets [ ] is old law to be omitted.

7. The term "government" or "public employer" means (a) the state of New York, (b) a county, city, town, village or any other political subdivision or civil division of the state, (c) a school district or any governmental entity operating a public school, college or university, (d) a public improvement or special district, (e) a public authority, commission, or public benefit corporation, or (f) any other public corporation, agency or instrumentality or unit of government which exercises governmental powers under the laws of the state.

8. The term "public employee" means any person holding a position by appointment or employment in the service of a public employer, except that such term shall not include persons holding positions by appointment or employment in the organized militia of the state for purposes of any provision of this article than sections two hundred ten and two hundred eleven of this article.

9. The term "state public authority" means a public benefit corporation or public corporation, a majority of the members of which are (i) appointed by the governor or by another state officer or body, (ii) designated as members by virtue of their state office, or (iii) appointed or designated by any combination of the foregoing.

10. The term "strike" means any strike or other concerted stoppage of work or slowdown by public employees.

11. The term "chief executive officer" in the case of school districts, means the superintendent of schools in school districts employing their own superintendents, and in school districts under the jurisdiction of a district superintendent of schools, shall mean the principal of the district.

12. The term "legislative body of the government," in the case of school districts, means the board of education, board of trustees or sole trustee, as the case may be.

§202. Right of organization. Public employees shall have the right to form, join and participate in, or to refrain from forming, joining, or participating in, any employee organization of their own choosing.

§203. Right of representation. Public employees shall have the right to be represented by employee organizations to negotiate collectively with their public employers in the determination of their terms and conditions of employment, and the administration of grievances arising thereunder.

§204. Recognition and certification of employee organizations.

1. Public employers are hereby empowered to recognize employee organizations for the purpose of negotiating collectively in the determination of, and administration of grievances arising under, the terms and conditions of employment of their public employees as provided in this article, and to negotiate and enter into written agreement with such employee organizations in determining such terms and conditions of employment.

2. Where an employee organization has been certified or recognized pursuant to the provisions of this article, the appropriate public employer shall be, and hereby is, required to negotiate collectively with such employee organization in the determination of, and administration of grievances arising under, the terms and conditions of employment of the public employees as provided in this article, and to negotiate and enter into written agreements with such employee organizations in determining such terms and conditions of employment.

§205. Public employment relations board.

1. There is hereby created in the state department of civil service a board, to be known as the public employment relations board, which shall consist of three members appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate from persons representative of the public. Not more than two members of the board shall be members of the same political party. Each member shall be appointed for a term of six years, except that of the members first appointed, one shall be appointed for a term to expire on May thirty-first, nineteen hundred sixty-nine, one for a term to expire on May thirty-first, nineteen hundred seventy-one, and one for a term to expire on May thirty-first, nineteen hundred seventy-three. The governor shall designate one member as chairman of the board. A member appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed for the unexpired term of the member whom he is to succeed.

2. Members of the board shall hold no other public office or public employment in the state. The chairman shall give his whole time to his duties.

3. Members of the board other than the chairman shall, when performing the work of the board, be compensated at the rate of one hundred dollars per day, together with an allowance for actual and necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of their duties hereunder. The chairman shall receive an annual salary to be fixed within the amount available therefor by appropriation, in addition to an allowance for expenses actually and necessarily incurred by him in the performance of his duties.

4. The board may appoint an executive director and such other persons, including but not limited to mediators, members of fact-finding boards and representatives of employee organizations and public employers to serve as technical advisers to such fact-finding boards, as it may from time to time deem necessary for the performance of its functions, prescribe their duties, fix their compensation and provide for reimbursement of their expenses within the amounts made available therefor by appropriation.

5. In addition to the powers and functions provided in other sections of this article, the board shall have the following powers and functions:

(a) To establish procedures consistent with the provisions of section two hundred seven of this article and after consultation with interested parties, to resolve disputes concerning the representation status of employee organizations.

(b) To resolve, pursuant to such procedures, disputes concerning the representation status of employee organizations of employees of the state and state public authorities upon request of any employee organization, state department or agency or state public authority involved.

(c) To resolve, pursuant to such procedures but only in the absence of applicable procedures established pursuant to section two hundred six of this article, disputes concerning the representation status of other employee organizations, upon request of any employee organization or other government or public employer involved.

(d) To make studies and analyses of, and act as a clearing house of information relating to, conditions of employment of public employees throughout the state.

(e) To request from any government, and such governments are authorized to provide, such assistance, services and data as will enable the board properly to carry out its functions and powers.

(f) To conduct studies of problems involved in representation and negotiation, including, but not limited to (i) whether employee organizations are to be recognized as representatives of their members only or are to have exclusive representation rights for all employees in the negotiating unit, (ii) the problems of unit determination, (iii) those subjects which are open to negotiation in whole or in part, (iv) those subjects which require administrative or legislative approval of modifications agreed upon by the parties, and (v) those subjects which are for determination solely by the appropriate legislative body, and make recommendations from time to time for legislation based upon the results of such studies.

(g) To make available to employee organizations, governments, mediators, fact-finding boards and joint study committees established by governments and employee organizations statistical data relating to wages, benefits and employment practices in public and private employment applicable to various localities and occupations to assist them to resolve complex issues in negotiations.

(h) To establish, after consulting representatives of employee organizations and administrators of public services, panels of qualified persons broadly representative of the public to be available to serve as mediators or members of fact-finding boards.

(i) To hold such hearings and make such inquiries as it deems necessary for it properly to carry out its functions and powers.

(j) For the purpose of such hearings and inquiries, to administer oaths and affirmations, examine witnesses and documents, take testimony and receive evidence, compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents by the issuance of subpoenas, and delegate such powers to any member of the board or any person appointed by the board for the performance of its functions. Such subpoenas shall be regulated and enforced under the civil practice law and rules.

(k) To make, amend and rescind, from time to time, such rules and regulations, including but not limited to those governing its internal organization and conduct of its affairs and to exercise such other powers, as may be appropriate to effectuate the purposes and provisions of this article.

6. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, neither the president of the civil service commission nor the civil service commission or any other officer, employer, board or agency of the department of civil service shall supervise, direct or control the board in the performance of any of its functions or the exercise of any of its powers under this article; provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed to exempt employees of the board from the provisions of the civil service law.

§206. Procedures for determination of representation status of local employees.

1. Every government (other than the state or a state public authority), acting through its legislative body, is hereby empowered to establish procedures, not inconsistent with the provisions of section two hundred seven of this article and after consultation with interested employee organizations and administrators of public services, to resolve disputes concerning the representation status of employee organizations of employees of such government.

2. In the absence of such procedures, such disputes shall be submitted to the board in accordance with section two hundred five of this article.

§207. Determination of representation status. For purposes of resolving disputes concerning representation status, pursuant to section two hundred five or two hundred six of this article, the board or government, as the case may be, shall

1. define the appropriate employer-employee negotiating unit, taking into account the following standards:

(a) the definition of the unit shall correspond to a community of interest among the employees to be included in the unit;

(b) the officials of government at the level of the unit shall have the power to agree, or to make effective recommendations to other administrative authority or the legislative body with respect to, the terms and conditions of employment upon which the employees desire to negotiate; and

(c) the unit shall be compatible with the joint responsibilities of the public employer and public employees to serve the public.

2. ascertain the public employees' choice of employee organization as their representative (in cases where the parties to a dispute have not agreed on the means to ascertain the choice, if any, of the employees in the unit) on the basis of dues deduction authorization and other evidences, or, if necessary, by conducting an election.

3. certify or recognize an employee organization upon (a) the determination that such organization represents that group of public employees it claims to represent, and (b) the affirmation by such organization that it does not assert the right to strike against any government, to assist or participate in any such strike, or to impose an obligation to conduct, assist or participate in such a strike.

§208. Rights accompanying certification or recognition. A public employer shall extend to an employee organization certified or recognized pursuant to this article the following rights:

(a) to represent the employees in negotiations and in the settlement of grievances;

(b) to membership dues deduction, upon presentation of dues deduction authorization cards signed by individual employees; and

(c) to unchallenged representation status until the next succeeding budget submission date and, thereafter, for an additional period of either twelve months or, if the parties so agree, not less than twelve months nor more than twenty-four months, which period shall commence one hundred twenty days prior to such next succeeding budget submission date.

§209. Resolution of disputes in the course of collective negotiations.

1. For purposes of this section, an impasse may be deemed to exist if the parties fail to achieve agreement at least sixty days prior to the budget submission date of the public employer.

2. Public employers are hereby empowered to enter into written agreements with recognized or certified employee organizations setting forth procedures to be invoked in the event of disputes which reach an impasse in the course of collective negotiations. In the absence or upon the failure of such procedures, public employers and employee organizations may request the board to render assistance as provided in this section, or the board may render such assistance on its own motion, as provided in subdivision three of this section.

3. On request of either party or upon its own motion, as provided in subdivision two of this section, and in the event the board determines that an impasse exists in collective negotiations between such employee organization and a public employer as to the conditions of employment of public employees, the board shall render assistance as follows:

(a) to assist the parties to effect a voluntary resolution of the dispute, the board shall appoint a mediator or mediators representative of the public from a list of qualified persons maintained by the board;

(b) if the impasse continues, the board shall appoint a fact-finding board of not more than three members, each representative of the public, from a list of qualified persons maintained by the board, which fact-finding board shall have, in addition to the powers delegated to it by the board, the power to make public recommendations for the resolution of the dispute;

(c) if the dispute is not resolved at least fifteen days prior to the budget submission date, the fact-finding board, acting by a majority of its members, shall immediately transmit its findings of fact and recommendations for resolution of the dispute to the chief executive officer of the government involved and to the employee organization involved, and shall simultaneously make public such findings and recommendations;

(d) in the event that the findings of fact and recommendations are made public by a fact-finding board established pursuant to procedures agreed upon by the parties under subdivision two of this section, and the impasse continues, the public employment relations board shall have the power to take whatever steps it deems appropriate to resolve the dispute, including the making of recommendations after giving due consideration to the findings of fact and recommendations of such fact-finding board, but no further fact-finding board shall be appointed;

(e) in the event that either the public employer or the employee organization does not accept in whole or part the recommendations of the fact-finding board, the chief executive officer of the government involved shall, within five days after receipt of the findings of fact and recommendations of the fact-finding board, submit to the legislative body of the government involved a copy of the findings of fact and recommendations of the fact-finding board, together with his recommendations for settling the dispute; and the employee organization may submit to such legislative body its recommendations for settling the dispute.

1. No public employee or employee organization shall engage in a strike, and no employee organization shall cause, instigate, encourage, or condone a strike.

2. A public employee who violates the provisions of subdivision one of this section shall be subject to the disciplinary penalties provided by law for misconduct, in accordance with procedures established by law.

3. (a) An employee organization which is determined by the board to have violated the provisions of subdivision one of this section shall, in accordance with the provisions of this section, lose the rights granted pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (b) of section two hundred eight of this chapter.

(b) In the event of a violation of subdivision one of this section, it shall be the duty of the chief executive officer of the public employer involved (i) forthwith to so notify the board and the chief legal officer of the government involved, and (ii) to provide the board and such chief legal officer with such facilities, assistance and data as will enable the board and such chief legal officer to carry out their duties under this section.

(c) In the event of a violation of subdivision one of this section, the chief legal officer of the government involved, or the board on its own motion, shall forthwith institute proceedings before the board to determine whether such employee organization has violated the provisions of subdivision one of this section.

(d) Proceedings against an employee organization under this section shall be commenced by service upon it of a written notice, together with a copy of the charges. A copy of such notice and charges shall also be served for their information, upon the appropriate government officials who recognize such employee organization and grant to it the rights accompanying such recognition. The employee organization shall have eight days within which to serve its written answer to such charges. The board's hearing shall be held promptly thereafter and at such hearing, the parties shall be permitted to be represented by counsel and to summon witnesses in their behalf. Compliance with the technical rules of evidence shall not be required.

(e) In determining whether an employee organization has violated subdivision one of this section, the board shall consider (i) whether the employee organization called the strike or tried to prevent it, (ii) whether the employee organization made or was making good faith efforts to terminate the strike, and (iii) whether, if so alleged by the employee organization, the public employer or its representatives engaged in such acts of extreme provocation as to detract from the responsibility of the employee organization for the strike.

(f) If the board determines that an employee organization has violated the provisions of subdivision one of this section, the board shall order forfeiture of the rights granted pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (b) of section two hundred eight of this chapter, for a specified period to time, as the board shall determine, but in no event to exceed eighteen months; provided, however, that where a fine imposed on an employee organization pursuant to subdivision two of section seven hundred fifty-one of the judiciary law remains wholly or partly unpaid, after the exhaustion of the cash and securities of the employee organization, the board shall direct that, notwithstanding such forfeiture, such membership dues deduction shall be continued to the extent necessary to pay such fine and such public employer shall transmit such moneys to the court.

(g) An employee organization whose rights granted pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (b) of section two hundred eight of this chapter have been ordered forfeited pursuant to this section may be granted such rights after the termination of such forfeiture only after complying with the provisions of clause (b) of subdivision three of section two hundred seven of this article.

4. Orders of the board made pursuant to this article (including, but not limited to, orders made pursuant to subdivision three of this section) shall be (a) reviewable under article seventy-eight of the civil practice law and rules, and (b) enforceable, upon petition of such board, by the supreme court, which shall have jurisdiction of the proceeding and the power to grant such temporary relief or affirmative or restraining orders as it deems just and proper.

§211. Application for injunctive relief. Notwithstanding the provisions of section eight hundred seven of the labor law, where it appears that public employees or an employee organization threaten or are about to do, or are doing, an act in violation of section two hundred ten of this article, the chief executive officer of the government involved shall (a) forthwith notify the chief legal officer of the government involved, and (b) provide such chief legal officer with such facilities, assistance and data as will enable the chief legal officer to carry out his duties under this section, and, notwithstanding the failure or refusal of the chief executive officer to act as aforesaid, the chief legal officer of the government involved shall forthwith apply to the supreme court for an injunction against such violation. If an order of the court enjoining or restraining such violation does not receive compliance, such chief legal officer shall forthwith apply to the supreme court to punish such violation under section seven hundred fifty of the judiciary law.

§212. Local government procedures. This article, except section two hundred one, section two hundred two, two hundred three, two hundred four, paragraph b of subdivision three of section two hundred seven, section two hundred eight, subdivisions one and two of section two hundred ten, and section two hundred eleven, shall be inapplicable to any government (other than the state or a state public authority) which, acting through its legislative body, has adopted by local law, ordinance or resolution, its own provisions and procedures which have been submitted to the board by such government and as to which there is in effect a determination by the board that such provisions and procedures and the continuing implementation thereof are substantially equivalent to the provisions and procedures set forth in this article with respect to the state; provided that with respect to the city of New York, such provisions and procedures need not be related to budget submission dates; and provided further, that with respect to provisions and procedures adopted by local law by the city of New York no such submission to or determination by the board shall be required, but such provisions and procedures shall be of full force and effect unless and until such provisions and procedures, or the continuing implementation thereof, are found by a court of competent jurisdiction, in an action brought by the board in the county of New York for a declaratory judgement, not to be substantially equivalent to the provisions and procedures set forth in this article.

§751. Punishment for criminal contempts. [punishment]

1. Except as provided in subdivision (2), punishment for a contempt, specified in section seven hundred and fifty, may be by fine, not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment, not exceeding thirty days, in the jail of the county where the court is sitting, or both, in the discretion of the court. Where a person is committed to jail, for the nonpayment of such a fine, he must be discharged at the expiration of thirty days; but where he is also committed for a definite time, the thirty days must be computed from the expiration of the definite time.

Such a contempt, committed in the immediate view and presence of the court, may be punished summarily; when not so committed, the party charged must be notified of the accusation, and have a reasonable time to make a defense.

2. (a) Where an employee organization, as defined in section two hundred one of the civil service law, wilfully disobeys a lawful mandate of a court of record, or wilfully offers resistance to such lawful mandate, in a case involving or growing out of a strike in violation of subdivision one of section two hundred ten of the civil service law, the punishment for each day that such contempt persists may be by a fine fixed in the discretion of the court in an amount equal to one fifty-second (1/52) of the total amount of annual membership dues of such employee organization or ten thousand dollars whichever is the lesser; provided, however, that where an amount equal to one fifty-second part (1/52) of the total amount of annual membership dues of such employee organization is less than one thousand dollars, such fine may be fixed in the sum of one thousand dollars. In the case of a government exempt from certain provisions of article fourteen of the civil service law, pursuant to section two hundred twelve of such law, the court may, as an additional punishment for such contempt, order forfeiture of the rights granted pursuant to the provisions of paragraph (b) of section two hundred eight of such law, for a specified period of time, as the court shall determine, but in no event to exceed eighteen months; provided, however, that where a fine imposed pursuant to this subdivision remains wholly or partly unpaid, after the exhaustion of the cash and securities of the employee organization, such forfeiture shall be suspended to the extent necessary for the unpaid portion of such fine to be accumulated by the public employer and transmitted to the court. In fixing the amount of the fine and/or duration of the forfeiture, the court shall consider all the facts and circumstances directly related to the contempt, including, but not limited to: (i) the extent of the wilful defiance of or resistance to the court's mandate (ii) the impact of the strike on the public health, safety, or welfare of the community and (iii) the ability of the employee organization to pay the fine imposed; and the court may consider (i) the refusal of the employee organization or the appropriate public employer, as defined in section two hundred one of the civil service law, or the representatives thereof, to submit to the mediation and fact-finding procedures provided in section two hundred nine of the civil service law and (ii) whether, if so alleged by the employee organization, the appropriate public employer or its representatives engaged in such acts of extreme provocation as to detract from the responsibility of the employee organization for the strike.

(b) In the event membership dues are collected by the public employer as provided in paragraph (b) of section two hundred eight of the civil service law, the books and records of such public employer shall be prima facie evidence of the amount so collected.

(c) The term "total amount of annual membership dues of the employee organization" as used in paragraph (a) of this subdivision, shall include initiation fees, periodic dues, and all assessments collected by such employee organization in the twelve month period preceding the contempt attributable to the members of such employee organization in that part of the collective negotiation unit actually on strike; provided, however, that if such strike effectively prevents the functioning of the entire collective negotiation unit or units represented by such employee organization, it shall mean such fees, dues and assessments attributable to the total number of members of the employee organization in such unit or units.

(d) (i) An employee organization appealing an adjudication and fine for criminal contempt imposed pursuant to subdivision two of this section, shall not be required to pay such fine until such appeal is finally determined.

(ii) The court to which such an appeal is taken shall, on motion of any party thereto, grant a preference in the hearing thereof.

§4. This act shall take effect September first, nineteen hundred sixty-seven, except that the provisions of section two hundred five of the civil service law, as added by section two of this act, shall take effect immediately.

Note.--Section one hundred eight of the Civil Service Law (known as the "Condon-Wadlin Law"), repealed by section one of this act, prohibits strikes by public employees and provides penalties for the violation thereof.

OREGON

Chapter 390 of 1965: AN ACT RELATING TO WORKING RELATIONS BETWEEN BOARDS OF EDUCATION AND THE TEACHING PROFESSION

Be it Enacted by the People of the State of Oregon:

Section 1. The Legislative Assembly, recognizing that teaching is a profession, declares that in matters arising between district school boards and certificated school personnel with reference to professional services rendered or to be rendered by such personnel, it is in the best interest of public education in this state to establish a procedure for the orderly, equitable and expeditious resolution of such matters.

Section 2. Certificated school personnel, individually or by a committee of such personnel elected for the purpose of representing other such personnel by the vote of a majority of the certificated school personnel below the rank of superintendent in a school district, shall have the right to confer, consult, and discuss in good faith with the district school board by which they are employed, or a committee thereof, on matters of salaries and related economic policies affecting professional services. However, nothing in this section is intended to affect the powers and duties of the district school board over matters of salaries and economic policies affecting professional services.

Section 3. The district school board shall establish election procedures and shall certify the committee which has been elected by the certificated school personnel under Section 2 of this Act.

Section 4. Whenever it appears to the district school board or the certificated school employees meeting with the board under Section 2 of this Act that a persistent disagreement over a matter of salaries or economic policies affecting professional services exists between the board and the employees, the board or the employees may request the appointment of consultants. The consultants shall consist of one member appointed by the board, one member appointed by the employees and one member chosen by the other two members. The consultants may determine a reasonable basis for settlement of the disagreement and may recommend such basis to the board and to the employees.

Section 5. ORS 243.710 through 243.750 shall not apply to certificated public school personnel. [This section removes certificated school personnel from collective bargaining law.]

RHODE ISLAND

Chapter 146 of 1966: AN ACT IN AMENDMENT OF AND IN ADDITION TO TITLE 28 OF THE GENERAL LAWS ENTITLED "LABOR AND LABOR RELATIONS," AS AMENDED, AND PROVIDING FOR THE SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES BETWEEN CERTIFIED PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS AND SCHOOL COMMITTEES.

It is enacted by the General Assembly as follows:

Section 1. Title 28 of the general laws entitled "Labor and labor relations," as amended, is hereby further amended by adding thereto the following chapter:

Arbitration of School Teacher Disputes

28-9.3-1. Declaration of policy--Purpose. In pursuance of the duty imposed upon it by the constitution to promote public schools and to adopt all means necessary and proper to secure to the people the advantages and opportunities of education, the general assembly hereby declares that it recognizes teaching as a profession which requires special educational qualifications and that to achieve high quality education it is indispensable that good relations exist between teaching personnel and school committees.

It is hereby declared to be the public policy of this state to accord to certified public school teachers the right to organize, to be represented, to negotiate professionally and to bargain on a collective basis with school committees covering hours, salary, working conditions and other terms of professional employment, provided, however, that nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed to accord to certified public school teachers the right to strike.

28-9.3-2. Right to organize and bargain collectively. The certified teachers in the public school system in any city, town or regional school district, shall have the right to negotiate professionally and to bargain collectively with their respective school committees and to be represented by an association or labor organization in such negotiation or collective bargaining concerning hours, salary, working conditions and all other terms and conditions of professional employment. For purposes of this chapter, certified teachers shall mean certified teaching personnel employed in the public school systems in the state of Rhode Island engaged in teaching duties. Superintendents, assistant superintendents, principals and assistant principals are excluded from the provisions of this act.

28-9.3-3. Recognition of bargaining agent. The association or labor organization selected by the certified public school teachers in the public school system in any city, town, or regional school district, shall be recognized by the school committee of such city, town or district, as the sole and exclusive negotiating or bargaining agent for all of the said public school teachers of the city, town, or regional school district unless and until recognition of such association or labor organization is withdrawn or changed by vote of the certified public school teachers after a duly conducted election, held pursuant to the provisions of this chapter. An association or labor organization or the school committee may designate any person or persons to negotiate or bargain in its behalf.

28-9.3-4. Obligation to bargain. It shall be the obligation of the school committee to meet and confer in good faith with the representative or representatives of the negotiating or bargaining agent within ten (10) days after receipt of written notice from said agent of the request for a meeting for negotiating or collective bargaining purposes. This obligation shall include the duty to cause any agreement resulting from negotiations or bargaining to be reduced to a written contract, provided that no such contract shall exceed the term of three (3) years. Failure to negotiate or bargain in good faith may be complained of by either the negotiating or bargaining agent or the school committee to the state labor relations board which shall deal with such complaint in the manner provided in chapter 28-7 of this title.

28-9.3-5. Determination of negotiating agent. Elections. The state labor relations board upon the written petition for an election signed by not less than twenty percent (20%) of the certified public school teachers of such city, town or regional school district, indicating their desire to be represented by a particular association or organization or to change or withdraw recognition shall forthwith call and hold an election at which all such certified public school teachers shall be entitled to vote. The association or organization selected by a majority of said certified public school teachers voting in said election shall be certified by the state labor relations board as the exclusive negotiating or bargaining representative of such certified public school teachers of such city, town or regional school district in any matter within the provisions of this chapter. Upon written petition to intervene in the election signed by not less than fifteen percent (15%) of such certified public school teachers indicating their desire to be represented by a different or competing association or organization, the name of such different or competing association or organization shall be placed on the same ballot. If the majority of those voting desire no representation, no association nor labor organization shall be recognized by the school committee as authorized to negotiate or bargain in behalf of its certified public school teachers, and in all elections there shall be provided on the ballot an appropriate designation for such a choice.

28-9.3-6. Supervision of elections. The state labor relations board shall prescribe the method of petitioning for an election, the manner, place and time of conducting such election, and shall supervise all such elections to insure against interference, restraint, discrimination, or coercion from any source. Complaints of interference, restraint, discrimination or coercion shall be heard and dealt with by the labor relations board as provided in chapter 28-7 of this title. All unfair labor practices enumerated in section 28-7-13 are declared to be unfair labor practices for a school committee.

28-9.3-7. Certification of negotiating agent. No association nor organization shall be certified initially as the representative of certified public school teachers except after an election. Teachers shall be free to join or to decline to join any association or organization regardless of whether it has been certified as the exclusive representative of certified public school teachers. If new elections are not held after an association or labor organization is certified, such association or organization shall continue as the exclusive representative of the certified public school teachers from year to year until recognition is withdrawn or changed as provided in section 28-9.3-5. Elections shall not be held more often than once each twelve months and must be held at least thirty (30) days before the expiration date of any employment contract.

28-9.3-8. Request for negotiation or bargaining. Whenever salary or other matters requiring appropriation of money by any city, town or regional school district are to be included as matter of negotiation or collective bargaining conducted under the provisions of this chapter, the negotiating or bargaining agent must first serve written notice of request for negotiating or collective bargaining on the school committee at least one hundred twenty (120) days before the last day on which money can be appropriated by the city or town to cover the first year of the contract period which is the subject of the negotiating or bargaining procedure.

28-9.3-9. Unresolved issues submitted to mediation or arbitration. In the event that the negotiating or bargaining agent and the school committee are unable within thirty (30) days from and including the date of their first meeting, to reach an agreement on a contract, either of them may request mediation and conciliation upon any and all unresolved issues by the state department of education, the director of labor or from any other source. If mediation and conciliation fail or are not requested, at any time after said 30 days either party may request that any and all unresolved issues shall be submitted to arbitration by sending such request by certified mail, postage pre-paid to the other party, setting forth the issues to be arbitrated.

28-9.3-10. Arbitration board-Composition. Within seven (7) days after arbitration has been requested as provided in section 28-9.3-9, the negotiating or bargaining agent and the school committee shall each select and name one (1) arbitrator and shall immediately thereafter notify each other in writing of the name and address of the person so selected. The two (2) arbitrators so selected and named shall, within ten (10) days from and after their selection agree upon and select and name a third arbitrator. If within said ten (10) days the arbitrators are unable to agree upon the selection of a third arbitrator, such third arbitrator shall be selected in accordance with the rules and procedure of the American Arbitration Association. If the negotiating or bargaining agent agrees with the school committee to a different method of selecting arbitrators, or to a lesser or greater number of arbitrators, or to any particular arbitrator, or if they agree to have the state board of education designate the arbitrator or arbitrators to conduct the arbitration, such agreement shall govern the selection of arbitrators, provided, however, that if the state board of education shall be unwilling or shall fail to designate the arbitrator or arbitrators, an alternative method of selection shall be used. The third arbitrator, whether selected as a result of agreement between the two arbitrators previously selected, or selected under the rules of the American Arbitration Association or by the state board of education or by any other method, shall act as chairman.

28-9.3-11. Hearings. The arbitrators shall call a hearing to be held within ten (10) days after their appointment and shall give at least seven (7) days' notice in writing to the negotiating or bargaining agent and the school committee of the time and place of such hearing. The hearing shall be informal, and the rules of evidence prevailing in judicial proceedings shall not be binding. Any and all documentary evidence and other data deemed relevant by the arbitrators may be received in evidence. The arbitrators shall have the power to administer oaths and to require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses, the production of books, records and other evidence relative or pertinent to the issues presented to them for determination. Both the negotiating or bargaining agent and the school committee shall have the right to be represented at any hearing before said arbitrators by counsel of their own choosing. The hearing conducted by the arbitrators shall be concluded within ten (10) days after the conclusion of the hearings, the arbitrators shall make written findings and a written opinion upon the issues presented, a copy of which shall be mailed or otherwise delivered to the negotiating or bargaining agent or its attorney or other designated representative and the school committee.

28-9.3-12. Appeal from decision. The decision of the arbitrators shall be made public and shall be binding upon the certified public school teachers and their representative and the school committee on all matters not involving the expenditure of money. The decision of the arbitrators shall be final and no appeal shall lie therefrom except on the ground that the decision was procured by fraud or that it violates the law, in which case appeals shall be to the superior court. The school committee shall within three (3) days after it receives the decision send a true copy thereof by certified or registered mail, postage prepaid, to the department or agency responsible for the preparation of the budget and to the agency which appropriates money for the operation of the schools in the city, town or regional school district involved, if said decision involves the expenditure of money.

28-9.3-13. Fees and expenses of arbitration. Fees and necessary expenses of arbitration shall be borne equally by the negotiating or bargaining agent and the school committee.

28-9.3-14. Plural and singular application. Whenever the word arbitrators is used herein it shall also mean arbitrator where applicable.

28-9.3-15. Severability of provisions. If any provision of this chapter, or application thereof to any person or circumstances, is held unconstitutional or otherwise invalid, the remaining provisions of this chapter and the application of such provisions to persons or circumstances other than those to which it is held invalid, shall not be affected thereby.

28-9.3-16. Short title. This chapter may be cited as the school teachers' arbitration act.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

WASHINGTON

Session Laws of 1965, Chapter 143: AN ACT RELATING TO EDUCATION; RECOGNIZING THE RIGHT OF EMPLOYEE ORGANIZATIONS TO REPRESENT CERTIFICATED EMPLOYEES IN THEIR RELATIONS WITH SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON:

NEW SECTION. Section 1. It is the purpose of this act to strengthen methods of administering employer-employee relations through the establishment of orderly methods of communication between certificated employees and the school districts by which they are employed.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 2. As used in this act:

"Employee organization" means any organization which includes as members certificated employees of a school district and which has as one of its purposes the representation of the employees in their employment relations with the school district.

"Certificated employee" means any employee holding a regular teaching certificate of the state and who is employed by any school district with the exception of the chief administrative officer of each local district.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 3. Representatives of an employee organization, which organization shall by secret ballot have won a majority in an election to represent the certificated employees within its school district, shall have the right, after using established administrative channels, to meet, confer and negotiate with the board of directors of the school district or a committee thereof to communicate the considered professional judgment of the certificated staff prior to the final adoption by the board of proposed school policies relating to, but not limited to, curriculum, textbook selection, in-service training, student teaching programs, personnel, hiring and assignment practices, leaves of absence, salaries and salary schedules and noninstructional duties.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 4. If in any school district there is a separate employee organization of certificated employees of a community college which organization shall, by secret ballot, have won a majority in an election to represent the certificated employees of the community college, as determined by a secret election, the representatives of the separate aggregation shall have the right, after using established administrative channels, to meet, confer, and negotiate with the board of directors of the school district or a committee thereof to communicate the considered professional judgment of the certificated staff prior to the final adoption by the board of proposed school policies related to, but not limited to, curriculum, textbook selection, in-service training, student teaching programs, personnel, hiring and assignment practices, leaves of absence, salaries and salary schedules, and noninstructional duties.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 5. Nothing in this act shall prohibit any certificated employee from appearing in his own behalf on matters relating to his employment relations with the school district.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 6. In the event that any matter being jointly considered by the employee organization and the board of directors of the school district is not settled by the means provided in this act, either party may request the assistance and advice of a committee composed of educators and school directors appointed by the state superintendent of public instruction. This committee shall make a written report with recommendations to both parties within fifteen days of receipt of the request for assistance. Any recommendations of the committee shall be advisory only and not binding upon the board of directors or the employee organization.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 7. Boards of directors of school districts or any administrative officer thereof shall not discriminate against certificated employees because of their exercise of rights under this act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 8. Boards of directors of school districts shall adopt reasonable rules and regulations for the administration of employer-employee relations under this act.

NEW SECTION. Sec. 9. Nothing in this law shall be construed to annul or modify, or to preclude the renewal or continuation of, any lawful agreement heretofore entered into between any school district and any representative of its employees.

WISCONSIN

Chapter 663, Laws of 1961:

STATUTES RELATING TO BARGAINING IN MUNICIPAL EMPLOYMENT

AN ACT to create 111.70 (1) (c) and (4) of the statutes, relating to bargaining in municipal employment.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented, in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

111.70. MUNICIPAL EMPLOYMENT

1. Definitions. When used in this section:

(a) "Municipal employer" means any city, county, village, town, metropolitan sewerage district, school district or any other political subdivision of the state.

(b) "Municipal employe" means any employe of a municipal employer except city and village policemen, sheriff's deputies, and county traffic officers.

(c) "Board" means the Wisconsin employment relations board.

2. Rights of municipal employes. Municipal employes shall have the right of self-organization, to affiliate with labor organizations of their own choosing and the right to be represented by labor organizations of their own choice in conferences and negotiations with their municipal employers or their representatives on questions of wages, hours and conditions of employment, and such employes shall have the right to refrain from any and all such activities.

3. Prohibited practices.

(a) Municipal employers, their officers and agents are prohibited from:

(1) Interfering with, restraining or coercing any municipal employe in the exercise of the rights provided in sub. (2).

(2) Encouraging or discouraging membership in any labor organization, employe agency, committee, association or representation plan by discrimination in regard to hiring, tenure or other terms or conditions of employment.

(b) Municipal employes individually or in concert with others are prohibited from:

(1) Coercing, intimidating or interfering with a municipal employe in the enjoyment of his legal rights including those set forth in sub. (2).

(c) It is a prohibited practice for any person to do or cause to be done, on behalf or in the interest of any municipal employer or employe, or in connection with or to influence the outcome of any controversy, as to employment relations, any act prohibited by pars. (a) and (b).

4. Powers of the Board. The board shall be governed by the following provisions relating to bargaining in municipal employment:

(a) Prevention of prohibited practices. Section 111.07 shall govern procedure in all cases involving prohibited practices under this subchapter.

(b) Mediation. The board may function as a mediator in disputes between municipal employes and their employers upon the request of both parties.

(d)[1] Collective bargaining units. Whenever a question arises between a municipal employer and a labor union as to whether the union represents the employes of the employer, either the union or the municipality may petition the board to conduct an election among said employes to determine whether they desire to be represented by a labor organization. Proceedings in representation cases shall be in accordance with Ss. 111.02 (6) and 11.05 insofar as applicable, except that where the board finds that a proposed unit includes a craft the board shall exclude such craft from the unit. The board shall not order an election among employes in a craft unit except on separate petition initiating representation proceedings in such craft unit.

(e) Fact finding. Fact finding may be initiated in the following circumstances:

(1) If after a reasonable period of negotiation the parties are deadlocked, either party or the parties jointly may initiate fact finding;

(2) Where an employer or union fails or refuses to meet and negotiate in good faith at reasonable times in a bona fide effort to arrive at a settlement.

(f) Same. Upon receipt of a petition to initiate fact finding, the board shall make an investigation and determine whether or not the condition set forth in par. (e) 1 or 2 has been met and shall certify the results of said investigation. If the certification requires that fact finding be initiated, the board shall appoint from a list established by the board a qualified disinterested person, or three-member panel when jointly requested by the parties, to function as a fact finder.

(g) Same. The fact finder may establish dates and place of hearings which shall be where feasible in the jurisdiction of the municipality involved and shall conduct said hearings pursuant to rules established by the board. Upon request, the board shall issue subpoenas for hearings conducted by the fact finder. The fact finder may administer oaths. Upon completion of the hearings, the fact finder shall make written findings of facts and recommendations for solution of the dispute and shall cause the same to be served on the municipal employer and the union.

(h) Parties.

(1) Proceedings to prevent prohibitive practices. Any labor organization or any individual affected by prohibited practices herein is a proper party to proceedings by the board to prevent such practice under this subchapter.

(2) Fact-finding cases. Only labor unions which have been certified as representative of the employes in the collective bargaining unit or which the employer has recognized as the representative of said employes shall be proper parties in initiating fact finding proceedings. Cost of fact-finding proceedings shall be divided equally between said labor organization and the employer.

(i) Agreements. Upon the completion of negotiations with a labor organization representing a majority of the employes in a collective bargaining unit, if a settlement is reached, the employer shall reduce the same to writing either in the form of an ordinance, resolution or agreement. Such agreement may include a term for which it shall remain in effect not to exceed one year. Such agreements shall be binding on the parties only if express language to that effect is contained therein.

(j) Personnel relations in law enforcement. In any case in which a majority of the members of a police or sheriff or county traffic officer department shall petition the governing body for changes or improvements in the wages, hours or working conditions and designates a representative which may be one of the petitioners or otherwise, the procedures in pars. (e) to (g) shall apply. Such representative may be required by the board to post a cash bond in an amount determined by the board to guarantee payment of one half of the costs of fact finding.

(k) Paragraphs (e) to (g) shall not apply to discipline or discharge cases under civil service provisions of a state statute or local ordinance.

(l) Nothing contained in this subchapter shall constitute a grant of the right to strike by any county or municipal employe and such strikes are hereby expressly prohibited.

(m) The board shall not initiate fact-finding proceedings in any case when the municipal employer through ordinance or otherwise has established fact-finding procedures substantially in compliance with this subchapter.

FIVE PROCEDURAL AGREEMENTS

Section D (Agreements) is devoted to five examples of procedural agreements, four of which contain impasse resolution procedures. Agreements are reproduced as submitted to the NEA Research Division.

Community Unit School District No. 4
Champaign County, Illinois

Champaign Education Association (NEA)

SCHOOL BOARD RESOLUTION FOR MUTUAL AGREEMENT

The Board of Education of the Community Unit School District No. 4, Champaign County, Illinois, recognizes that teaching is a profession. It also recognizes that the best interests of public education will be served by establishing procedures to provide an orderly method for the Board of Education and representatives of the Champaign Education Association to discuss matters of common concern, to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement on these matters and to appeal through professional and educational channels in the event of impasse. Therefore, the Board of Education hereby adopts the procedures which follow.

I. PRINCIPLES

A. ATTAINING OBJECTIVES

Attainment of objectives of the educational program of the district requires mutual understanding, the cooperation among the Board of Education, the Superintendent, his staff, and the professional teaching personnel.

To this end, free and open exchange of views is desirable and necessary, with all parties participating in deliberations leading to the determination of matters of mutual concern.

B. PROFESSIONAL TEACHING PERSONNEL

It is recognized that teaching is a profession requiring specialized and educational qualifications, and that the success of the educational program in the district depends upon the maximum utilization of the abilities of teachers who are reasonably well satisfied with the conditions under which their services are rendered.

It is further recognized that teachers have the right to join or not to join, any organization for their professional or economic improvement but that membership in any organization shall not be required as a condition of employment.

C. TEACHER PARTICIPATION

The Board of Education, the Board and Superintendent, or designated representatives of the Board and/or administrative staff will meet with the representatives of the Champaign Education Association for the purpose of discussion and reaching mutually satisfactory agreements on salary, welfare provisions, working conditions, and other problems of mutual concern.

II. PROCEDURES

A. MEETINGS

Meetings composed of members of the Champaign Education Association Welfare Committee, the Board of Education, and Superintendent, shall be called upon the written request of any one of the parties involved, namely: the Champaign Education Association, the Board of Education, and/or the Superintendent of Schools. Request for meetings should contain a specific statement as to the reason of the request.

B. DIRECTING REQUESTS

Requests from the Champaign Education Association normally will be made directly to the Superintendent or his representative. Requests from the Superintendent or the Board of Education or their representatives will be made to the President of the Champaign Education Association. A mutually convenient meeting date will be set within a reasonable period.

C. EXCHANGE OF FACTS, VIEWS

Facts, opinions, proposals and counterproposals will be exchanged freely during the meeting or meetings (and between meetings, if advisable) in an effort to reach mutual understanding and agreement.

The Champaign Education Association Welfare Committee, the Board of Education, and the Superintendent, will act, as far as possible, as a committee of the whole, studying the financial resources of the district, trends in salary schedules, trends in fringe benefits, and other matters.

D. REQUESTS FOR ASSISTANCE

The participants may call upon competent professional and/or lay representatives to consider the matter under discussion and to make suggestions.

All participants have the right to utilize the services of consultants in the deliberations.

E. AGREEMENT

When the participants reach agreement, it will be reduced to writting and become a part of the official minutes of the Board of Education. When necessary provisions in the agreement shall be reflected in the individual teachers' contracts. The agreement shall not discriminate against any member of the teaching staff, regardless of membership or nonmembership in any teachers organization.

III. APPEAL

A. TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

In the event that agreement is not reached, and members of the Board of Education have not participated directly in the deliberations, the teacher association representatives and the Superintendent or his representative may present separate reports stating their points of agreement and disagreement to the Board of Education. The procedure outline in II will then be followed in an effort to reach understanding and agreement, with the full Board--or Board members selected by the Board--participating in the deliberations.

B. TO THE STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

In the event that agreement is not reached with the Board, either the Board or teacher association representative may request the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to appoint a competent individual to seek to bring about a mutually acceptable settlement. The person chosen will have the authority to confer separately or jointly with the Superintendent of Schools, official representatives, or to utilize any other source of information. He may make public any data or recommendations that he may deem advisable.

C. TO A BOARD OF REVIEW

If the State Superintendent of Public Instruction fails to make the appointment within a specified time after receiving the request, or if the person appointed fails to make a recommendation satisfactory to all parties within a specified time after his appointment, a Board of Review will be created in the following manner:

One member will be nominated by the Board of Education or its designated representatives, one member will be nominated by the teacher association representatives, and a third member will be selected by the first two and will serve as chairman.

If the first two members cannot agree on the third member, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction will appoint a third member.

The Board of Review will have authority to hold hearings and to confer with any parties deemed advisable in seeking to effect a settlement.

If an agreement is not reached within a specified time after selection of the Board of Review, the Board of Review will prepare a public report with written recommendations and shall submit it to the Board of Education, teacher association representatives, and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

IV. STRIKE PROHIBITIONS

No member of the Champaign Education Association will, in an effort to effect a settlement of a disagreement with the Board of Education, engage in strike.

V. COSTS

Any costs and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of any individual and/or Board of Review will be shared equally by the Board of Education and the Champaign Education Association.

PROFESSIONAL RELATIONS AGREEMENT

I. RECOGNITION

The Board of Education of Adams County School District 14, Adams County, Colorado, hereinafter referred to as The Board, and the District 14 Education Association, hereinafter referred to as The Association, do hereby agree that the welfare of children of School District 14 is our paramount concern in the operation of the schools and is to be promoted to the fullest possible extent by both parties. In order to promote the highest professional relationship toward this end, both parties do hereby agree to the following:

1. The Board recognizes The Association as the official representative of all certificated professional personnel employed or to be employed by The Board.

2. The Board recognizes that teaching is a profession and that educators must be concerned and involved in the process of policy determination for the District.

3. The Association recognizes that the basic responsibility for the operation of the schools is legally vested in The Board as the representatives of the people.

4. The purpose of this professional relations agreement is the recognition of the rights and responsibilities of the parties concerned and the formalization of the procedure by which both parties may work together in good faith with regard to all matters of common concern.

II. PRINCIPLES

A. ATTAINING OBJECTIVES

Attainment of objectives of the educational program of the District requires mutual understanding and cooperation between The Board, the Superintendent and his staff, the professional teaching personnel and the school community. To this end, free and open exchange of views is desirable and necessary among all parties concerned with policy determination for the District.

B. PROFESSIONAL TEACHING PERSONNEL

It is recognized that teaching is a profession requiring specialized training and qualifications and that the success of the educational program in the District depends upon the maximum utilization of the abilities of teachers who are reasonably well satisfied with the conditions under which their services are rendered.

It is further recognized that teachers have the right to join, or not join, any organization for their professional or economic improvement and membership in any organization shall not be required as a condition of employment.

While The Association is the officially recognized organization representing certificated personnel on problems which usually concern all certificated personnel, nothing in this agreement shall be construed in a manner which will remove the right of any individual or group to contact the Administration or The Board of Education for consideration of an individual or group problem which does not concern all certificated personnel.

III. PROCEDURES

A. DIRECTING REQUESTS AND MEETINGS

1. Requests for meetings from The Association will be made directly to the Superintendent of Schools or representatives designated by him.

2. Requests from the Superintendent of Schools or The Board of Education or their representatives will be made to the President of The Association.

3. All requests shall be in writing and shall specify the nature of the problem or problems to be discussed.

4. When a request for a meeting has been made by either party, a mutually convenient date, time and place shall be set within fifteen (15) days of the date of the request.

5. Every possible effort shall be made in the meeting, or in subsequent meetings, to attempt to resolve the problem.

6. The Association and the Superintendent of Schools may elect to jointly develop recommendations that shall be submitted in writing to The Board of Education for consideration and approval or either party may request that a meeting between The Board of Education and The Association be arranged.

B. MEETINGS BETWEEN THE BOARD OF EDUCATION AND THE DISTRICT 14 EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

1. A request for a meeting between The Board of Education and The Association shall specify the nature of the problem or problems and indicate the extent to which The Association and the Administration have attempted to resolve the problem.

2. Following the request, a mutually convenient meeting date and time shall be set within twenty (20) days of the date of the request.

3. Meetings between The Board and The Association shall be held in the Board Room of the District unless other mutually agreeable arrangements have been made and The Board and representatives of The Association shall meet for the purpose of discussion and arriving at mutually satisfactory agreement.

4. The Superintendent of Schools and representatives which he may select shall be present at said meeting and act in an advisory capacity to The Board and the designated representatives of The Association.

5. Members of the Professional Relations Committee, not to exceed six (6) in number, shall be released from school duties without loss of salary when meetings with The Board are scheduled during the school day.

6. Meetings between The Association and The Board of Education shall be held in regular or special sessions of The Board of Education in accordance with the laws of the State of Colorado and the By-Laws of The Board of Education of School District 14. The meetings may be held in Executive Session if duly authorized by The Board of Education, but no formal action may be made in Executive Session.

C. EXCHANGE OF FACTS AND VIEWS

Facts, opinions, proposals and counter-proposals will be exchanged freely during the meeting or meetings in an effort to reach mutual understanding and agreement. The Professional Relations Committee of The Association, The Board, and the Superintendent of Schools will act, as far as possible, as a committee of the whole studying the financial resources of the District, tentative budget requirements and allocations, trends in pupil and teacher welfare, or any other information which may be of assistance in resolving the problem.

D. REQUESTS FOR ASSISTANCE

Either The Association or The Board may call upon competent professional and lay consultants to consider matters under discussion and to make suggestions.

E. COMMUNICATIONS

Communications regarding the progress of professional relations will be released as a joint statement from both parties.

F. AGREEMENT

Formal action on agreement shall be made in open session of The Board and shall become a part of the official minutes. No agreement shall discriminate against any member of the teaching staff regardless of membership or nonmembership in any teaching organization.

IV. MEDIATION AND APPEAL

A. BOARD OF EDUCATION

In the event that agreement is not reached, The Association representatives and The Board or their representative may present separate reports stating their points of agreement and disagreement to both parties. The procedure outlined in Section III will then be followed in an effort to reach understanding and agreement with The Board and The Association.

B. MEDIATION BOARD

In the case of disagreement about the meaning or application of this Agreement, or if an impasse is reached during professional relations, a mediation board may be established by mutual consent.

Membership on the mediation board shall be composed of one person appointed by The Board, one person appointed by the executive council of The Association and a third person to be elected by the two previously named. Neither of the persons elected by The Board and The Association may be members of their respective groups.

C. MEDIATION BOARD PROCEDURES

The mediation board shall have thirty (30) days within which to effect a settlement. The mediation board may hold hearings or utilize any other procedures which will contribute to their insight toward a just resolution of the conflict. The mediation board shall present recommendations to the membership of The Local Association and The School Board for consideration and vote by both parties.

Expenses incurred by the mediation board shall be shared equally by The Board and The Association.

V. AMENDMENT AND CANCELLATION

A. An amendment to this agreement may be made at any time by the mutual agreement of both parties.

B. This agreement shall be in effect until June 30 of each year and unless written notice is provided, shall continue in effect for the ensuing year.

C. Notice of intent to cancel the agreement must be made known by either party to the other by April 1.

BOARD OF EDUCATION - TEACHERS' UNION AGREEMENTS

At a special meeting of the Board of Education on August 15, 1944 the following agreement with the West Suburban Teachers Union, Local 571, was adopted. The agreement was made effective immediately.

The Employer recognizes the Union as the Collective bargaining agent for all certificated teachers who are members of the Union, and that all other certificated teachers be represented by the Union, (with the exception that this agreement does not include bargaining for salary adjustments and working conditions for the Superintendent, Principals, or Supervisors of School District 89) in all matters pertaining to salaries, wages, hours, and working conditions.

During the school year 1957-1958, a committee from the Executive Board of the Maywood Chapter of the West Suburban Teachers Union, Local 571 AFT, the superintendent of schools, and the assistant superintendent met several times to prepare the following agreements. The Board of Education adopted these agreements on June 13, 1958.

AGREEMENTS BETWEEN THE BOARD OF EDUCATION, DISTRICT 89, AND THE MAYWOOD CHAPTER OF THE WEST SUBURBAN TEACHERS UNION, LOCAL 571 AFT

These agreements shall remain in effect beginning with their adoption, until revised according to agreement between the Board of Education and the Teachers Union. Since this agreement is incorporated in our Handbook Of Policies, Rules, and Regulations, and since this handbook is revised during the summer of each year, every effort must be made by the parties concerned to complete all agreements for the ensuing year on or before June 1st.

The purpose of incorporating these agreements in the Handbook is to inform all teachers of the agreements that are currently in effect. It should promote clearer understanding and correct procedures, for the orderly settlement of any grievances which may arise between the administration and the teacher.

Agreements

I. The Employer agrees that the regular school bulletin boards in each school building may be used by the Union for posting of all Union materials and notices.

II. The Employer agrees that the Union may use all communication services such as non-toll telephone service and regular delivery service in School District 89 without fee.

III. The Employer agrees that all regular and special meetings of the Union shall be held in the school buildings at such time as may be mutually agreed upon with the superintendent.

IV. When regular monthly meeting dates are established the administration agrees that no other school meetings, athletic affairs or school functions shall be scheduled on those dates.

V. In the Spring of 1956, the Board of Education agreed to allow teachers a personal free day, which is described elsewhere in this Handbook as follows:

A teacher may be absent one day during the year for personal reasons, such as moving, personal business, without loss of salary. This day is not a part of the ten days Absentee Pay Plan and is not accumulative. It is hoped that teachers will use it only when absolutely necessary.

When this personal free day was granted the Teachers Union was informed that people asking for the free day would be asked to give their reasons. These reasons should be emergencies, such as moving day, personal business which could not be transacted on Saturdays or evenings.

VI. In the Spring of 1960 it was agreed that unused days of sick leave during any one year should accumulate to the benefit of the teacher for subsequent use, to a total of fifty days, and that the number of days of sick leave accumulative at the beginning of any year shall not exceed fifty days.

VII. In the Spring of 1958 the Board of Education agreed to the plan of a Sabbatical Leave effective as of the school year 1958-1959. This complete plan with all of its rules and regulations is found elsewhere in this Handbook.

VIII. The teacher's school year consists of 190 days, including legal school holidays and workshop days. According to the way that the calendar runs, the total number of days in each year may vary so that it might be 188 days, 189 days, or 190 days. If the Board makes the school calendar 188 days, they are simply giving teachers two days off with pay. The regular year is 190 days. In discussions of this matter with the Union, the Board has held that they reserve the right to set the length and time of the school year.

Personal Relations and Adjustments Committee

I. All matters of adjustment which remain unresolved shall be referred to a committee which shall be composed of representatives designated by the Executive Board of the Maywood Chapter of West Suburban Teachers Union, Local 571, and by the representatives selected by the Board of Education, School District #89.

II. Any and all matters of adjustments or grievances shall first be presented by the teacher to the principal. If after this, the teacher still is not satisfied, he or she may then present the grievance to the superintendent. If the grievance concerns a teacher-principal professional relationship, the teacher may take it direct to the superintendent without conferring with the principal. In the event adjustment is unsatisfactory to the teacher after conferring with the superintendent, the teacher may present the matter in writing to the Executive Board of the Maywood Chapter of the West Suburban Teachers Union, Local 571. If after the Union Executive Board has given proper consideration to the matter and consulted with the Superintendent it is still not settled, the Executive Board may request of the superintendent that it be referred to a special committee. This special committee shall be composed of two representatives designated by the Executive Board of the Union, two members of the Board of Education, the superintendent and the assistant superintendent. It is further agreed that this special committee shall make recommendations concerning the settlement of the disagreements involved.

Invalidation

I. In the event that present or subsequent legislation shall exist that invalidates any section, or part of a section, in this agreement, such invalidation shall not render invalid any other section or part thereof in this agreement.

Right of Revision

I. This agreement shall be in effect until it is changed by mutual agreement. For purposes of review, examination, and revision, each party hereto reserves the privilege of exercising the right of revision, by giving the other party written notice of the desire to meet for such review, examination, and revision, as may be mutually agreed upon, at least ten days prior to said meeting. All revisions for the ensuing year must be begun in time to be completed by June 1st, in order to become a part of these agreements.

TEACHER-ADMINISTRATOR-BOARD RELATIONS

I. BELIEFS WHICH UNITE US.

We believe that teachers, administrators and school boards have a common goal -- that of providing the best possible schools for the children and youth of the district. We believe that effective communication among classroom teachers, administrators and school boards is essential. We believe that teachers, administrators and school boards must together seek pathways for mutual development of policies and practices. We believe that the welfare of children is paramount in the operation of the schools.

II. PRINCIPLES WHICH GUIDE US.

1. Build on Present Practices.--Effective teacher-administrator-board relationships should be developed by utilizing and improving any procedures of communication, which in the current practice of a school system, are useful in developing school policy on matters of common concern.

2. Service to Youth Paramount.--The teachers association[1/] which expects to improve its communication and develop confidence with administrators and school boards must seek professional goals such as teacher excellence and professional ethics, as well as good personal practices.

3. Contribution by Teachers.--Professionally prepared teachers are uniquely qualified to make important contributions to the formulation of recommendations for school policies which are related to the work of teachers.

4. Involvement of Teachers.--The legal responsibility for the adoption of school policies belongs to the school board[2/] exclusively. However, before arriving at a decision with respect to important policies which affect the work of teachers, the school board should make sure that teachers have participated cooperatively in the preparation of the recommendation which it will have under consideration. In the event the board feels the recommendation to be unwise, it will engage in good faith discussions with representatives selected by the teachers association before taking action on the recommendation.

5. Policies in Writing.--A cooperatively developed school board policy handbook is fundamental to good board-staff relationships. Written policies shall be revised regularly, shall be made available to all the school personnel, and shall be used consistently by the school board as the basis for its action.

6. Role of Superintendent.--The role of the superintendent of schools is of utmost importance because he must function both as the chief administrator for the board and as head of the professional staff. With this dual role goes the responsibility for leadership. The superintendent's leadership should result in mutual respect between the board and the professional staff. It should result also in steps by which differences can be resolved.

7. Scope.--Only matters of broad professional concern are within the scope of professional negotiation. Although the proper handling of personal grievances of teachers is of utmost importance to the maintenance of staff morale, such grievances are not within the scope of professional negotiation unless they have been evaluated by a responsible committee of the teachers association and found to be of such broad significance that the teachers association by official action decides to make common cause with the teacher in question.

III. PROCEDURES WHICH WE FOLLOW IN KEEPING OPEN THE CHANNELS OF COMMUNICATION.

1. Board Recognition.--The teachers association (see footnote 1) is hereby recognized as the official agency for those teachers. This does not preclude the right of other groups or individuals to be heard by the board.

2. Responsibility of the Teachers Association.--The teachers association must have a well informed, responsible membership. It is essential that there be competent research committees to compile evidence as the basis for whatever the teachers association presents as the needs and desires of the teachers. The teachers association has a duty to educate its own membership with respect to those realities of school system operation to which their proposals are related. The teachers association shall file a copy of its constitution and by-laws with the school board.

3. Requests for Conferences.--When the teachers association wishes to discuss a matter or make a proposal, it shall make its request to the superintendent or his representative. Accompanying the request for a conference will be a written statement setting forth the nature of the concern of the professional staff. Such a request shall result in discussions between the superintendent and representatives selected by the teachers association within a reasonable length of time.[3/] It is assumed that in nearly all such conferences there will be a meeting of the minds, resulting in a recommendation to the school board by the superintendent with the full support of the teachers association.

In those rare cases in which there can be no meeting of minds, the teachers association may choose to request the superintendent to arrange a conference with the school board within a reasonable

1/ The teachers association shall be defined as the organization representing the majority of teachers in the school system.

2/ The school board shall be defined as the duly elected officials legally responsible for governing the school system.

3/ A reasonable length of time shall be defined as not less than 5 days nor more than 30 days unless otherwise mutually agreed upon by the teachers association, superintendent, and/or the school board.

length of time. Requests for conferences may move in the opposite direction. Whenever the superintendent or the school board desires to discuss a matter of importance with the teachers association, a request for a conference shall be directed to the president of that organization. Accompanying such a request shall be a written statement setting forth the concern of the superintendent and/or the school board. Such a request shall result in a conference within a reasonable period of time with representatives selected by the teachers association.

4. Conferences.--Facts, opinions, proposals and counter proposals shall be exchanged freely during the conferences in an effort to reach mutual understanding. Participants in these conferences may wish to utilize the services of consultants.

5. Policy.--When participants reach an understanding, such understanding shall become a matter for policy action by the school board. The policy shall not discriminate against any member of a teaching staff regardless of membership or nonmembership in any teachers organization.

6. Persistent Disagreement.--When the school board and representatives selected by the teachers association cannot come to a mutual understanding of matters of great importance, some impartial fact-finding body shall be called in by both parties jointly to review the situation and make written recommendations publicly to the school board, to the professional staff and to the citizens of the school district. This fact-finding body shall consist of three people. One shall be selected by the teachers association, one by the school board and these two people shall select a third. The welfare of children and youth of the school district shall be regarded as paramount by all parties concerned. After reviewing the recommendations of the fact-finding body, the legal responsibility for making a decision rests exclusively with the school board.

Lewes Special School District
Lewes, Delaware

Lewes Education Association (NEA)

SECTION 3.8 PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATION

SECTION 3.8.1 PREAMBLE

Recognizing that providing a high quality education for the children of the Lewes Special School District is the paramount aim of this school district, and that good morale in the teaching staff is necessary for the best education of the children,

We do hereby declare that:

A. The board of education, under law, has the final responsibility of establishing policies for the district.

B. The Superintendent and his administrative staff have the responsibility of carrying out the policies established.

C. The professional teaching personnel have the ultimate responsibility of providing the best possible education in the classroom.

SECTION 3.8.2 PRINCIPLES

Section 3.8.2.1 Attainment of Objectives

A. Attainment of the objectives of the educational program conducted in the schools of the district requires mutual understanding and cooperation among the Board of Education, the Superintendent and his administrative staff, and the professional teaching personnel. To this end, free and open exchange of views is desirable with all parties contributing to the decision-making processes involving matters of mutual concern.

B. The Superintendent is encouraged to establish clear channels of communication in an appropriate manner in order that a free and open exchange of views is possible.

C. The Board of Education realizes that, in the best interests of public education, it is desirable to negotiate occasionally on matters of mutual concern in order to reach mutually satisfactory agreements and, further, to provide a means of appeal in the event of an impasse.

Section 3.8.2.2 Teachers and Teachers' Associations

A. It is recognized that teaching is a profession requiring possession of specialized educational qualifications, and that the success of the educational program conducted in the public schools of the district depends upon the willing services of well-qualified teachers, who are reasonably well-satisfied with the conditions under which their services are rendered.

B. It is further recognized that teachers have the right to join any organization for their professional or economic improvement, and are urged to be active members of such organizations as are compatible with the laws of Delaware and the United States of America. Be it further recognized that, while membership in any organization shall not be required as a condition of employment, all employees should, as a professional obligation, belong to a professional organization of their choice.

C. The teachers, as the on-going executors of the educational enterprise, have a responsibility for maintaining an awareness of the total educational needs and problems of the community, for informing both the school administration and the board of education of the needs, and for actively cooperating in efforts to improve the school program in all its aspects.

D. The mutual responsibilities of boards of education, administrators, and teachers require that teachers should have the right and the opportunity to participate in the formulation of policies of mutual concern, including conditions of employment or service. ("Participate" as used here refers to the right to make recommendations or to react to policy proposals before they are adopted. Legally, only the board of education can determine policy.) In the process of reaching agreement on policy, teachers should be guaranteed the right to express their views to administrators and boards of education through democratically elected teacher representatives.

E. Teachers, in making recommendations on policy matters of mutual concern, have an obligation to justify their proposals and consider their effects upon the educational program.

Section 3.8.2.3 Recognition of Association

A. The Board of Education of the Lewes Special School District, hereinafter referred to as the BOARD, recognizes the Lewes Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the ASSOCIATION, as representative of and for all members employed by the Lewes Special School District.

B. The Association recognizes the Board as the elected representative of the people of the Lewes Special School District, and as the employer of teachers employed in the Lewes Special School District.

C. The purpose of the recognition recited above is the mutual agreement that the parties will negotiate with regard to matters of mutual concern, permitted by applicable law to be negotiated between them within such limitations recited by law.

D. The parties mean by the word "negotiation" a sincere and honest effort to discuss their problems in order to reach a mutually fair agreement concerning them. For the purposes of negotiation, the Association shall represent its membership.

E. The Board will hear and consider proposals of employee groups providing the group or association has on file in the district office a notarized statement which shall include: (a) Name of the Association; (b) purpose of the association; (c) direct affiliations maintained by the association; (d) statement of current number of employees who are members of the association; and (e) a list of current officers of the association.

SECTION 3.8.3 PROCEDURES

Section 3.8.3.1 Inaugurating Negotiations

A. Written requests for negotiations will be submitted by the Association to the Superintendent, or by the Superintendent to the Association.

1. The subject matter to be considered will be specified.

2. Persons who will participate in negotiations will be named.

B. The party receiving the request will consider the merits of the proposal as presented in the written request at the next regular meeting of that party except when the request is received less than forty-eight hours prior to a regularly scheduled meeting. In no case, however, will a request be permitted to be held for more than five weeks before being given consideration.

C. The action of the group receiving the request shall be that of accepting the proposal, agreeing to negotiate, or refusing to accept the proposal and refusing to negotiate. Acknowledgment of receipt of the request and the subsequent decision of the party receiving the request shall be communicated in writing within forty-eight hours after one of the above decisions is reached.

D. If there is an agreement to negotiate, the Superintendent and/or representatives of the Board or the President of the Association shall arrange with the party submitting the request to schedule and hold meetings.

E. If there is a refusal to negotiate, such information shall be submitted in writing and shall state the reason(s) why such action was taken.

Section 3.8.3.2 Conducting Negotiations

A. Meetings

Meetings between representative(s) of the Association and the Board, the Board and Superintendent, or designated representatives of the Board and Superintendent, will be scheduled for a mutually satisfactory time. (The Board reserves the right to consider views and recommendations of individuals and those of organizations representing a minority of the employees in a manner to be left to the Board's discretion.)

1. Relevant data and supporting information, proposals and counter proposals will be presented in a free manner at the meeting or meetings (and between meetings, if advisable) in an effort to reach a mutual understanding and agreement.

2. Competent professional and lay representatives or consultants may be used if deemed advisable by either party.

3. During the period of consideration, interim reports of progress may be made to the association by its representative(s) and to the Board by the Superintendent.

4. While negotiations are in process, any releases prepared for news media will be approved by both groups.

B. Reporting

1. When the participants reach a consensus, a jointly report shall be prepared and signed by both parties and the provisions of this report shall then be considered by the Board and the membership of the association.

2. In the event a consensus is not reached, reports may be presented to the Board by either or both parties.

Section 3.8.3.3 Disagreement or Impasse

A. In case of disagreement resulting in impasse after negotiation procedures have been exhausted, or if either party refused to accept the terms agreed upon by their representatives who participated in negotiation, the matter may be submitted to an Advisory Board. The Advisory Board shall consist of three members, one to be chosen by each party, and the third member to be selected by the first two. The Advisory Board shall be organized within one week after one party makes such a request in writing to the other party.

B. The Advisory Board shall consider all facets of the problem and shall make recommendations for settlement to both parties within two weeks after being formally organized.

C. If the Advisory Board is unable to agree on a recommendation or if either party refuses to accept such recommendations, the matter may be referred to the State Superintendent of Schools by either party, with the request that the State Superintendent of Schools appoint a competent individual or committee to seek to bring about mutually acceptable settlement.

D. All facts, data, and other information shall be submitted by both parties to the Advisory Committee and to the person or committee appointed by the State Superintendent of Schools if such are requested by either party.

Section 3.8.3.4 Costs

Any costs and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of any individual and/or Advisory Board shall be paid for by the party authorizing or requesting such services, but may be shared equally by both parties by mutual agreement.

Section 3.8.3.5 Resolution of Agreement

A. Agreements endorsed by the Board and the Association shall become a part of the official minutes of each party and shall, as such, become public information. Any agreement shall be binding on each according to the terms of the agreement and shall remain in effect until one party informs the other in writing that the agreement is to be void.

B. This contract shall remain in force until July 1, 1964, at eight o'clock in the morning. It may be amended by the agreement of the same parties who entered into it originally. It will be renewed automatically for a period of one year from the expiration date each year unless one of the parties shall have notified the other at least 120 days before expiration date that it will not accept renewal.

State of Illinois
Governor's Advisory Commission on Labor-Management Policy for Public Employees

Final Report

Sections 1-6

SECTION 1 - GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

Over the past thirty years, the Congress, as a matter of national policy, has granted employees in private industry the right to organize or not to organize, and where they have organized, the right to bargain collectively with their employers. Although the procedures and practices for effecting those rights have been examined and altered in the light of experience, that basic policy has not been changed.

Public employees are not covered by this policy. In recent years, as public employment expanded to meet new public needs and as the effects of private sector negotiations were apparent, many public employees have become restive, and they have begun to demand that public bodies accord them the same rights that are extended to employees in private industry. Some have asserted that collective action, including work stoppages, is necessary to secure fair and equitable treatment with respect to wages, benefits, and working conditions. There have been a variety of responses to these demands from employing agencies. Some have entered into negotiations or consultation with their employees; some have refused. The absence of a definite public policy on the rights and responsibilities of both the employing agencies and their employees as well as the apparent discontent of some employees have contributed to strikes and threatened strikes. These are matters of grave concern to the citizens of Illinois.

The Governor's Commission recognizes that public employees, like their counterparts in private industry, are dependent upon their employment for their economic well-being, have a real interest in the conditions under which they are employed, and in some cases strongly desire the opportunity to participate in determining their wages and working conditions. In this respect, there are close similarities between employment in public agencies and in private industry.

But the Commission also recognizes that significant differences exist between the services provided by public and by private employers and the standards used to determine how extensively and at what level of quality these services are to be performed. In private industry, decisions about these matters are generally influenced by market forces; in public agencies, these services are generally supplied "free of price" and are determined by political processes in which legislative bodies decide how much revenue can be raised and how it is to be allocated among many competing demands. These factors make the determination of employment conditions in public agencies different from that followed in private industry.

With this background and for these reasons, the Commission strongly believes that legislation defining State policy with regard to the rights and responsibilities of public employers and employees is imperative and in the public interest. We have predicated our recommendations for such legislation on five general principles:

1. Public employees should be granted the legal right to be represented or not to be represented by organizations of their own choosing and to engage in collective negotiations with their employers. Practicable and enforceable procedures should be established to protect these rights.

2. Orderly procedures should be established to determine whether public employees desire to engage in collective negotiations and to decide the appropriate grouping of employees for representation.

3. Collective negotiations should be conducted within the framework of applicable existing legislation, such as legal provisions governing budget-making authority and merit systems, and in full recognition that the implementation of resulting agreements may be dependent upon further legislative action.

4. Work stoppages are not appropriate in the public sector and should be unequivocally prohibited. Practicable and enforceable procedures for dealing with violations of such a prohibition should be established.

5. Effective procedures should be created for the equitable settlement of disputes which may arise in negotiation and administration of collective agreement.

We are well aware that the entire complex system of employer-employee relationships in the public sector is undergoing substantial changes and that procedures being adopted to cope with this problem are experimental. For these reasons we believe that whatever measures are adopted must be flexible and subject to review and change as deemed advisable. We are therefore recommending that appropriate public and legislative committees be established to review systematically the operation of the law, to assist in implementing provisions of the law where necessary because of collective negotiations, and to make appropriate recommendations to the Governor and to the General Assembly for changes in principles and procedures as conditions may require.

Experience indicates that a reasonable period of time is essential to properly organize for the administration of the necessary procedures and to inform the parties concerned about the new procedures under which they will have to function. Therefore, we recommend that any legislation not become effective immediately upon enactment, and we suggest that beginning in the interim and continuing after the effective date that public bodies conduct in-service training programs in employee relations and management procedures, and that universities and other public institutions with expertise in these subject matters be encouraged to assist public agencies and public employee organizations to develop the skills and knowledge which will be needed to realize the promise in these new arrangements.

All this naturally requires a high degree of patience, understanding and cooperation by public employers and employees and the citizens generally.

SECTION 2 - SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS

1. A statute should be enacted which will guarantee public employees, subject to the qualifications stated below, the right to self-organization and the right to negotiate collectively and the right to refrain from such actions.

2. The statute should cover all governmental bodies including the state government, municipalities, counties, school districts, and special districts and authorities, but excluding the federal government and its agencies. The statute should be appropriately integrated with existing legislation applicable to collective negotiations covering specific groups of public employees.

3. The statute should cover all public employees except elected officials, the heads of departments and agencies, the members of boards and commissions, managerial employees, magistrates, individuals acting as negotiating representatives for employing authorities, the immediate personal or confidential assistants and aides of the foregoing persons, and supervisors.

4. Separate legislation should not be enacted for any special occupational or professional group. However, policemen, including those non-uniformed members of police or forces who have police authority, should be represented only by organizations which do not admit employees other than policemen to membership and which are not affiliated with organizations admitting such other employees to membership.

5. The duty to negotiate should extend to wages, hours, and working conditions, but should not extend to rules and regulations concerning examinations, assignments, and promotions under a Civil Service system.

Collective negotiations should not result in final and binding agreements with respect to those matters which by law are contingent upon the judgment and action of a legislative body or of an administrative agency that has jurisdiction of those matters.

6. It should be the exclusive function of each public employing agency to determine the mission of the agency, set standards of services to be offered to the public, and exercise control and discretion over its organization and operations.

It should be the right of each public employing agency to direct its employees, take disciplinary action, relieve its employees from duty because of lack of work or for other legitimate reasons, and determine the methods, means, and personnel by which the agency's operations are to be conducted. But this should not preclude employees from negotiating or raising grievances about the practical consequences that decisions on these matters may have on wages, hours, and working conditions.

7. Even though a grievance procedure is provided by a Civil Service law or regulation, an employee organization and an employing agency may negotiate a procedure for handling grievances arising under their agreement. Any employee with a grievance must designate which of these procedures he wishes to follow at the time he presents his grievances, but he may not use both.

8. Rules for the authorization of checkoff of dues to an employee organization should continue as presently provided in law. No other form of employee organization security is recommended.

9. Administration of the law should be delegated to a new independent agency entitled the Illinois Public Employee Relations Board, consisting of a chairman and two other members appointed by the Governor with the approval of the Senate for staggered terms of six years each. The Board should be made up of persons expert in the field of employee relations, no more than two of whom should belong to the same political party. The members of the Board should be compensated at a level sufficient to attract the most qualified available persons on a full-time basis. Employees of the Board, including hearing officers and mediators, should be subject to the Personnel Code.

10. The Board should determine appropriate units for negotiations. For a unit to be appropriate, a clear and identifiable community of interest must be found to exist among the employees in the unit. This community of interest may be exhibited by one or more of the following criteria, although not limited to them: (a) employees with the same conditions of employment which apply uniquely to them, (b) employees with a history of workable and acceptable negotiating pattern, and (c) employees in the same historic craft or profession.

11. Since voluntary settlement of questions concerning representation is desirable, the Board should act only if an unresolved question concerning representation is raised by an employing agency, an employee organization, or an employee or group of employees. In the absence of a signed agreement or a formal certification by the Board (as defined in Paragraph 14 below), an employing agency, faced with a demand for recognition, may raise a question of representation. If a signed agreement exists, with or without formal certification by the Board, the agreement should act as a bar to a representation proceeding for a period to be determined by the Board. A signed agreement should not constitute a bar if the bargaining unit covered in the agreement is found to be inappropriate. A certification should bar an election for a period to be determined by the Board, but in any event for a period of at least one year.

12. Professional and non-professional employees should be given the opportunity to decide whether they want to be included in the same unit if that issue is raised by either group.

13. Board determinations of appropriate units and questions of representation should not be subject to review by a court except in relation to the enforcement or review of a Board order in an unfair practice case.

14. An employee organization should be certified by the Board as an exclusive negotiating representative only after it establishes a majority in a secret ballot election. The Board should determine administratively whether an employee organization has made a sufficient showing of membership among employees in the negotiating unit to justify an election. Other organizations may be included on the ballot if they make an appropriate showing of interest acceptable to the Board. The choice of no organization should always be included on the original ballot. An organization should be certified if the majority of those casting valid ballots in a representation election chooses that organization. In any election where none of the choices on the ballot receives a majority, a run-off should be conducted, the ballot providing for a selection between the two choices receiving the largest and second largest number of valid votes cast in the election. There should be no more than one valid election in a twelve-month period.

15. Certification should entitle an employee organization to exclusive representation rights for all employees in the negotiating unit for which it is certified. However, any individual employee or a group of employees should have the right at any time to present grievances to their employing agency and to have such grievances adjusted, without the intervention of the exclusive negotiating representative, as long as the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective agreement then in effect and the exclusive representative has been given opportunity to be present at such adjustment.

16. Decertification elections should be held at the request of the employees in an appropriate unit if the Board determines administratively that a sufficient number of employees desire such an election.

If an employing agency has a good-faith doubt about the continuation of a majority in a unit, it may file a representation petition, but in such cases, the Board must have prima facie evidence of the good-faith doubt.

17. Employing agencies should be prohibited from committing unfair practices as follows:

(a) interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights of self-organization or non-organization,

(b) encouraging or discouraging membership in an employee organization by discrimination in regard to hire, tenure, promotion, or other conditions of employment;

(c) controlling or dominating an employee organization or contributing financial or other support to it, provided that an employing agency shall not be prohibited from permitting employees to confer with it during working hours without loss of time or pay;

(d) disciplining or otherwise discriminating against any person because he has filed a charge of unfair practice or has given testimony under the statute;

(e) refusing to negotiate in good faith with a certified employee organization.

18. Employee organizations should be prohibited from committing unfair practices as follows:

(a) interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights of self-organization or non-organization;

(b) inducing the employing agency or its representative to commit any unfair practice;

(c) refusing to negotiate in good faith with the employing agency.

19. The duty of both parties to negotiate in good faith should be defined so as not to compel concessions by either, but so as to require a good-faith intent by both to arrive at an agreement. Once an agreement is reached, the parties should have a duty to reduce their agreement to writing. Where legislative or administrative action is required to effectuate and to implement the agreement, the duty to negotiate should include a duty by both parties to cooperate with each other in a good-faith attempt to secure the required legislation of administrative approvals.

20. A charge of an unfair practice may be filed by an employing agency, an employee organization, or an individual employee. The Board should have no investigatory or prosecuting function in unfair practice cases, and each complainant should be responsible for advancing his own case. The Board should hold a hearing on each charge if it raises a genuine issue of fact or law. The Board should not issue any remedial order based upon an unfair practice which occurred more than six months before the filing of a charge. The Board may petition the appropriate court to enforce its orders. Any party aggrieved by a Board order should have the right of judicial review. The provisions of the Administrative Review Act should govern all proceedings for judicial enforcement or review of Board orders in unfair practice cases.

21. The statute should contain an explicit and unqualified prohibition of strikes. Strikes should be broadly defined to include work stoppages or any other concerted interferences by employees with the operations of a public service or function. Notices of representation elections should contain an appropriate statement about the illegality of strikes.

22. The statute should explicitly affirm the existing power of the courts to enjoin strikes and should also make clear that its provisions are not designed to limit any inherent judicial power.

23. The statute should provide that the employing agency shall have an affirmative duty promptly to seek an injunction in the event of the occurrence of a strike, and promptly to initiate action for contempt for any violation of such injunction.

24. The statute should explicitly affirm the employing agency's existing authority to discipline or discharge employees engaged in strikes. The statute should not provide for the imposition of automatic penalties (such as discharge, loss of seniority, or loss of retirement benefits) on striking employees.

25. The Board should have an independent Division of Mediation to be staffed by full-time career personnel. Board members should not mediate. Board employees concerned with representation and unfair practice functions should be in a separate division from those concerned with dispute settlement, and neither division's employees should perform the duties of the other.

The career mediation staff should be supplemented by a panel of qualified persons selected by the Board after consultation with interested employee organizations and employing agencies.

26. Either party to negotiation may request mediation, or the Board may, on its own initiative, proffer the assistance of a mediator.

27. If an impasse arises despite mediatory efforts, either party, both parties, or the mediator may request the Board to establish fact-finding machinery. The Board should make a preliminary investigation to determine whether or not the fact-finding procedure should be activated or whether, instead, further direct negotiations should be recommended to the parties.

28. Fact-finders should be appointed from a list of recognized experts maintained by the Board and compiled after consultation with employee organizations and public employing agencies. A fact-finding tribunal should consist of one or three members selected from the Board's list, as the parties may agree, or, in the absence of such agreement, as the Board may determine. If the parties agree on who shall serve as fact-finders (including persons not on the list), the Board should respect their agreement. Each fact-finder should be paid in accordance with a schedule established by the Board or as agreed to by the parties, but not to exceed $150 per day, and each party should pay one-half of the fact-finder's fee.

29. The fact-finding hearings should be public or private in the discretion of the fact-finding tribunal. The tribunal should have full subpoena powers.

The tribunal should issue and make public its findings and recommendations within thirty days after the tribunal has been appointed, unless it has requested and received an extension of time from the Board. The tribunal should submit its report to the parties, to the Board, and to such other employee organizations or governmental bodies as the tribunal deems appropriate. Within fifteen days of the issuance of the tribunal's report, the parties should report to the Board whether their dispute has been resolved and, if not, which of the recommendations they, respectively, accept and which they reject. The Board should make the parties' reports public.

30. The parties should be encouraged to develop their own dispute-settling machinery, including mediation and fact-finding.

31. Employing agencies should be authorized, but not required, to provide for binding arbitration of disputes concerning the administration or interpretation of collective agreements.

32. Collective negotiations should be conducted in private, but the final terms of any signed agreement should promptly be made available for public inspection.

33. Employing agencies should be permitted, but not required, to make any provision of an agreement, including wage or salary payments, retroactive.

34. The new statute should take effect on October 1, 1967, or ninety days after the signing of the Act, whichever comes later; however, the Board should not entertain representation petitions or unfair practice charges until January 1, 1968.

35. The Governor should appoint a seven-member Advisory Committee, to review the effectiveness of the statute and to recommend any changes in substance or procedures desirable.

36. The Legislature should consider establishing a joint standing committee from among its members to review all matters pertaining to the statute and its administration, the reports and recommendations of the Advisory Committee, and such requests or recommendations arising out of employer-employee negotiations that may require legislative action. The Legislature should consider, possibly at a later time, establishing a Commission which combines the functions of the Advisory Committee and the joint standing committee.

37(a). Public agencies should recognize need for effective channels of communication between management and employees, and should re-examine their policies and practices to be sure that such channels exist and are being used effectively.

(b) Public agencies, either individually or through some centralized program, should regularly gather and analyze information on salaries, wages, employee benefits, and work practices.

(c) Public agencies should re-evaluate and improve their programs for training managers and supervisors at every level, whether the employees are or are not represented by employee organizations.

(d) Public agencies should examine their present organizational structures to determine whether they are adequate to deal with problems which may arise from a need to engage in negotiation and administration of collective agreements.

(e) Employee organizations representing public employees should also take steps to be sure that their representatives are properly trained in the special problems inherent in the collective negotiating process as it relates to public agencies.

SECTION 3 - SCOPE AND COVERAGE

The first question to which the Commission addressed itself was whether to accept the general principle that public employees in Illinois should be granted, by law, the right to be represented or not to be represented by organizations of their own choosing for collective negotiations with employing agencies. Once this principle was accepted, a number of questions with regard to scope and coverage followed: To whom should the provisions of the statute apply? Should all employees at all levels of government be covered, or should some groups or individuals performing particular functions be excluded? Should all issues of concern to employees be subject to negotiations, or should there be limitations in addition to those already provided by Constitutional and statutory law? What provision should be made to protect the authority of public agencies in order to ensure that the business of government is carried on?

In considering these questions, the Commission was mindful that the rules and experience of private sector bargaining as well as the experience of the federal government and other states with public employee relations laws would be useful but would not be completely transferable to the Illinois situation. The Commission's recommendations, therefore, took into account existing Illinois law and practice and its complex governmental system.

Illinois is similar to, but not identical with, other states and the federal government in the degree to which wages, hours, and working conditions are governed by legislative enactments, Civil Service rules and regulations, and ordinances. These limitations are absent in private sector bargaining. Because they are present in the public sector, collective negotiations must be undertaken in full recognition of all legislative and administrative restraints and must be in harmony with them. Moreover, negotiations by public bodies which have significant financial implications must be related to budget-making.

With these considerations in mind, the Commission makes the following recommendations:

Statement of Policy

1. A statute should be enacted which will guarantee public employees, subject to the qualifications stated below, the right to self-organization and the right to negotiate collectively and the right to refrain from such actions.

No clearly stated public policy about self-organization and collective negotiations for public employees now exists in Illinois, but many public employees are organizing and making demands on public agencies for collective negotiations. The result has been a series of crises accompanied by uncertainty and confusion.

The Commission believes that a clear statement of public policy, defining the rights and responsibilities of public employees and governmental agencies in the State, would remove the uncertainty and confusion.

There is substantial and persuasive support for such a policy in the actions of the federal government and numerous state governments. Congress long ago established such rights for employees in private industry. Executive Order 10988, issued by President Kennedy on January 17, 1962, granted such rights to federal employees. Many states, as noted in Section 8, likewise have provided such rights for public employees in their jurisdictions.

The Commission is of the opinion that the guarantee of these rights, coupled with orderly procedures for administering and protecting them, would be equitable for employees, would provide clear operational guidelines for public agencies, and would promote continuity of government service for the public.

Coverage

2. The statute should cover all governmental bodies including the state government, municipalities, counties, school districts, and special districts and authorities, but excluding the federal government and its agencies. The statute should be appropriately integrated with existing legislation applicable to collective negotiations covering specific groups of public employees.

The objective of the proposed legislation is to promote orderly relations between employee groups and employing public agencies. The objective is equally desirable for all units of government.

Because the Commission found no significant differences between the conditions or circumstances of employment at different units or levels of government, it is recommending that the law cover employees at all levels.

Legislation already exists authorizing collective negotiations for certain groups of public employees, such as employees of the Chicago Transit Authority, personnel within the University Civil Service System, and firemen. The new statute and the existing legislation should be integrated.

Exclusions

Persons who are responsible for the direction or administration of public organizations are the officials who would also formulate and carry out policies dealing with the employee relations which are subject to negotiation. To avoid conflicts of interest in negotiations and in the administration of employee relations policies, and to assure strong management direction, such persons should be excluded from coverage under the statute.

In the public service supervisors frequently are members of professional and employee organizations which admit nonsupervisory personnel to membership. This condition exists in police and fire organizations as well as in organizations in education, health, and welfare. In addition, in the public service, positions which have supervisory titles often vary substantially in the degree of actual supervisory authority. Because of these two factors, the question of the exclusion of supervising employees from coverage under the proposed statute was a matter of special concern. The Commission concluded that to avoid the same conflict of interest discussed above, supervisors should be excluded from coverage. However, to make certain that only those with genuine supervisory authority are excluded, it decided that the definition of supervisor used in the National Labor-Management Relations Act should be adopted. This reads:

> The term "supervisor" means any individual having authority, in the interest of the employer, to hire, transfer, suspend, lay off, recall, promote, discharge, assign, reward, or discipline other employees, or responsibly to direct them, or to adjust their grievances, or effectively to recommend such action, if in connection with the foregoing the exercise of such authority is not of a merely routine or clerical nature, but requires the use of independent judgment.

By adopting this definition, exclusion from coverage would be determined on the basis of function rather than title, and an established body of law could be drawn upon to decide borderline cases.

The Commission notes that the exclusion of supervisors from coverage under the law would not prohibit supervisors from maintaining membership in employee organizations if the employing agency does not object. Under these circumstances, established professional and beneficial arrangements will not necessarily be broken.

Police and Other Occupational and Professional Groups

4. Separate legislation should not be enacted for any special occupational or professional group. However, policemen, including those nonuniformed members of police forces who have police authority, should be represented only by organizations which do not admit employees other than policemen to membership and which are not affiliated with organizations admitting such other employees to membership.

In a number of states, special treatment has been given to certain occupational and professional groups, such as police, firemen, teachers, and nurses. In some cases, separate legislation has been enacted for such groups, partly on the ground that the administration of a general law was entrusted to an agency which had jurisdiction over private as well as public employees. In other cases, special provisions have been included in a single comprehensive law.

The Commission has considered this problem carefully and has concluded that separate legislation, with different administrative arrangements, is neither equitable nor efficient in the Illinois context. If a separate law were adopted for police or teachers, for example, it would appear inequitable to deny separate treatment to nurses, firemen, social workers, or other occupations or professions.

Multiple legislation would obviously increase administrative costs and could lead to conflicting rulings and procedures by the various administering boards. Finally, it should be noted that the Commission's proposed statute would apply only to public employees and would provide machinery exclusively for them. This arrangement should permit the selection of personnel who already possess or who will quickly acquire skill in dealing with public agency problems and disputes.

The position of police calls for special provision because their function of preserving public safety and order and enforcing laws might create problems in their interaction with other groups of public and private employees. To avoid possible conflict between police responsibilities and occupational loyalties, the Commission recommends that as a matter of policy the rights of police to self-organization be qualified by requiring that they may belong only to employee organizations limited to their own occupation and unaffiliated in any way with organizations which admit others than police to membership. Thus, their legitimate interests as employees would be protected without jeopardizing their legal responsibilities.

The position of prison guards and firemen, who have functions analogous to the police, proves, on investigation, to be different. Such police functions as these groups may have do not involve possible conflicts with other employee groups. Prison guards, for example, are responsible primarily for the surveillance of prison inmates. Firemen do not ordinarily have police duties involving labor or employee disputes. However, in a department in which firemen and policemen are used interchangeably, such personnel would be considered as performing the police function.

Scope of Collective Negotiations

5. The duty to negotiate should extend to wages, hours, and working conditions, but should not extend to rules and regulations concerning examinations, assignments, and promotions under a Civil Service system.

Collective negotiations should not result in final and binding agreements with respect to those matters which by law are contingent upon the judgment and action of a legislative body or of an administrative agency that has jurisdiction of those matters.

We define collective negotiations to mean that representatives of employees and employers meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment and with respect to the negotiation and execution of a written document incorporating any agreement reached. Such obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession. No agreement can be made final and binding insofar as its effectuation or any part thereof depends upon the action of a legislative body or administrative agency.

In the federal government, and in some states, the scope of collective negotiations for public employees is narrowly circumscribed. More typically, however, in both the public and private sectors, scope is defined as in the above recommendation. The Commission believes that the latter practice is more appropriate for the development of constructive employee relations. The State Personnel Code refers to "negotiations affecting pay, hours of work, or other working conditions." The statute pertaining to the University Civil Service System has a similar provision. Many of the collective negotiation systems already in effect for teachers, highway employees, and other public groups are based on this definition. Admittedly the present area of discretion in negotiations is often not clearly defined; it will have to be developed through experience in particular negotiations. To narrow the scope statutorily, however, would invite frustrations and pressures that might hamper the development of favorable relationships.

At the same time, it must be clear that since many employment benefits and conditions are subject to legislation and administrative rules, there will be situations in which collective negotiations must take place within this framework. And since governmental expenditures are often closely circumscribed by the legal appropriating process there will also be situations in which the results of negotiations cannot be effective until they are implemented by legislative or administrative action. In some jurisdictions where collective negotiations have been established for a period of years, the parties have adapted to these constraints by working out arrangements whereby the timing of negotiations corresponds appropriately to the budget and appropriations cycle, and the fiscal consequences of the agreements become budgetary proposals. Such arrangements are obviously desirable.

It is important to safeguard the fundamental principles of the merit system. Therefore, Civil Service rules concerning examinations, assignments, and promotions should not be subjects for collective negotiations. However, employee organizations should continue to be free to offer suggestions to the Civil Service Commission or to the Legislature for revision or improvement in these rules, and employees should be able to raise complaints about their application.

Management Functions

6. It should be the exclusive function of each public employing agency to determine the mission of the agency, set standards of services to be offered to the public, and exercise control and discretion over its organization and operations.

It should be the right of each public employing agency to direct its employees, take disciplinary action, relieve its employees from duty because of lack of work or for other legitimate reasons, and determine the methods, means, and personnel by which the agency's operations are to be conducted. But this should not preclude employees from negotiating or raising grievances about the practical consequences that decisions on these matters may have on wages, hours, and working conditions.

While a system of collective negotiations gives employee organizations a voice in the determination of their employment conditions, it must not prevent managers of governmental agencies from directing the public business efficiently and in the public interest. A strong management organization with a clear view of its functions and responsibilities is indispensable to the achievement of these objectives.

In the private sector as well as in the federal government and some states, the explicit statutory statement of management rights has been deemed helpful in marking out the responsibility for decision-making and the conditions under which the consequences of the decisions may be considered.

Optional Grievance Procedures Under Civil Service

7. Even though a grievance procedure is provided by a Civil Service law or regulation, an employee organization and an employing agency may negotiate a procedure for handling grievances arising under their agreement. Any employee with a grievance must designate which of these procedures he wishes to follow at the time he presents his grievances, but he may not use both.

The purpose of this recommendation is to accommodate the principles of both the merit system and collective negotiations. A grievance procedure is an essential protection against arbitrary supervisory action. It assures employees that the accepted rules and regulations are applied equitably and fairly. Virtually every collective agreement in the private sector and every well-developed system of collective negotiations in the public sector provides a jointly negotiated grievance procedure. Similarly, most Civil Service systems, either through statute or rule, provide a procedure for employee grievances. The employee would be permitted to obtain a final review of his complaint under either procedure, but he would be prohibited from using both on the same complaint.

Checkoff and Employee Organization Security

8. Rules for the authorization of checkoff of dues to an employee organization should continue as presently provided in law. No other form of employee organization security is recommended.

Provision for the authorization of dues checkoff to an employee organization is contained in two existing laws .... This practice is desirable and should be continued. While some experts have contended that the checkoff privilege should be given only to certified exclusive negotiating representatives and not to minority organizations on the ground that it will unduly encourage rivalries and disturb employee relations, the Commission recommends no change in the existing provisions. Other forms of "employee organization security" would be prohibited under the unfair practices recommended in the next section of this Report. The laws, however, are only permissive to the employing agencies, and the checkoff practice can therefore be controlled at the discretion of the latter.

SECTION 4 - ADMINISTRATIVE MACHINERY

Experience has demonstrated that a general policy statement concerning employee self-organization and collective negotiations has little practical value unless effective administrative arrangements are provided to implement that policy. In the process of organization among employees, situations will inevitably arise in which there is disagreement over the unit in which employees are to be grouped for negotiating purposes, and whether employees actually want an organization to represent them. Some machinery for the resolution of such disagreements must be established. That machinery is discussed in this section.

Machinery must also be created to help the parties resolve disputes that arise after negotiations have begun, as well as those that arise from the administration and interpretation of collective agreements. Resolution of such disputes is discussed in the section on impasse procedures (Section 5). For reasons discussed more fully in that section, it is recommended that those functions be administered independently, but by the same Board.

The Board

9. Administration of the law should be delegated to a new independent agency entitled the Illinois Public Employee Relations Board, consisting of a chairman and two other members appointed by the Governor with the approval of the Senate for staggered terms of six years each. The Board should be made up of persons expert in the field of employee relations, no more than two of whom should belong to the same political party. The members of the Board should be compensated at a level sufficient to attract the most qualified available persons on a full-time basis. Employees of the Board, including hearing officers and mediators, should be subject to the Personnel Code.

The Board should be independent of other State agencies and should report directly to the Governor, in order to be able to deal fairly and objectively with every public agency. The prestige of an independent Board would assist in attracting high caliber professional employees needed for successful administration of the law.

Full-time employment of three Board members will be required by the flow of Board work, which will come from all public employees in the State, including municipalities, school districts, State agencies and various special public agencies--over 6,000 employing agencies in all. Staggered terms would allow continuity of Board membership from one State administration to the next.

Choice of Employee Organizations

Two problems arise in effectuating the right of employee self-organization. The first is the identification of the employees who are to be grouped together for the purposes of collective negotiation (the appropriate unit), and the second is the procedure by which employees choose or reject an employee organization.

Appropriate Unit

10. The Board should determine appropriate units for negotiations. For a unit to be appropriate, a clear and identifiable community of interest must be found to exist among the employees in the unit. This community of interest may be exhibited by one or more of the following criteria, although not limited to them: (a) employees with the same conditions of employment which apply uniquely to them, (b) employees with a history of workable and acceptable negotiating pattern, and (c) employees in the same historic craft or profession.

Important rights and interests of employees, employee organizations, and employers are affected in the determination of any appropriate bargaining unit. Because of the diversity and complexity of operations and organization of public agencies, particularly those of the State and of the large municipalities, bargaining unit determinations are of major importance.

The Commission believes that fragmentation of units should be avoided and that mere extent of organization by employees should not be controlling in a unit finding. Hence its emphasis that a clear and identifiable community of interest must be found in making unit determinations.

Representation Questions

11. Since voluntary settlement of questions concerning representation is desirable, the Board should act only if an unresolved question concerning representation is raised by an employing agency, an employee organization, or an employee or group of employees. In the absence of a signed agreement or a formal certification by the Board (as defined in Paragraph 14 below), an employing agency, faced with a demand for recognition, may raise a question of representation. If signed agreement exists, with or without formal certification by the Board, the agreement should act as a bar to a representation proceeding for a period to be determined by the Board. A signed agreement should not constitute a bar if the bargaining unit covered in the agreement is found to be inappropriate. A certification should bar an election for a period to be determined by the Board, but in any event for a period of at least one year.

Because important rights and interests are involved in the establishment of negotiating units, the Commission carefully considered the question of whether the Board should be required to determine the appropriateness of every unit and to certify the representative for the unit before collective negotiations could be undertaken. It concluded that, with the appropriate safeguards specified in the recommendation above, employing agencies and employee organizations should be encouraged to settle questions of representation directly. This recognizes a well-established principle in employee relations that differences should be settled as close to the source as possible and also would keep the Board, especially in its early stages, from being overwhelmed with representation matters with the resulting delays and frustrations that could only bring discredit to the Board's work and dissatisfaction with the statute creating it.

Professional Employees

12. Professional and non-professional employees should be given the opportunity to decide whether they want to be included in the same unit if that issue is raised by either group.

Professional employees, because of their specialized education and training, have interests and responsibilities which distinguish them from non-professionals. Because of this uniqueness, the presumption is that they should be in negotiating units separate from the non-professionals. That presumption should be overcome only if the professionals vote to be included in the same negotiating unit with non-professionals. The latter group should be given a similar choice since there are public agencies in which the non-professionals are a small portion of the total, and they should not automatically be blanketed in with a larger professional group that did not reflect their interests. If, however, the community of interest among professionals and non-professionals is so great that they wish to be put together, that wish should not be denied.

We recommend that for the purpose of this statute the following definition of professional, contained in the national Labor Management Relations Act, should be used.

Different definitions used by employing agencies for other purposes should not be affected.

The term "professional employee" means--

(a) any employee engaged in work (i) predominantly intellectual and varied in character as opposed to routine mental, manual, mechanical, or physical work; (ii) involving the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment in its performance; (iii) of such a character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given period of time; (iv) requiring knowledge of an advanced type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study in an institution of higher learning or a hospital, as distinguished from a general academic education or from an apprenticeship or from training in the performance of routine mental, manual, or physical processes; or

(b) any employee, who (i) has completed the courses of specialized intellectual instruction and study described in clause (iv) of paragraph (a), and (ii) is performing related work under the supervision of a professional person to qualify himself to become a professional employee as defined in paragraph (a).

Board Determination To Be Final

13. Board determinations of appropriate units and questions of representation should not be subject to review by a court except in relation to the enforcement or review of a Board order in an unfair practice case.

Questions of appropriate unit and of representation should be resolved promptly in order that disputes may be avoided. Therefore Board determinations on these matters should be final and subject to court review only in unfair practice proceedings. This practice has been followed under the national Labor Management Relations Act and has worked satisfactorily.

Certification Elections

14. An employee organization should be certified by the Board as an exclusive negotiating representative only after it establishes a majority in a secret ballot election. The Board should determine administratively whether an employee organization has made a sufficient showing of membership among employees in the negotiating unit to justify an election. Other organizations may be included on the ballot if they make an appropriate showing of interest acceptable to the Board. The choice of no organization should always be included on the original ballot. An organization should be certified if the majority of those casting valid ballots in a representation election chooses that organization. In any election where none of the choice on the ballot receives a majority, a run-off should be conducted, the ballot providing for a selection between the two choices receiving the largest and second largest number of valid votes cast in the election. There should be no more than one valid election in a twelve-month period.

The recommendations made here with respect to election procedures have been largely derived from the rules and practices developed over a period of many years under the national Labor Management Relations Act to fully guarantee employees their right of self-organization. The requirement of a secret ballot election precludes the use of other ways of determining majority representation, such as card-checks or signed petitions, which have often created controversies. The requirement of a sufficient showing of interest is designed to avoid a waste of Board time and resources in conducting elections where no substantial showing or representation has been made. In order to balance the need for stability of relations with the need for free choice by employees, a period of one year should elapse before another valid election may be held.

Exclusive Representation

15. Certification should entitle an employee organization to exclusive representation rights for all employees in the negotiating unit for which it is certified. However, any individual employee or a group of employees should have the right at any time to present grievances to their employing agency and to have such grievances adjusted, without the intervention of the exclusive negotiating representative, as long as the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective agreement then in effect and the exclusive representative has been given opportunity to be present at such adjustment.

The principle of exclusive representation by a majority organization has become universal practice in the private sector and has been widely followed in the public sector. The Commission believes it to be essential for stable employee relations. Yet the right of individual employees to raise grievances must be safeguarded whether or not they belong to the majority organization. Experience under the national Labor Management Relations Act indicates that this right can be protected without jeopardizing the legitimate interests of the exclusive negotiating representative.

Decertification

16. Decertification election should be held at the request of the employees in an appropriate unit if the Board determines administratively that a sufficient number of employees desire such an election.

If an employing agency has a good-faith doubt about the continuation of a majority in a unit, it may file a representation petition, but in such cases, the Board must have prima facie evidence of the good-faith doubt.

These provisions, like the two preceding ones, follow long-established practice in the private sector and are designed to assure the continued application of the principles of self-organization and majority rule.

Unfair Practices

Unfair Practices for Employing Agencies

17. Employing agencies should be prohibited from committing unfair practices as follows:

(a) interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights of self-organization or non-organization;

(b) encouraging or discouraging membership in an employee organization by discrimination in regard to hire, tenure, promotion, or other conditions of employment;

(c) Controlling or dominating an employee organization or contributing financial or other support to it, provided that an employing agency shall not be prohibited from permitting employees to confer with it during working hours without loss of time or pay;

(d) disciplining or otherwise discriminating against any person because he has filed a charge of unfair practice or has given testimony under the statute;

(e) refusing to negotiate in good faith with a certified employee organization.

Unfair Practices for Employee Organizations

18. Employee organizations should be prohibited from committing unfair practices as follows:

(a) interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights of self-organization or non-organization;

(b) inducing the employing agency or its representative to commit any unfair practice;

(c) refusing to negotiate in good faith with the employing agency.

The recommended unfair practices have been largely derived from the extensive experience in the private sector under the national Labor Management Relations Act. The federal government and a number of states have adopted all or most of these for public employees.

If employees are to be free in their decision to join or not to join an employee organization, there must be assurance that both the employing agency and the employee organization stand aside while employees make their choice. Once the employees choose an organization to represent them, that organization must be independent of the employing agency in order to carry on meaningful negotiations and to maintain effective mutual relationships.

Written Agreements

19. The duty of both parties to negotiate in good faith should be defined so as not to compel concessions by either, but so as to require a good-faith intent by both to arrive at an agreement. Once an agreement is reached, the parties should have a duty to reduce their agreement to writing. Where legislative or administrative action is required to effectuate and to implement the agreement, the duty to negotiate should include a duty by both parties to cooperate with each other in a good-faith attempt to secure the required legislative or administrative approvals.

The practice of reducing all agreements to writing is firmly established in private industry and has been widely recognized by legislative and administrative bodies as well as by the courts as an appropriate way of eliminating misunderstandings and conflicts over what parties had agreed to.

In the public sector, where the general public has the right to be fully informed about employee agreements, this practice should be universally observed. If one of the parties refuses to reduce agreements reached to writing, this refusal should be treated as a refusal to bargain in good faith. The further duty of the parties to cooperate in a good-faith attempt to secure required legislative or administrative approvals is unique to the public sector. Such cooperation would appear to be essential to constructive relations.

Hearings on Prohibited Practices

20. A charge of an unfair practice may be filed by an employing agency, an employee organization, or an individual employee. The Board should have no investigatory or prosecuting function in unfair practice cases, and each complainant should be responsible for advancing his own case. The Board should hold a hearing on each charge if it raises a genuine issue of fact or law. The Board should not issue any remedial order based upon an unfair practice which occurred more than six months before the filing of a charge. The Board may petition the appropriate court to enforce its orders. Any party aggrieved by a Board order should have the right of judicial review. The provisions of the Administrative Review Act should govern all proceedings for judicial enforcement or review of Board orders in unfair practice cases.

In the private sector under the national Labor Management Relations Act, the administrative agency investigates and prosecutes charges of unfair practices. The Commission believes, at least at this stage of the development of policy, that it is desirable that the parties advance their own complaints and that the Board not be both prosecutor and judge. Since the Board will not have investigatory and prosecuting functions, provision should be made to avoid formal hearings on frivolous charges.

Unfair practices undoubtedly will occur. To effectuate the purposes of the statute, the Board should be given the power to issue orders to remedy the unfair practices and to petition an appropriate court to enforce its orders. Similarly, any party aggrieved by a Board order shall have the right to petition the court for a review of that order.

SECTION 5 - STRIKES AND ALTERNATIVE METHODS FOR RESOLVING NEGOTIATING AND GRIEVANCE IMPASSES

The strike issue is central to a discussion of public employee-employer relations. Throughout its deliberations, the Commission attempted to keep this issue in perspective and to emphasize two objectives--development of a procedure for eliminating the causes of strikes and formulation of an orderly and equitable system for resolving disputes.

The Commission recognizes that many persons consider the right to strike a necessary instrument to protect the interests of employees in private sector bargaining. In the public sector, however, the nature and conditions of employment are different from those in the private sector, as we demonstrated earlier in this Report. These differences convince us that a strike is not an appropriate instrument in negotiations between a government agency and public employees.

We, therefore, have attempted to provide an alternative whereby, on the one hand, the rights of employees are protected and, on the other, the public service is maintained under an arrangement compatible with the political decisions necessary for the allocation of public resources. In our opinion, a procedure for resolving disputes through mediation and fact-finding with recommendations is most likely to accomplish this end.

The pertinent machinery should be designed to avoid two familiar and genuine dangers. The first is overuse of dispute-settling machinery, which often results from unrealistic and irresponsible negotiation and which, in turn, causes a further atrophy of the negotiating process.

The second danger arises from the application of standardized machinery to disputes and relationships that are diverse in character. That danger can be avoided by permitting the parties to devise alternatives more suited to their distinctive needs and relationships. Subject to general legal considerations, the statute should permit and encourage the parties to work out their own dispute-settling machinery, including mediation and fact-finding.

Two other objectives of the dispute-settling machinery also deserve mention: It should encourage the parties not only to engage in responsible scrutiny of their own positions but also, if deadlock persists, to give a reasoned public explanation of the considerations on which their position rests. Finally, the use of the machinery should be so timed as to be synchronized with the budget-making process. Therefore, the Commission makes the following recommendations:

The Strike Prohibition and Its Implementation Prohibition of Strikes

21. The statute should contain an explicit and unqualified prohibition of strikes. Strikes should be broadly defined to include work stoppages or any other concerted interferences by employees with the operations of a public service or function. Notices of representation elections should contain an appropriate statement about the illegality of strikes.

The federal government and all states, with insignificant exceptions, have outlawed all public strikes. The pervasive consensus against such strikes must be considered by proponents of legislation that would create orderly representation and dispute settlement mechanisms and by all those who desire to promote fair and equitable conditions for public employees. The Commission, however, did not accept this conclusion without careful consideration of reasons for a strike prohibition and the arguments against it.

As stated earlier, the nature and conditions of employment in the public sector differ from those in the private. In private sector bargaining, the economic constraints of the market place, growing out of competition, generally limit the demands of employee organizations. These constraints do not operate in the public sector.

Constraints in the public sector, in contrast, are imposed by the political process. The number of "free services" a governmental agency is able to provide to citizens and the way these services are allocated are determined by political decisions of a legislative body in allocating the available revenue. Revenue available to a governmental unit, whether it is the state, a municipality, or a district, is limited by law; how it is to be used is determined by elected officials, responsive to the public will, through the budget-making process. Not only would strikes be incompatible with an orderly budget-making process and with the distribution of authority among different organs of government, but some strikes would also inflict grave injury on vital interests and would be incompatible with the government responsibility to provide services.

It has been suggested that some distinction could be made between "critical" and "noncritical" strikes in the public sector and that the strike prohibition be limited to the former. Supporting this proposal is the argument that certain strikes in the private sector may impose greater injury on the public than some strikes of public employees. The Commission is convinced that any attempt to draw lines between critical and noncritical public strikes would bristle with unmanageable difficulties and would be likely to undermine the strike prohibition in those areas where the consequences of a strike might be intolerable.

Collective negotiation in the public sector, reinforced by orderly appeals to budget-making authorities, could lead to meaningful participation by employees in shaping the terms of their employment even though strikes are prohibited. Indeed, the denial of the right to strike furnishes additional justification for employee self-determination and for according employees an opportunity to state their demands and grievances in an orderly fashion.

Since the foregoing considerations warrant an unqualified strike prohibition, a reaffirmation of the existing law by the Legislature appears desirable in order to avoid contentions about implied modification and to place the moral force of a legislative determination behind judicially created prohibitions.

In the hope that disputes about what constitutes a strike and what does not may be avoided, the Commission recommends that the definition of a strike should be broad enough to include such concerted stoppages as mass resignations and mass calling-in-sick, designed to place pressure on a governmental agency. The definition should not extend to demonstrations for the purpose of bringing a dispute to public notice as long as such demonstrations do not interfere with the operation of the public agency.

The Injunction Procedure

22. The statute should explicitly affirm the existing power of the courts to enjoin strikes and should also make clear that its provisions are not designed to limit any inherent judicial power.

23. The statute should provide that the employing agency shall have an affirmative duty promptly to seek an injunction in the event of the occurrence of a strike, and promptly to initiate action for contempt for any violation of such injunction.

The Commission emphasizes the desirability of prompt action to enjoin any strike that might occur. It also believes that responsibility for initiating injunctive action should be clearly assigned.

Several alternatives (the employing agency, the legal officer of the political unit in which the agency is located, the attorney general of the State, and the counsel assigned to the Board) were considered by the Commission before it arrived at its recommendation of where the responsibility for seeking an injunction should be placed. We finally decided that the employing agency itself should bear this responsibility. The employing agency is most immediately aware of the occurrence of a strike, most knowledgeable concerning the facts in the case, and most aware of the effects of a strike. Experience in other states suggests that it might be helpful for employing agencies at all levels of government to designate in advance the official in the agency or counsel to it who would be required to act.

Discipline and Penalties

24. The statute should explicitly affirm the employing agency's existing authority to discipline or discharge employees engaged in strikes. The statute should not provide for the imposition of automatic penalties (such as discharge, loss of seniority, or loss of retirement benefits) on striking employees.

Under the proposed statute, as at present, participation in a strike would constitute misconduct on the part of an employee and would be the basis for the imposition of discipline (including discharge), subject to existing procedural safeguards. The Commission recommends that the statute explicitly preserve the existing power of government agencies to discipline strikers.

The Commission is, however, opposed to provisions for automatic penalties, such as discharge, loss of seniority, Civil Service status, or retirement benefits. The deterrent and punitive purposes of similar provisions in other states have not been realized. Their severity and the obligation to apply them to all strikers have paradoxically resulted in an almost total failure to apply them at all. Such automatic penalties have, consequently, become dead letters and have encouraged violations of the law not only by strikers but also by administrators seeking to restore public services. Thus draconian and inflexible penalties have operated to undermine strike prohibitions and the rule of law generally.

The Commission considered and rejected decertification as a possible penalty on an employee organization. Revocation of, or ineligibility for, representation rights would involve substantial administrative burdens, would encroach upon employee self-determination, and would leave a vacuum where an employee organization has support but cannot lawfully be recognized. Although such sanctions might in some situations have a deterrent effect, their potential usefulness appears to be outweighed by their potential costs.

Mediation and Fact-Finding

Career Mediators

25. The Board should have an independent Division of Mediation to be staffed by full-time career personnel. Board members should not mediate. Board employees concerned with representation and unfair practice functions should be in a separate division from those concerned with dispute settlement, and neither division's employees should perform the duties of the other.

The career mediation staff should be supplemented by a panel of qualified persons selected by the Board after consultation with interested employee organizations and employing agencies.

Mediators attached to the Board's Mediation Division should not participate in representation or unfair practice proceedings conducted by the Board. They should be selected and retained solely on the basis of merit, should be conversant with public employee-employer problems, and should have the exclusive responsibility for mediating in the public sector. The Commission emphasizes that an effective mediation service is of critical importance to the development of orderly and mature relationships and that unqualified mediators would be worse than none at all.

The separation of functions is designed to avoid fears by the parties that rejection of mediatory suggestions might prejudice them in other Board proceedings or, obversely, that the parties' participation in other proceedings might prejudice them in the mediation process. In short, an independent mediation division is designed to avoid any actual or apparent compromising of the voluntary character of mediation.

The suggestion for a panel of qualified persons is designed to achieve the following objectives: (1) to supplement the full-time mediation staff during peak-load periods; (2) to have available personnel that could be called on in situations of special difficulty or special importance. They would be compensated by the State on a per diem basis, according to a schedule to be set by the Board.

Timing of Mediation and Fact-Finding

26. Either party to a negotiation may request mediation, or the Board may, on its own initiative, proffer the assistance of a mediator.

27. If an impasse arises despite mediatory efforts, either party, both parties, or the mediator may request the Board to establish fact-finding machinery. The Board should make a preliminary investigation to determine whether or not the fact-finding procedure should be activated or whether, instead, further direct negotiations should be recommended to the parties.

The Commission emphasizes that collective negotiations and mediation, and fact-finding should take place in advance of the time for fixing the pertinent budget. Nevertheless, inflexible provisions regarding the time for invoking dispute-settling machinery seem undesirable because of the diverse situations involved. As the parties' relationships develop, the time for consultation presumably would be fixed to allow for mediation and fact-finding to take place prior to the time for final decisions on a budget.

The purpose of the Board investigation prior to activating fact-finding machinery is to make certain that there is no further possibility of settling the dispute through mediation. The Board could refuse to activate the machinery if it found that the parties really had not negotiated.

Fact-Finding Tribunals and Hearings

28. Fact-finders should be appointed from a list of recognized experts maintained by the Board and compiled after consultation with employee organizations and public employing agencies. A fact-finding tribunal should consist of one or three members selected from the Board's list, as the parties may agree, or, in the absence of such agreement, as the Board may determine. If the parties agree on who shall serve as fact-finders (including persons not on the list), the Board should respect their agreement. Each fact-finder should be paid in accordance with a schedule established by the Board or as agreed to by the parties, but not to exceed $150 per day, and each party should pay one-half of the fact-finder's fee.

The recommendation for public rather than tripartite tribunals rests on the following considerations: Tripartitism would involve tribunals having three members or a larger odd number of members. A three-man tripartite tribunal would deprive the tribunal of the balance provided by several public representatives; a larger tribunal would be unwieldy. The combining of adversary and quasi-judicial roles by partisan members is questionnable and tends to dilute the public impact of the tribunals work where partisan dissents are filed, as often is the case. Although partisan members sometimes prevent impracticable recommendations and sometimes provide informal mediation, those advantages could be achieved by other measures that would avoid the disadvantages of tripartite tribunals.

The Board presumably would provide for three-man tribunals in important disputes unless circumstances, such as time pressure or the unavailability of suitable fact-finders, made such tribunals impracticable. In any event, where the parties, without undue delay, agree to a one-man or a three-man tribunal and the identity of the individuals, the Board should respect their agreement. Such deference is appropriate because each party is to pay one-half of the fact-finder's fee and because giving weight to their preferences might increase their willingness to accept responsible recommendations. Where a three-man tribunal is appointed, a majority should be authorized to find the facts and make recommendations.

The recommendation that the parties divide the fee is designed to discourage overuse of the fact-finding machinery and dilatory tactics.

The Commission recommends the payment of an adequate fee because it is convinced that the success of dispute-settling machinery depends critically upon the responsibility, competence, and resourcefulness of the fact-finders; indeed, no other factor is more important. Their compensation should take account of the central importance of their role and the large responsibilities that they will be asked to discharge.

Fact-Finders' Reports

29. The fact-finding hearings should be public or private in the discretion of the fact-finding tribunal. The tribunal should have full subpoena powers.

The tribunal should issue and make public its findings and recommendations within thirty days after the tribunal has been appointed, unless it has requested and received an extension of time from the Board. The tribunal should submit its report to the parties, to the Board, and to such other employee organizations or governmental bodies as the tribunal deems appropriate. Within fifteen days of the issuance of the tribunal's report, the parties should report to the Board whether their dispute has been resolved and, if not, which of the recommendations they, respectively, accept and which they reject. The Board should make the parties' reports public.

The need to support positions before a competent and disinterested tribunal will encourage the parties to scrutinize both their own positions and competing positions. Such a tribunal should, accordingly, promote objective and responsible efforts by the parties to reach agreement. If, however, agreement does not result, the tribunal should make available its findings and recommendations to the news media.

Similarly, the obligation of the parties to respond to the tribunal's recommendations should encourage the parties to engage in responsible scrutiny of their positions, and the publication of such responses should help to crystallize informed opinion. Such publicity may be especially effective in the public sector since the availability of funds will usually depend on legislative action with respect to such matters as budgets and taxation. No penalties are recommended for violation of the fifteen-day response requirement, but failure to respond by one or both parties would become part of the public record.

Local Dispute-Settling Machinery

30. The parties should be encouraged to develop their own dispute-settling machinery, including mediation and fact-finding.

The Commission has emphasized the need for procedures and machinery for the resolution of disputes. In a field as experimental as employee relations in the public sector, the parties should be encouraged to develop machinery most suitable to their own situation. Governmental units, such as the city of Chicago, other large municipalities, and major agencies within the State government, should give particular consideration to this problem.

Miscellaneous Subjects

Compulsory Arbitration

The Commission has not proposed compulsory arbitration because of serious doubts of its desirability as well as its legality. Compulsory arbitration involves risk of chilling negotiations because, where such machinery exists, the employee organization tends to raise its demands so that the arbitration tribunal will have something to take away, and the employer tends to lower his offer so that the tribunal will have something to add. That risk would be particularly acute in situations where both parties are relatively inexperienced in negotiating and where responsible patterns of accommodation have not developed. Such relationships are likely to exist during the developmental stage of collective negotiation in the public sector.

It is true that fact-finding with recommendations also involves the risk of chilling negotiations, but that risk is reduced in the absence of compulsion. Accordingly, the dispute-settling mechanisms proposed promise to be more effective than compulsory arbitration in encouraging voluntary accommodations.

Insofar as voluntary binding arbitration is now provided for in special situations, such as the Chicago Transit Authority, the Commission's proposals would not affect the legality of such machinery, nor would its proposals block agreements by parties to resort to binding arbitration in those situations where such arbitration would be legal.

Grievance Arbitration

31. Employing agencies should be authorized, but not required, to provide for binding arbitration of disputes concerning the administration or interpretation of collective agreements.

It is almost universal practice in the private sector to provide, as a last step in the grievance procedure, for voluntary binding arbitration of grievances and other disputes arising out of the administration and interpretation of an agreement. The development of this process of private law has been one of the brighter achievements in the history of collective bargaining. Its extension to the public sector, insofar as this would be compatible with other legal constraints, seems to the Commission to be highly desirable. However, as in the private sector, not all negotiating situations call for the adoption of the same grievance-settling machinery. Nor is there universal agreement as to the range of issues to be subject to arbitration. Hence, the recommendation provides for authority to establish arbitration, within the scope defined by the parties, as the final step in the grievance procedure but not to make such a procedure mandatory. The Commission believes that statutory authorization for such arbitration would be regarded as a proper delegation of authority and would not raise Constitutional questions; however, we direct attention to the possible Constitutional question.

Conduct of Negotiations

32. Collective negotiations should be conducted in private, but the final terms of any signed agreement should promptly be made available for public inspection.

Experience in other states as well as in the private sector indicates that collective negotiations are most effectively conducted in private. However, the public has a legitimate interest in the results of such negotiations. Therefore, the final results of these negotiations should be accessible to it.

Retroactivity of Wage Agreements

33. Employing agencies should be permitted, but not required, to make any provision of an agreement, including wage or salary payments, retroactive.

In the existing law,[1] as interpreted by the Attorney General of the State,[2] retroactive wage payments are not legal. This limitation has been a source of friction. Retroactivity is widely practiced in private industry and generally has had a salutary effect when negotiations are complex and prolonged. A practice of retroactivity appears to be particularly desirable when a prohibition against strikes exists. However, retroactivity should not be mandatory and automatic but should be left open for negotiations by the parties.

SECTION 6 - EFFECTIVE DATE AND STATUTORY REVIEW

The preceding sections have provided the basis for a new statutory policy in Illinois on the rights and duties of public employees and employing agencies with respect to employee organization, collective negotiations, and the peaceful resolution of disputes in the event of impasses. Unfortunately, the administrative machinery to implement this policy cannot be created in a matter of a few weeks even though pressing issues currently exist and others will arise. In order to get the new policy and agency off to a satisfactory start, the effective date of the statute must be given careful consideration. It may also be anticipated, from events in other states, that the program will require modification from time to time as experience is accumulated and the administrative process is subjected to test. Methods to obtain suitable appraisal seem, therefore, to be essential.

Accordingly, we make the following additional recommendations:

Effective Date

34. The new statute should take effect on October 1, 1967, or ninety days after the signing of the Act, whichever comes later; however, the Board should not entertain representation petitions or unfair practice charges until January 1, 1968.

Ordinarily new laws go into effect on July 1 of the year they are adopted. Testimony from expert witnesses, however, has stressed the importance of giving the new Board some lead time before exposing it to the complex problems with which it will be obliged to deal. Such lead time is necessary for the appointment of Board members and staff, the dissemination of information about the Act, and the establishment of rules and procedures for handling the various types of cases that will come before the Board. It would also enable employing agencies and employee organizations to become informed about the Act and for the newly organized to start the training of their representatives and other personnel in the techniques and principles of collective negotiations.

Clearly, employee organization will move forward and negotiations will take place whether the Board is ready or not. It is therefore recommended that the Board provide mediation and fact-finding services as early as possible but that it not attempt to process representation and unfair practice cases until a later date.

Establishment of an Advisory Committee

35. The Governor should appoint a seven-member Advisory Committee, to review the effectiveness of the statute and to recommend any changes in substance or procedures desirable.

Any new legislation must be regarded as experimental and subject to modification and improvement on the basis of experience. This is particularly true in an area as complex as public employee relations, involving so many different types of public authorities and occupations. Accordingly, it seems desirable to establish an Advisory Committee of employee relations experts to make periodic studies of experience under the statute and to make reports to the Governor and to the Legislature assessing the experiment and making appropriate recommendations. The members of this Committee should be reimbursed for travel and subsistence expenses incurred in the performance of their advisory function.

1/ State Finance Act, Ill. Rev. Stat. Ch. 127, Sec. 145(3)(1965).

2/ Attorney General's Opinion, File No. 441, January 14, 1958.

Establishment of a Joint Standing Legislative Committee

36. The Legislature should consider establishing a joint standing committee from among its members to review all matters pertaining to the statute and its administration, the reports and recommendations of the Advisory Committee, and such requests or recommendations arising out of employer-employee negotiations that may require legislative action. The Legislature should consider, possibly at a later time, establishing a Commission which combines the functions of the Advisory Committee and the joint standing committee.

In view of the experimental character of the new statute, members of the Legislature would undoubtedly wish to keep in close touch with developments relating to public employee relations. Establishment of a joint standing committee would insure a significant degree of expertise and understanding in the Legislature.

Moreover, as previous discussion has indicated, the growth of collective negotiations in public agencies will require action by the Legislature on many issues which could not be effectuated otherwise. General changes in salaries and employee benefits and revisions of the Personnel Code are examples. A standing committee would assist the Legislature in judging and acting on such requests and recommendations from the parties. After an initial period of experience, the Legislature might find it desirable to have legislators and outside experts serve together in a single committee, a procedure which has been effective in other technical areas.

Description and Analysis

FIRST KNOWN CASE OF AN AWARD IN FINAL AND BINDING ARBITRATION OF A GRIEVANCE IN EDUCATION

Arbitrator Robert G. Howlett made the first known award in a case of final and binding arbitration of a grievance in education, upholding the grievance of the Warren Education Association (NEA) in the matter of the interpretation of its agreement with the Warren (Michigan) Board of Education. The major issue under consideration was the equal application of a provision involving credit on the salary schedule for previous experience as the change in the provision affected the placement of teachers newly hired into the system as against those employed under the previous policy.

The award took the association to task for a lack of diligence in checking the language of the agreement before accepting and signing it, as well as other actions of lesser importance. However, Arbitrator Howlett indicated that he based his decision on law and legal precedents rather than the specific wording of the agreement.

Implications from this award for the school systems with agreements as well as for the recognized organizations are numerous. Among the implications are the need for great care in the execution of an agreement, the importance of the language of the agreement, and the many references cited by the arbitrator in arriving at his award.

THREE NEW PUBLICATIONS AVAILABLE FROM NEA RESEARCH DIVISION

FORMAL GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES FOR PUBLIC-SCHOOL TEACHERS, 1965-66. Research Report 1967-R10. 1967. 63 p. $1.25. Stock No. 435-13322. (Order from NEA Publications Sales Section.)

As school districts have become larger, employer-employee relations have become less personal, making necessary a formal procedure for adjusting grievances of teachers.

Formal Grievance Procedures for Public-School Teachers analyzes such procedures currently in effect in school systems enrolling 12,000 or more pupils. It defines a grievance as any complaint, problem, or dispute based upon the conditions or circumstances under which an individual employee can express a complaint, problem, or dispute without fear of reprisal and obtain a fair hearing at progressively higher administrative levels.

As might be expected, the larger the school system, the more likely it is to have some type of grievance procedure. Also, since the trend toward school district consolidation is a recent one, most of the grievance procedures had been in effect less than five years at the time of this study.

The report analyzes the provisions of formal procedures, presents excerpts from selected procedures, and includes a list of 101 references on the subject.

School personnel, education associations, and interested laymen will find this report a frame of reference for both establishing and improving formal grievance procedures.

NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT PROVISIONS, 1966-67 Edition. 1967. 500 p. $15. Stock No. 841-24006. (Order from NEA Publication Sales Section.)

This volume of over 500 pages should be considered an index to the content of the agreements on file in the NEA Research Division depository of negotiation agreements. It lists the more than 1,530 agreements for 1966-67 under the 180 possible provisions which they contain. Specific content of an agreement is not provided in the volume; the listing of an agreement under a particular provision indicates only that the agreement contains subject matter relating to the item. Information on procedures to be followed to obtain further data on the agreements is provided.

At least one copy of this volume will be available at each state education association headquarters.

INDEX TO NEA RESEARCH DIVISION PUBLICATIONS CURRENTLY AVAILABLE. NEA Research Division. Research Memo 1967-20. Washington, D.C.: National Education Association, 1967 (August). 21 p. Single copy free on request to the NEA Research Division.

The nine-page index references 303 NEA Research Division publications dealing with subjects from ability grouping to workmen's compensation court cases. Although some of the publications listed range in price up to $3.50 each, most of the items listed are free or nominally priced.

The references should prove of valuable assistance to anyone currently involved with a school system, whether as teacher, administrator, nor school-board member.

Data and Statistics

TYPE OF NEGOTIATION CONDUCTED IN SYSTEMS WITH MORE THAN ONE RECOGNIZED ORGANIZATION

Final data from the 1966-67 survey of written negotiation procedures between local school boards and organizations of the teaching profession conducted by the NEA Research Division indicated that 1,531 school systems with written negotiation procedures had completed their questionnaires and filed a copy of their procedures with the Research Division. Of this number, 105 systems did not recognize any organization as representing the staff, i.e., some procedure other than organizational representation was used.

Of the 1,426 school systems that recognized at least one organization for purposes of representation in negotiation, 88 systems, or 6.2 percent, recognized more than one organization. Table F, on the next page, provides a breakdown of these 88 systems by state and by type of negotiation.

Negotiation with multiple organizations is of three basic types: (a) Completely separate negotiation sessions held with each recognized organization (columns 5 and 6 of Table F). Such negotiation can be expected in such states as Connecticut and Michigan where state statutes require exclusive representation for the teacher group. The additional organization(s) in these states were established for persons outside the teacher group, such as principals and supervisors. Separate negotiation was reported by 41 of the 88 school systems, or 46.6 percent of the multiple organization systems. (b) Joint negotiation with proportional representation in the negotiation sessions. The 33 California systems with multiple organization recognition must utilize joint negotiation with representation proportional to verified membership since this provision is a part of the California statute. A total of 37 systems of the 88, or 42.0 percent, reported this type of negotiation (columns 7 and 8 of Table F). (c) Joint negotiation with equal representation from each recognized organization. Ten of the 88 systems, or 11.4 percent, reported this type (columns 9 and 10 of Table F).

When Table F data are considered on the basis of enrollment strata, it is quickly seen that the percent of systems that recognize multiple organizations decreases as the size of the systems decrease. This is not unexpected since those systems with the larger number of personnel are more likely to have those personnel organized for representation along lines of responsibility such as counselors or principals.

The bottom portion of the table provides the data on the basis of school system enrollments. The eight enrollment strata utilized are:

Stratum	School system enrollment
1	100,000 or more
2	50,000-99,999
3	25,000-49,999
4	12,000-24,999
5	6,000-11,999
6	3,000- 5,999
7	1,200- 2,999
8	1,000- 1,199

NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS IN SCHOOL SYSTEMS WITH ENROLLMENTS OF 12,000 OR MORE

The listing of school systems with enrollments of 12,000 or more (Strata 1-4), below, provides information on the existence of written negotiation agreements between the various school boards and organizations of the teaching profession. Information listed is for the 1966-67 school year, as given to the NEA Research Division by the school system administrative offices by June 20, 1967. Data for school systems with enrollments of less than 12,000 will be published in future issues of this Digest.

Established policy required a completed questionnaire and a copy of the written negotiation agreements on file in the NEA Research Division depository of agreements before a local school system could be considered to have written negotiation procedures.

Every effort was made to obtain responses which were as current and as complete as possible. If changes for individual school systems have been made after the filing of the questionnaire and/or agreement with the NEA Research Division, they will be reflected in a future survey.

The information provided for each school system is as follows: whether or not written negotiation procedures exist in the system, the recognized organization(s), the national affiliation of the recognized organization(s), and the number of organizational representatives on the negotiating team. Should the system not have exclusive representation by one organization, the following abbreviations were used to indicate the type of negotiation in effect:

JNE: Joint negotiating council with an equal number of representatives from each recognized organization.

JNP: Joint negotiating council with representation proportional to the number of staff members represented by each recognized organization. California law requires this procedure be used in situations where more than one organization seeks representation rights.

NR: Not reported.

SN: Separate negotiation for each recognized organization.

Judicial Decisions, Opinions, and Statutes

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between

WARREN CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS, WARREN, MICHIGAN

and

WARREN EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

No. 5430 0253 66

Grievance: Retroactive Pay

APPEARANCES:

For Warren Education Assoication:

Erwin B. Ellman, Attorney
Terry Herndon, President
Paul Downing, Executive Secretary
Morris Andrews, Michigan Education Association Staff Representative

For Warren Consolidated Schools:

Charles H. Earl, Attorney
Paul K. Cousino, Superintendent
Kingsley Sears, Assistant Superintendent - Personnel
M. David Keefe, Consultant

This arbitration has been presented pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement dated September 14, 1966, between the Board of Education of Warren Consolidated Schools and the Warren Education Association.[1/]

This is, I believe, the first arbitration between a Board of Education and the exclusive representative of Board of Education employees since the enactment of Public Employment Relations Act which became affective July 23, 1965. The arbitration was conducted under the rules of the American Arbitration Association, and a hearing was held at the Association offices in Detroit. Both parties were represented by highly competent counsel, each of whom presented excellent opening statements and post-hearing briefs. In this instance, contrary to some arbitrations which I have heard, I believe all relevant testimony was produced at the hearing; and all arguments, both legal and evidentiary, presented to the arbitrator.

Following the enactment of the Public Employment Relations Act, the Association demanded recognition of the School Board for certified teachers. Another organization also demanded recognition, and it was not until April 20, 1966, that the Association became the exclusive bargaining representative of the Warren teachers. Collective bargaining started one week later.

On September 14, 1966, a contract covering the period from September 1, 1966, to August 31, 1967, was executed. With the payment of the first paychecks on September 16, 1966, the Association recognized that there was a disagreement between the Association and the School Board concerning Schedule A of the contract, which includes the salary schedule. Thereupon a grievance was filed:

"GRIEVANCE REPORT No. 66-1
September 21, 1966

"Grievant: Warren Education Association in its own behalf and in behalf of all teachers with 'outside experience'

"Statement of Grievance:

"Paychecks of September 16, 1966 reflect miscalculation of teacher salaries for all teachers with 'outside experience' under Schedule A, incorporated in the Agreement pursuant to Article VIII, Section 1. Teachers did not receive full or sufficient credit for 'outside teaching experience and military service' as agreed. This constitutes improper discrimination, prohibited by the Agreement, Michigan and federal constitutions and state and federal law.

"Relief Sought:

"Correction of payroll checks for 1966-67 and retroactive pay to all affected employees for last six years.

"Submitted to Dr. P. K. Cousino, Superintendent
and
Mr. Kingsley Sears, Assist. Superintendent, Personnel

s/Robert S. Kowalczyk
Robert Kowalczyk
Grievance Committee Chairman"

Section 1 of Article VIII, to which reference is made, reads:

"The salaries of teachers covered by this Agreement shall be set forth in Schedule A which is attached to and incorporated in this Agreement."

The parties stipulated that the arbitrator does not have power to determine whether employees are entitled to a retroactive adjustment for the past six years, but that his power is limited to the period covered by the collective bargaining agreement which became effective September 1, 1966.

Disagreement concerns the first sentence of Schedule A which reads:

"The following salary schedule is affective for the 1966-67 school year and teachers shall be placed on the appropriate step which shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations which prevail."

More specifically, the dispute is over the phrase "which shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations which prevail."

The Schedule specifies salaries for teachers with various degrees of education: BA, BA+20, MA, MA+15, Specialist, and Doctorate. Salaries are also based on experience ranging from none to eleven years.

1/ I shall refer to the Board of Education of Warren Consolidated Schools as the "School Board" and to the Warren Education Association as the "Association", as the collective bargaining agreement.

The Schedule contains, among others, the following provision:

"(1) Credit for outside experience: Maximum seven (7) years allowed, including military service and teaching experience. Maximum credit for outside teaching experience and military service - $1,770.

"(a) Military service at $177 per year for active duty (full time college work in military academies or training programs is excepted.)

"(b) Classroom teaching experience

"1. First two (2) years at half credit - 3% or $177 per year
2. Third, fourth, and fifth year at full credit - 6% or $354 per year
3. Sixth and seventh year at half credit - 3% or $177 per year
4. No credit shall be allowed for substitute teaching either inside or outside the system."

For a number of years, the School Board has given credit for outside experience as teacher or for service in the Armed Forces. The credit for this type of experience has been increased from time to time, but the past service credit of a teacher who entered the service of the School Board with past service was not increased at a later period when the past service credit became greater. Thus, a teacher hired in 1960 with three years past service credit continued to be credited with three years, even though the past service credit was increased in later years.

The Association contends that under the contract all teachers are entitled to their full past service credit up to a maximum of seven years, commencing with September 1, 1966.[2/]

To put it another way, a teacher who entered the system when the maximum past service credit was three years, but who actually had five years' past service credit should, effective with the beginning of the 1966-67 school year, receive credit for five years' past service experience.

The School Board contends that the phrase "shall be placed on the appropriate step which shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations which prevail" means that such teacher retains her three years' past service credit, but is not entitled to be increased to five years' past service credit.

Both School Board and Association contend that the agreement or bargain reached in collective bargaining was as each contends.

The Association urges that the maintenance of the differences of the type for which the Board contends exists is contrary to the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution and Article I, Section 2, of the Michigan Constitution of 1963.

The Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution provides that "No state shall . . . . deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." Article I, Section 2, of the Michigan Constitution of 1963 provides that "No person shall be denied equal protection of the laws."

2/ As noted in the text, I have not considered whether any such credit should be retroactive, and neither School Board nor Association presented legal evidence or argument on that point, except that counsel for the Association suggested in his opening statement that the "system" is "legally indefensible as it treats teachers differently".

Both parties rely on court decisions, and the Association also cites decisions of various arbitrators, in support of their respective positions.

The evidence discloses that bargaining started about one week after recognition on April 20, 1966, and that the contract was ultimately ratified on September 6, 1966.

There were bargaining sessions comprising between one hundred and fifty and two hundred hours during this period. All issues were determined by the bargaining representatives of the School Board and the Association prior to the first of September, 1966, except the matter of salaries and insurance. These two issues were the subject of a report dated September 6, 1966, by a fact-finder appointed by the Michigan Labor Mediation Board pursuant to Section 25 of the Labor Mediation Act (Mich. Stat. Ann. 17.454 (27)). Following the fact-finding report, the representatives of the parties reached agreement and ratification followed.

The issue here, as stated above, is concerned with retroactivity for past experience or military service which, under the agreement of the parties, is a maximum of seven years, the first two years at half credit, the third fourth and fifth years at full credit, and the sixth and seventh year at half credit. The parties have, for the duration of the current contract, converted a year of half credit to one hundred and seventy five dollars and fifty cents per year, and a year of full credit at three hundred and fifty one dollars per year.

A discussion of the bargaining concerning this issue is relevant to decision.

The two Association witnesses, Paul Downing, the Association's Executive Secretary, and Terry Herndon, the Association's President, testified in behalf of the Association, and Paul K. Cousino, Superintendent of the Warren Consolidated Schools, and M. David Keefe, a School Board Consultant during bargaining, testified in behalf of the School Board.

Secretary Downing testified that the matter of retroactivity had not been a subject of negotiation during the bargaining sessions. He testified in answer to his counsel:

"Q. Did representatives of the Board ever suggest that Schedule A was to apply to some, and not to all, teachers?
A. No.

Q. Did any representative of the School Board ever suggest that credit for past experience as set forth in the table is applicable only to teachers subsequently hired?
A. No.

Q. Did any representative of the School Board ever suggest or propose that credit for outside teaching experience set forth on the bottom of Schedule A was to apply only to teachers subsequently hired?
A. No.

Q. Was any statement made by any representative of the Board that teachers yet to be hired were to receive better treatment than those members of the bargaining unit?
A. No."

Mr. Downing further testified that he first saw the disputed paragraph of Schedule A after July 6, 1966, when he received a letter which was sent to all the teachers, but that it was never discussed at a bargaining session.

The letter was addressed to "All Members of the Teaching Staff of Warren Consolidated School Board". It read, in part:

"We regret to report that an impasse has been reached in the negotiations for a complete agreement between the School Board and the Warren Education Association.

Except for the issue of basic compensation, a complete agreement had been reached between the parties and confirmed before the State Labor Mediator. On the remaining question of compensation, the School Board made a final offer to complete the agreement. Since this was not accepted, the School Board has directed the School Administration to place this final offer into effect as provided by established legal procedures. Meanwhile, the School Board continues to maintain its complete offer to the Association and desires to conclude an agreement. To this end we are ready at any time to cooperate with the Michigan Labor Mediation Board so as to overcome the impasse.

The agreement, when reached, will establish all of the terms and conditions of employment for the members of the Bargaining Unit. However, during the interim, the following Board policy will effectively apply."

The Board authorized the following salary schedule, subject to the effective terms of any forthcoming agreement:

SCHEDULE A

The following salary schedule is effective for the 1966-67 school year which covers a period of two hundred (200) paid-for days. Teachers shall be placed on the appropriate step in the schedule, which shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations which prevail." (emphasis supplied)

(Then followed the proposed Schedule of 11 steps starting with a low of $5,850 for teachers with a Bachelor of Arts degree and no experience and ending with a high of $10,998 degrees for teachers holding a Doctorate and eleven years of experience)

Mr. Downing testified that the Board never explained what was meant by the language in the letter and the Schedule A was not physically in existence until the contract was typed for signature, after the ratification meeting of September 6, 1966. Prior to the typing of the agreement, representatives of the Association including Secretary Downing met with Dr. Cousino in his office. Mr. Bieslinski, President of the School Board was present, but Secretary Downing does not recall that Mr. Charles D. Earl, attorney of the Board, was present. Mr. Downing testified that Dr. Cousino had a copy of the letter and asked whether the letter was "okay except for the figures and we said 'okay'". "No statement", Mr. Herndon said, "was made about the language".

Mr. Downing testified that he read the first paragraph in the letter of July 6, 1966, but he did not take the matter up with Association Counsel, although he did review most of the contract with Mr. Ellmann. The phrase "established deviations" was never, he testified, discussed during negotiations.

Mr. Herndon testified that during negotiations as the various provisions of the proposed contract were agreed to, they were put in writing; and that prior to the fact-finding, there had been tentative agreement on all issues except salaries and insurance. The matter of Schedule A was not, he testified, an issue before the fact-finder, and the fact-finding report which was received in evidence so discloses.

At the ratification meeting on September 6, 1966, Schedule A was presented verbally as was the insurance proposal which had been agreed to following the issuance of the fact-finding report. President Herndon went through the contract "briefly" but did not have Schedule A in his possession. President Herndon, Mr. Downing testified, explained to the meeting that credit for outside experience was to be based on two years at half credit, three years of full credit, and the sixth and seventh year at half credit with this being three percent, six percent, and three percent based on the starting salary of fifty nine hundred dollars. He did not state, Mr. Downing further testified, that the outside experience applied only to new teachers.

There was a "Schedule A" in the Association's proposal made to the School Board which read as follows:

"Outside Experience
a) Salary credit for teaching experience outside the district, and for military service will be granted as follows:
1. Military service shall be credited at 3% per year of active service.
2. The first two years of teaching experience will be credited at 3% per year.
3. The third, fourth and fifth and sixth years of teaching experience will be credited at 6% per year.
b) Compulsory credit does not exceed five full years of salary credit, but the Superintendent may exceed this limit with per case approval of the Association."

Mr. Herndon testified that during May or June there was discussion of the Association proposal that credit be increased by two full years as well as giving the Superintendent power to exceed this if approved by the Association. During these discussions, School Board representatives suggested the addition of two years at half pay; and this was accepted, but not reduced to writing at the time.

Mr. Herndon testified he received a copy of the July 6 letter; Schedule A was discussed at meetings before school opened in September, but there never was a specific reference to the disputed paragraph; and neither Dr. Cousino or any other member of the Board team, ever gave any interpretation or entered into discussion of the meaning of the disputed sentence.

Mr. Herndon reiterated in rebuttal testimony that he had no recollection that the matter of retroactivity had ever been discussed.

Superintendent Cousino testified, consistent with the testimony of President Herndon, that past experience was discussed when the Association proposal quoted above was offered and that he, Dr. Cousino, suggested one half credit for the sixth and seventh year. He testified that he said during this discussion that: "Historically the Board of Education has been opposed to retroactivity. We cannot afford to do it if retroactivity is required".

Dr. Cousino then testified that after discussion "at some length" there was a caucus at which President Herndon, Consultant Keefe and Superintendent Cousino were present. This occurred during a bargaining session which started on June 11 and continued for about twenty-four hours. Dr. Cousino placed the time of the caucus at about 1:00 A.M. or 2 A.M. on June 12. He further testified that he and Herndon had a dialogue concerning the sixth year of credit in which Dr. Cousino stated that he proposed one half credit for the sixth and seventh year; he explained, that if we allowed one half credit, we were not paying more for teachers who came in this year than came in last year; President Herndon agreed to accept the sixth and seventh year at half credit; Dr. Cousino repeated that the Board had been opposed to retroactivity pay and that the School Board "could not improve salaries as we were trying to do if we went back and picked up everyone; he does not recall what President Herndon said; and Consultant Keefe "came up" with the language of "established deviations" which was not written down at the time; the parties then returned to the table and went on with other items; the issue of retroactivity was never brought up again.

Later, and prior to the letter of July 6, 1966, Consultant Keefe prepared the disputed sentence.

There was no testimony by any witness that the matter of retroactivity was discussed when all representatives of both Association and School Board were present except Dr. Cousino's statement of the School Board's historical opposition thereto and the cost factor; and no contention by Superintendent Cousino that any Association representative affirmatively accepted the proposal that there should be no retroactivity.

Superintendent Cousino testified that the Association never specifically agreed to the retroactivity argument, but he "was sure this was understood" and "believes they accepted when they took the sixth and seventh year". He completed his testimony by the statement that the position of the School Board on retroactivity was "accepted by silence".

Dr. Cousino further testified that there had been bargaining between the Association and the School Board in the past years and that the payment for past services had never been retroactive. There was testimony by Mr. Downing that a contract had been entered into in 1965-66, but the contract was not offered in evidence.3/

Consultant M. David Keefe testified that he was present at all meetings except the meeting following the ratification of the contract. He described the "gathering in a side office" where he, President Herndon, and Superintendent Cousino had a conversation, where the matter of retroactivity was "officially disposed of". He testified that "formalizing took place when the letter of July 6 was written". He confirmed the testimony of prior witnesses that a "write up" of Schedule A was "never exchanged."

At one of the subsequent meetings when the parties were endeavoring to "jockey the money items around" the Association was given a copy of Schedule A as it appeared in the letter of July 6 with the "top off".

Dr. Cousino asked, Downing testified, whether the "letter (apparently meaning the schedule) was O.K. except for the figures and we said O.K.". No statement, he said, was made about the language. This occurred, he said on cross-examination, at the last session in August.

That the bottom of the July 6 letter was presented to the Association committee was confirmed by the President of the Board of Education, Mr. Breslinski, who testified he was present at the meeting in August when wages were discussed.

Dr. Cousino testified that Secretary Downing and President Herndon approved Schedule A prior to the printing of the contract.

There are three questions to be considered:

1. The meaning of the phrase "teachers shall be placed on the appropriate step in the schedule, which shall then be adjusted to reflect the established deviations which prevail".

2. Whether the foregoing provision is part of the agreement binding on the parties unless prohibitted by law.

3. If the foregoing language is part of the agreement, whether it is an illegal or prohibited provision because contrary to law including as Counsel for the Association avers, the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States and Section 2 of Article I of the Michigan Constitution.

3/ Any bargaining in the past was not, of course, collective bargaining as required, by the Public Employment Relations Act. The testimony suggests that in Warren, as in most areas of public employment, the "bargaining, was more in the nature of a petition to the School Board than collective bargaining as defined in Section 15 of the Public Employment Relations Act.

An analysis of the quoted language, and consideration of the evidence, leads to a conclusion that it refers to Schedule A, hence, supports the School Board contention.

The Association urges that the "deviations" referred to are applicable to the provisions of Schedule B which provide "extra pay to those who are selected by the Superintendent of Schools to perform (specified) extra curricular (beyond the school day) duties".

When courts have construed the term "deviation" they have generally been discussing a physical departure from an established route, such as driving a motor vehicle which "deviated" from an established route, an issue being raised as to whether an injured employee is entitled to workmen's compensation. Other contracts refer to the construction of railroads and roads. In a case involving the construction of the turnpike, the court gave a general definition of "deviation", "Webster's dictionary defines 'deviation' to mean 'a wandering from the way; variation from the common way, from an established standard or position . . . .'"4/

In context, it seems clear that "deviations", as used in Schedule A is limited to that schedule, and refers specifically to the differneces in salaries of teachers resulting from the School Board policy of not making the credit for experience and military service, retroactive-this for the following reasons:

1. The language was prepared by Consultant Keefe with the foregoing purpose in mind.

2. The sentence refers specifically to the "appropriate step in the schedule". Had it been intended that the sentence refer to the extra payments provided in Schedule B reference would not have been made to "appropriate step" as Schedule B provides for specific payments designated as a percentage of base pay but has no relationship to the "step" of the schedule in which a teacher receiving extra pay may be included.

3. The word "the schedule" can only refer to Schedule A because (a) it is the only one of the two schedules which include steps as mentioned above, and (b) a normal meaning of "the schedule" is the schedule in which it is included i.e. Schedule A.

4. The only established deviations concerning which there was evidence, were those relating to credit for past experience and military service.

I find, therefore, that the sentence discussed has reference only to Schedule A and to the differences in pay resulting from the School Board policy, established prior to the 1966-67 school year relating to payment for past experience and military service.

The next issue involves the question of whether the School Board and the Association agree to the inclusion in the contract of the sentence "teachers shall be placed on the appropriate step in the schedule, which shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations to prevail". Or to put it another way, is the quoted language part of the contract between the Warren Consolidated Schools and the Warren Education Association?

It is clear from the evidence that there was never an affirmative agreement by any representative of the Association that teachers already in the system would be retained at their present credit level or that the disputed sentence should be included in the contract.

The evidence and argument to support the Association provision is as follows:

4/ S. J. Groves & Sons Co. vs. West Virginia Turnpike Commission 164 F. Supp. 816, 821 (S.D.W. Va., 1958).

1. The letter of July 6, 1966, which included the disputed language was mailed to all teachers. Both President Herndon and Secretary Downing, representatives of the Association, received copies of the letter.

2. Superintendent Cousino testified that he referred to the past practice of not making credit for experience retroactive.

3. An agreement was signed including the disputed language.

The Association points out that all other provisions of the contract were written up as the parties reached tentative agreement and exchanged but, no "write up" of Schedule A was exchanged.

The Association urges:

"If the language of 'established deviations which prevail' had been discussed on June 10 or 11 as a means of preserving the past discriminatory salary schedule of the board, it is curious that Mr. Keefe would not have followed his usual practice and reduced it to writing instead of waiting for days or weeks later when preparing (the letter of July 6, 1966)".

The School Board, on the other hand, notes that the parties agree on the sixth and seventh year credit at a meeting in June and:

"For the Association to infer that the School District included the aforementioned (the disputed sentence) in the final draft of the Preamble in 'Schedule A' without discussion of same and without explanation is ridiculous".

While a contract may be reformed on ground of mutual mistake "where the mistake is common to both parties and by reason of it each has done what neither intended",5/ there is no evidence here of a mutual mistake. It is clear that the School Board intended the inclusion of the disputed language and the meaning for which it contends.

There is no evidence that any representative of the School Board was guilty of fraud or misrepresentation, a basis for avoiding a contract.6/

The members of the Association committee knew the language of the July 6 letter. When negotiations resumed near the end of the summer, Schedule A as it appeared in the letter, was used in the negotiations. The schedule as included in the letter, contained the sentence, "Teachers shall be placed on the appropriate step in the schedule, which shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations which prevail". This is substantially the language of the contract.

The members of the Association bargaining committee are all persons of education each of whom teaches in the Warren Consolidated Schools' System. Each must have at least a Bachelor's Degree. Such persons should be of sufficient intelligence to read that which is placed before them, and to evaluate the meaning thereof. While equitable relief on the basis of unilateral mistake going to the substance in an agreement, has been granted by the courts where the mistake did not result from an inexcusable lack of due care under the circumstances, and plaintiff's position had not been so changed in reliance on the contract that it would be unconscionable to order recision,7/ there is no basis on the evidence before me to hold that relief is merited on any theory of overreaching on the part of the School Board.

While the disputed language appears not to have been explained to the teachers at the ratification meeting, the members of the Association committee should have known the School Board proposal and the Board's intention that it was to be written into the agreement following the ratification meeting.

The President, President-Elect, and Secretary of the School Board signed the agreement as representatives of the Association. If they failed to read it carefully, the failure was theirs; not the representatives of the School Board. They are men of education and obvious intelligence who had the capacity to know what they were doing.8/

The rule with respect to signing a contract without reading it has been stated:

"As a general principle, one who accepts a written contract is conclusively presumed to know its contents and to assent to them, in the absence of fraud, misrepresentation, or other wrongful act by another contracting party. Thus, ignorance of the contents of a contract expressed in a written instrument does not ordinarily affect the liability of one who signs it . . . .

"Failure to read a contract before signing it will not, as a rule, affect its binding force. Indeed, the courts appear to be unanimous in holding that a person who, having the capacity and an opportunity to read a contract, is not misled as to its contents and who sustains no confidential relationship to the other party cannot avoid the contract on the ground of mistake if he signs it without reading it, at least in the absence of special circumstances excusing his failure to read it. It is the duty of every contracting party to learn and know its contents before he signs and delivers it, and, if the contract is plain and unequivocal in its terms, he is ordinarily bound thereby".9/

In the words of the Michigan Supreme Court:

"Upon the face of the papers alone, the rule would be applicable that one who has executed a contract will not be heard to say that he did not read it.".10/

"This court has many times held that one who signs a contract will not be heard to say, when enforcement is sought, that he did not read it, or that he supposed that it was different in its terms".11/

The evidence established that there is no basis for excusing the members of the committee for failure to recognize that the disputed language was intended by the School Board representatives to be included in the contract, or from carefully reading the contract before 8/ There have been occasions where the courts have considered the low degree of intellectual capacity of a party to a contract in determining whether the other party has been guilty of overreaching, but there is no such case here. In the words of the Louisiana Supreme Court". . . . it is the duty of the courts to carefully and painstakingly investigate the circumstances surrounding transactions between a person of limited mental capacity and one experienced in business affairs, in order that substantial justice may be meted out". signing. This is particularly true where the practice of the School Board during the past several years has been the method of granting credit for past service to which the Association now objects.

The evidence leads to the conclusion that the language "shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations which prevail" is part of the contract and enforceable, unless prohibited by law.

We then face the more difficult question as to whether the disputed language is an illegal or prohibited provision because contrary to law, including the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and Section 2 of Article I of the Michigan Constitution.

Counsel for the School Board cite the language of the agreement which provides that "(t)he arbitrator shall have no power or authority to add to, subtract from, alter or modify the terms of this Agreement". This raises the question as to whether an arbitrator has power to determine the legality of contract language in the agreement which both parties knew, or shall have known, was included in the agreement.

There are arbitrators to take the position that arbitrators may not, or should not, be concerned with constitutional or statutory issues.12/ In my opinion, however, every contract includes all applicable provisions of the law and arbitrators, as well as all other decision making entities, are bound by the law applicable to the contract being construed.13/ Indeed, a separation of contract interpretation and the legality of the contract is impossible in any arbitrations.

An award which does not consider the law may result in error. Consider obvious examples. Should an arbitrator enforce a contract which provides payment of wages below those established in the Fair Labor Standards Act, or, if applicable, does he perform his function if he overlooks limitations on hours for women and minors, or maximum loads which women may carry in industrial employment? I think not.14/ The issue of civil rights is of increasing importance. Should an arbitrator in Michigan brush aside as inapplicable the statutory provisions which declares that: "The opportunity to obtain employment without discrimination because of race, color, or religion, national origin, or ancestry is hereby recognized and declared to be a civil right"?15/

Some arbitrators have found such limitation in contract language, thus in Spartan Mills and United Textile Workers of America,16/ the arbitrator considered himself limited to the contract by the language: "The arbiters' authorities shall be limited to matters involving the application of the terms of this agreement and must be settled within the terms of this contract. The arbiters may not modify, amend, or add to the terms of this agreement". The first sentence may confine the arbitrators to the terms of the agreement; the "standard" language contained in the second sentence should not be construed as limiting legal consideration.

That arbitrators are bound by applicable laws was well stated by arbitrator Hyman Parker:

> "All agreements are made subject to the applicable provisions of Federal or State laws, and the parties must be presumed to have intended an agreement which is not in violation of any law . . . . I am bound by the agreement and the provisions of the applicable Federal laws in determining the particular grievance involved" (emphasis supplied).17/

That Michigan favors the resolution of labor disputes by arbitration is indicated by the provisions of Section 9d of the Labor Mediation Act.18/ Similar recognition in the private sector may be found in Section 203 (d) of the National Labor Relations Act.19/

Thus, in Pennsylvania Electric Company,20/ an arbitrator construed "time worked" as required by the Fair Labor Standards Act, not withstanding an employer's contention that the contract should be interpreted without regard to the statute, and statutory issues left for resolution in another forum.

In National Steel and Shipbuilding Company,21/ an arbitrator determined a work jurisdiction dispute, and that as an arbitrator, he was not automatically preempted by Section 10 (k) of the National Labor Relations Act.

In Safety Electrical Equipment Corporation vs. Local 299, United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America,22/ the court enforced an award which interpreted the Connecticut Workman's Compensation Law. The court, citing United Steel Workers vs. Enterprise Wheel Corporation,23/ noted that it would not refuse to enforce an arbitrator's award "especially where, as here, a review of the arbitrator's opinion reveals no 'manifest disregard' of the law".24/

Both the School Board and Association agree as to the general rule under the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution and Section 2 of Article I of the Michigan Constitution.25/ Both School Board and 13/ There is one possible caveat. If the parties submit a case to an arbitrator with the direction that he is to consider only contract language, and not constitutional and/or statutory and/or common law, the arbitrator should either comply with the request of the parties or withdraw from the case. Here such limitation was not included in the submission, although the School Board urges that the language quoted in the text prohibits the arbitrator from considering the Constitutional issue. In my opinion, construing a contract as affected by law is not adding to, subtracting from, altering or modifying a contract, because the contract includes the law.

Hyman, 1964): American Transportation Corporation 42 LA 1308 (Murray M. Rohman, 1964), and Buckstaff Company 40 LA 833 (George H. Young, 1963). In the last named case the arbitrator disclaimed that he was "construing or interpreting the National Labor Relations Act including that the discharge of these employees would be a violation of the Act", but it is clear that he applied the Statute. Evidentally this arbitrator felt the law so clear that he did not need to construe or interpret it. In many cases involving plant removal and subcontracting, arbitrators apply the National Labor Relations Act, and decisions rendered thereunder.

25/ That the Fourtheenth Amendment is applicable to the states is clear from a number of U.S. Supreme Court cases including Brown vs. Board of Education 349 U.S. 294 (1954); Shelton vs. Tucker 364 U.S. 479 (1960); Reynolds vs. Sims 377 U.S. 533 (1963).

Association recognize that the "fundamental rule of classification for the purpose of legislation is that it shall not be arbitrary; and it is not reviewable unless palpably arbitrary and unreasonable".26/

The School Board urged support of this principal(sic) by citing Michigan cases involving action by the state legislature and city councils. It urges that "(a) classification having some reasonable basis does not offend against that clause (Fourteenth Amendment) merely because it is not made with mathematical nicety or because in practice it results in some inequality".27/

The School Board cited a number of cases by courts of other states and Federal courts in support of its argument that the classification established by the disputed language offends both Federal and State constitutions.28/

The question as to whether a schedule of benefits applicable to public employees is reasonable, or arbitrary and unreasonable, is a matter of judgment which must be made, as objectively as possible, by the person charged with rendering the decision. The evidence, analysis of the contract, and study of the case law leads me to the conclusion that the distinction made between teachers performing the same duties in the Warren Consolidated Schools' System, but receiving different compensation, is unreasonable and arbitrary.

In its simplest form, teacher A who entered the system when three years was the maximum credit for past experience, but who actually had five years past experience, is two steps behind teacher B, performing the same duties, but who entered the school system in 1965 with five years past experience. This, in my opinion, is an arbitrary distinction which under the constitutional equal protection requirement violates the rights of the public employee receiving the lesser pay.

Court decisions support this opinion.

In Richards vs. Board of Education of Township High School District No. 201,29/ the court upheld a salary schedule which gave credit to teachers who took extra courses. Such a differentiation was clearly reasonable, the Illinois court citing an Indiana decision:30/

> "It is not unreasonable that the school authorities should require their employees to continue their training in order to keep abreast with the most modern and advanced methods, nor is it unreasonable that those who neglect further training should receive less compensation than those who seek to improve their efficiency and increase their value to the school corporation . . . . nor is there merit to the claim that a salary schedule based on professional growth operates to reduce the compensation of teachers who do not choose to comply".31/

The disputed provision in the Warren Consolidated Schools' contract has no such logical or reasonable basis, but provides for different pay to teachers who are performing the same duties and who are at the same "rate of growth" insofar as such standard can be measured.32/

In Kacsur vs. Board of Trustees of South Whittier Elementary,33/ a School District sought to abolish a salary schedule applicable to present teachers who had attained tenure from receiving the salaries they had received the previous year. The court in holding that the school's action was arbitrary and unreasonable said:

> "It is well established that a permanent teacher has no vested right to a particular salary and that such salary may be changed by an administrative authority . . . . However, there are limitations on the powers of Boards of Trustees to change salaries of permanent teachers. One of the 'legal consequences' referred to the Abraham case (Abraham v. Sims 2 Cal. 2d 698, 42 P. 2d 1039) is that the fixing of salaries must not be discriminatory, arbitrary, or unreasonable. The above cited cases also qualify the general power of the administrative agencies to fix the salaries of permanent teachers. The cause of this qualification it necessarily follows that there must be a comparison with the salaries of other teachers or salaries of previous years".

In Hutton vs. Gill,34/ the court held that a salary schedule which made a distinction between married and unmarried teachers was "unlawful and arbitrary, and formed no rational basis for a classification". The court voided the schedule.

In Aebli vs. Board of Education of City and County of San Francisco,35/ the court held that a School Board had power to reduce salaries at the commencement of the school year:

> "provided that there is a reasonable basis for such a reduction and provided that the reduction is not the result of unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious act . . . . but this power is not unlimited. The Board has no power to discriminate against any teacher. It cannot pick out some teachers in a particular category, and without change in duties or function classify that group for salary purposes different from others in the same category, (Fry vs. Board of Education, 17 Cal. 2d, 753,112 P. 2d 229), nor can it reduce salaries in an arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner." (p. 625)36/

The Association pointed out with considerable logic, that in many lines of occupation those with longer seniority are granted advantages greater than those who enter the area of employment at a later date.37/ The seniority

26/ In Fitzpatrick vs. Liquor Control Commission 316 Mich. 83, 94 (1946), held that a statute prohibiting female bartenders was not outside of the power of the legislature. In light of recent legislation, the Supreme Court might now decide this case different than it did in 1946.

Hutton vs. Gill 212 Ind. 164, 8 N.E. 2d 818 (1937).

29/ 21 Ill. 2d 104, 171 N.E. 2d 37 (1960).

30/ Board of School Trustees, School City of Peru vs. Moore 218 Ind. 283, 33 N.E. 2d 114 (1941).

31/ 171 N.E. 2d 42.

32/ I do not mean to imply by anything I say in this opinion that a School Board may not unilaterally, if there is no bargaining agent, or by agreement, place a top limit on the amount of past service credit to which a teacher may be entitled. In my opinion, a maximum limit is clearly within the power of the School Board acting unilaterally or by agreement with a bargaining agent but all teachers in the system must be treated in the same manner.

33/ 18 Cal. 2d 586, 116 P. 2d 593 (1941).

34/ 21 2 Ind. 164, 8 N.E. 2d 818 (1937).

35/ 62 Cal. App. 2d 706, 145 P. 2d 601 (1944).

36/ There was a dissent in this case and it was a close question as to whether the act of the School Board involved was, in fact, discriminatory. The majority found that the School Board "was making overall uniformity impossible by changing its entire policy as to evaluation of outside experience". While one may agree, in this case, with the dissenting judges, the decision stands for the non-discriminatory uniformity principle which, in my opinion, must be applied here, and this voids the disputed language.

principle is well known in collective bargaining agreements in industry. In the instant case, the contract se provides the reverse of seniority preference.

I disagree with the School Board argument that payment to a new teacher is like a bonus paid to a football player. The comparison is not apt. The football player receive his bonus once. A teacher who receives a lesser amount of past service credit than teachers subsequently hired continues to be behind in compensation as long as the teacher works in the system. If this were a single payment made to a teacher when hired, the comparison would be correct; but here the difference in pay for teachers in the same category continues year after year.

I base decision on the ground that the Warren Education Association in executing the agreement containing the disputed language signed the contract which included a provision which contravenes the Federal and State Constitutional equal protection provisions and that these are applicable to public employees.

Collective bargaining representatives are required to represent their constituents in good faith. Ford Motor Company vs. Huffman,[38] it might be urged that remedy is not a declaration that the disputed language is a nullity, but should be against the bargaining representative for breach of its duty of fair representation such as in National Labor Relations Board vs. Miranda Fuel Co., Inc.,[39] and other cases in which action has been brought against a union either under Section 8 (b) of the National Labor Relations Act or by an action at law.

39/ 326 F. 2d 172 (2d Cir., 1963).

There is a distinction in this case. No charge can be filed against a union under the Public Employment Relations Act as the statute does not include union unfair labor practices. Then the Association sought to correct the error of its representatives as soon as the error was discovered. But more importantly, the real issue here is not the Association's failure to represent its employees, except for the negligence of its representatives, but whether the contract provision by reason of its constitutional infringement, is a nullity. In my opinion, it is.

I find that the words in Schedule A "which shall then be adjusted to reflect established deviations which prevail" are not part of the contract dated September 14, 1966, between the Board of Education of Warren Consolidated Schools and the Warren Education Association.

AWARD

The teachers with outside experience employed prior to the 1966-1967 school year who have not been granted credit for prior teaching experience or military service in the same manner as teachers first employed for the 1966-1967 school year are entitled to the same credit, and shall be paid, effective for the 1966-1967 school year, in the same manner as teachers first employed for said year.

I reserve jurisdiction to determine the amount due to each of the teachers entitled to salaries in excess to the salaries received during the 1966-1967 school year in the event the parties are unable to make such determination.

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

between

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE

of the

CITY OF SPRINGFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS

and the

SPRINGFIELD EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 178 of Chapter 149 of the General Laws of Massachusetts, this Contract is made this 23rd day of March, 1967, by the SCHOOL COMMITTEE OF THE CITY OF SPRINGFIELD (hereinafter sometimes called the "School Committee") and the SPRINGFIELD EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (hereinafter sometimes called the "Association").

W I T N E S S E T H :

ARTICLE I

RECOGNITION

A. Pursuant to the June 27, 1966 Certification of Representatives by the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission, the School Committee recognizes the Springfield Education Association as the exclusive bargaining agent and representative of the following employees of the Springfield Public Schools for the purposes of collective bargaining with respect to wages, hours, other conditions of employment, the negotiation of collective bargaining agreements, and any questions arising thereunder: all Teachers, Counselors, Librarians, Reading Clinicians, Department Heads in the Elementary, Junior High, and Senior High Schools, Therapists, Special Project Researchers, Psychological Examiners, but excluding all other employees of the Springfield Public Schools.

Unless otherwise indicated, the employees in the above unit will be hereinafter referred to as the "teachers".

B. As sole collective bargaining agent, the Association will accept into voluntary membership all teachers covered by this Contract without regard to race, color, creed, national origin, sex, or marital status, or previous affiliation with other teacher organizations.

The Committee and the Association agree that there will be no discrimination in the hiring of employees or in their training, assignment, promotion, transfer, or discipline because of race, creed, color, religion, national origin, political activities, Association activities, sex, domicile, or marital status.

C. Except as specifically abridged, delegated, granted or modified by this Contract or any supplement thereto or by Section 178 of Chapter 149 of the General Laws of Massachusetts, all of the rights, powers and authority held by the School Committee prior to the effective date of said Contract are retained by the School Committee and the exercise of said rights, powers and/or authority shall not be subject to the grievance procedure and/or arbitration.

ARTICLE II

EXISTING CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT

Except as this Contract shall hereinafter otherwise provide, all conditions of employment applicable on the effective date of this Contract to employees covered by this Contract, as established by the School Committee's Rules and Regulations in force on the said date, shall continue to be so applicable during the life of this Contract. Nothing in this Contract which changes pre-existing School Committee Rules and Regulations shall operate retroactively.

ARTICLE III

TEACHING HOURS AND TEACHER LOAD

The School Committee and the Association recognize and agree that a teacher's responsibility to his students and his profession generally entails the performance of duties and the expenditure of time beyond the regular work day, but that time and work schedules can and should be established applicable to teachers in the normal course of their employment. To this end, the following conditions of employment shall be effective except in circumstances beyond the control of the School Department in the administration of this Contract.

A. Work Day.

1. Subject to the provisions of Paragraph 2 below, every teacher shall be in his school building and available for duty at least fifteen minutes before the beginning of each school day in his building.

2. On every school day between October first and April first, and on every other school day when the weather is inclement, every school building shall be open to pupils thirty (30) minutes before the beginning of each school day. Each Principal shall see that a sufficient number of teachers, equitably assigned, is in attendance for proper supervision.

3. Each teacher shall be in his school building and available for duty after the closing of school for a period of time which shall be sufficient to take care of those details which usually are connected with the closing of the daily session, such period of time not to exceed fifteen (15) minutes. The parties to this Contract agree that fifteen (15) minutes may, on occasions, be insufficient to meet with the Principal if requested to do so, to meet with pupils who may wish assistance or advice, for makeup nights, for supervision of detention sessions in accordance with present administrative practice, and for situations beyond the control of school officials; on such occasions the fifteen minute limit does not apply.

4. Special teachers and special project teachers shall observe the same working hours as teachers of the same level (i.e., elementary school, junior high school, senior high school).

5. Insofar as possible, elementary school teachers shall have a duty-free lunch period of one (1) hour. This, however, shall not prevent teachers from requesting lunch duty.

6. Secondary school teachers shall have a duty-free lunch period of at least one-half (1/2) hour between the end of one teaching period and the beginning of another teaching period.

7. All secondary school teachers shall have the equivalent of at least one (1) preparation period each day, during which they shall not be assigned to any other duties.

8. In addition to home-room duty and study hall supervision, secondary academic subject area school teachers shall not be assigned more than five (5) teaching periods per day. Secondary school teachers of fine and industrial arts, physical education, and home economics may be assigned not more than six (6) teaching periods per day.

9. No secondary school teacher shall, without his agreement, be required in any one semester to teach more than two subjects or to make more than two teaching preparations; except, however, that such teachers may be required to make an additional preparation if they are relieved of homeroom obligations and extra duties such as study hall. Exceptions to this provision may be made only when necessary to do so in the best interests of the educational system.

10. With his Principal's approval a teacher who is teaching his first year in the Springfield Public Schools shall, upon his request and without loss of salary, be granted the equivalent of two days for the observation of other teachers. This may be extended upon recommendation of an assistant superintendent.

11. Every department chairman, in addition to his preparation period, shall be released from classroom instruction for one period per day or the equivalent for departmental activities. No teacher shall be temporary chairman of a department for a period greater than one year.

12. Whenever possible, floating teachers shall be relieved of all homeroom duties.

B. Work Year.

1. For the duration of this Contract, the work year of teachers covered by the salary schedule set forth in Article XXIV shall be no more than 185 work days. The "work year" shall include any days when teacher attendance is required.

2. Effective September, 1967, the work year of counselors shall be ten (10) days more than the work year as defined in Paragraph 1 above. Said ten (10) additional days shall be scheduled immediately following the close of school in June and/or immediately preceding the opening of school in September, and to the extent possible at a mutually agreed upon time.

C. After School Meetings.

1. The number of meetings required for any teacher in any one school year shall not exceed twenty (20). Teachers may, in addition, be required to attend up to ten in-service and/or curriculum development meetings. Under normal circumstances, staff meetings shall not exceed one (1) hour. The Association shall encourage voluntary participation in occasional curriculum development and in-service meetings which shall have as their purpose the improvement of the instructional program in the Springfield Public Schools.

2. Attendance at evening meetings such as P.T.A. affairs, except annual Open House, shall be at the option of an individual teacher, but the School Committee and the Association encourage active participation in such meetings as part of the teacher's responsibilities.

D. No teacher in the bargaining unit shall be required to teach fine or industrial arts, home economics or a laboratory class unless he is qualified.

ARTICLE IV

RELIEF FROM NON-TEACHING DUTIES

The Committee and the Association acknowledge that a teacher's primary responsibility is to teach and that his energies should, to the extent possible, be utilized to this end. Therefore, they agree as follows:

1. Teachers will not be required to drive pupils to activities which take place away from the school building.

2. (a) The Committee agrees to employ ten (10) full-time qualified teacher aides or the equivalent by the beginning of the 1967-68 school year in order to relieve teachers, to the extent possible, from performing non-teaching administrative and clerical tasks.

(b) A study committee will be established as soon as practicable to determine the most effective method of utilizing said aides, and the recommendations will be submitted to the Superintendent for transmission to the School Committee. Said study committee shall include representatives appointed by the Superintendent and representatives appointed by the Association.

ARTICLE V

TEACHING ASSIGNMENTS AND TRANSFERS

A. As soon as practicable, and under normal circumstances not later than June 30, each teacher shall be notified in writing of any changes in the subject area of his program for the ensuing school year, including the school to which he will be assigned, the grades and/or subjects that he will teach, and any special or unusual classes or assignments that he will have, provided that in the event of a change in circumstances or conditions during the month of May through September (e.g., death, resignation, leave of absence, unanticipated change in enrollment), such assignments may be changed as required to meet the situation. The teacher affected shall be sent immediate notice when the change is made.

B. In order to assure that pupils are taught by teachers working within their areas of competence, teachers shall not be assigned, except temporarily and for good cause, to subjects and/or grades or other classes outside the scope of their teaching certificates and/or their major or minor fields of study.

C. Teachers who desire a change in grade and/or subject assignment or who desire to transfer to another building shall file a written statement of such desire with the office of the Superintendent not later than March 1. Such statement shall include the grade and/or subject to which the teacher desires to be assigned and/or the school or schools (in order of preference, if the teacher has preferences) to which he desires to be transferred. As soon as practicable the Office of the Superintendent shall, upon request, make available to each teacher who has filed such a statement, and to the Association, systemwide data showing the names of persons who have been reassigned or transferred and the nature of such reassignment or transfer.

D. In the determination of reassignments and transfers, the convenience and wishes of the individual teacher will be honored to the extent that these considerations do not conflict with the instructional requirements and best interest of the school system and the pupils. No assignment of new teachers shall be made until all transfer requests have been considered. Any involuntary reassignment or transfer shall be made only after a meeting between the teacher involved and the Superintendent and/or his designees, at which time the teacher shall be notified of the reasons for the reassignment or transfer. In the event that a teacher objects at this meeting to the reassignment or transfer, the Association will, upon request of such teacher, send a representative with the teacher to meet with the Superintendent or his designee to discuss the reassignment or transfer.

E. Notice of transfer shall be given to teachers as soon as practicable, and under normal circumstances, not later than June 30.

F. In arranging schedules for teachers who are assigned to more than one school, every effort will be made to limit the amount of inter-school travel, and gasoline privileges shall be available. Teachers shall be notified of any change in their schedules as soon as practicable.

G. All vacancies, other than those mentioned in Article VI, to be filled in the secondary schools as of the first day of the school year shall be posted in each building prior to June 1 of the preceding school year if known prior to that date.

H. All vacancies in the secondary schools on the second Friday of the new school year which were not known prior to June 1 shall be posted in each building on the Monday following such Friday.

ARTICLE VI

PROMOTIONS

A. Promotional positions are defined as (1) any professional position not specified in Article I above of this Contract; and (2) the following positions specified in Article I: Counselor, Department Head in any Elementary, Junior High or Senior High School, Psychological Examiner, Special Project Researcher and Reading Clinician.

B. Every vacancy in any promotional position shall be publicized by a notice posted in every school building for at least fifteen (15) calendar days, exclusive of vacation, and at least thirty (30) calendar days, exclusive of vacation, in advance of the date of filling such vacancy. Such notice shall clearly set forth the specifications, qualifications, and compensation of the position. A copy of every such notice shall be available to the Association upon request.

C. Every teacher who desires to fill any such vacancy shall file his application therefor in writing with the Superintendent within fifteen (15) calendar days, exclusive of vacation, following the posting of the notice of the vacancy.

D. Every vacancy in paragraph A above shall be filled by an applicant covered by this Contract if his educational qualifications and experiences for the position shall be substantially equal to those of any other applicant not covered by this Contract.

E. Nothing in this Contract shall prevent the School Committee from making acting appointments until positions can be filled with permanent appointments as provided in this Contract. Unless qualified applicants are unavailable, all permanent appointments shall be made within ninety (90) calendar days, exclusive of vacations, of the date on which the vacancy occurred except in the case of the superintendent and/or assistant superintendents. Time spent in such acting appointment shall not be used as an indication of superior qualifications for the position.

ARTICLE VII

TEACHER FACILITIES

A. By the beginning of the 1967-68 school year, the following conditions will prevail in each school building:

1. Each classroom shall have space (e.g., closet, file cabinet, storage container, desk with lock and key) in which teachers may safely store instructional materials and supplies.

2. Teacher parking facilities shall be plowed as soon as practicable.

3. There shall be a pay telephone to be reserved for the exclusive use of teachers in the teachers' lounge or other comparable facility. Such telephone shall be maintained as long as it is self-supporting.

B. To the extent practicable within existing facilities, each school building shall, by the beginning of the 1967-68 school year, have the following facilities:

1. A private dining area for the exclusive use of the teachers in each building in which lunchroom facilities are provided for students. If this is not practicable within existing facilities, an adequate number of separate tables shall be reserved for the exclusive use of the teachers.

2. A teacher workroom containing adequate equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.

3. An appropriately furnished room for use as a teacher lounge. To the extent possible, said room is to be in addition to the aforementioned teacher workroom.

4. An adequate portion of the parking lot at each school building will be reserved for teacher parking.

5. Counsellors' offices arranged to insure privacy.

C. In connection with the construction of new school buildings and major reconstruction of existing school buildings, the School Committee shall make the following recommendations to the School Building Commission:

1. Each classroom shall be designed so that the educational program as approved by the School Committee can be effectively implemented.

2. Adequate teacher parking facilities shall be provided.

ARTICLE VIII

CLASS SIZE AND COMPOSITION

A. A joint Administration-Association Study Committee shall be established as soon as practicable to make recommendations as to the appropriate number of pupils per teacher in the Springfield School System. The said Study Committee shall submit its recommendations through the Superintendent of Schools to the School Committee.

B. The following conditions shall prevail by the beginning of the 1967-68 school year:

1. The normal assignment for general auxiliary classes is eighteen (18) pupils. The enrollment in special auxiliary classes is limited to fifteen pupils.

2. No class of emotionally disturbed children shall have more than eight (8) pupils.

ARTICLE IX

SPECIALISTS

A. 1. A Study Committee on which shall be included appropriate representation of the Association shall be established as soon as practicable to consider the desirability of the self-contained classroom vis-a-vis the possible utilization in the Springfield elementary schools of various special teachers.

2. The report of said Study Committee shall be presented to the School Committee not later than September 1, 1968 for its consideration.

B. 1. The administration shall periodically review the needs of the Springfield School System and shall make recommendations to the School Committee for its consideration in regard to the following specialists:

Alien Education Teachers
Teachers of the Deaf
French (elementary school) Teachers
Spanish-English (elementary school) Teachers
Helping Teachers
Home Teachers
Instrumental Music Teachers for Elementary, Junior and Senior High Schools
Reading Clinicians Safety Teachers
School Adjustment Counselors
Shriners Hospital
Speech Therapists
Teachers of the Blind Psychological Examiners Guidance Counselors
Teachers of the Physically Handicapped
Teachers of the Mentally Retarded
Teachers of the Emotionally Disturbed
Teachers of the Educationally Disadvantaged

2. An attempt shall be made to employ for the 1967-68 school year such additional specialists in the above categories as already have been recommended by the Administration.

3. Except in unusual circumstances as determined by the Administration, none of the specialists employed in any of the categories set forth in paragraph 1 above shall be used as substitutes for regular classroom teachers. The determination of the Administration shall be subject to the grievance procedure set forth in Article XXV of this Contract.

ARTICLE X

SUMMER SCHOOL PROGRAM

A. The School Committee and the Association recognize that the summer school program, including any projects financed by Federal funds, may vary substantially from year to year, may offer the opportunity for experimentation, and may call for flexibility in approach.

B. Following the determination by the School Committee of the summer program for the year, the School Committee shall adequately publicize its general scope and content, and the positions to be filled by teachers, including a notice in every school not later than April 15; except, however, that such notice regarding any project financed by Federal funds shall be posted as soon as possible.

C. No teaching position in the summer school program shall be filled by a teacher not covered by this Contract if there is an equally qualified applicant for such a position who is so covered. Preference shall be given to applicants who have completed at least one (1) year of teaching in the Springfield School System.

D. When applicants for summer school positions exceed the positions available, the best qualified applicant, in the judgment of the Superintendent, for each position will be employed. In making recommendations for summer school positions the Superintendent or his designee shall consider the teacher's area of competence, major or minor field of study, and quality of teaching performance.

ARTICLE XI

PROTECTION OF TEACHERS

A. 1. Principals and teachers shall be required to report any case of assault on teachers in connection with their employment to the Superintendent of Schools or his representative. The Superintendent of Schools or his representative shall acknowledge receipt of such report and shall report this information to the School Committee.

2. The alleged assault will be promptly investigated by the principal or his designated representative and the appropriate assistant superintendent or his designated representative. Subject to the requirements of Paragraphs 3 and 4 below, these two persons and the Superintendent shall determine what action shall be taken by the School Department. This decision will be communicated to the teacher concerned.

3. If the assault is by an adult who is not a pupil, the School Department will promptly report the incident to the proper law enforcement authorities.

4. In either case (pupil or non-pupil adults), the School Department will render all reasonable non-monetary aid to the teacher in connection with handling of the incident by law enforcement, legal, and medical authorities.

B. Whenever a teacher is absent from school as a result of injury caused by an assault arising out of and in the course of his employment, he shall be paid his full salary (less the amount of any workmen's compensation payments) for the period of such absence without having such absence charged to the annual sick leave or accumulated sick leave, up to a maximum of one (1) year and in situations in which the teacher is blameless.

The School Committee shall have the right to have the teacher examined by a physician designated by the School Committee for the purpose of establishing the length of time during which the teacher is temporarily disabled from performing his duties; and, in the event that there is no adjudication in the appropriate workmen's compensation proceeding for the period of temporary disability, the opinion of said physician as to the said period shall control.

C. So far as permitted by Chapter 41, Section 100C of the General Laws of the Commonwealth as amended by Chapter 513 of the Acts of 1964, the School Committee shall provide indemnification whenever any teacher shall become eligible therefor.

D. 1. The School Committee shall reimburse a teacher for:

(a) Any clothing or other personal property damaged or destroyed as the result of an assault suffered in the course of his employment; and

(b) The cost of any medical, surgical or hospital services (over and above the amount of any insurance reimbursement received by said teacher) incurred as the result of any assault suffered in the course of his employment. The cost per assault not to exceed $200.

2. The foregoing shall apply to situations in which the teacher is blameless.

ARTICLE XII

TEACHER EVALUATION AND FILES

A. 1. All observation of the teaching performance of any teacher shall be conducted openly and with the full knowledge of the teacher. No evaluation of any teacher by any supervisor shall be completed and filed unless and until the supervisor shall have observed the teacher at work at least two (2) times, or three (3) times if the teacher shall promptly after the second observation request that he be observed again. No teacher shall receive adverse comments from any observer in the presence of pupils.

2. Each teacher shall be given his evaluation report and shall have the opportunity to discuss such report with his supervisor and/or Principal. After such discussion, the teacher shall sign the report, but the teacher's signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with its contents. The teacher may request a delay of one (1) day prior to the signing and filing of such report.

3. Any adverse evaluation of a teacher's performance filed by the teacher's supervisor and/or Principal may be subject to the grievance procedure herein set forth, but only on the grounds of bad faith and/or discrimination.

B. 1. Upon written request, each teacher shall have the right to review at a time mutually convenient the contents of his personnel file, excepting, however, any confidential references given at the time of his employment. At the teacher's request a representative of the Association may accompany the teacher in such review. The review shall be made in the presence of the administrator responsible for the safekeeping of such file. Facilities shall be available for the teacher to make photocopies of such contents and records as concern his work or himself, except in circumstances beyond the control of the administration.

2. A teacher shall have the right to answer in writing any complaints filed in his personnel file, and his answer shall be attached to the complaint and reviewed by the Superintendent of Schools.

C. No teacher shall be disciplined, reprimanded, reduced in rank or compensation or deprived of any professional advantage without just cause. It is expressly understood that the School Committee retains all rights and obligations which it has under the tenure law.

ARTICLE XIII

LEAVES OF ABSENCE WITH PAY

A. 1. Each teacher is entitled to leave of absence for disability and emergency with full pay up to fifteen (15) working days in each school year in which he is serving in the Springfield Public Schools as of the first day of said school year whether he reports for duty or not. Unused leave of absence for disability and emergency shall be accumulated from year to year so long as the teacher remains continuously in the service of the School Committee without limitation, provided, however, that not more than 150 days may be used in any one (1) school year.

For services prior to date of this Contract, each teacher shall be credited for such unused disability and emergency leave as he has accumulated since the initial date of his present employment under the policies of the School Committee in effect during the years of continuous employment.

2. Each teacher upon request shall receive yearly notice of his accrued disability and emergency leave.

3. Absences of five (5) or more consecutive school days because of disability shall be certified by a physician.

4. For the purpose of this Contract, "Emergency" may be interpreted to include such cases as home exigencies, quarantine by order of the Health Department, serious illness of a member of the employee's immediate family or permanent household requiring the personal care of that member by the employee, or for court cases due to no negligence on employee's part. In the case of married women, leave for illness of a child may be granted if the employee is the sole support of the family. For emergency leave a statement of circumstances shall be submitted by the employee, endorsed by the principal or other supervisory officer and forwarded to the Central Office for consideration by the Committee on Disability and Emergency Leave.

5. Any teacher covered by this Contract if excluded or removed from employment because of tuberculosis in a communicable form, shall be carried with pay for the length of time necessary to resume his teaching duties; but in no event to exceed two years.

B. Each teacher may, upon written request and with the advance approval of the Superintendent or his designee, be granted one (1) day's leave of absence with pay each school year for legal or business matters which cannot possibly be taken care of other than during school hours. This time shall be charged against the teacher's disability and emergency leave.

C. Upon the written application of a teacher covered by this Contract the School Committee shall grant leave of absence with pay of not more than three (3) days in any one school year for observance of religious holy days.

D. 1. A teacher covered by this Contract shall be granted leave of absence with pay for one (1) day to attend commencement exercises at which he will be awarded a degree or sixth-year professional diploma in education.

2. A teacher covered by this Contract shall be granted leave of absence with pay for one (1) day to attend commencement exercises at which a member of his immediate family will be awarded a degree, or a diploma which represents the completion of at least two years of post-high school study. For the purpose of this section immediate family is defined as father, mother, husband, wife, son or daughter.

3. The leave provided for in paragraph 1 above shall not be charged against the teacher's disability and emergency leave; the leave provided for in paragraph 2 above shall be so charged.

E. 1. Each teacher shall be granted one day per year without loss of pay to visit another school system or to attend a convention of a professional organization, subject to prior approval of the Superintendent and subject to a report of how the day is spent being turned in to the principal. The Superintendent has the discretion to grant more than one day leave with pay if he is convinced that such leave will be of direct benefit to the Public School System.

2. Upon written request and approval of Principal, Director of Music Education, and the Superintendent of Schools, a music teacher may be released from his teaching duties, without loss of pay, in order to perform with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra only during the annual student concerts presented for the Springfield Public Schools.

3. The leave provided for in paragraphs 1 and 2 above shall not be charged against the teacher's disability and emergency leave.

F. 1. Each teacher covered by this Contract shall be granted bereavement leave under the following conditions:

(a) He shall submit proof of relationship and death satisfactory to his principal or supervisor, whereupon he shall be granted bereavement leave with full pay not to exceed three (3) regularly scheduled consecutive school days, such leave not to extend more than one day beyond the date of the funeral of the deceased relative.

(b) For the purposes of this section, leave with pay shall be granted on the death of husband, wife, mother, father, son, daughter, brother, sister, grandfather, or grandmother of either the teacher or his spouse; or any individual or relative of the teacher or his spouse who was actually living in the immediate household of the teacher at the time of death or at the commencement of the final illness or accident.

2. The present method of providing released time to attend funeral services for a co-worker shall be continued during the term of this Contract.

3. The leave provided for in paragraphs 1 and 2 above shall not be charged against the teacher's disability and emergency leave.

G. If a teacher's attendance at summer school is required (travel time to said summer school shall not be considered as required time), he shall be released at least one week prior to the closing date of the school year without loss of pay. Said time shall be charged to the teacher's disability and emergency leave and the teacher's pay for said days shall be reduced by the amount of any compensation which he received by reason of such attendance. The total number of teachers released under this section shall not exceed five. At the option of the Superintendent and with the approval of the School Committee additional persons may be allowed time off to report for summer school.

H. A teacher covered by this Contract who is a member of a state or national reserve component shall be entitled to up to seventeen (17) days off with pay to serve with said reserve component. This leave shall not be charged against the teacher's disability or emergency leave.

I. Except in circumstances beyond his control, each teacher who has been absent shall notify his principal of his intended return by 2:30 P.M. of the day prior to said return.

ARTICLE XIV

LEAVES OF ABSENCE WITHOUT PAY

A. A married teacher on tenure covered by this Contract shall be granted a maternity leave of absence without pay or increment to become effective not later than six (6) months after the commencement of pregnancy and to terminate not more than two (2) years after the termination of pregnancy. It is necessary that the employee notify the Superintendent's office of the termination of pregnancy as soon as practicable in order that a terminal date for maternity leave can be set.

B. Military leave without pay shall be granted to any teacher who is inducted or enlists in any branch of the armed forces of the United States. Upon return from such leave, a teacher shall be placed on the salary schedule at the level which he would have achieved had he remained actively employed in the system during the period of his absence up to a maximum of four (4) years.

C. Upon his request any teacher covered by this Contract who is on tenure shall be granted a leave of absence without pay for two (2) years to work with the Peace Corps. Upon his return to the Springfield School System, his salary shall be the same as he would have received had the period of his Peace Corps service been spent in the Springfield School System.

D. Upon his request any teacher covered by this Contract who is on tenure shall be granted a leave of absence without pay for two (2) years to work with the Commonwealth or National Teacher Corps in a community other than Springfield. Upon his return to the Springfield School System his salary shall be the same as he would have received had the period of his service in the Teacher Corps been spent in the Springfield School System.

E. Any teacher on tenure covered by this Contract may, upon his written request to the School Committee, be granted an unpaid leave for the following reasons: Prolonged illness, needed rest, and necessities of the home; professional improvement when teachers are not eligible for sabbatical leaves of absence; for teaching in an acceptable school system in the United States when teachers are not selected as exchange teachers; for teaching at a United States military installation abroad; or for any other activity which would, in the opinion of the Superintendent, redound to the future benefit of the Springfield School System.

F. 1. Teachers who are in service more than fifty (50) percent of any school year shall be granted the earned increment and any special increase in accordance with the established requirements relating thereto. Ordinary periods of absence shall be included in computing amount of service. Periods of absence on leave shall not be included in such computation.

2. All benefits to which a teacher was entitled at the time his leave of absence under this Article XIV commenced, including unused accumulated sick leave, shall be restored to him upon his return, and he will be assigned to the same position which he held at the time said leave commenced; if available, or, if not, to a substantially equivalent position.

3. Leaves of absence may be extended by the School Committee. The right to increment credit and the same or a substantially equivalent position upon return from an extended leave shall be determined by the School Committee in each case.

ARTICLE XV

SABBATICAL LEAVE

Teachers covered by this Contract may, subject to the approval of the School Committee, be granted sabbatical leave of absence of one (1) year or one-half (1/2) year for study or research, subject to the following conditions:

A. Not more than two (2) percent of the teachers may be absent on sabbatical leave at any one time.

B. Application for sabbatical leave shall be submitted to the Superintendent of Schools on or before June 1 if it is to become effective in September, and on or before December 1 if it is to become effective at mid-year. A teacher requesting such leave shall submit an Application for Approval of Activities for Professional Improvement, specifying the reasons for which the leave is requested. Evaluation of each application on the basis of services rendered by the applicant and the use to be made of the requested sabbatical leave shall be the responsibility of the Evaluating Committee which shall report its findings to the Superintendent.

C. Sabbatical leave shall be granted only to teachers who have served for at least seven (7) years in the Springfield School System. A second or third such leave shall not be authorized until a teacher shall have reestablished eligibility by serving another period of seven (7) years.

D. Teachers on sabbatical leave shall receive from the School Committee fifty (50%) percent of the salaries which they would have received if they had remained on active duty.

E. The Superintendent of Schools shall require that a teacher on sabbatical leave submit a report to him concerning the manner in which his leave is being used.

F. Prior to the granting of a sabbatical leave, a teacher shall enter into written agreement with the School Committee that upon the termination of such leave, he will return to service in the Springfield School System for a period equal to twice the length of the leave and that, in default of completing such service, he shall refund to the City of Springfield an amount equal to such proportion of salary received by him while on leave as the amount of service not actually rendered as agreed bears to the whole amount of service agreed to be rendered.

G. Upon his return from sabbatical leave, a teacher's salary shall be the same as he would have received had the period of his leave been spent in the Springfield School System, and he shall be returned to the same position which he held at the time said leave commenced, if available, or, if not, to a substantially equivalent position.

ARTICLE XVI

GROUP INSURANCE AND TAX-SHELTERED ANNUITY PLANS

A. All teachers covered by this Contract shall be eligible to participate in the present Group Insurance Plan, in accordance with the provisions of said Plan in force and effect for employees of the City of Springfield, or in any comparable plan subsequently established to cover solely employees of the Springfield Public Schools.

B. Teachers shall be eligible to participate in a tax-sheltered annuity plan established pursuant to appropriate Federal, State and local law.

ARTICLE XVII

ASSOCIATION PRIVILEGES

A. After the close of school on school days, the Association shall have the right to use designated areas in school buildings for meetings of teachers provided there is no interference with any scheduled school activities. The use of such designated areas shall be arranged with the principal in advance. All requests for building use shall conform to School Committee Rules and Regulations provided, however, that there shall be no cost to the Association for such meetings so long as no overtime custodial cost to the School Committee is involved.

B. The Association may distribute materials dealing with proper and legitimate business of the Association through teachers' mail boxes.

C. The Association shall have the right to place a bulletin board space of at least nine square feet but not more than twelve square feet in area, for the purpose of posting materials dealing with proper and legitimate business of the Association. Such space shall be provided for the Association in each school for the unrestricted use of the Association. Such boards shall be placed in a well-lighted area in the office or teachers' exchange. In school buildings which do not have bulletin boards for this purpose, the Association shall have the right to install them.

D. Officers and building representatives of the Association may request, and they may be granted professional leave to attend meetings and workshops held by the Massachusetts Teachers Association and/or the National Education Association. Such leave days are not to exceed an aggregate total of thirty (30) for each school year.

E. The School Committee shall comply with any reasonable request by the Association for available information, excluding confidential personnel records, possessed by the School Committee which is relevant to the processing of any grievance by the Association or to the negotiation by the Association and the School Committee of any condition of employment.

F. The Association shall be provided with a copy of the Official Agenda of each regular School Committee meeting prior to each meeting. The Assistant Superintendent in charge of personnel shall also, the day following such meeting, provide the Association with copies of all other non-confidential materials which are relevant to this Contract, and which were distributed to the School Committee members, and which are in the possession of said Assistant Superintendent. The Association shall be provided with copies of the official minutes of each regular School Committee meeting as soon as possible after the approval of the said minutes by the School Committee.

G. Any teacher covered by this Contract and elected president of the National Education Association, president of its Department of Classroom Teachers or president of the Massachusetts Teachers Association shall, upon his written request of the School Committee, be granted an unpaid leave of absence not to exceed one (1) year in duration for the purpose of discharging the duties of such office; and, upon the Association's written request of the School Committee, an unpaid leave of absence shall be granted for every school year to one (1) teacher for the purpose of providing full-time assistance to the Association in discharging its duties as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of the teachers covered by this Contract. All time spent on every such leave shall be counted as time in the employ of the Springfield Public Schools for all purposes provided, however, that no additional emergency and disability leave shall be accumulated during said leave. Upon his return, the teacher shall be assigned to the same position which he held at the time said leave commenced, if available, or if not, to a substantially equivalent position.

H. When it is necessary, during the school year, pursuant to the grievance procedure in ARTICLE XXV of the Contract, for an Association representative to investigate a grievance during a school day he shall, upon notice to his principal or supervisor, be released therefor without pay but without charge against any leave, provided he can be released without detriment to the educational program. Any teacher whose appearance at a grievance hearing is necessary shall be released without loss of pay and without charge against any leave. The Association agrees that these rights shall not be abused.

I. No teacher shall engage in any Association activities during the time he is assigned to teaching duties.

ARTICLE XVIII

CONSULTATION PROCEDURE

A. The School Committee and the Association desire to encourage the active participation of teachers in the development and implementation of the best possible educational programs for the school children of Springfield, including State and Federal Aid Programs.

The Association shall have a standing committee which may make recommendations to the Superintendent in regard to such programs. The Superintendent or his designee shall acknowledge and review such recommendations and meet with the said standing committee to discuss them.

B. It is clearly understood and agreed that the consultation procedure described herein shall not be construed to require any party to this Contract to consent to any change, modification or reopening of this Contract.

ARTICLE XIX

CONDITIONS OF INSTRUCTION AND CURRICULUM COMMITTEES

A. Except when handled otherwise for educational purposes, emotionally disturbed and general auxiliary children shall be taught in classes separate from other pupils at the elementary school level. Existing facilities shall be expanded to provide for these children when necessary and feasible.

B. The School Committee and the Association agree that a teacher's primary function is to teach. Therefore:

1. To the extent possible, every effort will be made to limit class interruptions.

2. Except in emergency situations as determined by the principal or his designee or to provide approved special instruction, pupils shall not be taken from class.

3. Except in emergency situations, teachers shall not be required to assume any office duties in the event of absence of office personnel.

C. A teacher's marks shall not be changed arbitrarily or without valid reason. Prior to making any change, the administrator shall consult with the teacher concerned and shall explain the reasons for his action.

D. An elementary school teacher shall not be required to prepare each evaluation of a pupil more than once, unless the evaluation is unsatisfactory to the principal.

E. 1. The understandings and practices regarding the establishment and operation of all curriculum committees as set forth in the Rules and Regulations shall apply both to elementary and secondary schools for the term of this Contract.

2. So far as possible, major curriculum development and revision shall be undertaken by such committees during the summer, and every teacher agreeing to perform such work during the summer shall be paid therefor at the then current summer school rate.

ARTICLE XX

STUDENT CONTROL AND DISCIPLINE

A teacher may order removed and referred to the principal any pupil whose conduct is detrimental to the learning process in the class or whose conduct is contrary to the accepted standards of good behavior on school property. As soon as possible but not later than the end of the school day, the teacher initiating the removal shall present to the principal a written report of the incident. The principal shall inform the teacher of the disposition of the incident.

ARTICLE XXI

ACADEMIC FREEDOM

The private and personal life of any teacher is not within the appropriate concern or attention of the School Committee except as it may reflect adversely on the teacher's responsibilities and relationships with students, parents and the community within the judgment of the School Committee. The decision of the School Committee in this regard shall be subject to the grievance procedure set forth in Article XXV of this Contract.

The School Committee recognizes that children must be free to learn and teachers free to teach broad areas of knowledge in their search for truth.

ARTICLE XXII

TEXTBOOKS

A. The School Committee shall seek to provide sufficient textbooks to insure that each elementary school pupil in each spelling, English, reading and arithmetic class has a textbook for his own use at the time in which he is working in these subjects and at such times when textbooks are being used.

B. Commencing with the 1967-68 school year, appropriate pupil workbooks shall be considered as supplementary teaching aids in the elementary schools and shall be purchased as expendable supply items in each school year. The expenditure per school year for this item shall not exceed $45,000.

C. Recognizing the statutory responsibility of the School Committee for the adoption of textbooks and also the professional competence and skills of the staff in relation to textbook selection, the Association and the School Committee agree that the selection of textbooks to be used in the schools shall continue to be cooperatively arrived at through joint consultation among teachers and administrators, subject to final approval by the School Committee.

D. No textbook in active use shall be collected in secondary schools earlier than two (2) class days before the term ends.

ARTICLE XXIII

SALARIES

1. The Annual Salary Schedule set forth in Appendix A hereof applies to every teacher covered by this Contract and specifies his pay for his work year.

2. A differential of $300.00, $400.00 or $500.00 annually shall be paid to every teacher of classes for the emotionally disturbed in the same manner as to teachers of classes for the mentally retarded.

3. Pay for the additional ten (10) days in the work year of every counselor shall be 10/185th of his annual salary.

4. Every teacher employed in Springfield as of the effective date of this Contract shall, by April 1, 1969, be placed on the Salary Schedule at the step appropriate for his degree status and creditable years of experience. The manner of accomplishing this result is set forth in Appendix A.

5. Upon employment in Springfield, subsequent to the effective date of this Contract, every teacher shall be placed on the Salary Schedule at the step appropriate for his:

(a) Degree status; and

(b) Years of teaching or other acceptable experience, provided, however, that intermittent substitute teaching shall not be credited as experience.

It is agreed that no such new teacher shall receive a higher salary than any presently employed teacher with equal experience and training.

6. The rates of pay for teachers' work performed beyond their work day or in the summer school or evening school program are set forth in Appendix A.

7. It shall not be the policy of the Springfield School Committee to require teachers to use their preparation time to substitute for other teachers. The School Committee will make every reasonable effort to provide substitutes. In situations where substitutes are necessary but not available, the principal may assign a teacher to use his preparation period for substituting. Such requests shall be distributed equitably among all the teachers in each school during the school year.

8. Every teacher required as a condition of his employment to participate in or conduct special course, workshops or orientations outside his work day or work year shall receive additional compensation therefor at his regular daily rate of pay or portion thereof except as otherwise provided for in this Contract.

9. If any new position, other than those specified in Article I of this Contract, be established within the bargaining unit covered by this Contract, the School Committee shall negotiate with the Association regarding the wages, hours and conditions of employment for said position.

10. No teacher covered by this Contract shall be employed unless certified by the Massachusetts Department of Education or granted a waiver by the State Department of Education.

11. Each year the School Committee shall make an annual survey of teachers' salaries, a copy of which shall be made available to the Association on or before November 15.

12. The School Committee will make every effort to implement the following method of salary payment: salary payments to all teachers shall be made bi-weekly, the first payment to be made on the third Friday of the school year.

Teachers may elect to receive salary payments in either twenty (20) or twenty-six (26) installments, such election to be made by the end of the first week of the school year. Teachers electing twenty-six (26) payments shall also elect to collect, under one of the following two plans, the installments unpaid at the close of the school year:

(a) Full payment at the close of the school year;

(b) Six (6) bi-weekly payments beginning at the close of the school year.

Whenever school shall not be in session on a Friday payday, the school day next prior to such Friday shall be the payday. This provision is not subject to the grievance procedure.

13. In every case where, at least twelve (12) months prior to his retirement, a teacher notifies, in writing, the School Committee and the Retirement Board of his intention to retire, at a date at least twelve (12) months from the date of such notification, and if, such teacher will have been a teacher for twenty (20) years at the time of his retirement, such teacher shall, during the last twelve (12) months of his employment, be compensated at the maximum rate established within his wage classification bracket in effect at the time of such notification; provided, that such teacher has been, at the time of such notification, within his current classification, for at least two (2) years immediately preceding the date of such notification.

DEDUCTIONS

The School Committee shall provide that, whenever duly authorized by any teacher on a form or forms approved by the Committee, payroll deductions on behalf of such teacher shall be made every payday and paid over in accordance with such forms or forms for any or all of the following purposes:

(1) Purchase of United States Savings Bonds,

(2) Donations to Pioneer Valley United Fund,

(3) Local, State and National Association dues,

(4) Premiums under Washington National Insurance Company group insurance contract,

(5) Premiums under City of Springfield Employees' Group Insurance Program,

(6) Payments to Springfield Teachers Credit Union, and

(7) Premiums under any annuity contract purchased for the teacher by the Committee.

ARTICLE XXV

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

A. The purpose of the procedure set forth hereinafter is to produce prompt equitable solutions to those problems which from time to time may arise and affect the conditions of employment of the teachers covered by this Contract. The School Committee and the Association desire that such procedure shall always be as informal and confidential as may be appropriate for the grievance involved at the procedural level involved.

LEVEL ONE: The aggrieved teacher and a member of the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Association shall present the grievance orally to the principal or immediate supervisor of the employee.

LEVEL TWO: If at the end of the ten (10) days next following such presentation the grievance shall not have been disposed of to the teacher's satisfaction, the teacher may, within five (5) days thereafter, file with the President of the Association and the Chairman of its Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee a written statement of the grievance. Within five (5) days thereafter, such statement shall be reviewed with the teacher by the said President or Chairman, and if after such review the teacher shall so desire, the grievance shall on the next following school day be presented in writing by the teacher and the said President or Chairman to the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel. The Assistant Superintendent for Personnel shall within ten (10) days thereafter, meet with the teacher and the said President or Chairman in an effort to settle the grievance.

LEVEL THREE: If at the end of the twenty (20) days next following such meeting with the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel, the grievance shall not have been disposed of to the teacher's satisfaction, the teacher may within five (5) days thereafter, notify the said President and Chairman in writing of the teacher's desire to have the grievance presented to the appropriate Assistant Superintendent who is in charge of the division where the alleged grievance arose; and, within five (5) days following receipt of any such notice, the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Association shall meet with the said President and teacher to decide whether or not the Association shall present the grievance to the appropriate Assistant Superintendent who is in charge of the division where the alleged grievance arose. If the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee shall so vote, the grievance shall forthwith be presented in writing by the Association to the appropriate Assistant Superintendent who is in charge of the division where the alleged grievance arose; and within ten (10) days thereafter the appropriate Assistant Superintendent who is in charge of the division where the alleged grievance arose shall meet with the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee, the said President, and the teacher in an effort to settle the grievance.

LEVEL FOUR: If at the end of the twenty-five (25) days next following presentation of the grievance in writing to the appropriate Assistant Superintendent who is in charge of the division where the alleged grievance arose, the grievance shall not have been disposed of to the satisfaction of the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Association, and if the grievance shall involve the interpretation or application of any provision of this Contract, the Association may, by giving written notice to the school Committee within the ten (10) days next following conclusion of such period of twenty-five (25) days, present the grievance for arbitration; in which event the School Committee and the Association shall forthwith submit the grievance to the American Arbitration Association for disposition in accordance with the applicable rules of the said American Arbitration Association. The arbitrator shall hold hearings promptly and, unless the time shall be extended by mutual agreement, shall issue his award not later than thirty (30) days from the date of the closing of the hearings or, if oral hearings have been waived, from the date of submission to him of the final statements and proofs. The arbitrator's award shall be in writing and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions. The arbitrator shall be without power or authority to make any award which requires the commission of an act prohibited by law or which is inconsistent with any provision of this Contract or with the Rules and Regulations of the Springfield School Committee as amended by this Contract. The award of the arbitrator shall be submitted to the School Committee and the Association and, subject to law, shall be final and binding upon the School Committee, the Association and the aggrieved teacher. The expenses for such arbitrators' fees shall be shared equally by the School Committee and the Association.

B. If at the end of the ten (10) days next following ing either the occurrence of any grievance or the date of first knowledge of its occurrence by any teacher affected by it, whichever is later, the grievance shall not have been presented at Level One of the procedure set forth in Paragraph A above, the grievance shall be deemed to have been waived. Furthermore, any grievance in process under such procedure shall also be deemed to have been waived if the action required to process the said grievance within a level or to present it to the next level in the procedure shall not have been taken within the time specified therefor in Paragraph A above.

C. Any teacher covered by this Contract may, at Level One and Level Two of the procedure set forth in Paragraph A above, present individually his grievance without representation by the Association; provided, however, that if any grievance so presented shall involve the interpretation or application of any provision of this Contract, the Association shall be given timely written notice of the grievance's presentation and shall be heard on the grievance before its disposition if the Association shall, within the five (5) days next following receipt of such notice, advise the Superintendent or Assistant Superintendent for Personnel of its desire so to be heard.

D. No written communication, other document, or record relating to any grievance shall be filed in the personnel file maintained by the School Department of the City of Springfield for any teacher involved in presenting such grievance.

ARTICLE XXVI

STRIKES

During the term of this Contract the Association shall not cause or sponsor, and no professional employee shall cause or participate in any strike or work stoppage. If the Association disclaims in writing to the School Committee responsibility for any act prohibited hereby, it shall not be liable in any way therefor. Employees who participate in any such act may be disciplined or discharged without recourse to arbitration, provided, however, that the question of their participation shall itself be subject to the grievance and arbitration procedure.

ARTICLE XXVII

TOTALITY OF AGREEMENT

This Contract incorporates the entire understanding of the parties on all issues which were or could have been the subject of negotiation.

GENERAL

A. If any provision of this Contract or any application of this Contract to any teacher or group of teachers shall be found contrary to law, then such provision or application shall not be deemed valid and subsisting, except to the extent permitted by law, but all other provisions or applications shall continue in full force and effect.

B. This Contract constitutes School Committee policy for the term of said Contract, and the School Committee shall carry out the commitments contained herein and give them full force and effect as School Committee policy. The School Committee shall amend its regulations and take such other action as may be necessary in order to give full force and effect to the provisions of this Contract.

ARTICLE XXIX

DURATION

This Contract shall be effective as of 1967, and shall continue and remain in full force and effect until August 31, 1969. The parties agree that, not later than November 15, 1968, they shall enter into negotiations for a successor contract to become effective as of September 1, 1969.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals this day of , 1967.

No new teacher shall be hired for the 1968-69 school year at a salary higher than the salary of any other teacher who has equivalent training and experience.

b. Increments

1. Salary increments of any kind are not automatic. They are granted only when there has been a continuation of a high standard of teaching or a demonstrated improvement in efficiency of service.

2. The earned increment for teachers who have completed their first year of teaching will be $250. The earned increment for teachers who have completed their second year of teaching will be $300. The earned increment for teachers with more than two creditable years of teaching experience will be $350 with no salary to exceed the maximum for its training level.

3. After September 1, 1967 the service maximum will apply to all teachers who have served in the Springfield Public Schools for at least eleven years and whose salaries are closer to the regular maximum than to any other step on the salary schedule.

2. INEQUITIES

As of April 1, 1969 all teachers will receive the salary which is indicated for their training and experience on the salary schedule. The above result will be accomplished by means of three equal salary adjustments to become effective September 1, 1967, September 1, 1968 and April 1, 1969.

3. OTHER SALARY SCHEDULES

a. Athletic Coaches

As of September 1, 1967, the coaching salaries as listed on page 117 of the Rules and Regulations of the Springfield School Committee shall be increased 5%.

b. Summer School

Summer of 1967 - $135 per week.

c. Evening School

As of September 1, 1967 - $5.25 per hour for day school teachers on tenure and for teachers with two or more years of evening school experience; $4.75 per hour during the second year of teaching evening school; $4.25 per hour during the first year of teaching evening school.

BEFORE THE

PUBLIC AND SCHOOL EMPLOYEES GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE STUDY COMMISSION
Trenton, New Jersey
Thursday, April 6, 1967

Our remarks to you today are predicated upon the premise that we were invited to appear before this Commission on the ground that our experience with collective negotiations by public employees has caused us to acquire a degree of expertise in respect to the matters which are your concern. We appear before you today in the spirit of your invitation--on our own time, without compensation--not as advocates but with the hope that the lessons we have learned will be of help to you.

We are both lawyers with backgrounds in government service, sitting as arbitrators, and practicing labor relations law for a wide variety of clients in the private sector. During the past four and a half years our firm has numbered among its clients the National Education Association and its state and local affiliates such as the New Jersey Education Association and the Newark Teachers Association. We have, accordingly, acquired substantial experience in dealing with a wide range of problems related to collective negotiations between boards of education and teacher associations.

We have been involved in teacher representation elections in New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Colorado and Washington. We have participated, directly or indirectly, in the negotiation of hundreds of collective agreements between boards of education and teacher associations governing salaries, working conditions, and other matters of mutual concern. Where school boards and teacher associations have been unable to resolve their differences at the bargaining table, we have observed first hand the operation of a multiplicity of techniques for resolving such impasses, i.e., strikes, sanctions, mediation, fact-finding with advisory recommendations, and ad hoc binding arbitration.

We do not propose to spend time arguing (a) the reasons why public employees should be legislatively guaranteed the right to join or refrain from joining employee organizations of their own choosing for the purpose of negotiations with their employers over salaries, terms and conditions of employment, and related matters which affect their working environment, (b) the importance of establishing orderly procedures for resolving questions of representation, or (c) the necessity for requiring public employers to negotiate in good faith with the organizational representatives of their employees. The evidence on these points is overwhelming and is as well known to you as it is to us.

Instead, we shall focus our comments on the following matters:

1. The desirability of establishing a separate administrative agency for dealing with collective negotiations in the public sector.

2. The wisdom of treating the problems of public elementary and secondary school teachers and faculty members in public higher education different from other types of classifications of public employees.

3. The functions of a public employment relations board.

4. The importance of having legislation which gives the parties maximum opportunity to develop effective and meaningful procedures for bilateral decision-making which are not patterned after the industrial relations model.

5. The necessity for developing machinery for averting or resolving impasses.

1. A Separate Board for Public Employees is Essential.

New Jersey, New York and Illinois are the only states, to our knowledge, which have had the wisdom to establish expert task forces to study in depth the problems involved in collective negotiations by public employees before enacting legislation. It is noteworthy that both Governor Rockefeller's Committee on Public Employee Relations in New York and Governor Kerner's Advisory Commission on Labor Management Policy for Public Employees in Illinois urged, after intensive study, that the administration of any statute establishing collective negotiations for public employees should be vested in a separate public employee relations board. The Illinois legislature has not yet acted on the recommendations of Governor Kerner's Commission. However, the New York legislature, just four days ago, passed a statute adopting the basic recommendations of Governor Rockefeller's Committee establishing a separate Public Employment Relations Board.

It is pertinent to note that two distinguished New Jerseyans, David Cole, former Chairman of the New Jersey State Mediation Board and Frederick H. Harbison, present Chairman of the Board were members of Governor Rockefeller's Committee and joined their three colleagues in unanimously urging establishment of such a Board.

Other states, such as Massachusetts, Michigan and Wisconsin enacted legislation establishing collective negotiations for a broad category of public employees. The statutes in these states call for administration by the same agency that handles collective bargaining in the private sector. In none of these cases was the enactment of legislation preceded by a careful, expert study of the matter. It is reasonable to suppose that the gubernatorial committees in New York and Illinois were influenced by the experience in Massachusetts, Michigan and Wisconsin in recommending the establishment of a separate administrative agency.

It is significant that July 29 of last year, Governor Romney of Michigan, alarmed by the number of public employee strikes (primarily in education) that had occurred during the first year's operation of the Michigan statute, appointed an Advisory Committee on Public Employee Relations to study the problem and recommend changes needed in order to make the statute function more effectively. This committee in its report of February 15, 1967 urged, among other things, that fact-finding should be taken away from the Michigan State Labor Mediation Board and given to a separate Public Employment Relations Panel. The Committee reasoned that the designation of a separate panel would enhance the prestige and increase the effectiveness of the fact-finders, would assure the availability of competent persons to serve the fact-finding function, and would build up a body of experience which would be useful in view of the unique aspects of public employee relations.

It may be that Michigan, having learned the hard way, will now move in the direction which those who have studied this problem seem to agree is sound.

There are two fundamental reasons why a separate statute, separately administered, is desirable.

A. There are basic economic and political differences between public and private employment which impel separate treatment.

While experience in the private sector can be useful, the analogies have limited application. Employer-employee relations in the public sector differ in major respects:

1. An essential ingredient of the collective bargaining process in the private sector is the right to strike or lockout.

2. In private collective bargaining, the management representative must have the power to make binding commitments and the power to carry them out. Without such authority on the part of management, bargaining is an illusory exercise.

3. Most governmental agencies do not have authority to determine the extent of their budget. They are therefore unable to make binding commitments as to salaries until funds are appropriated.

4. Bargaining in the public sector to be most effective must therefore precede the adoption of the budget.

5. Some conditions of public employment, such as retirement and tenure, are now determined by legislation. The degree and quality of protection provided in this arena is thus determined by political rather than economic factors.

Governor Kerner's Advisory Commission in Illinois put the point as follows:

"In private industry, decisions about these matters [the standards used to determine how extensively and at what level of quality services are to be performed] are generally influenced by market forces; in public agencies, these services are generally supplied 'free of price' and are determined by political processes in which legislative bodies decide how much revenue can be raised and how it is to be allocated among many competing demands. These factors make the determination of employment conditions in public agencies different from that followed in private industry."1/

B. The forms and procedures for collective bargaining in the private sector do not provide a monolithic model for public employment.

Governor Rockefeller's Committee made the point as follows:

"[Public] employees have, in the past and present, carried on their collective participation and joint negotiations in a great variety of ways and have chosen various types of employee organizations to represent them. There is no a priori reason to assume, therefore, that their future choices would not also be diverse. We cannot assume that employees, if given free choice, would support the development of any single pattern of participation or any single type of employee organization utilizing any single model of collective negotiations. Indeed the opposite assumption would appear more reasonable.

"Sufficient flexibility should be provided so that the lessons of experience in this area of public employment, so uncharted in many of its aspects, can be brought to bear upon the pattern of arrangements which ultimately develops. The door should not be closed on any arrangement which may prove effective and mutually acceptable."2/

Summarizing its conclusions, the Committee stated:

"Despite many complexities, we believe it is both feasible and desirable to develop a system of effective collective negotiation in the public service. This can be achieved in a manner which is consonant with the orderly functioning of a democratic government. It cannot be achieved by transferring collective bargaining as practiced in the private enterprise sector into the governmental sector. New procedures have to be created. In subsequent sections of this report, recommendations are made as to some of the ways and means by which collective negotiation in the public service can be soundly developed."3/

2. A Strong Case Can Also Be Made For Separate Statutory And Administrative Treatment of Education, Including Higher Education.

Five states (California, Connecticut, Oregon, Rhode Island, and Washington) have enacted separate statutes regulating teacher-school board relations.

The case for separate treatment rests on the proposition that teachers, by reason of their education and traditions, have an interest, not shared by other public employees, in the quality of the service provided by the enterprise of which they are a part.

The point can be made by discussing the scope of negotiations, that is, the subject matter in respect to which the parties are required to negotiate.

The typical collective bargaining statute defines the mandatory area of bargaining as "wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment." On the other hand, S-220, which is being supported by the New Jersey Education Association, defines the scope of bargaining as "the terms and conditions under which professional educators serve and other matters of mutual concern."

The difference in these definitions reflects the fact that the teacher, having committed himself to a career of socially valuable service and invested years in preparation therefor (and years of service and perhaps postgraduate study after original hire), has a special identification with the standards of his "practice" and the quality of service provided to his "clientele." This special identification has been manifest in virtually all school board-teacher negotiations in which we have been involved.

Thus, in the Newark negotiations in 1966 the teacher Association based its case for a higher salary schedule on the ground that such increases were necessary in order for Newark to compete effectively in the marketplace in recruiting high quality teachers, diminish the loss of experienced teachers, and reduce the number of sub-standard teachers--thereby improving the quality of the educational program. The arguments made and the supporting data presented fully supported the validity of the position.

1/ Report and recommendations of Illinois Governor's Advisory Commission on Labor Management Policy for Public Employees, Government Employees Relations Report No. 184, D-1, March 20, 1967 (Bureau of National Affairs, Inc.) [See Negotiation Research Digest, May 1967.]

This is not to say that the Newark teachers were totally altruistic. It is to say that there was a blending of self-concern and "professional" concern which is not characteristic of collective bargaining in the private sector.

Perhaps more to the point, the Newark Teachers Association in the 1967 negotiations insisted on better procedures for dealing with disturbed children who need specialized attention if they are to become educable and whose disruptive presence in the classroom makes effective teaching of and learning by other children difficult, if not impossible.

Characteristically teacher associations also press in negotiations for the employment of specialists, e.g., psychologists, speech therapists, remedial reading teachers and other personnel specially trained to improve the quality of educational service being given to children who are "different," i.e., disadvantaged or gifted. The agreement in New Haven, Connecticut, for instance, calls for the employment of at least one hundred new members of the professional staff to improve the quality of service in such areas as music, art, guidance counselling, and teaching non-English speaking students.

In the recently concluded negotiations in Quincy, Massachusetts, one of the major proposals of the teacher association was that every school building with more than three hundred pupils should have a library so that supplementary reading materials would be readily available. The Quincy teachers also pushed hard for (and obtained) a contract provision guaranteeing their right to participate jointly in the development of curriculum content, teaching methods, aids and materials, educational facilities, and design and equipment of new and remodeled school construction.

Last Fall the Association for Higher Education, the college and university arm of the National Education Association, set up an independent Task Force on Faculty Representation and Academic Negotiations, charged with the responsibility for studying and recommending improved methods for greater participation by college and university faculty members in campus decision-making. The Task Force consists of six distinguished faculty members in higher education under the chairmanship of Dr. Arnold Weber, Professor of Industrial Relations at the University of Chicago. This Task Force, which we have been privileged to serve as counsel, has recommended that university and college faculty members should share authority with school administrators in decision-making in respect to such matters as curriculum, degree requirements, admissions policies, educational objectives and development of the institution, rules governing student behavior, and the appointment of administrative officers.

In the private sector and in other parts of the public sector proposals which would involve employees in decision-making in respect to the type and nature of the product produced or the service provided would be regarded as non-bargainable on the ground that they exceeded the scope of legitimate employee concern and intruded into the area of management prerogatives. Thus, statutes governing such negotiations restrict the scope of mandatory bargaining to "Wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment."

However, such a definition applied to teacher negotiations makes mischief. Teachers will continue to assert their claim of special competence to participate in decision-making over educational programs and services. School boards, on the other hand, will be encouraged to resist such assertions on the ground that such matters are non-bargainable management prerogatives. In Michigan, Massachusetts, and Wisconsin, where the statutes circumscribe the scope of bargaining in orthodox collective bargaining terms, serious "hang-ups" over the question of the bargainability of teacher proposals stalled negotiations in many instances and exacerbated situations which might otherwise not have been difficult.

Furthermore, it is socially desirable for teachers to participate in decision-making in respect to educational programs and services. Their special knowledge and competence as educational practitioners should, when blended with the "lay" perspective of the school board, produce better policy decisions.

The best way to accommodate this basic difference between teacher negotiations and other types of negotiations is to avoid prior restraints on the scope of bargaining by treating teachers separately and adopting the broad definition contained in S-220.

The case for dealing specially with the problems of public elementary, secondary and higher education is strong. Indeed, the very title of this Commission recognizes the validity of distinguishing between teachers and other categories of public employees. An alternative to creating a separate statute and a separate agency in recognition of this distinction would be to establish a Public Employee Relations Board with separate divisions such as: (1) Police and firemen, (2) health and welfare services, (3) transit, (4) education, (5) public utilities. The Board would be authorized to promulgate rules in respect to the scope of negotiations tailored to fit the realities and traditions of each category.

3. Functions of a Public Employment Relations Board.

If there is a bona fide question of which organization, if any, is supported by a majority of the employees and the parties are therefore unable to settle the matter by agreement, the Board should resolve the question on the basis of signed petitions, membership cards, dues deduction authorizations, or other evidence. If necessary, the Board should conduct an election.

The Board should also be empowered to maintain a roster of arbitrators to hear and determine issues relating to grievances involving interpretation or application of the Agreement and to issue final and binding awards in such matters.

Finally, the Board should assist in the resolution of disputes over contract terms by mediation and, when mediation fails, by resorting to the techniques of fact-finding in order to resolve the dispute.

4. Legislation Should Not Inhibit the Parties From Developing Procedures for Bilateral Decision-Making Which Are Not Patterned After the Industrial Relations Model.

Satisfactory collective relationships between public employers and public employees do not necessarily require the structured negotiation of formal contracts hammered out in a crisis context. As Governor Rockefeller's Committee pointed out, "With proper organization and attitudes on both sides, collective negotiation can develop into a creative process of joint consultation, fact-finding and research."[4/] There are several examples of such experimentation in the private sector: the Armour Automation Committee, the Human Relations Committee in the basic steel industry, and the Long Range Committee in the Kaiser Steel Company. Such arrangements permit the parties to study and resolve issues in the absence of a crisis and thus to avoid critical impasses.

4/ Governor's Committee on Public Employee Relations, Final Report, State of New York, March 31, 1966, p. 53.

The Armour Automation Committee, of which Mr. Livingston is a member and which provides for continuous dialogue in respect to matters of mutual interest, has created a climate of constructive problem-solving which made it possible to renegotiate their collective agreement six months early without fanfare or crisis.

To give an example in the public sector, the teachers' contract in Quincy, Massachusetts establishes a Joint Professional Conditions Committee which meets periodically to consider all matters related to the conditions under which teachers teach and children learn, e.g., teaching loads, the employment of teacher aides to give teachers more "time to teach", the development of a contract year for teachers different from the school year for pupils, the development of better criteria and techniques for measuring teacher performance, and the more effective use of classroom teachers who qualify, in performance terms, as superior.

New Jersey could provide leadership for the nation by asserting the desirability of such arrangements and procedures for continuous dialogue. There are presently many examples of such relationships in New Jersey. Surely, it would be undesirable to force school boards and teacher representatives who desire to improve their relationships and establish different procedures for bilateral decision-making into the adversary mold which typically characterizes collective bargaining in the private sector.

5. Impasse Machinery for Resolving Disputes Over Contract Terms.

Impasse machinery is a line of reserve power for parties who have not as yet developed the kind of mature relationship described above.

One of the functions of the administrative agency should be to establish general criteria and yardsticks for the determination of disputes over contract terms. Through the issuance of general guidelines and also by the process of deciding individual disputes, the agency would establish rules to guide the parties in conducting negotiations. For example, teacher salary matters are frequently decided by comparison with other communities and by a decision as to where one community should rank, with others, considering its wealth and ability to pay, its social needs, and other relevant factors. Guidance on these matters would often make resolution of the specifics of the salary increase much easier.

A second function of the administrative agency would be to promulgate rules as to the time limits within which statutory procedures of mediation and fact-finding would have to be instituted and completed, keeping in mind budget submission deadlines.

A third function would be to collect, study, analyze and make available data relating to wages, benefits and employment practices in public and private employment.

Fourthly, the administrative agency should have a panel of mediators to assist the parties in reaching peaceful settlements of disputes through negotiations. While we agree generally that mediation is more effective where both the employer and the employee organization have requested it, the stakes in the public sector are such that the agency should not hesitate to send an uninvited mediator into a dispute where a crisis is developing.

The importance of the mediation function cannot be overstated. A mediator can be a catalyst for resolving disputes. Furthermore, particularly where the parties are inexperienced, he can perform the important function of guiding them and causing them to evaluate their proposals and positions realistically.

The experience of Newark affords a dramatic case history of the effectiveness of third-party intervention in averting or resolving impasses over contract terms. In 1966, negotiations between the School Board and the teacher association broke down and erupted in a strike which was not settled until both parties agreed to submit the dispute to a fact-finder empowered to make recommendations. We are firmly of the opinion that this strike would not have occurred if a public employment relations board had been in existence.

By contrast, the Newark negotiations early this year were settled peacefully because the Acting Commissioner of Education effectively intervened when the parties reached an impasse by appointing Dr. Buell Gallagher, President of the City College of New York, to act as mediator. Dr. Gallagher brought the parties together after three meetings.

The experience with Dr. Gallagher also underlines the wisdom of using a mediator with expertise in the personnel problems of public education. By reason of his working familiarity with the problems generated when salary schedules are not uniformly applied and his ability to "read" a school budget, Dr. Gallagher was able to gain a complete understanding of the issues quickly and to instill in both parties confidence, not only in his integrity, but also in the fact that he knew what he was talking about.

Fifthly, if mediation has not produced a settlement within a prescribed number of days prior to the effective budget submission deadline, the administrative agency should appoint a fact-finding board empowered to hold hearings and make non-binding recommendations as to the terms of an equitable settlement. The recommendations would first be made to the parties privately and would typically provide a framework for settlement without attempting to prescribe the total and exact terms of agreement. The wisdom of this approach is recognized in the newly-enacted New York statute.

This was the technique used last month by the fact-finder in a teacher salary dispute in Huntington, New York. The recommendations supplied a framework within which variations could be worked out by the parties within twenty-four hours after receipt of the recommendations.

The fact-finding board would retain jurisdiction for a specified period of time during which the parties, failing to reach a complete agreement, might return to the board for further recommendations of a more specific nature covering matters still in dispute.

If the parties have not reached agreement within the specified period, the fact-finding board would then hold an additional hearing and make public recommendations, including in their findings a judgment of the relative culpability of the parties for the continuation of the dispute. The utility of the fact-finding procedure was well expressed by Governor Rockefeller's Committee:

> "Fact-finding requires the parties to gather objective information and to present arguments with references to these data. An unsubstantiated or extreme demand from either party tends to lose its force and status in this forum. The fact-finding report and recommendations provide a basis to inform and to crystallize thoughtful public opinion and news media comment. Such reports and recommendations have a special relevance when the public's business is involved. The public has a special right to be informed on the issues, contentions and merits of disputes involving public employees."[5]

6. Need For Training in Development of Sound Personnel And Employee Relations in the Public Sector.

One of the principal factors that has led to breakdowns in negotiations, early impasses and strikes in public employment is the lack of sophistication and skill on both sides of the bargaining table. The public employment relations board should, as part of its effort to facilitate peaceful settlement of disputes, take the lead in arranging for adequate programs to educate representatives of both parties, improve their understanding of the realities of bargaining in the public sector, and sharpen their ability to deal with each other effectively. For example, universities with faculties expert in these matters should be encouraged to assist public employers and public employer organizations to develop necessary skills and knowledge by means of institutes and extension courses.

Another important function which the Board could and should undertake is to encourage public employers to organize themselves so that they are able to develop more effective employee relations and personnel policies. As Governor Rockefeller's Committee pointed out, there is as yet no counterpart in state and local government to the vice president of industrial relations in private industry. Instead, "municipal and state governments, chief executives, budget directors, department heads, and hard-pressed school boards normally must manage as best they can without competent full time staff advice and assistance in employee relations. Thus, when suddenly faced with demands from an employee organization, they must improvise measures to deal with crisis situations. Often they are uncertain of their authority, unaware of precedents established in other departments or agencies, and unable to call in qualified advisors to help them formulate sound positions. In other words, the organization for effective employee relations is usually under-developed in the government service. The building of more effective organization is thus absolutely essential in order to cope with the mounting pressure of employee organizations for a voice in determining their wages and other conditions of employment."[5]

CONCLUSION

It should be recognized that no legislation can provide a foolproof guarantee against employee strikes. If public employees feel sufficiently aggrieved and have no effective forum in which they can air those grievances, they will strike regardless of the personal risks involved. Therefore, the primary emphasis in legislation establishing collective negotiations in the public sector should be the development of constructive personnel policies and procedures for resolving or preventing disputes. If this is done, the possibility of strikes by public employees will be substantially minimized.

Description and Analysis

BARGAINING UNIT DECISION IN ALPENA, MICHIGAN

Case

When a school system is organized on a kindergarten through community college basis and employs about 350 professional personnel, can 37 teachers in the community college separate themselves from the previously established bargaining unit comprising all the nonsupervisory and administrative personnel in the system and establish their own bargaining unit? No, said the Michigan Labor Mediation Board in the decision rendered on the matter in May 1967.

The Alpena Community College District, Michigan Association of Higher Education, wished to become representatives for the 37 community college teachers in the Alpena Public Schools. The community college teachers were a part of and were represented by the Alpena Segment of the Alpena-Alcona Education Association (NEA). In denying the petition, the Board cited the following as some of the bases for their decision:

1. The teachers in the community college as well as the elementary and secondary teachers were part of the same school system utilizing some of the same administrative staff and some of the same physical plant.

2. Although the certification requirements for the teaching position were different, the basic function of teaching students was the same.

3. The qualifications of many of the teachers were similar, regardless of level taught; the same salary schedule being used for all teachers.

4. Previous decisions of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board.

Implications

This case should be considered along with the Grand Rapids case (Negotiation Research Digest, Issue No. 1, April 1967, C-1) for its implications. Although the Grand Rapids case was basically to determine if teachers of grades K-12 could be divided into two bargaining groups, there was an agreement between the two parties in the case that the community college teachers were to have their own bargaining unit.

KENOSHA, WISCONSIN, "CONVENTION DAYS" CASE

The Kenosha Education Association (NEA) was determined to be the exclusive representative of the teachers in the Kenosha Public Schools after an election victory over the Kenosha Teachers Union (AFL-CIO). Practice in Wisconsin had been to have both the Wisconsin Education Association (NEA) and the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) conventions on the same two days in November.

Shortly after the Kenosha school calendar for 1966-67 was adopted by the school board and agreed to by the Kenosha Education Association, the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers changed its convention date. The school board adopted a resolution which indicated that anyone attending a teachers' convention at a time other than the one established in the calendar would be docked for the days not taught.

The text of the case beginning on page C-4 provides the majority and dissenting opinions of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission in denying the allegations of the Kenosha Teachers Union; these allegations included the utilization of unfair labor practices by the school board, improper interpretation of the applicable Wisconsin statutes, and discrimination against a minority organization.

Several other similar cases were taken to the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission by other locals of the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers. The Kenosha case provided in Section C of this issue served as the basis of the decisions in the other cases.

INFORMATION AVAILABLE FROM NEA DEPOSITORY OF NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS

The 1,540 negotiation agreements as indicated on page B-3 are on file in the NEA Research Division depository of agreements. Information from that depository is available to subscribers upon request. Agreements or provisions from agreements will be copied; none will be loaned. Requests must be specific, i.e., specific items must be requested from specific agreements, or full texts of specific agreements must be requested.

The NEA Research Division will not be able to comply with requests that require value judgments, e.g., "Please furnish copies of the five best provisions from agreements relating to ...."

Speediest service can be provided if the NEA Research Division publication, Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition ($15, Stock #841-24006), is consulted for agreement names and content. A copy of the publication is available in each NEA Regional Office and each state education association headquarters.

A handling charge of $2 should accompany requests for depository information; the charge provides up to 15 pages of copied material. Additional pages of material are 10¢ each; bills will be sent if necessary. Requests for depository information should be directed to the NEA Research Division.

CONTENT OF FUTURE ISSUES

The following selected items will be published in future issues of the Negotiation Research Digest:

- Data on the person(s) or group(s) representing the school board during negotiation sessions.
- An analysis of the various types of impasse resolution procedures.
- Text of the Wisconsin Supreme Court decision on the Muskego-Norway School District case.
- Listings of agreements with specific content provisions.
- Excerpts from California court cases involving the Winton Act, the statute allowing negotiation in the state.

Data and Statistics

FIVE TYPES OF NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS

The analysis of the negotiation agreements which were filed in the NEA depository of agreements for 1966-67 has provided not only the content material for Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition, but also Tables A-1 and A-2 below. These tables give data on the numbers and types of agreements in each state and the number of personnel represented.

For the purposes of these tables, and for classification in Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition, the agreements have been grouped into five basic categories: (a) Some agreements do not recognize organizations for negotiation purposes and utilize some other type of negotiation procedure. (b) Some agreements provide only for recognition of an organization as representing the teachers or professional staff or other designated group of employees (called Level I agreements). (c) Agreements which contain recognition (Level I) and negotiation procedures are designated Level II. (d) When impasse resolution procedures are added, the agreement is referred to as a Level III agreement. (e) One additional type of agreement exists and may be referred to by a number of designations. It may be called a Level IV agreement, a comprehensive agreement, or substantive agreement. This variety of agreement may or may not include impasse resolution procedures, but will contain in addition to the recognition and negotiation procedures such features as a salary schedule, leave policies, and other negotiated items relating to personnel and conditions of employment often found in personnel handbooks or school system policies.

For 1966-67 the NEA Research Division depository of agreements contains 1,540 agreements from 1,531 school systems. The additional nine agreements were obtained from school systems which filed more than one agreement; for example, in Winchester, Massachusetts, one agreement was filed for the Winchester Teachers Association and another agreement was filed for the Winchester Principals Group. Each group negotiates separately with the school board.

NUMBER OF PERSONNEL REPRESENTED BY TYPE OF AGREEMENT

The September 1967 (Vol. 1, No. 1) issue of the Negotiation Research Digest carried final data from the 1966-67 survey of written negotiation procedures relating to the number of personnel employed in school systems with negotiation agreements. Those data were presented on a state-by-state basis and by enrollment strata. No indication was given at that time as to the types of agreements in affect in the various states.

Table A-1 provides data on a state-by-state basis, as well as by enrollment strata, of the number of personnel represented, by type of agreement.

Stratum	School system enrollment
1	100,000 or more
2	50,000-99,999
3	25,000-49,999
4	12,000-24,999
5	6,000-11,999
6	3,000- 5,999
7	1,200- 2,999

TYPES OF AGREEMENTS

Table A-2 presents data comparable to those in Table A-1 except that rather than showing the number of personnel represented by each type of agreement, Table A-2 shows the number of agreements of each type which were filed for 1966-67.

FURTHER INFORMATION

A listing of each agreement, by state and type, is provided in Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition, published by the NEA Research Division. A copy of the volume is available at each NEA Regional Office and at least one copy may be found in each state education association headquarters. Copies may still be available at $15 each from NEA Publications Sales.

NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS IN SCHOOL SYSTEMS WITH ENROLLMENTS OF 6,000 TO 11,999

The listing of school systems with enrollments of from 6,000 to 11,999 (Stratum 5) below, provides information on the existence of written procedures between the various school boards and organizations of the teaching profession. Information listed is for the 1966-67 school year, as provided to the NEA Research Division by the school system administrative offices by June 20, 1967. Data for school systems with enrollments of 12,000 or more were published in the October issue.

Established policy required a completed questionnaire and a copy of the written negotiation procedures on file in the NEA Research Division depository of agreements before a local school system could be considered to have written negotiation procedures.

Every effort was made to obtain responses which were as current and as nearly complete as possible. Changes for individual school systems will be reflected in a future survey.

The information provided for each school system is as follows: whether or not written negotiation procedures exist in the system, the recognized organization(s), the national affiliation of the recognized organization(s), and the number of organizational representatives on the negotiating team. Should the system not have exclusive representation by one organization, the following abbreviations were used to indicate the type of negotiation in effect:

JNE: Joint negotiating council with an equal number of representatives from each recognized organization.

JNP: Joint negotiating council with representation proportional to the number of staff members represented by each recognized organization. California law requires this procedure be used in situations where more than one organization seeks representation rights.

NR: Not reported.

SN: Separate negotiation for each recognized organization.

In the Matter of:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE ALPENA PUBLIC SCHOOLS, ALPENA AND PRESQUE ISLE COUNTIES, MICHIGAN,

Employer,

-and-

ALPENA COMMUNITY COLLEGE DISTRICT
MICHIGAN ASSOCIATION OF HIGHER EDUCATION,

Petitioner, Case No. R67 B-61

-and-

ALPENA SEGMENT OF THE ALPENA-ALCONA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,

Intervenor.

FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS OF LAW, AND ORDER

APPEARANCES:

For the Employer: William F. Knapp, Esq.

For the Petitioner: Foster, Campbell, Lindemer & McGurrin
By: James A. White, Esq.

For the Intervenor: Robert R. Ferguson, Esq.

On March 16 and 17, 1966, a hearing in the above-entitled case was held before Brian S. Ahearn, Trial Examiner of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, in Alpena, Michigan. Having considered the entire record and the briefs submitted by the Petitioner and the Intervenor on April 10, 1967, and being fully advised in the premises, the Board hereby makes the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law, and Order.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Board of Education of the Alpena Public Schools, Alpena and Presque Isle Counties, Michigan, hereinafter referred to as the Board of Education or the Employer, is a public employer within the meaning of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended, hereinafter referred to as the Act.

Alpena Community College District, Michigan Association of Higher Education, hereinafter referred to as the Petitioner, and Alpena Segment of the Alpena-Alcona Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the Intervenor, are labor organizations within the meaning of the Act.

On February 23, 1967, the Petitioner filed a Petition for Election in the above-entitled case, seeking an election among the employees in a unit described as: "Professional Employees of Alpena Community College represented by Alpena Community College District of the Michigan Association For Higher Education." The Intervenor contends that the Petition should be dismissed on the following grounds: (1) Contract bar, and (2) Inappropriateness of unit. The Employer's position is essentially neutral.

The Board of Education maintains and operates a kindergarten through community college educational system, hereinafter referred to as the K-CC system, consisting of 15 elementary schools, 2 junior high schools, a senior high school and a community college, which are situated at various locations within Alpena County. The elementary schools are attended by students in kindergarten through the sixth grade; the junior high schools by students in grades 6 through 9; and the senior high schools by students in grades 10 through 12. The community college which is attended primarily by students beyond the twelfth grade offers both non-collegiate courses of study and a two-year program which is equivalent to the freshman and sophomore years of four-year colleges granting baccalaureate degrees.

The community college is integrated within the unified organizational structure of the K-CC system. Illustrative of this integration is the fact that like the principals of the elementary, junior high and senior high schools, the dean of the community college reports and is responsible to the Employer's Superintendent of Schools. Further, a large staff of administrators whose offices are located in the single administrative building of the K-CC system perform the administrative functions of the entire K-CC system. Moreover, with the assistance of its administrative staff, the Board of Education determines policy for both the K-12 schools and the community college and centrally manages and controls their operation.

The Board of Education employs approximately 350 professional employees, including approximately 37 community college instructors, to perform the teaching functions of the K-CC system. As their common employer, the Board of Education centrally hires and effects all other personnel action affecting these professional employees.

Many of the instructors at the community college formerly were high school teachers in the K-CC system. Certain community college instructors have taught high school students in addition to their principal duty of teaching community college students. Presently, several teachers who primarily are assigned to teach junior and senior high school students also teach community college courses. Approximately 4 junior and senior high school teachers perform "extracurricular duties" at the community college, such as coaching baseball and basketball and supervising the community college intramural program.

The Employer's Director of Buildings and Grounds is responsible for the maintenance of all physical facilities of the K-CC system. Certain of these facilities are shared by both K-12 and community college students, including a museum on the community college campus, which contains a planetarium and classrooms for art and astronomy courses, and the physical education facilities of the K-CC system which are located in K-12 buildings.

Unlike the community college instructors, the K-12 teachers are required by law to be certified by the Michigan Department of Education. In hiring community college instructors, the Employer's policy is to require, if possible, that they possess masters degrees and 15 to 18 credit hours in the field of specialization in which they will be teaching. With respect to applicants for K-12 teaching positions, the Board of Education desires and seeks, but does not require, the same qualifications. Approximately 25% of the K-12 teachers and approximately 84% of the community college instructors have acquired masters degrees. The single salary schedule for the teachers and instructors of the K-CC system provides that those who have secured masters degrees or completed other post-graduate study are entitled to additional remuneration.

All of the K-12 teachers and community college instructors are professional employees engaged in the function of teaching students. In performing this function, all of them utilize the four basic methods of teaching, i.e., lecture, demonstrative, audio-visual and group project. However, they must accommodate the scope, depth and emphasis of courses and the teaching techniques which they employ to the level of maturity and corresponding capacity of the students whom they respectively teach.

The teachers of the K-12 grades spend more time in the classroom but less time in preparing for classes than the community college instructors. Whereas the K-12 teachers must maintain discipline in their classrooms and in other areas of the schools, the community college instructors generally do not encounter any disciplinary problems. The record discloses that the community college instructors are permitted to exercise greater discretion than the K-12 teachers in determining the modes of presentation and the substance of courses which they teach.

On January 11, 1966, the Board of Education recognized the Intervenor as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of all elementary and secondary teachers and community college instructors within the K-CC system. On or about June 15, 1966, the Board of Education and the Intervenor executed a collective bargaining agreement covering the employees within this unit which will terminate at midnight on June 14, 1967. The benefits and conditions of employment determined by this agreement are substantially similar for both K-12 teachers and community college teachers.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Contract Bar

On February 28, 1967, the Board issued the following statement of policy with respect to the filing of petitions for representation elections by rival labor organizations during the term of collective bargaining agreements covering employees of boards of education or school districts:

> For the calendar year 1967, in cases of collective bargaining agreements between Boards of Education or School Districts and representatives of their employees which terminate on or prior to October 1, 1967, petitions for elections filed by rival labor organizations, under the provisions of the Public Employment Relations Act, must be filed with the Labor Mediation Board on or before March 17, 1967.
> In cases of collective bargaining agreements between Boards of Education or School Districts and representatives of their employees which terminate after October 1, 1967, petitions for elections filed by rival labor organizations under the provisions of the Public Employment Relations Act, must be filed with the Labor Mediation Board no earlier than 150 days and no later than 90 days prior to the termination date of the collective bargaining agreement.

The Intervenor contends that its collective bargaining agreement with the Employer which will terminate at midnight on June 14, 1967 operates as a bar to the Petition for Election filed by the Petitioner on February 23, 1967. However, inasmuch as the contract between the Intervenor and the Employer will terminate prior to October 1, 1967, and as the Petition was filed before March 17, 1967, the Board concludes, in accord with the above-quoted policy statement, that the petition was timely filed and is not dismissible on the ground of contract bar.

Inappropriateness Of Unit.

The Petitioner seeks to sever the community college instructors from an established unit composed of both K-12 teachers and community college instructors. The Intervenor contends that in the circumstances of the instant case, severance of the community college instructors from the established unit should not be permitted.

In Union School District of the City of Jackson, Case No. R65 H-26, 1966 Labor Opinions 30, the Board stated:

> The appropriateness of a proposed bargaining unit is generally determined on the basis of the common employment interests of the group involved. In making such determination, we give particular weight to the bargaining history of the group. While the extent of organization may be a factor, it is not controlling. We are reluctant to disturb a unit which has been established over a period of time. The legislative intent expressed in Section 9 e of the Act clearly permits the Board to give substantial weight to a unit that has been identified by "past practice."

In that case, the Board quoted with approval the following language of the National Labor Relations Board in Baltimore Transit Company, 92 NLRB 688 27 LRRM 1148: "As a matter of policy the Board is ordinarily reluctant to disturb a prior unit determination or a contract unit established as a result of collective bargaining, in the absence of compelling circumstances."

As the Board has frequently noted, a primary objective in designating appropriate bargaining units is to constitute the largest unit which in the circumstances of the particular case is most compatible with the effectuation of the purposes of the Act and to include within a single unit all employees with common interests. City of Warren, Cases Nos. R65 H-30 and R65 H-37, 1966 Labor Opinions 25; South Redford School District, Case No. R65 J-184, 1966 Labor Opinions 160; Village of Portland, Case No. R66 G-274, 1966 Labor Opinions 410; Detroit Board of Education, Case No. R65 L-400, 1966 Labor Opinions 414; Board of Education of the School District of the City of Detroit, Case No. R65 I-62, 1966 Labor Opinions 559.

The K-12 teachers and the community college instructors comprise a bargaining unit which was established on January 11, 1966, when the Employer recognized the Intervenor as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of the employees therein. The collective bargaining relationship thus created has culminated in the execution of a collective bargaining agreement which covers the established K-CC unit. As the National Labor Relations Board has held, a bargaining history in excess of a year's duration is substantial and may control the determination of the appropriate unit. Puerto Rico Steamship Association, 116 NLRB 418, at footnote 11, 38 LRRM 1271; see also, Owens-Illinois Glass Company, 108 NLRB 947, 34 LRRM 1114.

The salary schedule, benefits and conditions of employment of both K-12 teachers and community college instructors are substantially similar. The possession of a masters degree is not an absolute requirement for employment as a community college instructor and is a qualification desired and sought in K-12 teachers. A substantial number of the elementary and secondary teachers do possess masters degrees. Further, the Employer's teacher salary schedule entitles teaching personnel with masters degrees to the same additional compensation irrespective of whether they are K-12 teachers or community college instructors. See Detroit Board of Education, Case No. R65 L-400, 1966 Labor Opinions 414, 416.

All of the K-12 teachers and community college instructors employed by the Board of Education are members of the same profession and perform the same basic duty of teaching students. Graduations in the maturity of the students within the K-CC system do result in variations in the relative duties, skills and working conditions of the teachers who instruct them at the various stages of their intellectual and emotional development. However, these variations do not negate the essential similarity of the duties, skills and working conditions of all these professional employees. See Grand Rapids Board of Education, Cases Nos. R65 I-91 and R65 J-169, 1966 Labor Opinions 241, 249.

Both the K-12 teachers and the community college instructors are employees of the same employer. Their common employer determines policy for the entire K-CC system which, as evidenced by the centralization of administrative, managerial and personnel functions, the interchange of personnel and the sharing of physical facilities, is operated as a single, integrated organization.

Based upon the foregoing, and the evidence on the record as a whole, the Board concludes that the Petitioner has failed to demonstrate sufficient differentiation between the interests of the K-12 teachers and the community college instructors to warrant disruption and fragmentation of the established unit by the severance of the community college instructors therefrom. City of Warren Cases Nos. R65 H-30 and R65 H-37, 1966 Labor Opinions 25; Union School District of the City of Jackson, Case No. R65 H-26, 1966 Labor Opinions 30; South Redford School District, Case No. R65 J-184, 1966 Labor Opinions 160; Grand Rapids Board of Education, Cases Nos. R65 I-91 and R65 J-169, 1966 Labor Opinions 241; Detroit Board of Education, Case No. R65 L-400, 1966 Labor Opinions 414. Accordingly, the Board will dismiss the Petition for Election in the above-entitled case.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the Petition for Election in the above-entitled case be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS OF LAW, AND ORDER

The above entitled matter having come on for hearing before the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, Now known as the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, on October 25, 1966, at Kenosha, Wisconsin, Chairman Morris Slavney, Commissioners Arvid Anderson and Zel Rice II, being present, and the Commission having considered the evidence and arguments and briefs of counsel, and being fully advised in the premises, makes and files the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law and Order.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. That Complainant Kenosha Teachers Union, Local 557, affiliated with the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, and with the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, hereinafter referred to as the KTU, is an employe organization existing for the purpose of representing teachers in conferences and negotiations on matters pertaining to the conditions of their employment, and has its offices at 5527 - 35th Avenue, Kenosha, Wisconsin.

2. That Complainant Wisconsin Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, hereinafter referred to as the WFT, is an employe organization having its offices at 7230 West Capitol Drive, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and has as its affiliates various local employe organizations, consisting of teachers employed in various school districts throughout the State of Wisconsin, including the KTU.

3. That Respondent City of Kenosha Board of Education, hereinafter referred to as the School Board, has its offices at 5515 Sheridan Road, Kenosha, Wisconsin; that it maintains and operates high schools, junior high schools and grade schools in said community, and in that regard employs, among others, teaching personnel.

4. That Kenosha Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the KEA, is an employe organization, existing for the purpose of representing teachers in conferences and negotiations on matters pertaining to the conditions of their employment, and has its offices at Kenosha, Wisconsin; and that the KEA is affiliated with the Wisconsin Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the WEA, which is an employe organization having its offices at Madison, Wisconsin; and that the WEA has as its affiliates various local employe associations consisting of teachers employed in various school districts throughout the State of Wisconsin.

5. That on February 3, 1965, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, hereinafter referred to as the WERB, conducted an election among non-supervisory teaching personnel in the employ of the School Board to determine whether such employes desired to be represented for the purpose of conferences and negotiations by the KTU or by the KEA or by neither of said organizations; that the numerical results of the election, as reflected in the Tally of Ballots issued on February 3, 1965, after the balloting, indicated that of 700 teachers eligible to vote, 364 cast ballots for the KEA while 309 cast ballots for the KTU; that following the conduct of said election, but prior to the issuance of the certification by the WERB, the KTU timely filed with the WERB objections to the conduct of the election as well as a complaint of prohibited practices, wherein it alleged, in both proceedings, that the School Board had engaged in conduct which affected the results of the election; that as a result of said proceedings, the certification of the results of the election was delayed until February 25, 1966, on which date the WERB dismissed the objections to the conduct of the election, dismissed the complaint of prohibited practices, and issued the certification of the results of the election, wherein the KEA was certified as the exclusive collective bargaining representative of all regular full-time and all regular part-time certificated teaching personnel of the School Board, excluding all other employes, supervisors and administrators.

6. That early in February, 1966, and prior to the issuance of the certification of representatives above described, the School Board, in consideration of the 1966-1967 school year and preparatory to the issuance of individual teacher contracts for said year to teachers in its employ, adopted and issued the "school calendar" for said school year; that said calendar, among other things, provided that schools would be closed on November 3 and 4, 1966, because of annual state teacher conventions; that historically for the past number of years, the WEA and the WFT have held their annual conventions on the first Thursday and Friday in November of each year; that in establishing November 3 and 4, 1966, the first Thursday and Friday of November, 1966, as state convention days, the School Board did not consult with either the KEA or the KTU but adopted said dates because of the historical practice of the WEA and the WFT of holding their annual conventions on the first Thursday and Friday in November of each year; that after it had been certified as the exclusive representative for the teachers in the employ of the School Board, the KEA assented to the calendar as issued by the School Board; and that thereafter and prior to April 15, 1966, individual teachers in the employ of the School Board executed their individual teaching contracts for the 1966-1967 school year on the basis of the conditions of employment established by the School Board, including the calendar adopted by it for the school year 1966-1967.

7. That on April 29, 1966, after it had determined to change its practice with respect to the dates on which its annual convention was held, the WFT forwarded a letter to the School Board advising it that the WFT annual teacher convention would be held on October 6 and 7, 1966; that on July 9, 1966, the KTU sent a communication to the School Board requesting that the new dates for the WFT convention be placed on the 1966-1967 school calendar; that the School Board did not reply to either of said communications; that after the start of the school year and on September 14, 1966, the KTU sent a communication to the School Board stating that its members would attend the WFT convention on October 6 and 7, 1966; that upon receipt of the last mentioned communication, being uncertain as to the number of absences to anticipate among teachers who might choose to attend the WFT convention, and being concerned of the possibility of closing its schools for two additional days, not contemplated in the calendar, the School Board adopted the following resolution on September 20, 1966:

> "NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that any member of the teaching staff who absents himself from duty in violation of his teaching contract and in contravention of the established school calendar for 1966-1967 shall not receive compensation for the period of said absence and shall be subject to appropriate disciplinary action."

8. That on October 6 and 7, 1966, approximately 19 teachers in the employ of the School Board attended the WFT convention at Milwaukee, Wisconsin; that those teachers who did attend said convention were not paid for the day or days on which they absented themselves from their teaching duties as a result of such attendance; that on November 3 and 4, 1966, as provided in the school calendar, the School Board closed its schools; and that all teachers in the employ of the School Board, regardless of whether or not they attended the WEA convention, which was held on the latter dates, were paid by the School Board as if they had taught school on said dates.

9. That the School Board, by adopting the aforementioned resolution and by refusing to pay teachers for the days they absented themselves from their teaching duties as a result of attending the WFT convention on October 6 and/or 7, 1966, did not interfere, restrain or coerce or discriminate against any of the teachers in its employ, with regard to their right to engage in concerted activity on behalf of the KTU or any other employe organization of their choosing.

Upon the basis of the above and foregoing Findings of Fact, the Commission makes the following

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. That the Respondent, City of Kenosha Board of Education, by adopting the resolution on September 20, 1966, the implementation of which would deny compensation to teachers who absented themselves to attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers on October 6 and 7, 1966, and which would further subject said teachers to disciplinary action, did not, and does not, constitute any prohibited practice within the meaning of Section 111.70 of the Wisconsin Statutes.

2. That the refusal of the Respondent, City of Kenosha Board of Education, to grant teachers in its employ time off to attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers on October 6 and 7, 1966, and the refusal to pay such teachers for the time they attended said convention, did not, and does not, constitute any prohibited practice within the meaning of Section 111.70 of the Wisconsin Statutes.

Upon the basis of the above and foregoing Findings of Fact and Constitutions of Law, the Commission makes the following

ORDER

IT IS ORDERED that the complaint filed in the instant matter be, and the same hereby is, dismissed.

Given under our hands and seal

KENOSHA TEACHERS UNION LOCAL 557, and WISCONSIN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, AFL-CIO, Complainants, vs. CITY OF KENOSHA BOARD OF EDUCATION, Respondent.	Case XII No. 11057 MP-32 Decision No. 8120

MEMORANDUM ACCOMPANYING FINDINGS OF FACT, CONCLUSIONS OF LAW AND ORDER

It is alleged in the complaint that the School Board committed prohibited practices within the meaning of Section 111.70 by interfering, restraining and coercing teachers in its employ in the exercise of their rights and in violation of the provisions of said statute by adopting a resolution declaring that any teacher who absented himself from teaching to attend the WFT annual convention would have his pay deducted because of such absence and would be subject to disciplinary action therefor. The complaint was filed on September 22, 1966, prior to the scheduled WFT convention, which was held on October 6 and 7, 1966. The answer by the School Board, filed on October 10, 1966, denied any violation of the statute and affirmatively alleged that in adopting its calendar, it scheduled teacher convention days, where teachers could be absent without loss of pay, in accordance with the historical practice of the WEA and WFT in holding their conventions on the first Thursday and Friday in November of each year. The School Board further alleged that individual teacher contracts executed by the teachers in its employ were entered into on the basis, in part, of the calendar adopted by the School Board. During the period prior to the announcement by the WFT that its convention was changed from November to October, any change in the school calendar as requested by the WFT and KTU would have constituted a change in working conditions not negotiated with the then certified collective bargaining representative, the KEA.

Hearing in the matter was conducted on October 25, 1966, after the dates of the WFT convention. After the filing of the complaint, the School Board did not pay those teachers who absented themselves on October 6 and 7 because of their attendance at the WFT convention.

The Complainants contend that Section 40.45, Wisconsin Statutes, establishes the legal right of any teacher covered by said statute to attend a state teachers' convention of his choice and that the School Board, by the adoption of the resolution and the subsequent denial of pay to teachers who attended such convention, interfered with the right of said teachers to engage in concerted activity on behalf of the employe organization of their choosing. Complainants argue that under section 40.45, teachers have an absolute right to absent themselves from their teaching duties to attend a state teachers' convention and that, therefore, school boards cannot deny the teachers in their employ of that right "even if it might mean that school will be not taught as a result thereof".

The Complainants also contend that the School Board, by paying teachers who attended the WEA convention and refusing to pay teachers who attended the WFT convention, discriminated against the members of the WFT in violation of Section 111.70.

The School Board contends that the language of Section 40.45 imposes no mandatory duty upon any school board to release its teachers to attend state teachers' conventions, but rather that the language therein is "permissive". It further contends that the School Board considered the calendar as a bargainable issue and that the calendar which the School Board established in February, 1966, for the school year 1966-1967, was acquiesced in by the KEA, the exclusive collective bargaining representative of its teachers, after the calendar had been finalized by the School Board, but prior to the date upon which the School Board was notified of the change in convention dates by the WFT. The School Board argues that to acquiesce in the WFT and the KTU request with respect to the WFT convention would constitute a violation of the teaching contracts of the individual teachers and would be contrary to its duty to the KEA as the majority representative, in respect to changing the calendar, and further, that the determination by the School Board, with respect to the resolution to the denial of pay to those teachers who attended the WFT convention, "right or wrong", was made in good faith.

The gist of the complaint is that the School Board, by closing its schools and permitting its teachers to attend the WEA convention, with pay, interfered with the rights of those teachers who desired to engage in activity and/or membership on behalf of the KTU and WFT by denying same to teachers who absented themselves to attend the WFT convention and thereby, along with the issuance of the resolution, discriminated against said teachers because of such activity.

It might be argued that unequal treatment to members of one organization constitutes an interference with the rights of said members to engage in activity on behalf of that organization, and therefore, is in violation of the statute. However, in determining whether such a violation occurred, we cannot ignore the circumstances surrounding the School Board's action herein. The calendar was adopted unilaterally by the School Board, then approved by the KEA, which was certified as the exclusive bargaining representative after the adoption of the calendar. Individual teacher contracts were entered into by all teachers in the employ of the School Board based, in part, on said school calendar. The adoption of the calendar and execution of teacher contracts occurred prior to the announcement by the WFT of the change in the historical practice of scheduling its annual teacher convention. The Commission has held that equal treatment to a minority organization, in some respects, is not required after the majority representative has been established, since the statute permits municipal employers to make distinctions between a majority organization and an organization which represents the minority of its employes, and that, therefore, certain rights and benefits granted by the municipal employer to the exclusive representative and not to the minority organization, do not constitute a violation of the statute.1/ Counsel for the Complainants would have the Commission make an exception thereto by contending that Section 40.45 requires school boards to excuse teachers from their teaching duties on the dates their organization conducts its annual teacher convention. The pertinent portion of said Section of the Statutes reads as follows:

> "...School days are days on which school is actually taught...and the following days on which school is not taught:...(b) days on which state and county teachers' conventions are held...,"

Commissioner Anderson, in his separate memorandum of concurrence has concluded that Section 40.45 is permissive rather than mandatory. I do not deem it necessary, for the purpose of this proceeding, to determine whether said section imposes either a mandatory or permissive duty upon school boards to permit teachers to attend an annual state teacher convention of their choice. Our Supreme Court in a recent decision determined that the general school statutes are subject to the limitations of Section 111.70, at least where such statutes affect municipal employe rights established in the latter statute.2/ It is my conclusion that if any action of the School Board, with respect to any mandatory provisions of the School Code, constituted a prohibited practice within the meaning of Section 111.70, then those provisions would fall.

On the other hand, if granting time off for teacher conventions were permissive, there may be a limitation on such permissive action if exercised in such a way so as to unlawfully interfere, restrain, coerce or discriminate against any municipal employe in exercising his right to engage or not to engage in lawful concerted activity on behalf of any municipal employe organization.

We have concluded that the Respondent did not violate Section 111.70 by denying excused time off to teachers to attend the WFT convention. Our conclusion in that regard is affected by the certification of the KEA as the exclusive representative of the teachers in the employ of the School Board. A representative selected by the majority of the employes in a bargaining unit, as a result of such status, enjoys certain privileged acts of employer cooperation which are deemed not to unlawfully interfere with the rights of employes who are either members of a minority organization or who are not affiliated with any organization, and, therefore, certain benefits granted by the municipal employer to the exclusive representative and not to any minority representative would not constitute unlawful interference, restraint, coercion or discrimination within the meaning of Section 111.70.3/

The calendar adopted by the School Board and subsequently concurred in by the KEA, constituted a condition of employment affecting the teachers in the employ of the School Board. This condition of employment was announced to the teachers and was taken into consideration by them when they executed their individual teacher contracts. We conclude that the establishment of the calendar, as acquiesced in by the KEA, establishing November 3 and 4 as teacher convention days, and the implementation thereof, which resulted in the closing of schools on days which permitted teachers to attend the WEA convention, constituted an act of permissive cooperation which the KEA was privileged to receive as a result of its majority status.4/ The refusal of the School Board to comply with the request of the KTU, the minority organization, to change the school calendar so as to in effect, designate also October 5 and 6 "teacher convention" days, the adoption of the resolution containing a warning of disciplinary action and a determination not to pay teachers who attended the WFT convention, and the subsequent refusal to pay teachers who attended the WFT convention on said dates, does not constitute a violation of Section 111.70. Had the WFT held its convention on November 3 and 4, it is apparent that those teachers who would have attended same would have been treated identically to those teachers who attended the WEA convention on said dates, as would have been the teachers who chose not to attend either said conventions. Otherwise, in accordance with our decision in West Milwaukee - West Allis School District No. 1,5/ any disparative treatment would have constituted a violation of the statute.

The Complainants also contend that the deputy superintendent, because of his WEA membership and because of his participation in the School Board's determination with respect to the KTU's request, violated the well-established principle of conflict of interest and thereby committed a prohibited practice within the meaning of Section 111.70. The Commission finds that the record does not support the Complainants' allegation that the participation of supervisory personnel, who were members of the WEA, in the School Board's decision constituted any violation of the statute. The record, to the contrary, supports the finding that the decision made by the School Board and its administrative officials was neither predicated nor motivated as a result of the organizations involved, but rather upon other factors, such as obligations under individual teacher contracts, the length of the school year, effect upon receiving state aid, and upon the interests of the students in the school system. In light of the evidence adduced at the hearing, the allegation of the Complainants with respect to conflict of interest therefore must fall and is deemed dismissed.

SEPARATE MEMORANDUM OF CONCURRENCE

I believe the fundamental issue before the Board is whether the School District was obligated, under Sections 40.40(3), 40.45 and 111.70, Wisconsin Statutes, to grant teachers time off to attend the WFT state teachers convention and to pay them for the time they attended such convention when it granted to members of the WEA time off to attend the state teachers convention of that organization and paid them for the time they attended that convention.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court, in its recent Muskego-Norway decision, had occasion to construe the applicability of Section 111.70 to the School Law, Section 40.40 and 40.41. The Court said:

> "The provisions of sec. 111.70, Stats., apply to the authority of school districts to the same extent as the authority of other municipal governing bodies. Sec. 111.70 was enacted with a full knowledge of pre-existing statutes. Construction of statutes should be done in a way which harmonizes the whole system of law of which they are a part, and any conflict should be reconciled if possible.

"Sec. 40.40(3), Stats., provides that a school board may give to a teacher without deducting from her wages the whole or any part of time spent in attending a teachers' convention upon filing with the clerk a certificate showing such attendance. Sec. 40.45 provides that days on which state and county teachers' conventions are held are considered to be school days. Under sec. 111.70(2) teachers have the right to refrain from affiliating with labor organizations expressly forbidden by sec. 111.70(3) (a)1. These statutes are not necessarily in conflict. They can all be given effect by construing them together and ruling that teachers cannot be required to attend such conventions under threat of loss of pay, but that teachers who do not attend such conventions can be required to work for the school. In this way teachers can avoid deductions from their salaries while the right to refuse to join a labor organization guaranteed by sec. 111.70(2) is preserved. If the teacher refuses to work, deductions from his salary could be made, but if the school does not offer work to teachers not attending conventions, the school cannot deny pay to such teachers."6/

I therefore believe it is our duty to construe Sec. 111.70 and 40.45, "...in a way which harmonizes the whole system of law of which they are a part, and any conflict should be reconciled, if possible." The parties in this proceeding and in similar pending cases seek a definitive ruling from this agency on the teacher convention issue presented herein.

Accordingly, it is my view that Sec. 40.45 relating to days on which teachers conventions are held must be construed with Sec. 40.40(3) which provides that school boards may pay all or part of a teacher's wages for time spent in attending teachers' conventions. The Supreme Court opinion above emphasized the permissive nature of Sec. 40.40(3) by underlining the work "may" in the first line of that section. Time off to attend a convention and pay for such time off are closely related subjects as evidenced by the Supreme Court's citation of Sec. 40.45 when construing Sec. 40.40(3) in the Muskego-Norway case. It, therefore, is manifestly clear that Sec. 40.45, when considered with Sec. 40.40(3), does not impose a mandatory duty on the part of the School Board to grant time off to teachers to attend a teachers' convention.

To hold otherwise would require school districts to grant time off for all conventions held by teachers' organizations at the state and county level, regardless of the effect of granting such time off on the number of days actually taught in a school district. If the number of days granted off by school boards for the purpose of attending such teacher conventions were not limited, it is obvious that such practice could have an impact on the number of days on which school is actually taught. The testimony of the State Superintendent of Schools in this proceeding indicated that his office would be concerned about the eligibility of school districts for school aids if the time off for the purpose of attending teachers' conventions was not limited. The record indicates that Sec. 40.45 has been consistently construed by the State Superintendent's Office to be permissive in nature. School Boards, however, may not exercise the permissive authority under Sec. 40.40(3) and 40.45 in such a manner as to violate the rights of teachers under Section 111.70.

MEMORANDUM OF DISSENT

I conclude that the School Board committed a prohibited practice in permitting KEA members to attend the convention of the WEA with pay while not excusing KTU members to attend the WFT convention and by denying pay to those who attended the latter.

The issue herein is whether such unequal treatment is prohibited by Section 111.70. In Milwaukee Board of School Directors, in discussing the granting of exclusive use of school facilities to the majority representative for certain purposes, we stated that a municipal employer had the right to grant the majority representative privileges "...in order that the representative may perform its obligations as the majority representative of the employes...." Our justification for this type of discrimination was as follows:

"When the exclusive representative is acting in its representative status, it is performing a function in effectuating the public policy of this state in the encouragement of collective bargaining in public employment..."

In that decision we said:

"Those rights or benefits which are granted exclusively to the majority representative, and thus denied to minority organizations, must in some rational manner be related to the functions of the majority organization in its representative capacity, and must not be granted to entrench such organization as the bargaining representative.

* * * * *

"However, meetings of the majority representative limited to members only, regardless of its purpose cannot be considered as falling within the area of protected privilege..." (Emphasis added.)

We went on to say:

"...There is no proviso permitting a municipal employer to assist any labor organization by granting it the use of its facilities for organizational or internal purposes. Therefore, the granting by a municipal employer of the exclusive use of its facilities to any labor organization for organizational or internal purposes regardless of its majority or minority status, would interfere with the rights of employes belonging to other employe organizations.... Any unequal treatment in this regard is unlawful under Section 111.70 of the Wisconsin statutes." (Emphasis added.)

I believe that in permitting KEA members to attend the convention of the WEA without loss of pay and denying KTU members the privilege of attending the WFT convention without loss of pay, the School Board assisted the KEA by granting it special privileges for internal purposes. This act of cooperation with the KEA, the majority representative, does not fall within the area of protected privilege because the attendance at the WEA convention cannot rationally be related to the functions of the KEA as the majority organization in its representative capacity, nor can it constitute the performance of any of the obligations of the KEA, as the majority representative of the teachers. It was an act of cooperation related to the internal purposes of the majority representative, and it interfered with the rights of employes who were members of the KTU and encouraged membership in the KEA by discrimination. Therefore, it constitutes a prohibited practice on the part of the School Board.7/

AGREEMENT

between the

DANBURY BOARD OF EDUCATION

and the

DANBURY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

THIS AGREEMENT IS MADE AND ENTERED INTO on this 12th day of April, 1967, by and between the DANBURY BOARD OF EDUCATION (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") and THE DANBURY EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (hereinafter referred to as the "Association") affiliated with the Connecticut Education Association.

GENERAL

A. This Agreement is negotiated under Public Act 298 of the Connecticut General Assembly, 1965 Session, in order (a) to fix for its term the salaries and other conditions of employment provided herein, and (b) to encourage and abet effective and harmonious working relationships between the Board and the professional staff in order that the cause of public education may be best served in Danbury.

B. To this end, the Board and the Association recognize the importance of orderly, just and expeditious resolution of issues which may arise as the result of those provisions of this Agreement dealing with salaries and conditions of employment under Public Act 298 and accordingly agree herein upon a grievance procedure for the effective processing of such disputes.

C. The Board and the Association accept the provisions of this agreement as cooperative commitments which they will in good faith honor, support and seek to fulfill, subject to the ability of the respective parties, financial, ethical, moral and otherwise, to perform under the provisions of governing law.

D. The Board and the Association recognize the importance of responsible participation by the entire professional staff in the educational process, planning, development and growth. To this end they agree to maintain communication to inform about programs, to guide in development and to assist in planning and growth either by committee, individual consultation or designated representatives.

E. Subject to the provisions of Public Act 298, as the same may be amended, the Board agrees not to negotiate with any teachers' organization other than the Danbury Education Association for the duration of this Agreement. Except for such negotiations under Public Act 298, however, the Board shall be free to communicate with teachers or their representatives, or any other persons, individually or by group, for whatever purpose the Board may deem desirable in the discharge of its responsibilities.

F. Although reference is made to the Board or the Association as such, each reserves the right to continue to act as a whole, by committee, by designated representative or by individual member. Designated representatives may be professional and not necessarily of the membership. Each party will provide to the other, upon request, satisfactory evidence or documentation (such as minutes or resolutions) of authority to act.

G. This agreement shall constitute the policy of the Danbury Board of Education and the Danbury Education Association in the subject areas covered by the agreement for the duration of the agreement unless changed by the mutual consent of the parties of this Agreement. Such mutually consented change shall be in writing. Previously adopted policies, rules or regulations in conflict with this agreement are superseded by this Agreement. However, nothing in this Agreement which changes pre-existing Board of Education policy will have retroactive applicability or operation.

H. Subject to the provisions of this Agreement, the Board and the Superintendent of Schools reserve and retain full rights, authority and discretion, in the proper discharge of their duties and responsibilities, to control, supervise and manage the School Department of the City of Danbury and its professional staff under governing law, ordinances, rules and regulations--Municipal, State and Federal. In all matters under this Agreement calling for the exercise of judgment or discretion on the part of the Board, the decision of the Board shall be final and binding, except where some standard of grievability is set forth in this Agreement and may apply.

I. Nothing in this Agreement shall in any way limit or contravene the authority of any Minicipal, State or Federal board, commission, agency or other governmental body.

J. The Board of Education and the Danbury Education Association recognize the need for a positive statement of an educational philosophy. Toward this end, the Board of Education, the Superintendent of Schools and representatives of the Danbury Education Association shall jointly review the written statement of the educational aims and goals of the Danbury School system. With adoption by the Board, policy and programs can then be developed, executed and administered in line with the tenets of the published philosophy.

RECOGNITION

A. The Board recognizes the Association for the purpose of professional negotiation, as the exclusive representative of the entire unit consisting of all certificated professional employees of the Board below the rank of superintendent, (hereinafter referred to as "teachers" or "administrators") pursuant to and with all the rights and privileges as provided by Public Act 298 of the 1965 General Assembly; the Association (having been designated as the exclusive representative in an agreement between the Board and the Association executed on November 10, 1965).

B. The Danbury Education Association agrees to represent equally all teachers and administrators without regard to membership or participation in, or association with the activities of the Association or any other employee organization, and to continue to admit teachers and administrators to membership without qualification other than employment in the Danbury School system and payment of dues.

ARTICLE III

PERSONNEL POLICIES

A. The Board and the Association recognize the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession, as adopted by the National Education Association in July 1963 and the Connecticut Education Association in May 1964, as the guideline for acceptable professional behavior in this school district.

B. The Board and the Association agree that questions considered by the Board to involve matters of professional ethics will be referred to the Association for study and interpretation through the Association's Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee before action is taken thereon by the Board.

C. The Board and the Association further agree that the Association shall be expected to deal with ethical problems arising under the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession in accordance with the terms thereof and through procedures developed by the Association with emphasis upon raising professional standards.

D. The Board reserves the right to act independently in referring ethical matters to the PR and R committee of the CEA or NEA if after a sufficient lapse of time it is the judgment of the Superintendent that reasonable efforts have not been exercised in seeking a solution to the question by the local Association.

ARTICLE IV

THE WORK YEAR FOR THE PROFESSIONAL STAFF

A. The starting and dismissal times of all schools shall be determined by the Board of Education and publicized by the Superintendent of Schools.

B. The workday of all personnel covered by the teacher's salary schedule shall begin one half hour before school begins and may end anytime after student dismissal, provided that teachers recognize and acknowledge their professional responsibility for assisting students after school, for meeting the professional requirements of their position and for participating in the activities deemed necessary to the maintenance and development of a good school.

C. Personnel covered by the Administrative Salary Schedule shall work at their assigned duties on a schedule which shall be determined individually by the Superintendent and the administrator. Recognition is given that the proper performance of their duties may, on occasion, require more than normal hours.

D. Chapter 172 - Section 10-259 of the State Statutes states "the----school year shall commence July first and end June thirtieth.

The work year for all personnel covered by this article shall be negotiated by the Board and the Association.

Work Year

1. Teachers new to the system - 186 days

2. Teachers returning to the system - 184 days

G. Attendance at up to three evening meetings per year is required:

1. One evening in observance of National Education Week for open house.
2. Two evenings, one during each half of the school year to be used for parent-teacher conference.

H. Academic subject area secondary school teachers shall not be assigned more than five teaching periods per day. Special subject area secondary school teachers (e.g. art, music, physical education) may be assigned six teaching periods per day, provided they are relieved from home room duties.

I. Secondary school teachers shall not be required to teach more than two subjects or to have more than three teaching preparations within said subject or combination of subjects at any one time.

In this reference, a preparation shall be defined as any of the following:

(1) Among special areas within one discipline, i.e. U. S. History; Asian History; Geography, or Civics.
(2) Levels within one discipline, i.e. English I, II, III, IV.
(3) Divisions among special areas and divisions among levels not to exceed 3 (Honors or Advanced, Slow, All others).

In addition to a normal teaching program, a teacher may be required to teach one limited enrollment course provided that they are relieved from study hall and homeroom obligations.

J. Exceptions to the provisions of paragraphs H and I above, may be made only if the Superintendent of Schools determines that it is necessary to do so in the best interests of the educational process. The Association shall be notified in writing of each instance in which the Superintendent shall so determine. A disagreement over whether an exception is justified shall be subject to the grievance procedure and shall be initiated at Level Two thereof.

K. Teacher participation in extra-curricular activities for which no additional compensation is paid shall be strictly voluntary.

The Board and the Association recognize that there is a need to study all extra-curricular activities except for interscholastic athletics. The Board and the Association agree to a joint study to the end that recommendations shall be developed prior to negotiations in 1968-1969.

L. All evaluations of teachers which are to become a part of the permanent personnel file shall be written and shall be read and signed by the teacher involved prior to the insertion of said evaluation in the teacher's personnel file.

M. All teachers shall have a duty-free lunch period of at least 30 minutes.

ARTICLE V

TEACHER DUTIES

A. The teacher shall be directly responsible to the Principal and/or Housemaster and, through him, to the Superintendent of Schools or his designee. He shall discharge his duties in accordance with the policies and the Rules and Regulations of the Board of Education and shall comply with the rules and instructions of the Superintendent and Principal. Such rules shall be written.

B. The teacher shall familiarize himself with his duties and shall conform at all times to the rules and regulations regarding the routine of the school and the supervision of the pupils.

C. The teacher shall keep accurate records including the providing of information for the IBM department as to pupil attendance, a careful and accurate record of the pupils' subject grades, and such records as may be requested by the Housemaster, the Principal or the Superintendent.

D. The teacher shall follow the courses of study and outlines as available and approved by the Board of Education and shall adequately prepare lesson plans based upon them. He shall confer frequently with the Principal to assure that his class is progressing satisfactorily.

E. The teacher shall be responsible for the proper care of all books and other school property committed to his charge and shall assist in keeping an inventory thereof and shall report to the Principal or Housemaster immediately any damage thereto.

F. The teacher shall open and dismiss classes at times designated by the Principal and shall adhere strictly to the regulations concerning recesses, toilet privileges, lunch provisions and personal dismissals.

G. All rooms shall be open for the reception of pupils fifteen minutes before the time of commencing the exercises. On cold or stormy days the rooms shall be open for the reception of pupils as soon as convenient.

H. The teacher may detain pupils a reasonable length of time for disciplinary purposes or to give them assistance in their studies.

I. The teacher shall provide an adequate opportunity over a reasonable period for pupils to make up deficiency caused by absence or neglect.

J. No teacher shall sell text books, supplies or other materials to be used in his class without the written permission of the Superintendent or his designee.

K. The teacher shall punctually attend all meetings called by the Superintendent or Principal unless for satisfactory reasons he shall be excused. He shall also co-operate with the Superintendent or Principal in carrying out of any plans or programs for the improvement of instruction and shall attend such courses and lectures as the Superintendent or the Board of Education shall direct, subject to the provisions of tuition payment and subsidation.

L. The teacher shall not allow pupils to be harassed or interrupted in their work and no teacher shall permit the pupil to be interviewed at the door except by parents, guardians or other accredited messengers. This permission shall be refused whenever the teacher has any doubt concerning the sincerity of purpose of the caller.

M. The teacher shall at all times regularly and frequently inform parents of the standing of children whose work is unsatisfactory or who are not meeting the standards for promotion or who are in danger of being retained or demoted subject to the established standards of the school.

N. A teacher should, at all times, maintain a state of good health and must, upon request of the Superintendent, submit evidence thereof.

O. A teacher, who in the judgment of the Superintendent is not capably performing his duties may, with the permission of the Board, be suspended by the Superintendent.

ARTICLE VI

CLASS SIZE

The following guidelines shall prevail wherever feasible subject to the circumstances which exist regarding staff and facilities.

Elementary Schools

A. No regular class group in Pre-primary, kindergarten, grades 1, 2, 3, or 4 (or their equivalent where grade designations no longer exist) shall have more than 25 pupils.

B. No regular class group in grades 5 or 6 (or their equivalent where grade designations no longer exist) shall have more than 30 pupils.

C. The size of groups containing concentrations of disadvantaged pupils shall be reduced in size, or an additional professional teacher shall be employed for each 50 pupils.

Secondary Schools

Except for the areas of Music, Physical Education and Driver Education.

A. No regular class shall have more than 30 students.

B. No teacher shall, at any given time, have instructional responsibility, regardless of class size, for more than 125 students.

C. Classes established specifically for culturally disadvantaged (as defined in the State Act for the disadvantaged) and for slow learning students shall be reduced in size to 20 pupils for maintenance of optimum learning opportunities for pupils of this classification.

Special Education

Classes in Special Education shall not contain more pupils than designated by standards developed and promulgated by the State Department of Education.

General

The foregoing guidelines are subject to modification for educational purposes. This could apply in instances of

1. split-grade classes
2. specialized classes
3. large group instruction
4. team teaching
5. experimental programs

ARTICLE VII

TEACHER FACILITIES

The following facilities shall be provided for in each school building to the extent feasible in existing buildings and provided that no substantial capital investment is necessary, and in designing new buildings and rehabilitating existing buildings, the Board will suggest provision in each school building:

A. Space in each classroom for ample, secure, storage of instructional materials and supplies.

B. A teacher workroom containing adequate equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.

C. An appropriately furnished room to be used as a faculty lounge (said room to be in addition to the aforementioned teachers' workroom).

D. Well lighted and clean teachers' rest rooms.

E. A system whereby teachers can effectively and expeditiously communicate with the main building office in the event of an emergency. Such facilities shall be manned full time.

F. Parking space of adequate portion and convenient location at each school.

ARTICLE VIII

TEACHING ASSIGNMENTS, TRANSFERS AND EXCHANGE TEACHERS

PART ONE - ASSIGNMENT OF TEACHERS

A. Teachers initially joining the Danbury School System shall receive their school assignment from the Superintendent's office.

B. Teachers already in the system shall receive notification of their programs for the ensuing school year not later than June 1 of the then current school year.

C. Teachers shall be notified in writing of any changes in their programs and schedules for the ensuing school year, including the schools to which they will be assigned, the grades and/or subjects that they will teach, and any special or unusual classes or assignments that they will have. In the event of a change in circumstances or conditions during the months of May through August (resignations, death, promotion, and leave of absence) such assignments may be changed as required to meet the situation.

D. In order to assure that pupils are taught by teachers working within their areas of competence, teachers shall not be assigned, except in accordance with the regulations of the State Board of Education and for good cause, to subjects and/or grades or other classes outside the scope of their teaching certificates.

E. Teacher assignments shall be made without regard to age, race, creed, color, religion, nationality, sex or marital status.

F. In the determination of assignments, the convenience and wishes of the teacher will be honored to the extent that these considerations do not conflict with the instructional requirements and best interests of the school system and the pupils.

PART TWO - TRANSFERS

Although the Board and the Association recognize that some transfer of teachers from one school to another is unavoidable, they also recognize that frequent transfer of teachers is disruptive to the educational process and interferes with optimum performance.

A. When a reduction in the number of teachers in a school is necessary, volunteers shall be transferred first. Seniority in the Danbury School system shall be considered in selecting the volunteer.

B. When involuntary transfers are necessary, length of service in the Danbury School system shall be a factor in determining which teacher is to be transferred. Teachers being involuntarily transferred will be transferred only to a comparable position.

An involuntary transfer shall be made only after a meeting between the teacher involved and the Superintendent or his designee, at which time the teacher shall be notified of the reasons for the transfer. In the event that a teacher objects to the transfer at this meeting, the teacher will notify the Association and the Superintendent or his designee will meet with the Association's representatives to discuss the transfer. If grievance is sought it shall be initiated at Level Three.

C. A list of open positions in other schools shall be made available to all teachers being transferred, and preferance shall be given in filling such positions on the basis of length of service in the Danbury School system.

D. Teachers who desire to transfer to another building shall file a written statement of such desire with the Superintendent not later than March 1. Such statement shall include the grade and/or subject to which the teacher desires to be assigned or the school or schools (in order of preference, if the teacher has preferences) to which he desires to be transferred.

E. Teachers who desire a change in grade and/or subject assignment shall speak to the Housemaster, Principal and Director.

F. Notice of transfer shall be given to the teacher as soon as practicable and under normal circumstances not later than June 1.

G. Teacher transfers shall be made without regard to age, race, creed, color, religion, nationality, sex or marital status.

PART THREE - EXCHANGE TEACHERS

In any one year, up to 1% of the teachers may be exchanged for teachers from some other school administration district in the United States or in a foreign country. Such exchange shall be initially recommended by the Superintendent to the Board of Education, which shall recommend final action. Agreements for such an exchange of teachers shall be entered into between the governing bodies of the school administrative districts concerned and shall include, among other appropriate provisions and requirements, provisions for:

1. A written acceptance of the reciprocal agreement on the part of the teachers entering into the exchange.
2. A certificate of good mental and physical health on the part of both teachers.
3. An exchange of credentials and recommendations between the officials of the schools involved.
4. All exchange arrangements to be for a period of one year.
5. The Board to continue the exchange teacher at the Danbury School system on regular salary status.
6. All rights and privileges of the Danbury teacher to continue in effect during the exchange period.

ARTICLE IX

POSITIONS RECEIVING SALARIES BEYOND

THE TEACHERS' SALARY SCHEDULE

A. Positions in this article are defined as those which pay a salary differential and/or positions on the administrative level including but not limited to positions such as associate superintendent, assistant superintendent, administrative assistant, director, consultant, principal, housemaster, assistant principal and department chairman.

B. Vacancies in positions covered by this article which are caused by death, retirement, discharge, resignation, or by the creation of a new position shall be filled pursuant to the following procedure:

1. Such vacancies shall be adequately publicized, both within and outside the system, including a notice in every school (by posting or otherwise) as far in advance of the date of filling such vacancy as possible (at least 30 days in advance and in no event less than two weeks in advance). Where need to fill a vacancy arises during the summer months, notification shall be by mail.
2. Said notice of vacancy shall clearly set forth the qualifications for the position.
3. Teachers who desire to apply for such vacancies shall file their applications in writing with the Superintendent within the time limit specified in the notice.
4. Such vacancy shall be filled on the basis of qualification for the vacant post, provided, however, that where two or more applicants are substantially equal in qualification, the applicant with the greatest amount of seniority in the Danbury School system shall be given the preference.

C. All appointments to the foresaid vacancies and openings shall be made without regard to age, race, creed, color, religion, nationality, sex or marital status.

ARTICLE X

SUMMER SCHOOL, DEMONSTRATION CITY, and ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAMS

A. Positions in these programs shall, to the extent possible, be filled first by teachers regularly employed in the Danbury School system.

B. In filling such positions, consideration shall be given to a teacher's area of competence, major and/or minor field of study, quality of teaching performance, attendance record, length of service in the Danbury School system, and prior experience in these programs, if any.

C. All openings for these positions shall be listed as early as possible so interested teachers may apply.

ARTICLE XI

PROTECTION OF TEACHERS

A. Teachers shall report immediately in writing to their principal and to the central office all cases of assault suffered by them in connection with their employment.

B. Such report shall be forwarded through the Superintendent to the Board which shall comply with any reasonable request from the teacher for information in its possession not privileged under law which relates to the incident or the persons involved.

C. The Board agrees to provide legal counsel to defend any teacher in any action arising out of any claim, demand, suit or judgment by reason of alleged negligence or other act resulting in accidental bodily injury to or death of any person, or in accidental damage to or destruction of property, within or without the school building, providing such teacher, at the time of the accident resulting in such injury, damage or destruction, was acting in the discharge of his duties within the scope of his employment or under the direction of the Board.

D. If criminal or civil proceedings are brought against a teacher alleging that he committed an assault in connection with his employment the Board shall furnish legal counsel to defend him in such proceeding. If the teacher chooses to provide his own counsel and the teacher prevails in the proceedings, then the Board shall reimburse the teacher for reasonable counsel fees incurred by him in defending the proceeding, in accordance with Connecticut Statutes, Chapter 170, Section 10-235.

E. Whenever a teacher is absent from school as a result of personal injury compensable under Connecticut Workmen's Compensation Laws, and caused by an assault arising out of and in the course of his employment, he shall be paid his full salary for the period of such absence for up to one calendar year without having such absence charged to the annual sick leave or accumulated sick leave. Any amount of salary payable pursuant to this Section shall be reduced by the amount of any workmen's compensation award for temporary disability due to the said assault injury for the period for which such salary is paid. The Board shall have the right to have the teacher examined by a physician designated by the Board for the purpose of establishing the length of time during which the teacher is temporarily disabled from performing his duties; and, in the event that there is no adjudication in the appropriate workmen's compensation proceeding for the period of temporary disability, the opinion of the said physician as to the said period shall control.

F. The Board of Education assumes responsibility for any assault to the teacher or his person while acting in the discharge of his duties or within the scope of his employment or under the direction of the Board of Education or its designee.

When absence arises out of or from such assault or injury, the teacher shall not forfeit any sick leave or personal leave. Any claim, demand, suit, or judgment arising from such assault or injury shall be honored by the Board of Education.

ARTICLE XII

ACCIDENT OR SICKNESS BENEFIT

A. Whenever a teacher is absent from school as a result of personal injury, compensable under the Connecticut Workmen's Compensation laws, and caused by an accident (other than an assault) arising out of and in the course of his employment, he may elect to charge all or part of such absence during the period of temporary disability due to the accident to the sick leave days to his credit. If he elects payment he shall receive the pay to which he is entitled less any workmen's compensation award made for the temporary disability. In the absence of such election his sick leave credits shall not be reduced by any compensation payments. Acceptance of sick leave payments shall constitute an election to charge the absence for such period to the sick leave days to his credit.

B. The Board shall provide the following health benefits.

1. Annual flu shots

2. Annual chest x-ray

ARTICLE XIII

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

A. Sick Leave

Teachers shall be entitled to sick leave with full pay up to fifteen (15) working days in each year. Unused sick leave shall be accumulated from year to year, so long as the teacher remains continuously in the service of the Board, up to but not in excess of one hundred and twenty-five (125) working days.

1. Teachers whose respective schools are closed by order of the Health Officer or the Superintendent shall receive full pay and such absence shall not be charged to sick leave.

2. In the event of absence of a teacher for illness in excess of five (5) consecutive working days, the Board may, if it has reasonable cause to believe that there is an abuse of sick leave policy, require an examination by an independent physician, such examination to be at Board expense.

3. A teacher who has been absent because of infectious or contagious disease may be required to submit evidence of complete recovery before resuming his duties.

4. Leave of absence for ill health not to exceed two years may be granted, without pay, by the Board, such leave being subject to the regulations regarding retirement, and shall be credited as teaching experience on the salary schedule.

5. No teacher shall absent himself from duty except for personal illness or emergency unless permission shall have first been obtained from the Superintendent. In all cases of illness the teacher shall notify the Superintendent or Principal at once in order that a proper substitute may be provided. No substitute shall be provided except by the Superintendent, nor shall the substitute be paid by anyone other than the Board.

6. Professional staff members who are not on a ten month contract, may accumulate an additional 10% of sick leave for each month over ten that they are under contract in the particular year. (11 month contract 137 days; 12 month contract 150 days). Their yearly rate of accumulation remains with that of the professional staff at 15 days per year.

B. Sabbatical Leave

The Superintendent shall review and approve worthwhile scholarly programs of independent work in or outside academic institutions, subject to the following conditions:

1. No more than 1% of the total staff shall be absent on sabbatical leave at any one time.

2. Requests for sabbatical leave must be received by the Superintendent in writing in such form as may be required under normal circumstances no later than December 31 of the year preceding the school year in which the sabbatical is requested. It is understood that the deadline of December 31 may be waived at the discretion of the Superintendent when fellowships, grants or scholarships, awarded later in the year, make such a deadline unreasonable.

3. The professional staff member shall be eligible once after at least seven consecutive full school years of active service in the Danbury School system. A second sabbatical would require the elapse of another seven year period.

4. A sabbatical leave shall be for a full academic year and the professional staff member shall be paid at one half his annual salary rate, provided that the total compensation of any program grant, scholarship, assistantship or other compensation and the sabbatical pay does not exceed the professional staff members full annual salary rate. If such does occur the sabbatical pay will be reduced by an amount necessary to effect the balance. In this instance "full annual salary rate" shall be defined as that salary from which retirement is deducted.

5. The professional staff member agrees to return to employment in the Danbury School system for two full years. In the event such a contract is not kept the staff member agrees to reimburse the Board fully for all sabbatical payments.

6. The teacher returning from sabbatical shall be placed on the appropriate step in the salary schedule as though such leave had not occurred. The sabbatical shall not affect continuity of service nor accrual of seniority toward longevity benefits.

C. Convention Leave

1. When it is evident that convention or conference attendance or the observation of an activity in another school building or school system will contribute to the effectiveness of the instructional program, the Superintendent, with reasonable limitations as to time and number of individuals involved may grant convention or conference leaves, or permission to observe an activity in another school building or school system to teachers without loss of pay.

2. The Board agrees to reimburse all teachers attending a convention or conference, or observing activities in another school system when reimbursement is recommended by the Superintendent.

D. Personal Leave

1. A professional staff member shall be privileged to take one school day of leave with salary, annually, to attend to personal, legal, business, household or family matters.

   An additional two days of personal leave may be granted to a professional staff member for the birth of his child. A request for such leave shall be made in writing to the Superintendent of Schools or his designee.

2. Application for such leave shall be made as far in advance as is practicable and, except for emergency, shall be made at least 48 hours prior to the date of leave.

3. The applicant does not need to state the reason for leave but must indicate on the application that the leave is being taken under this section - namely Article XIII.

4. Accumulation to two days total annual leave is allowed for persons on tenure.

E. Absence On Account of Death

1. If explicitly reported, absence of a professional staff member due to the death of a wife, husband, parent, parent-in-law, child, brother, sister, or step-child, shall be permitted without loss of pay, or deduction from sick leave or personal days. Such absence shall not exceed three days for each such death.

F. Jury Duty

1. All professional staff members who are called for jury duty shall receive the necessary leave to fulfill their civil obligation. This leave shall not be deducted from sick leave or from personal days. The staff member shall receive a rate of pay equal to the difference between the professional salary and the jury fee.

G. Professional Leave

1. When it is necessary for official representatives of the Association to engage in Association activities directly relating to the Association's duties as representative of the teachers, they shall be given such free time, without loss of pay or sick leave, as is necessary to perform any such activities. The Association and its officers recognize and agree that this privilege should not be abused.

2. Application for such leave shall be made in writing to the Superintendent as far in advance as practicable and ordinarily at least 48 hours. Such leave will not be deducted from sick leave.

3. The Board reserves the right to withdraw this privilege when in the opinion of the Superintendent there is sufficient evidence of abuse. Such judgment will not be made arbitrarily, capriciously or without rational basis in fact.

H. Maternity

Professional staff members on tenure in the Danbury School system may request leave for maternity subject to the following conditions:

1. The leave starts at the end of the fourth month pregnancy and extends for the remainder of the school year and for the year next ensuing.

2. There is no compensation.

3. No experience credit on the salary schedule is granted for the period of maternity leave.

4. The Board may reengage the teacher for the ensuing year if health conditions warrant.

5. Failure to reapply for reinstatement in the system in the school year following the ensuing year shall be considered a resignation and will be so treated.

6. Credit toward accrual of longevity shall not be granted for maternity leave.

7. Persons without tenure status shall, when pregnant, resign effective at the end of the fourth month of such pregnancy in accordance with established policy.

I. Other Leaves

1. A professional staff member may be granted leave for one day, without loss of salary, for participating in one's own commencement exercises.

2. A professional staff member may be allowed leave without loss of salary, for the observance of religious holidays of own sect or group.

3. A professional staff member may be allowed leave, without loss of salary, to begin programs of study which result from foundation or scholarship grants and which necessitate personal presence in advance of the close of the school year.

4. Other extended leaves, with or without salary, may be granted at the discretion of the Board of Education.

All leave under this section shall be applied for as far in advance as possible. If unusual, the request must be submitted early enough for presentation at a regular meeting of the Board of Education.

J. Unauthorized Leaves

1. A teacher shall forfeit his pay for absence for any cause other than those hereinbefore specified.

ARTICLE XIV

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

A. Purpose

1. The purpose of this procedure is to secure, at the lowest possible administrative level, equitable solutions to the problems which may from time to time arise affecting the welfare or working conditions of teachers or administrators. Both parties agree that these proceedings shall be kept as informal and confidential as may be appropriate at any level of the procedure.

2. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as limiting the right of any member of the unit having a grievance or dispute to discuss the matter informally with any appropriate member of the administration.

B. Definitions

1. A "grievance" is hereby defined to mean (a) a complaint beyond the first level, by a teacher or a group of teachers based upon an alleged violation of or variation from the provisions of this Agreement, or the interpretation, meaning or application thereof, or (b) that the Board failed to act in good faith in exercising its judgment or discretion as provided for in this Agreement - i.e., that it acted arbitrarily, capriciously or without rational basis in fact, or (c) that the Association has acted unreasonably in withholding its approval where called for under this Agreement.

2. An "aggrieved person" is a person or group of persons making such a complaint.

3. A "party in interest" is a person or group of persons (including the Board or any of its representatives) who might be required to take action or against whom action might be taken in order to resolve the complaint.

C. Procedure

1. Since it is important that grievances be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each level should be considered as maximum and every effort should be made to expedite the process. The time limits specified may, however, be extended by mutual agreement.

2. In the event a grievance is filed on or after June 1 which, if left unresolved until the beginning of the following school year, could result in irreparable harm to a party in interest, the time limits set forth herein shall be reduced so that the grievance procedure may be exhausted prior to the end of the school term or as soon thereafter as practicable.

3. Level One.

(a) A teacher with a complaint shall first discuss it with his immediate supervisor and/or principal, either directly or with the Association's School Representative, with the objective of resolving the matter informally.

(b) Beyond Level One all complaints are considered grievance and must be presented through the Grievance Committee.

4. Level Two.

(a) In the event that the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his complaint at Level One or in the event that no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after presentation of the complaint, he may file a grievance in writing with the Chairman of the Committee on Professional Rights and Responsibilities within five (5) school days after the decision at Level One or fifteen (15) school days after the complaint was presented, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the Chairman shall refer it in writing to the Superintendent of Schools.

(b) The Superintendent shall represent the Board at this level of the grievance procedure. Within ten (10) school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Superintendent, the Superintendent or his designee shall meet with the aggrieved person in an effort to resolve it.

(c) If a teacher does not file a grievance in writing with the Chairman of the Committee on PR & R and the written grievance is not forwarded to the Superintendent within thirty (30) school days after the teacher knew or should have known of the act or condition on which the grievance is based, then the grievance shall have been waived. A dispute as to whether a grievance has been waived under this paragraph shall be subject to mediation pursuant to Level Four.

5. Level Three.

(a) In the event that the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Two, or in the event no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after he has first met with the Superintendent or his designee, he may file the grievance in writing with the Chairman of the Committee on PR & R within five (5) school days after a decision by the Superintendent, or fifteen (15) school days after he has first met with the Superintendent, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the Chairman of the Committee on PR & R shall refer it to the Board. Within ten (10) school days after receiving the written grievance, the Board shall meet with the aggrieved person and the PR & R Committee for the purpose of resolving the grievance. The ultimate decision on the grievance at Level Three shall, however, be rendered by the full Board.

6. Level Four.

(a) In the event that the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Three, or in the event no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after he has first met with the Board, he may, within five (5) school days after a decision by the Board or fifteen (15) school days after he has first met with the Board, whichever is sooner, request in writing the Committee on PR & R to submit his grievance to mediation. If the Committee on PR & R determines that the grievance is meritorious and submitting it for mediation is in the best interest of the Danbury School system, it may by written notice to the Board submit the grievance to mediation within fifteen (15) school days after receipt of a request by the aggrieved person.

(b) The parties agree to follow procedures for mediation as stated in Public Act 298, Section 5a.

(c) In the event the mediation is not satisfactory the PR & R Committee may submit the grievance to arbitration. The decision to submit to arbitration must be the responsibility of the PR & R Committee. Written notice of the decision to seek arbitration shall be given to the Board. Within ten (10) school days after such written notice of arbitration, representatives of the Board and the Committee on PR & R shall agree upon and select an arbitrator or arbitrators. If the parties cannot agree upon an arbitrator or arbitrators at this meeting, a request for a list of five (5) arbitrators shall be made to the American Arbitration Association by the Committee on PR & R. Beginning with the Association acting through the Committee on PR & R, the Association and the Board shall alternately strike a name from the list until only one (1) person remains, who shall be the arbitrator.

(d) The arbitrator so selected shall confer with representatives of the Board and the Committee on PR & R and hold hearings promptly and unless extended by mutual agreement, shall issue his decision not later than twenty (20) days from the date of the closing of the hearings, or, if oral hearings have been waived, then from the date the final statements and proofs are submitted to him. The arbitrator's decision shall be in writing and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions on the issues submitted. The arbitrator shall be without power or authority to make any decision which requires the commission of an act prohibited by law or which is violative of the terms of this Agreement, nor can he add to, subtract from or modify any terms of this Agreement, establish or change any salary rate or job classification. The decision of the arbitrator shall be submitted to the Board and to the Association and, subject to law, shall be final and binding, provided that the arbitrator shall not usurp the functions of the Board or the proper exercise of its judgment and discretion under law and this Agreement.

(e) The costs for the services of the arbitrator including per diem expenses, if any, and actual and necessary travel and subsistence expenses, shall be borne equally by the Board and the Association.

7. Rights of Teachers to Representation.

(a) No reprisals of any kind shall be taken by any party to this Agreement against any party in interest, any witness, any member of the Committee on PR & R or any other participant in the grievance procedure by reason of such participation.

(b) Any party in interest may be represented at all stages of this grievance procedure by a person of his own choosing, by an officer of any teacher organization other than the Association or its affiliates. When a teacher is not represented by the Association the Association shall have the right to be present and to state its views at all stages of this grievance procedure.

8. Miscellaneous.

(a) If, in the judgment of the Committee on PR & R, a grievance affects a group or class of teachers, the Committee on PR & R may submit such grievance in writing to the Superintendent directly and the processing of such grievance shall be commenced at Level Two. The Committee on PR & R may process such a grievance through all levels of the procedure even though the aggrieved persons do not wish to do so.

(b) Decisions rendered at Levels Two and Three of the grievance procedure shall be in writing setting forth the decision and the reasons therefor and shall be promptly transmitted to all parties in interest and to the Chairman of the Committee on PR & R. Decisions rendered at Level Four shall be in accordance with the procedures hereinbefore set out therefor.

(c) Forms for filing and processing grievances and other documents necessary under the procedure shall be prepared by the Superintendent and given appropriate distribution so as to facilitate operation of the grievance procedure. All documents, communications and records dealing with the processing of a grievance shall be filed separately from the personnel files of the participants.

ARTICLE XV

POLICIES AND REGULATIONS

A. At the start of each school year a complete copy of all Board of Education policies and administrative procedures as accepted to date shall be placed on file in the Principal's office of each school. Other copies shall be given to Board members and be available at the Superintendent's office. Any teacher or administrator is free to consult an available copy of the policies.

B. All teachers shall, at the start of each school year, be furnished with a complete copy of all administrative rules and regulations pertaining to their particular school. These policies, rules and regulations shall be furnished in loose-leaf notebook form so that changes, additions and delections may be conveniently inserted.

ARTICLE XVI

TEXTBOOKS

A. Whenever possible the Board agrees to provide each pupil in a classroom with his own textbooks.

B. The Board agrees to consider the recommendations of the curriculum committee and all interested parties in formulating a choice of texts. The Superintendent, however, shall have the responsibility of recommending to the Board, after due consideration, textbook changes, courses of study and other curriculum matters.

ARTICLE XVII

CONTRACTS

The Board hereby agrees to use the teacher's Initial Contract, Long Term Contract and Annual Salary Agreement forms as adopted in 1966-67.

ARTICLE XVIII

HEALTH INSURANCE

A. All personnel covered by this Agreement shall be eligible to receive Blue Cross, C. M. S. and Major Medical coverage for themselves as outlined below.

B. The Board of Education shall provide at no cost to the staff member the following individual medical health insurance benefits.

1. Extended Blue Cross with semi-private room credit Rider plus outpatient Hospital Benefits Rider

2. Connecticut Medical Service preferred contract

3. Major Medical coverage as currently carried (1966-1967)

ARTICLE XIX

SALARIES

A. The Salary program of this section applies to the following members of the instructional staff:

1. all classroom teachers

2. all teachers and other staff members on a full time assignment in these programs:

a. classes for Physically Handicapped
b. classes for Mentally Retarded
c. Guidance Counselors
d. Psychological Examiners
e. Social Workers
f. Speech Teachers
g. Reading Teachers
h. Teachers of Homebound Students
i. Adult Education Teachers
j. Summer School Professional Staff

B. When employing new staff, the Superintendent shall place the teacher on the appropriate step in the salary schedule, taking into account:

1. Degree status

2. Previous teaching experience in either public or private schools and of a continuous nature more than 90 school days of any school year. Short term substitution shall not be considered or evaluated.

3. Military service as covered in C below.

C. Any teacher may apply for military credit in achieving placement on the salary schedule. Military credit of one year shall be granted for twelve months military service, two years for twenty-one months or more military service. The maximum credit applicable is two years. No partial credits are applicable.

The military service may have occurred at any time prior to or during employment in the Danbury School system.

No credit shall be allowed toward longevity increments except as covered in D below.

D. A longevity benefit dependent on the length of service in the City of Danbury School system shall be added to the annual salary.

1. The continuity of employment will not be considered broken by:

a. approved leave
b. military leave

2. Approved leave shall not count as accrued time in obtaining longevity.

3. Military leave granted to regularly employed professional staff shall not break the employment continuity and the time of service shall count toward accrued time in obtaining longevity.

4. Each longevity benefit shall be the equivalent of an incremental step.

a. For twenty years service, a salary adjustment of one increment shall be added to the basic annual salary. This increment shall bear the same ratio difference with the last step of the teachers' schedule as that difference existing between the last step and the next to last step of the current teachers' schedule.

b. For twenty-five years service, a salary adjustment of two increments shall be added to the basic annual salary. These increments shall bear the same ratio difference with the last step and each other as that difference existing between the last step and the next to last step of the current teachers' schedule.

5. Longevity benefits shall not be used in computing administrative maximum salaries.

6. The amount of longevity benefit as defined shall be the same for all qualifying personnel independent of contract length.

E. In order to clarify points of the salary schedule it is necessary to define degrees and graduate study.

1. A bachelor's degree is defined as a baccalaureate degree earned at a college or university approved by the Board.

2. A master's degree is defined as a graduate degree -- i.e., a degree for which an initial baccalaureate degree is required -- earned at a college or university approved by the Board.

3. Advanced graduate study is defined as follows:

a. A second master's degree in a discipline other than the discipline in which the initial master's degree or master's degree equivalency was attained. For example, a master's degree in administration, supervision, guidance, and the like would be considered a graduate degree in the field of Education. A person seeking salary credit for advanced graduate study (sixth year) and already receiving salary credit for a master's degree in Education would need to present a master's degree in a subject field such as English, mathematics, science, foreign languages, history, and the like.

b. The acquisition of a 6th year professional certificate based on a planned graduate program of study.

c. The completion of 30 hours of graduate course work in a planned program provided the institution issues a statement that the work so completed is equivalent to a certificate of Advanced Graduate Study and the Superintendent accepts the credits and courses offered.

d. Doctorate is defined as a doctoral degree earned at a college or university of approved and accredited status.

F. Teachers newly hired to the system are effectively employed and entitled to salary after attendance at the first scheduled meeting or exercise of the current school year calendar.

G. Teachers who are a part of the system are effectively employed and entitled to salary adjustments or movement on schedule (teachers or administrators) as follows:

1. 10 month teacher's schedule - on the first day of physical attendance at a scheduled exercise listed in the current school year calendar on or after September 1st.

2. 10 month adminstrator - on the first day of physical attendance at a scheduled exercise listed in the current school year calendar on or following the published year beginning date of the Superintendent.

3. 11 month administrator - on the first day of physical attendance in school or office on or following the published year beginning date of the Superintendent.

4. 12 month administrator - on the first day of physical attendance in school or office on or following July 1.

H. Any teacher on a leave of absence with or without pay shall continue on the payroll at the salary step existent at the start of the leave. Adjustments in step and salary will only be made as necessary when the leave is concluded and the teacher is in physical attendance at scheduled exercises, classes or office.

I. Summer School

Payments for summer school work are to be determined as follows:

1. A full program shall be a four hour program daily for 30 teaching days

2. Compensation shall be 10% of the teacher's basic salary for 1967-68. Longevity increments or level of responsibility ratios shall not apply.

3. A half program shall be a two hour program daily for 30 teaching days or a four hour program daily for 15 teaching days.

4. Compensation for a half program shall be 5% of the teacher's basic salary for 1967-68. Longevity increments or level of responsibility ratios shall not apply.

5. When the teacher is not regularly employed in the Danbury School system his status shall be evaluated as in B above and his rate of pay established thereby.

J. Night School pay shall be $7.00 per hour for professional degree-holding personnel and $5.50 per hour for non-degree-holding personnel.

K. Homebound instruction compensation shall be $6.00 per hour without transportation allowance.

L. In order to assure that the placement of personnel employed in new positions in the school system bears an appropriate relationship to the level of responsibility of other staff members--it is agreed as a new position is established for the employment of certified professional personnel, the Board and/or the Superintendent shall negotiate with the proper committee of the Association on the establishment of the level of responsibility for such position.

M. In the event of any change or reclassification by the Board of administrative position, or in the event of any transfer or reassignment, the teacher or teachers affected thereby shall be paid the salary called for in the new position, so long as it does not result in a reduction in pay, provided that in the event of transfer or reassignment by reason of discontinuance of a position or on grounds of lack of competence or proper qualifications to hold or carry out the duties of the former position, the teacher or teachers affected thereby shall be paid the salary called for in the new position, whether or not a reduction. The issue of competence or proper qualifications as aforesaid shall be specifically subject to the grievance procedure provided in Article XIV of this Agreement.

N. Rate of Pay for Substitute Teachers

1. The rate of pay for substitute teachers shall be $18.00 per day.

2. After 10 consecutive days of substitute teaching in the same assignment the rate of pay will advance to $25.00 per day.

3. Whenever a substitute fills a position which will be vacant for at least 40 consecutive school days, and the substitute is not certified for regular employment, the substitute, from the eleventh day on, will be paid at the minimum salary rate on Level I of the teachers' schedule. Said contract shall terminate upon return of the regular teacher to his assignment.

4. Whenever a substitute fills a position which will be vacant for at least 40 school days, such substitute, if certified for the work being done shall, after a trial period of 10 days, be given a regular teacher's contract and be paid at a rate appropriate to his training and experience.

O. Determination of Experience, Minimum Requirement of a Working Year

For purposes of determining experience, a working year is defined as one in which salary or a combination of salary and accumulated sick benefits were paid for 90 school days or more in the school calendar year.

P. Salary Schedule (see attachment)

Qualification for Placement in Each Level

Level I

Bachelor's degree from a recognized college or university and temporary, provisional or standard teacher's certification.

Level II

Master's degree from a recognized college or university with temporary, provisional or standard teacher's certification.

Level III

1. Master's degree plus 30 additional advance graduate study credits in a planned program of study and temporary, provisional or standard teacher's certification. Evaluation of the credits subject to the Superintendent's approval.

2. 6th year certification from a recognized college or university with temporary, provisional or standard teacher's certification.

Level IV

Earned Doctorate

Q. Administrative Salaries

1. Administrative salaries are based on levels of responsibility as shown in the chart #8. Each level of responsibility has a corresponding ratio based on the formula:

Ratio = 1 + .02N

Where N = number rank of level

2. The ratio difference between levels is 2% based upon a 10 month Teacher's Salary base.

3. The maximum salary for a 10 month position is determined by multiplying the maximum of the applicable teachers' schedule by the ratio of the level.

   The maximum salary for 11 or 12 month positions is determined by adding 10% (for 11 months) or 20% (for 12 months) to the appropriate 10 month salary base and multiplying by the ratio of the applicable level.

4. Longevity increments are not included in the ratio computation. They are added to the salary which results from the ratio schedule.

5. In departments where there is a Coordinator, the duties of the department head will be carried out by the Coordinator.

6. The salary of the Elementary Administrative Intern is not negotiated. Instead, the salary is computed as follows:

   a. Determine the proper salary from the Teacher's Schedule
   b. Add 10% to (a) above
   c. Multiply (b) above by 1.04 and the result is the salary for the position.

   The salary for each year of the internship is to be computed on the same basis.

7. The following chart details Position, Level of responsibility and Salary Ratio of Danbury School System Administrative Personnel

Position	Level	Ratio
Assistant Superintendent of Schools	25	1.50
High School Principal	21	1.42
Director of Pupil Services and Guidance	15	1.30
Director of Elementary Education	15	1.30
Junior High School Principal	14	1.28
Director of Personnel	14	1.28
Administrative Assistant to Sup't. of Schools	12	1.24
Director of State and Federally Funded Programs	12	1.24
Director of Adult Education	12	1.24

Department Head (small)	2	1.04
Elementary Administrative Intern	2	1.04
Coordinator of Home and Family Services	2	1.04

8. The existence of a level does not presuppose a position at that level.

9. Positions may be added or removed by the Board of Education when required pursuant to pertinent sections of this Agreement.

10. The rate of advancement toward maximum salary and the amount of annual salary adjustment for personnel covered by this program shall be acted upon annually by the Board of Education based upon recommendations submitted by the Superintendent of Schools. The Superintendent shall be guided in his recommendation by the competency and performance of each individual in his position.

    Satisfactory service shall enable persons with a salary ratio of 1.15 or over to reach maximum in five (5) years.

    Satisfactory service shall enable persons with a salary ratio of less than 1.15 to reach maximum in less than 5 years. In these instances the minimum annual ratio spread increment shall not be less than .03.

11. A person entering an administrative position shall negotiate with the Superintendent of Schools and the Board of Education for his starting salary. If the person was a teacher in the Danbury system the starting salary shall be higher than his salary as a teacher and in the direction of maximum as determined by the ratio program.

12. A review of positions and levels is to be made yearly by the Personnel Policies Committee of the Board and the DEA Negotiating Committee. Recommendation will be made by this committee regarding the positions and levels for the consideration of the Superintendent and the Board of Education.

13. The position and length of contract for Danbury School system administrative personnel are:

Position	Length of Contract (Months)
Assistant Superintendent of Schools	12
High School Principal	12
Director of Pupil Services and Guidance	12
Director of Elementary Education	12
Junior High School Principal	12
Director of Personnel	12
Administrative Assistant to Sup't. of Schools	12
Director of State and Federally Funded Programs	12
Director of Adult Education	12
Principal of Large Elementary School	11
Assistant High School Principal	12
Principal of Medium Elementary School	11
Housemasters	11
Coordinator of Vocational Education	12
Principal of Small Elementary School	11
Supervisor of Special Education	11
Coordinator of Early Childhood Education	12
Coordinator of Physical Education	10
Coordinator of Art	10
Coordinator of Music	10
Coordinator of Educational Media and Technology	11
Coordinator of Elementary Librarians	11
Assistant Principal Elementary School	11
Reading Consultant	10
Department Head (large)	10
Department Head (small)	10
Elementary Administrative Intern	11
Coordinator of Home and Family Services	11

14. Contract Definition for Administrative Salaries

    a. 10 month contract - a contract extending for a period of 44 weeks with the starting time as indicated by the Superintendent of Schools.

    b. 11 month contract - a contract extending for a period of 48 weeks with the starting time as indicated by the Superintendent of Schools. Holidays and vacations are listed in the table of paid holidays.

    c. 12 month contract - a contract extending for a period of 52 weeks with the starting time as indicated by the Superintendent of Schools. Holidays and vacations are listed in the table of paid holidays.

15. The Holidays and vacations for Administrative personnel are:

Holiday	Contract 11 month	Contract 12 month
New Year's Day	1	1
Washington's Birthday	-	1
Good Friday	1	1
Memorial Day	1	1
July 4th	1	1
Labor Day	1	1
Fair Day	1	1
Columbus Day	1	1
Veteran's Day	1	1
Thanksgiving	2	2
Christmas	1	1
Vacation	15*	20
	26	32

* Estimated vacation period of three school recesses, Christmas, Winter and Spring. (Minimum)
 Four weeks vacation to be arranged with the Superintendent of Schools.

Holidays occurring on Sunday will be observed on the following Monday. Holidays occurring on Saturday may be observed on Saturday at the discretion of the Superintendent.

16. When a professional staff member is requested in writing by the Superintendent of Schools or his designee to work beyond the time stipulated in his contract, he shall be paid on a pro-rata basis.

R. Storm Days

1. On storm days, when school is cancelled during the day or for the full day, all Administrative Personnel in the Superintendent's Office and those in the Main Street Center who do not have direct relationship with pupils are expected to remain at work or to report to work unless excused by the Superintendent or his designee.

S. The maximum salary for the position of Psychological Examiner is computed by multiplying the ratio of 1.06 times the appropriate 10 months salary base, subject to Policy - pg. [D-13] - #10.

T. Termination of Employment Before the End of the School Year

1. In the event employment is terminated due to resignation, retirement, maternity leave of absence, etc., the salary payable shall be determined as follows:

    a. Determine the number of work days that would normally accrue to the teacher for a full schedule.

b. Determine the number of school days worked or the sum of school days worked and approved leave of absence with pay days.

c. Form a ratio of these numbers with (a) as the denominator and multiply this ratio by the contract rate of pay, the resulting product is the total salary to be paid.

d. In no instance can this sum exceed the contract salary.

U. Coaching Salaries for 1967-68

1. Coaching salaries shall be based upon the following nine (9) criteria:

a. Hours involved - to include total hours necessary to prepare and conduct the activity.
b. Number of students involved - to indicate the average number of students in the activity.
c. Experience necessary - to indicate specialization, quality and length of experience necessary for the activity.
d. Crowd-spectator reaction pressure - to indicate the degree of effect of activity performance on spectators and reflection on the teacher.
e. Injury element - to indicate significance of injury worry possibility for the teacher.
f. Weekends and vacation time involved - to indicate premium time necessary for supervision of the activity.
g. Equipment and facility responsiblity - to consider quantity, type and necessary care of equipment and facilities.
h. Indoor and outdoor environmental factors - to consider these factors in relation to the teacher's administration of the activity.
i. Travel, bus supervision - to consider the amount of bus travel and supervision, boys and girls, or both, involved in the activity.

2. Coaching salaries shall be computed in the following manner:

a. Any coach with less than three years of experience

1) Varsity Coach

Salary = N x X

2) Assistant Coach

Salary = N (.60 x X)

3) Junior Varsity Coach

Salary = N (.50 x X)

4) Assistant Junior Varsity Coach

Salary = N (.40 x X)

5) Head Freshman Coach

Salary = N (.40 x X)

6) Assistant Freshman Coach

Salary = N (.30 x X)

NOTE:
N = The total number of points established for the activity coached.

and

X = The dollar value per point.

b. Any coach with more than three years of experience

The dollar value per point shall increase by one dollar for each year of experience over three (3) years to a maximum of seven (7) years of experience.

e.g. The salary for a varsity coach with four years of experience would then be computed according to the following formula:

Salary = N (X + 1)

3. The monetary value per point shall be established at ten dollars ($10.00)

4. The total number of points awarded any activity shall be determined in the following manner:

Total points = The sum of A x B for each of the nine criteria established in #1.

Where A = The weighted score from 1 to 5 established for each of the nine criteria (See #5 below)

B = Each coaching activity evaluated from 1 to 5 as it relates to each of the nine criteria (See #6)

5. The following weights shall be established for each of the nine criteria listed in #1:

a. Hours involved = 4
b. Number of students = 3
c. Experience necessary = 3
d. Crowd Spectator Pressure = 3
e. Injury Element = 3
f. Weekends and Vacations = 3
g. Equipment and Facility Responsibility = 2
h. Indoor-Outdoor Environmental Factors = 2
i. Travel; Bus Supervision = 1

6. The following points shall be established for each activity listed:

Factor	Weight	Ftball	Basktball	Track	Bsball
a	4	5	5	4	3
b	3	3	2	5	3
c	3	5	5	5	5
d	3	5	5	3	3
e	3	5	3	3	3
f	3	3	5	2	3
g	2	5	1	3	3
h	2	4	2	4	3
i	1	3	5	5	5
Total A x B =		104	91	89	80

Factor	Weight	Wrestling	Cross Country	Soccer	Tennis	Golf
a	4	3	2	2	1	1
b	3	2	3	3	2	1
c	3	5	5	5	5	5
d	3	2	1	2	1	1
e	3	3	1	3	1	1
f	3	2	3	2	1	1
g	2	2	1	2	1	0
h	2	2	3	3	2	2
i	1	3	3	3	3	5
Total A x B =		65	58	66	43	40

7. Salaries for women coaches

Factor	Weight	Field Hockey	Basketball	Softball	Cheer-leading
A	4	2	2	2	2
B	3	1	2	2	1
D	3	1	1	1	1
F	3	0	0	0	1
Totals		35	38	38	31

8. The maximum salary for the position of Director of Athletics shall be computed by multipling the ratio of 1.06 times the appropriate 10 months salary base, subject to policy as outlined in item 10 on page [D-13] of this Agreement.

9. The maximum salary for the position of Business Manager for Athletics shall be $500.00.

ARTICLE XX

TUITION PAYMENTS

The Danbury Board of Education agrees to provide tuition reimbursement for course work and study in all courses required by the Board of Education exclusive of certification needs. Reimbursement shall be 100% of the cost for tuition.

ARTICLE XXI

SALARY DEDUCTIONS

A. Deductions required for health insurance, DEA, and/or CEA, and/or NEA dues and other benefits shall be made by the Administration through salary withholding.

B. Teachers may elect once in any year to accept 21, 24 or 26 payments for salary.

ARTICLE XXII

NEGOTIATION OF SUCCESSOR AGREEMENT

A. Not later than January 15 of the year of expiration of this Agreement, and subject to the provisions of Public Act 298 as the same may be amended, the Board agrees to initiate negotiations with the Association over a Successor Agreement in a good faith effort on both sides to reach continuing agreement not only on salaries and other conditions of employment but also on other matters of personnel policy and relationships which may then be of mutual concern and interest. Any agreement so negotiated shall apply to all members of the bargaining unit and shall be reduced to writing and signed by the parties.

B. During negotiation, the Board and the Association shall present relevent data, exchange points of view, and make proposals and counter-proposals. Each party shall make available to the other, upon request, information within its possession which is not privileged under law and which is relevant to the subject under discussion. Either party may, if it so desires, utilize the services of outside consultants and may call upon professional and lay representatives to assist in the negotiations.

C. If the negotiations described in Section A of this Article XXII reach an impasse, the procedure set forth in Section 5 of Public Act 298 shall be followed with respect to those matters of salary and other conditions of employment covered by the Act.

ARTICLE XXIII

THE CONSULTATION PROCEDURE

It is recognized by the Board and the Association that all situations and developments could not be anticipated at the time of negotiation of this document. To achieve rapport between the Board and the Association it is agreed that there shall be periodic informal meetings held between the negotiating groups of each organization. Such meetings shall be requested by the Association or the Board as deemed necessary by either party.

In the event situations or developments indicate that the strict letter of this document cannot be adhered to and a change in the existing agreement is deemed necessary by the Board or the Association, then in such event the Board and the Association agree to the following procedure:

1. If a proposal is initiated by the Association, it shall be submitted in writing with the request for a meeting to the Board, who shall acknowledge receipt within five (5) days thereafter and a committee designated by the Board shall meet with the Association to discuss the proposal within fifteen (15) days thereafter. If as a result of this meeting or subsequent meetings arranged to the mutual satisfaction of the Association and the Committee of the Board, agreement is reached on the proposal, it shall be presented to the Board and the Association as a joint recommendation of the Committee and the Association. If the Board rejects the joint recommendation of the Committee and the Association, the Association shall have the right to negotiate the proposal with the Board as set forth in Paragraph three (3) below.

2. If the proposal is initiated by the Board, the Board shall submit the same in writing to the Association, which shall acknowledge receipt within five (5) days thereafter and meet with a committee of the Board to discuss the proposal within fifteen (15) days thereafter. If as a result of this meeting or subsequent meetings arranged to the mutual satisfaction of the Committee of the Board and the Association, agreement is reached on the proposal, it shall be presented to the Board and the Association as a joint recommendation of the Committee and the Association. If the Association rejects the joint recommendation of the Committee and the Association, the Board shall have the right to negotiate the proposal with the Association as set forth in Paragraph three (3) below.

3. Should consultation, as set forth in Paragraphs 1 and 2 above, fail to effect the recommended change, the procedure shall be as follows:

   a. Any proposal initiated by the Association shall be submitted in writing to the Board which shall acknowledge receipt in writing within five (5) days thereafter and meet with the Association to negotiate the proposal within fifteen (15) days thereafter.

   b. Any proposal initiated by the Board shall be submitted in writing to the Association which shall acknowledge receipt in writing within five (5) days thereafter and meet with the Board to negotiate the proposal within fifteen (15) days thereafter.

4. Any proposal approved by both the Board and the Association shall be reduced to writing, signed by the Board and the Association, and shall become an addendum or an amendment to the existing agreement when appropriate.

ARTICLE XXIV

DURATION

The provisions of this Agreement shall be effective as of July 1, 1967 and shall continue and remain in full force and effect for the period of one full year from and after said date.

In Witness Whereof, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals as one the day and year first above written.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING IN EDUCATION

Address delivered at the Annual Meeting of School Boards Institute, sponsored by the Pennsylvania School Study Council and held at the Pennsylvania State University, April 3, 1967.

by

Fred M. Heddinger, First Vice President, Pennsylvania School Boards Association.

John Foster Dulles once said "Social progress does not have to be bought at the price of individual freedom."

Everyone engaged in the educational enterprise today would do well to carefully consider the truth of this statement. Perhaps nothing so aptly describes the situation that is developing in the headlong drive by teachers' groups for more tightly knit organization and collective negotiations. Because I have been asked to react to three particular facets of collective negotiations. I do not intend to undertake a depth study of motivating factors which are influencing the current pattern of behavior of teachers and their organizations. However, one cannot discuss the desirability, legality, or any other facet of collective bargaining in education without giving some perspective to the scene as it now exists.

Teachers, under the strong encouragement and sometimes duress of employee organizations geared to a high powered struggle for dues paying memberships, are at the threshold of working relationships in education which may have as a part of the price to be paid not only loss of individual freedom but also loss of many professional prerogatives and stature as professionals.

Perhaps what I have to say here today on collective negotiations will not be particularly popular with any segment of educational community. But it is about time that we begin to identify the specific problems that require attention rather than shadow box with the generalities that are so often used for whipping boys.

First, let's recognize that the quest for contracts or negotiation agreements is not necessarily the result of widespread dissatisfaction nor necessarily the result of problems that exist in education. Two strong employee organizations, competing with each other for the affection and dues income of a very large body of members and potential members, are often deliberately contributing to the heat that exists in the educational arena. Under such circumstances, school boards and school administrators - as well as legislators - must recognize that what they agree to do or do not agree to do may have a very little bearing on whether or not they end up with pressures for a contract or a negotiation agreement.

Secondly, we should recognize that the educational scene is suddenly beset with a host of newly established experts in the almost virgin field of collective bargaining in education. To a large degree these experts fall into two categories. On the one hand, persons with a great deal of industrial labor relations experience are often attempting to literally transplant industry experience into the field of education. On the other hand, persons with a great deal of experience in education but virtually no experience in the process of collective bargaining are working at setting precedents in bargaining in the educational field without fully appreciating the significance and long term consequence of some of their actions. To some extent, one may reasonably question if some of these people are a part of the solution to the problem or are instead a part of the problem.

Statements like "teachers wish to sell their services for the maximum possible return. On the other hand, school boards wish to purchase the services of teachers for as little as possible", which is a statement taken from the book Collective Negotiations for Teachers, is an example of some of the broad generalizations that are today troubling the educational scene. This same kind of generalization can be better made about any field of effort other than education for it gives no recognition to the fact that school boards have often joined with teachers in leading the way to better salaries for teachers. I have a fond regard for Mike Lieberman and Mike Moscow, authors of Collective Negotiations for Teachers, and would recommend their book as an important reference tool. It is not, however, an objective analysis of collective bargaining in education but rather, gives guidelines as to how to get into collective bargaining despite the caution that it contains that industrial labor relations precedents are not necessarily valid precedents for education.

The two major employee organizations vying to represent teachers claim to have widely different philosophic points of view regarding what they are attempting to do. In practice it appears increasingly difficult to distinguish one from the other on the basis of group behavior, and as an interesting sidelight, some time ago a public statement was made by one group suggesting that the two organizations should merge into one. There are a couple of significant differences which are worthy of note however.

The one group has clearly addressed itself to the "bread basket" issues and has made no effort to hide the fact that it does not consider school administrators a part of its family.

The other group fires up a great many high sounding platitudes about professional maturity and improved school board effectiveness through professional negotiations but in practice seems to leave three distinct impressions. The first of these is that the underlying issue is clearly "bread basket" in nature. The second is that their approach to collective bargaining is clearly marked by immaturity, not maturity. A truly mature approach to such an issue would quickly recognize that many of the things for which collective bargaining procedures are sought are clearly beyond the reasonable purview of collective bargaining. And the third is that although concern is espoused for maintaining a house in which the administrator will continue to be a fellow worker in education, behavior clearly indicates that administrators belong with the "bad guys" the role that appears to have been assigned to school boards.

If collective bargaining is to be the future pattern for teachers and education, perhaps we should clear the air of all the claptrap that presently serves to confuse the scene.

In many respects a collective bargaining procedure is a great deal simpler mode of operation for school administrators and school boards than is the manner in which administrators and school boards now work in endeavoring to meet the needs of individuals. School boards, administrators, and teachers should clearly understand that this is true.

Recognizing this, all three groups should then deliberately and thoughtfully determine - based on their local working relationships - if collective bargaining procedures will truly serve their individual and mutual objectives. It is especially important for teachers to assess this basic issue as independently and as free from organizational pressue as they can, for collective bargaining will likely result in less attention and consideration for their individual personal desires and needs than they now enjoy even though such a course may be simpler and less time consuming for administrators and school boards.

If the decision is to be that collective bargaining will be the order of the day for teachers and education, then a couple of other painful but necessary decisions must also be reached. First, school administrators must recognize that they clearly are managers of educational enterprise and, as such, can no longer equivocate and attempt to serve dual roles as the teachers' boy with the teachers and as the school boards' boy with the school board. Unfortunately, some of the heat on the educational scene stems from administrators attempting to play school boards against teachers, thus attempting to preserve for themselves an imaginary neutral role. Under collective bargaining, administrators are agents of school boards and if they are not prepared or willing to accept the full responsibility of this role they would be well advised to make way for successors who will accept such responsibility.

Secondly, teachers, administrators, and school boards should recognize that much of the legislation enacted over the years by the states to regulate salaries, working conditions, and fringe benefits in education should be wiped from the books. If collective bargaining is to prevail, then subjects appropriate for collective bargaining should be regulated or adjusted by the collective bargaining process. Teachers have been quite successful in the past in obtaining legislative action on matters in which they had a strong interest. But it is difficult to believe, for example, that teachers or administrators would reasonably expect that the sixteen or more provisions of the existing Pennsylvania School Code dealing with items normally subject to collective bargaining in industrial practice should still be regulated by law in education and that collective bargaining should be superimposed on top of such provisions. Tenure, mandated salary schedules and increments, discharge procedures, retirement benefits, and a variety of additional legislated conditions of employment can be expected to give way to collective bargaining on such matters.

Now let's consider if professional negotiations agreements or contracts are desirable. School boards, administrators, and teachers alike just do not understand the fundamental issues if they naively believe that having a contract, or not having a contract, really solves any specific problems or, for that matter, necessarily leads to solutions to specific problems in education.

Working relationships between groups of people or levels of educational effort are not tied to the existence or nonexistence of negotiation agreements or contracts. Repeatedly I have made the point to audiences that ideal working relationships can and do exist without contracts whereas most unsatisfactory working relationships may and do exist even though a nearly ideal contract may exist. Good working relationships require constant attention. I have no patience with administrators who blame school boards, or school boards who blame administrators, or teachers who blame school boards and administrators for poor working relationships. When poor working relationships exist, usually all three groups are at fault and all three groups should be working at improving such a condition with or without a contract.

Administrators especially should be sensitive to their prime responsibility for working relationships and school boards should see to it that their administrator does fulfill his key role in maintaining good relationships while getting his overall mission accomplished. The outdated practice of some administrators who find it convenient to glibly blame school boards for ills that they cannot control adds only unnecessary heat to the scene while pointing up their lack of ability to effectively manage educational enterprise.

For typically reasonable groups of teachers, administrators, and school boards negotiation agreements or contracts are not desirable.

For teachers who have been encouraged to believe that contracts will solve all their problems, it could well be that contracts will instead build whole new sets of problems. If they are concerned about personal attention, they should recognize that under collective bargaining structure they will likely receive less rather than more personal attention. If they are concerned about communications with the administrator or school board, it is unlikely that insertion of a third party and another intermediate step will by itself improve communications. If they are concerned about the administrator likely representing their point of view to the school board or to the public at large, do they really believe that forcing the administrator to more formally align himself with the school board is likely to work toward a more favorable solution to the particular problem in which they are interested? If they are concerned about becoming merely a number in an ever increasingly complex system of larger school units, do they really believe that having a negotiations committee represent them will do anything except hasten the trend toward becoming just a number?

Before teachers become irrevocably committed to collective bargaining, they should recognize that they are traveling a path which - on the basis of present trends - can easily end up with teachers becoming another organized labor group under the general cognizance of the National Labor Relations Board with all of the added implications of federal control beyond those that presently exist under the Office of Education and Office of Economic Opportunity programs. If this is what they think they want they should get some firsthand experience from the organized labor field and compare what they presently have to what they are likely to get. The actual practice of collective bargaining is generally quite different than the theory and textbooks would represent it to be.

For administrators, collective bargaining agreements will not solve problems but instead can well add to their problems. In the first place, at the present time neither administrator nor teacher really understands the rules of the game for collective bargaining. While teachers and administrators are learning the mode of operation under such an arrangement, they are highly subject to manipulation by profit motivated or vested interest third parties. Also, the process of establishing suitable new ground rules for the relatively virgin field of collective bargaining in education can be overly time consuming, thus serving to add to the frustrations already evidenced in some quarters.

I am not going to debate the legality of collective bargaining agreements in education in Pennsylvania or in any other state. With the unpredictable behavior of our courts today, it is virtually impossible to try to identify what is legal or binding today and if these same things will have the same status tomorrow. So for advice on legality seek the counsel and advice of a competent solicitor who has done his homework in this subject.

From our discussion today, there are some points that I would like to leave with school boards, administrators, and teachers.

1. In general, you are better off without contract. If you have problems, identify the specific problems and work on those specifics, don't generalize and believe that a contract or agreement will clean up problems generally.

2. The Pennsylvania School Boards Association has repeatedly advised school boards and administrators to go slow on contract. If your local situation dictates that you should enter into an agreement, seek competent legal opinion before entering into such an agreement. The Solicitor's Association of PSBA will endeavor to give guidance to your solicitor. A broad, general recognition agreement is probably in the best interests of all the parties concerned if an agreement must be consummated. To this end, the general form of agreement used by Vermont may be helpful as a guide.

3. Administrators should recognize that they now stand with school boards, not in an imaginary neutral zone.

4. School boards should insist that their administrator behave as their agent, not as an intermediate who endeavors to tread the middle of the road.

5. Colleges and universities preparing teachers should quit inculcating teachers with the image that school boards are "bad guys". All too often, teachers fresh out of school with no prior experience are prepared to do battle with school boards and administrators almost from the start, simply because they have been prepared to expect the worst by their teachers and professors at the colleges and universities. For the most part, school boards and administrators are reasonable and competent people dealing with social, technological, and educational pressures unequalled in the past.

6. Teachers should quit projecting in their classes an image to their students that school administrators and school boards are responsible for unsatisfactory conditions that very often the teachers themselves have done very little to improve. Education is a three-pronged effort requiring close cooperation between all three levels. Blaming each other for shortcomings or problems merely serves to lower the public regard for the entire effort, affording reformers and devotees of central management further food on which to feed and build.

7. School boards and administrators should be moving in the direction of utilizing all the human resources available to them in gearing their educational program to local needs. If this is done well, everyone engaged in this American educational venture will be so busy working on the specific problems that exist that agitation for organization by national employee organizations may be recognized for what it is, a power play between organized labor and a professional association for dues income and membership which has little to do with educational issues.

If salaries are the underlying issue which most people see as a goal through more militant organization - and there is much evidence to indicate that this is true - then let me urge school boards, administrators, and teachers to devise year around educational programs that make sense so that teachers can commit themselves to a more normal twelve month work effort and, by this, obtain salary schedules that are consistent with such a commitment and more comparable to other fields of endeavor. This is something that can be done only through the cooperative effort of all three groups.

If there is a single theme that I can leave with you today, it is a plea for closer cooperation between school boards, administrators, and teachers. Over the past four or five years at the State level a great deal has been accomplished from the cooperative effort of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the Pennsylvania School Boards Association working together as the Joint Action Committee for Education. This year - for the first time - at the National level all of the principal educational interests including NEA, AASA, PTA, NSBA, the Association of Chief State School Officers, and the Association of State Boards of Education have joined together in voicing mutual concern in education. Identification of specific problems, and working together jointly toward mutually acceptable solutions for these specific problems, is the surest way of achieving the social progress in education that all of us would like to see.

1966-67 SALARY SURVEY PUBLICATIONS NOW AVAILABLE

Every two years the NEA Research Division comprehensively surveys all United States school systems on the subject of salaries paid to professional personnel. The results of that survey are now available in two Research Reports.

Research Report 1967-R11: 23rd Biennial Salary Survey of Public-School Professional Personnel, 1966-67: National Data. 36 p. $1.00. #435-13324

Summarized in this volume are national estimates of salaries paid all teachers, principals, superintendents, and a selected group of other professional employees. The summary data for each position are provided in five categories: national data for all operating systems, and four enrollment groups (under 300; 300-2,999; 3,000-24,999; and 25,000 or more).

For each of the five categories the following data are reported: estimated number of school systems and number of personnel for the reported category, mean salary, first quartile (25th percentile), median salary, third quartile (75th percentile), and a distribution of salaries paid reported by percent of personnel within dollar intervals.

Research Report 1967-R12: 23rd Biennial Salary Survey of Public-School Professional Personnel, 1966-67: Data for Systems with Enrollments of 12,000 or More. 259 p. $3.75. #435-13326

Listed for each of the 19 school positions listed in the Research Report 1967-R11, above, are data for all of the United States school systems with enrollments of 12,000 or more. For example, the following classroom teacher salary information is provided for each system:

- Mean salary paid for 1952-53, 1962-63, 1964-65, and 1966-67
- First quartile, median, and third quartile for 1966-67
- Distribution of salaries paid in 13 intervals from below $4,000 to $11,000 and over
- Number of teachers and mean salary paid for:

1. No degree and less than 4 years of college
2. Bachelor's degree or 4 years of college, but less than 5 years
3. Master's degree or 5 years of college, but less than 6 years
4. Six years of college but less than 7 years
5. S ven years of college or doctor's degree

Description and Analysis

MASSACHUSETTS ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES BARGAINING SESSIONS NOT SUBJECT TO OPEN MEETING LAW

In a recent opinion the Massachusetts Attorney General stated that collective bargaining sessions with employee organizations were not subject to the Open Meeting Law. His opinion was based on the interpretation that bargaining sessions were not school-board meetings and thus not subject to the Open Meeting Law.

CALIFORNIA APPEALS COURT UPHOLDS PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION ON NEGOTIATING COUNCIL; PROHIBITS REPRESENTATION ELECTIONS

On September 25, 1967, the California Appeals Court upheld a permanent injunction preventing the Berkeley Board of Education from holding a representation election among its teachers, and also provided an important decision relating to the representation of California certificated employees on a negotiation council proportional to organization membership.

The court specifically prohibited representation elections among the certificated employees in the public schools and upheld the exclusion of the same personnel from provisions of the Labor Code.

The appeal, brought by the Berkeley Federation of Teachers and the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) against a permanent injunction obtained by the Berkeley Teachers Association (NEA) against the Berkeley Board of Education, upheld the representation of certificated employees through the use of a negotiating council, with members of the council appointed on the basis of organization membership. The AFT argued that the terms "members" and "members in good standing" were not defined by the Legislature for the purposes of the negotiating council and therefore did not apply.

The court disagreed with the AFT argument and later in the decision indicated that "membership in good standing in an employee organization must be accepted as a designation by them of that organization to represent them on a negotiating council."

WISCONSIN SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS CHARGE OF UNFAIR LABOR PRACTICES AGAINST MUSKEGO-NORWAY SCHOOL DISTRICT

In an August 1965 decision, the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board came to the following "Conclusion of Law" in a case involving charges brought against the Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools:

1. That the Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools Joint School District No. 9, Town of Muskego, Waukesha County and Town of Norway, Racine County, by its agents Robert J. Kreuser and Jack G. Refling, by threatening its teachers with the forfeiture of two days pay, if they failed to attend teachers' conventions and failed to retain membership in the sponsoring organization, interfered with, coerced, and restrained teachers in its employ in the exercise of their right to freely affiliate with, or decline to affiliate with, any employed organization, and, thereby, has committed, and is committing, prohibited practices within the meaning of Section III.70 (3) (a) 1 of the Wisconsin Statutes.

2. That Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools Joint School District No. 9, Town of Muskego, Waukesha County, and Town of Norway, Racine County, by its School Board, by refusing and failing to renew Carston C. Koeller's teaching contract for the year 1964-65 upon the recommendation of Kreuser, Refling, Ussel and Todd, discriminated against him in regard to the conditions of his employment, for the purpose of discouraging membership in and activities on behalf of the Muskego-Norway Education Association and, thereby, has committed, and is committing, prohibited practices, within the meaning of Section III.70 (3) (a) 1 and 2 of the Wisconsin Statutes.[1/]

The school board appealed the decision to the Waukesha County Circuit Court which declared the WERB decision null and void. The WERB appealed the Circuit Court decision to the Wisconsin Supreme Court which reversed the lower court and thus upheld the WERB.

In its decision, the full text of which begins on page C-1, the Court stated:

On the whole record we conclude that the WERB's finding No. 29 is supported by substantial evidence and reasonable inferences drawn therefrom in view of the entire record, that the failure to renew Koeller's teaching contract was motivated by his activities as chairman of the welfare committee of MNEA and not by any shortcomings Koeller may have had as a teacher nor upon his differences with certain policies of the school board and the respondent supervisory personnel.

Data and Statistics

NEGOTIATORS FOR THE SCHOOL BOARD

While the school board is vested with the final responsibility of ratifying a negotiation agreement or the items negotiated thereunder, the positions of the persons actually negotiating for the board vary considerably. In Massachusetts, negotiation agreements in 94 percent of the school systems involved the school board in the negotiation process: the full board in 41 percent, a subcommittee of the board in 41 percent, and board members and school administrative personnel in 12 percent. In contrast, in California, the board members were involved in agreements in only 15 percent of the school systems. However, the teachers in California negotiated only with the superintendent in 69 percent of the systems as compared with 2 percent of the systems in Massachusetts.

Members of the school board were involved in the negotiation process in 50 percent or more of the school systems in 30 of the 45 states with agreements. What may be more significant, however, is the well-developed trend for greater school-board involvement in negotiation as the size of the school system decreases, coupled with a trend of less delegation of the negotiation function to (or assumption by) the superintendent as the size of the school system decreases.

There are rather clear delineations of negotiation responsibility when the data are considered on a geographic basis. The school board is involved the least in the Far West (35.3 percent) followed by the Southwest (41.7 percent), while most highly involved in the Northeast (91.7 percent) and Mideast (86.4 percent).

The data above and the data provided in the accompanying tables were obtained by the NEA Research Division in its 1966-67 survey of written teacher/school board negotiation agreements in school systems with enrollments of 1,000 or more, and are furnished as reported by the school systems.

Judicial Decisions, Opinions, and Statutes

No. 43

August Term, 1966

STATE OF WISCONSIN: IN SUPREME COURT

Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools, et al.,

Respondents,

v.

Wisconsin Employment Relations Board,

Appellant.

APPEAL from a judgment of the circuit court for Waukesha county, CLAIR H. VOSS, Circuit Judge. Reversed.

In July, 1960, the Muskego-Norway Consolidated Joint School District was created. Nine graded schools and one high school were located in the district. In 1960 the Muskego-Norway Education Association (MNEA), an organization composed of practically 100 percent of all teaching and administrative personnel in the employ of the school district, was organized. The MNEA is affiliated with the Wisconsin Education Association (WEA), which renders assistance to local affiliates in regard to their representation of teachers in conferences and negotiations concerning salaries and other conditions of employment.

This controversy[1/] concerns certain activities in the school district during the period from 1960 through early 1964. On the one hand is a group of teachers employed by the district who in May, 1964, complained of violations of sec. 111.70, Stats., on the part of the school board and certain of its supervisory personnel. These teachers alleged that the school district coerced the teachers into joining the WEA, MNEA, or the Wisconsin Federation of Teachers Union by threatening to enforce a rule providing that wages would be deducted from the salary of any teacher taking off the two days of the annual teachers' convention who was not a member of any convening labor organization, and discouraged labor activity on the part of the teachers by its failure to renew the teaching contract of Carston C. Koeller because of his labor activities on behalf of the MNEA.

On the other hand are the school district; Robert J. Kreuser, superintendent of schools; Jack C. Refling, high school principal; Paul J. Ussel, assistant principal; and Charles A. Ladd, coordinator of instruction.

Certain facts in this involved dispute are uncontroverted and best be set forth here. Other pertinent facts, some controverted, are detailed in the opinion.

In the 1960-1961 school year Dr. Rossmiller, the superintendent of the school district at the time, suggested to the officers of the MNEA that they prepare proposals with respect to teachers' salaries and working conditions for the year 1961-1962, and the MNEA, through its welfare committee, formulated and submitted these proposals in the spring of 1961. The school board then directly disclosed to the MNEA the salaries and working conditions that it had decided upon for the year 1961-1962.

During the year 1961-1962 the MNEA welfare committee delayed preparation of its proposals for the year 1962-1963. Such delay was until January of 1962, when Kreuser became superintendent of schools.

By January, 1962, the MNEA had again formulated proposals but Kreuser informed members of the MNEA that they did not need to attend school board meetings as he would represent their interests. The committee's proposals were related orally and not in writing to Kreuser. MNEA members did not attend school board meetings in 1962-1963, but did present their proposals to the board.

Looking toward the school year 1963-1964, the MNEA welfare committee in the 1962-1963 year, then headed by Complainant Allan Walldren, requested Kreuser to furnish information as to the salaries in neighboring districts as well as all salaries being paid in the Muskego-Norway district. Kreuser furnished the information on outside teachers, but not on his district. Nevertheless the welfare committee submitted its proposals in writing and when Kreuser told them he would present the proposals to the board, the committee declined and on February 4, 1963, the full committee appeared at the board meeting for the purpose of discussing its proposals. The committee was dismissed from the board meeting and Kreuser announced the conditions of employment for the year 1963-1964 at a later special meeting of teachers employed by the district.

Carston Koeller, a first-year teacher in the district, was elected chairman of a reorganized and enlarged MNEA welfare committee for the 1963-1964 year. (He remained chairman at all times pertinent herein.) In September of 1963 the committee began operations by requesting salary information from Superintendent Kreuser. When this information was not forthcoming, the committee obtained it by circulating questionnaires to the teachers. The MNEA also began sending representatives to board meetings. Largely through Koeller's efforts, this information was tabulated prior to mid-January, 1964, and proposals for the year 1964-1965 were formulated. The committee worked hard and held as many as 26 meetings. Its proposals, which were very comprehensive and were approved by the MNEA membership, were presented to the personnel committee of the school board. The proposals dealt with matters of teacher salaries, insurance, personal and sabbatical leaves, class size and load, job security, teacher qualifications, and other matters supporting said proposals including various tables and graphs.

1/ Other aspects of this controversy were previously considered by this court in Muskego-Norway C.S.J.S.D. No. 9 v. W.E.R.B. (1966), 32 Wis. (2d) 478, 145 N. W. (2d) 689, 147 N. W. (2d) 541; rehearing granted, (1967), Wis. (2d), N. W. (2d).

The personnel committee took these proposals under advisement. The personnel committee met again with MNEA representatives and questioned the accuracy of these proposals and whether they represented the wishes of a majority of the teachers. Further questionnaires were circulated and modified proposals were submitted (as approved by the MNEA membership). The report and proposals were submitted to the board meeting on March 2, 1964. What transpired at that meeting and subsequently will be described later in the statement of facts.

Paralleling in importance the development of the MNEA as an effective representative of the teachers are the activities of the chairman of its welfare committee, Carston Koeller, both educational and as a leader in the MNEA. Mr. Koeller was hired by the school district in 1962 following three years of teaching experience in the air force and one year at Belleville, Wisconsin. Mr. Koeller taught five classes of general mathematics, a subject taken by students deficient in mathematics and incapable of comprehending algebra. These students were also slower learners in other subjects as well. In 1963, at the end of Koeller's first year of teaching, a report was filed by the then principal, Donald Helstad, listing him in the bottom quarter of the faculty in teaching ability, although this did not necessarily mean he was a poor teacher. Helstad advised that Koeller had shown as much progress as any other high school teacher at the time and Helstad unqualifiedly recommended that Koeller be rehired for the year 1963-1964. Koeller was retained. Subsequently, Koeller engaged in a number of activities related to his duties as a teacher rather than to his extracurricular duties with the MNEA.

1. On October 2, 1963, Koeller mailed to six parents a statement asking them to sign a request to give Mr. Koeller permission to use whatever physical means was necessary in order to enforce discipline. On October 7th the new principal, Refling, held a conference with Koeller informing him he was not to determine a course of discipline contrary to established school procedures. At this conference, Koeller's difficulty in handling students in study hall was also discussed. (Koeller had placed a female student in a large unlighted closet as a disciplinary procedure.)

2. On October 14th Koeller suggested in writing to a committee of teachers established to create procedures for disciplining study halls that enforcement of discipline could be implemented by "tweak or pull an ear, rap on head, pull hunk of hair or sit in front closet with door shut."

3. In the fall of 1963, football players were excused from their seventh-hour classes on the day of the game. On October 22nd Koeller sent a note to Principal Refling, objecting to this practice. Koeller was then called into a conference with Ussel and Refling, in which conference Koeller's disagreement with school policies and his lack of judgment in handling student situations were discussed. Koeller then appealed by letter directly to Mr. Guhr (school board president) but was told to go through the normal grievance procedures. No further action was taken on this matter except that on October 28th Refling sent Koeller a letter warning him about insubordination.

4. On December 2, 1963, following a visit to Koeller's classroom, Coordinator of Instruction Ladd made the following comments and suggestions for improving inadequacies in Koeller's teaching techniques: (a) More student "involvement," (b) "Less teacher talk," (c) the elicitation of "clear, confident responses" from students, (d) personal supervision of assignments, (e) various approaches to various students, and (f) permitting students to make their own evaluations. Koeller visited an experienced mathematics teacher from a Racine school and his class, and thereafter Ladd noticed that Koeller's teaching techniques improved.

5. On December 10, 1963, as a layman, Koeller wrote the state department of public instruction, concerning state aids formulas and the financial condition of the Muskego-Norway district. In this letter Koeller complained of inadequate facilities in the district.

6. On January 28, 1964, Koeller scheduled a meeting of the National Honor Society which conflicted with the meeting of the high school P.T.A. Koeller was given oral confirmation from Ussel but school policy required a written approval. A memo from the principal chastized Koeller for failing to obtain the approval of the principal, and Koeller circulated the memo.

7. On February 5, 1964, Koeller sent a student to the office with a note indicating he had suspended the student for three days. Koeller was told that the administration decided whether suspensions were in order. Koeller then publicly challenged the position of the administration in the MNEA newsletter, quoting from the private memo he had received from the administration. In the newsletter, Koeller maintained he had the right to suspend students for disciplinary reasons. Koeller was called into conference with the principal, where he was advised he was skating on "thin ice" in utilizing the MNEA newsletter to vent a private grievance.

8. On February 18th Koeller read the memo received in regard to the scheduling problem to the National Honor Society students and announced that this was the reason for resigning as adviser from the group. Koeller then sent Kreuser a note explaining his reasons for resigning and charging at Kreuser had exhibited vindictiveness toward him. Koeller subsequently withdrew this statement.

9. Koeller's record as a teacher includes having 43 disciplinary referrals to Principal Refling, while the 49 other teachers on the faculty had a total of 150 disciplinary referrals.

There is a dispute about what transpired at the March 2, 1964, meeting of the board. In addition to the salary-and-working-conditions proposals of the MNEA during executive session the board also considered whether to rehire Koeller. Kreuser denied that he made any recommendations at that session against renewing Koeller's contract. He denied that the subject was even discussed. Yet board member Vogel recalled that Kreuser had advised him on March 3d that Kreuser had made this recommendation at the meeting the previous night. Between March 2 and March 9, 1964, a summary of Koeller's activities was prepared and, upon the recommendation of Kreuser, at another executive session on March 9, 1964, the school board formally determined not to offer Koeller a teacher's contract for 1964-1965. On March 11, 1964, conditions of employment were again announced at a general teachers' meeting. No prior notice of action taken on its proposals was received by the MNEA.

On March 12, 1964, Koeller was called to Kreuser's office and given a notice that his contract would not be renewed. Kreuser read from a sheet of paper a number of reasons for the dismissal, but he did not give Koeller a copy of the list of the reasons even though Koeller requested one. Kreuser also advised Koeller that a successful contest of the discharge was unlikely, because all statutory requirements had been met. Further, Kreuser advised Koeller that such an appeal would be professional suicide because Koeller needed Kreuser's signature to obtain a life-time teaching certificate.

A dispute exists as to whether or not Kreuser first offered to give Koeller a recommendation for another job if Koeller would resign. Koeller's testimony indicates this is true while the testimony of Kreuser and Refling is that Koeller was only offered the opportunity to resign. Nonetheless, Koeller refused to resign and was then handed a prepared notice of termination, the letter stating that the action was "deemed advisable in view of actions and conduct on your part which have previously been discussed with you."

After a full hearing on the complaints, the WERB found:

"29. That the primary motivation of Kreuser's recommendation to the School Board not to renew Koeller's teaching contract for the 1964-1965 school year was not based on any shortcomings Koeller may have had as a teacher, nor upon his differences with certain policies with the School Board, but rather upon Koeller's activity and efforts on behalf of the MNEA Welfare Committee as the collective bargaining representative of the majority of the professional teaching personnel in the employ of the School District; that the discriminatory refusal of the School Board to renew Koeller's teaching contract and the recommendations with respect thereto made by Superintendent Kreuser and other supervisory employees of the School District, interfered, restrained and coerced not only Koeller, but also the remaining teachers in the employ of the School District in the exercise of their right to engage in lawful concerted activities."

And it reached the following conclusion of law:

"2. That Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools Joint School District No. 9, Town of Muskego, Waukesha County, and Town of Norway, Racine County, by its School Board, by refusing and failing to renew Carston C. Koeller's teaching contract for the year 1964-1965 upon the recommendation of Kreuser, Refling, Ussel and Ladd, discriminated against him in regard to the conditions of his employment, for the purpose of discouraging membership in and activities on behalf of the Muskego-Norway Education Association and, thereby, has committed, and is committing, prohibited practices, within the meaning of Section 111.70 (3) (a) 1 and 2 of the Wisconsin Statutes."

As to the allegation that the school board and supervisory personnel had interfered with the freedom of the teachers to join or not join employee organizations, the following appeared in a statement of school policy in a manual for teachers:

"It is expected that when school is closed for the purpose of attending professional meetings, teachers shall be in attendance at such meetings."

The WEA convention was planned for November 7 and 8, 1963. The Wisconsin Federation of Teachers also met on this date. In a November, 1963, memorandum from Kreuser to the administrators of the district it was stated:

"That as a matter of professional ethics no teacher that is not a member of the groups holding convention at this time can really expect time off with pay during these days."

This policy was implemented on the faculty of Muskego-Norway by Refling, who issued a memo (also on November 1, 1963) stating:

"We are making plans for everyone to attend next week's teachers convention. This brings up a matter of professional ethics that might be called to your attention at this time. That anyone not a member of either of the convening groups can hardly expect time off with pay."

Refling told one teacher that this meant he would have to join a teachers' organization in order to get paid.

As a conclusion of law on this matter, the WERB declared:

"1. That the Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools Joint School District No. 9, Town of Muskego, Waukesha County and Town of Norway, Racine County, by its agents Robert J. Kreuser and Jack G. Refling, by threatening its teachers with the forfeiture of two days pay, if they failed to attend teachers' conventions and failed to retain membership in the sponsoring organization, interfered with, coerced, and restrained teachers in its employ in the exercise of their right to freely affiliate with or decline to affiliate with, any employee organization, and, thereby, has committed, and is committing, prohibited practices within the meaning of Section 111.70 (3) (a) 1 of the Wisconsin Statutes."

The WERB ordered the school district and individual supervisory personnel to cease and desist from similar activities, to offer Koeller his former position without prejudice, to pay Koeller any damages he may have suffered and to post a notice to all teachers notifying them of the actions taken and future policy to be followed by the district.

A petition for review of the WERB's order was filed under ch. 227, Stats. Thereafter, judgment was entered setting aside the order of the WERB. On the merits the trial court found that the finding of the WERB that the school board's primary motivation for firing Koeller was his labor activities was based on speculation and conjecture. As to the teachers' convention issue, the trial court also set aside the WERB order declaring the state law requires schools to be closed and authorizes teachers' time off with pay only if they attend the conventions. Further, the trial court ruled that there had been no proof of any relationship between the school board and the administators. The WERB has appealed.

WILKE, J. Four issues are raised on this appeal:2/

First, is the authority of school boards under secs. 40.40 and 41.41, Stats., subject to the limitations of sec. 111.70, Stats.?

Second, is the WERB finding that respondents interfered with, coerced and restrained teachers in its employ in the exercise of their right to freely decline to affiliate with employee organizations supported by substantial evidence?

Third, is the WERB finding that the refusal of respondents to renew Koeller's contract was prompted by his labor activities supported by substantial evidence?

Fourth, must the WERB make an express finding that Kreuser, Refling, Ladd and Ussel were agents of the Muskego-Norway school board in order to impute their actions to the board in deciding whether unfair labor practices were committed?

Relation of Secs. 40.40, 40.41 and 40.45 and Sec. 111.70, Stats.

One of the principal premises for the trial court's decision was that secs. 40.40 and 40.41, Stats., require the school board to contract individually with each teacher each year. The trial court also approved the school board's policy of offering its teachers the choice of attending conventions or losing two days' pay. This policy, according to the trial court, merely complied with sec. 40.40 (3), which provides:

"The board may give to any teacher, without deduction from her wages, the whole or part of any time spent by her in attending a teacher's institute held in the county,

2/ The issue of the time taken by the WERB in rendering its decision and related findings, conclusions and order was considered by this court previously. See footnote 1, supra.

or a school board convention or the meeting of any teachers' association, upon such teacher's filing with the school clerk a certificate of regular attendance at such institute, convention or association, signed by the person conducting the institute or convention, or by the secretary of the association." (Emphasis added.)

The WERB found that by threatening its teachers with the forfeiture of two days' pay if they failed to attend teachers' conventions, the school district interfered with the teacher's rights guaranteed by sec. 111.70 (2), Stats., to freely affiliate with or decline to affiliate with any employee organization.3/

The provisions of sec. 111.70, Stats., apply to the authority of school districts to the same extent as the authority of other municipal governing bodies.4/ Sec. 111.70 was enacted after secs. 40.40 and 40.41 and is presumed to have been enacted with a full knowledge of pre-existing statutes.5/ Construction of statutes should be done in a way which harmonizes the whole system of law of which they are a part, and any conflict should be reconciled if possible.6/

Sec. 40.40 (3), Stats., provides that a school board may give to a teacher without deducting from her wages the whole or any part of time spent in attending a teachers' convention upon filing with the clerk a certificate showing such attendance. Sec. 40.45 provides that days on which state and county teachers' conventions are held are considered to be school days. Under sec. 111.70 (2) teachers have the right to refrain from affiliating with labor organizations and forcing teachers to join employee organizations is expressly forbidden by sec. 111.70 (3) (a) 1. These statutes are not necessarily in conflict. They can all be given effect by construing them together and ruling that teachers cannot be required to attend such conventions under threat of loss of pay, but that teachers who do not attend such conventions can be required to work for the school. In this way teachers can avoid deductions from their salaries while the right to refuse to join a labor organization guaranteed by sec. 111.70 (2) is preserved. If the teacher refuses to work, deductions from his salary could be made, but if the school does not offer work to teachers not attending conventions, the school cannot deny pay to such teachers.7/

Respondents also contend that secs. 40.40 and 40.41, Stats., permit the school board to refuse to rehire on any ground or for no reason at all. Assuming this to be true, secs. 40.40 and 40.41 can be modified by subsequent statutes which forbid refusing to rehire a teacher for a particular reason. For example, a school board may not refuse to rehire a teacher because of his race, nationality or political or religious affiliations.8/ Modification of statutes is a question of legislative policy. In 1959 the legislature enacted sec. 111.70 (3) (a), which prohibits municipal employers, including school districts, from:

"1. Interfering with, restraining or coercing any municipal employee in the exercise of the rights provided in sub. (2).

"2. Encouraging or discouraging membership in any labor organization, employee agency, committee, association or representation plan by discrimination in regard to hiring, tenure or other terms or conditions of employment."

This also restricts the reasons a teacher can be refused re-employment. A school board may not terminate a teacher's contract because the teacher has been engaging in labor activities.

Scope of Judicial Review.

The second and third issues concern whether crucial findings of the WERB are supported by credible evidence. This makes it necessary to state the standard of judicial review of the findings of the WERB. It is well established that under sec. 227.20 (1) (d), Stats., judicial review of the WERB findings is to determine whether or not the questioned finding is supported "by substantial evidence in view of the entire record."9/ This court has held that the key to the application of this standard is to determine what is meant by "substantial evidence."10/

In Copland this court quoted from an article by E. Blythe Stason11/ as follows:

'"[T]he term "substantial evidence" should be construed to confer finality upon an administrative decision on the facts when, upon an examination of the entire record, the evidence, including the inferences therefrom, is found to be such that a reasonable man, acting reasonably, might have reached the decision; but, on the other hand, if a reasonable man, acting reasonably, could not have reached the decision from the evidence and its inferences then the decision is not supported by substantial evidence and it should be set aside.'"12/

Moreover, in Copland we reiterated that "'substantial evidence' is 'such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion.' (Emphasis supplied.)"13/ In Copland we declared that the Interference with Right to Affiliate with Employee Organization.

In the instant case the evidence supports the WERB's finding and related conclusion that the respondents interfered with coerced and restrained teachers in the exercise of their right to freely affiliate with or decline to affiliate with any employee organization. The school district's policy expressed in the teacher's manual strongly implied that teachers were required to join the WEA. Memos circulated by Superintendent Kreuser and Principal Refling indicated that time off with pay would be granted only to teachers who were members of the convening groups (the WEA or the Federation of Teachers). The minutes of an executive committee contain the following statement:

"It was brought to the attention of the executive committee by the membership committee that some of our professional staff are not joining the WEA. Mr. Ussel stated that he had talked to the district office and said that wages will be deducted for anyone not attending the WEA Convention."

One of the complainants stated to Principal Refling, "It appears I have the choice of paying the seven bucks or losing two days pay," to which Refling replied, "That's about the size of it."

All these statements and actions indicate a policy of coercing teachers into joining the WEA (or its competitor organization) by threatening them with the loss of pay for failing to join. The WERB found that the WEA was an employee organization and, although this finding was not challenged, it is supported by the evidence. Coercing teachers to join an employee organization is a prohibited practice of sec. 111.70 (3) (a) 1, Stats. The WERB's order to the respondents to cease and desist from this action is valid.

Termination of Employment for Labor Activities.

The WERB found that the primary motivation for the refusal of the school board to renew Koeller's contract was because of his activities and efforts on behalf of the MNEA welfare committee. The WERB concluded that the school board discriminated against Koeller in regard to the conditions of his employment for the purpose of discouraging membership in and activities on behalf of the MNEA and was thereby committing a prohibited practice under sec. 111.70 (3) (a), Stats.

A major premise in the trial court's argument for reversing the WERB's determination in this respect is that if a valid reason for discharging an employee exists, this is a sufficient basis for holding that the employee was not dismissed for union activities. The trial court quotes Wisconsin Labor R. Board v. Fred Rueping L. Co. as follows:

"... When a valid reason as heretofore defined is found to be present, it is relatively difficult and may be impossible to more than guess which reason motivated the discharge. The board could find discrimination here only by finding that the assigned reason for the discharge of Assaf was false because if it was not the evidence is in such state that a finding of discrimination would be pure conjecture. Furthermore, we have some misgivings whether, if a valid and sufficient reason for discharge exists, the real or motivating reason has any materiality whatever, unless it can be shown that in other cases where similar grounds for discharge of nonunion men existed, no such action was taken."[16]

In other words, if there was good reason for terminating Koeller's employment because of teaching deficiencies and his differences of teaching philosophy with the school board and the supervisory personnel, it would not matter whether the contract was not renewed for his labor activities. But this is not the law. In Rueping there was no speculation as to what the real reason for the discharge was. Moreover, the law concerning discharge for labor activities has changed since 1938. In N.L.R.B. v. Great Eastern Color Lithographic Corp.[17] the federal courts stated:

"The issue before us is not, of course, whether or not there existed grounds for discharge of these employees apart from their union activities. The fact that the employer had ample reason for discharging them is of no moment. It was free to discharge them from any reason good or bad, so long as it did not discharge them for their union activity. And even though the discharges may have been based upon other reasons as well, if the employer were partly motivated by union activity, the discharges were violative of the Act." (Emphasis added.)

Several other federal cases are in accord.[18] Although these cases all involve a construction of unfair labor practices under the Wagner Act, the case of St. Joseph's Hospital v. Wisconsin E. R. Board[19] adopts their legal conclusion that an employee may not be fired when one of the motivating factors is his union activities, no matter how many other valid reasons exist for firing him.

The trial court opined that the WERB reached finding of fact No. 29 "purely upon conjecture." It concluded that there was ample reason for the school board's actions for Koeller's deficiencies as a teacher and his philosophical differences with the individual respondents on school matters.

But in this court's judicial review we are not required to agree in every detail with the WERB as to its findings, conclusions and other. We must affirm its findings if they are supported by substantial evidence in view of the entire record. Sec. 227.20 (2), Stats., requires that upon such review due weight shall be accorded the experience, technical competence, and specialized knowledge of the agency involved. In short, this means the court must make some deference to the expertise of the agency.

In St. Joseph's Hospital v. Wisconsin E. R. Board[20] the WERB found that the discharge of an employee was primarily because of her union activities. The court discussed the scope of review of this finding as follows:

"Finding 20 is a finding of ultimate fact and is of necessity based upon inferences from other testimony before the board. Such inferences may not be based upon conjecture but must be drawn from established facts which logically support them. The drawing of inferences from other facts in the record is a function of the board and the weight to be given to those facts is for the board to determine. International Union v. Wisconsin E. R. 258 Wis. 481, 46 N. W. (2d) 185. Such findings, when made, cannot be disturbed by a court unless they are unsupported by substantial evidence in view of the entire record submitted."21/

The board is the judge of the credibility of the witnesses22/ and the reviewing court is not to substitute its judgment for the judgment of the board.23/

In essence, in the instant case we must decide whether the WERB's crucial findings, conclusions and order are based on inferences reasonably drawn on the entire record or whether they are the result of conjecture on the part of the WERB.

On the whole record we conclude that the WERB's finding No. 29 is supported by substantial evidence and reasonable inferences drawn therefrom in view of the entire record, that the failure to renew Koeller's teaching contract was motivated by his activities as chairman of the welfare committee of MNEA and not on any shortcomings Koeller may have had as a teacher nor upon his differences with certain policies of the school board and the respondent supervisory personnel.

The WERB's finding No. 29 is the logical final determination as to the motivation behind the failure to renew Koeller's contract following the stepping-up labor activities of the welfare committee in which Koeller had such a major part and the difficulties had in assembling and presenting proposals on salaries and working conditions to Kreuser and the school board.

The WERB placed heavy emphasis on the timing and manner of the dismissal. Although there was dispute about it the WERB could reasonably find that the first recommendation of Koeller's nonrenewal was made at the executive session of the school board on March 2, 1964, immediately following the very meeting when the MNEA proposals for 1964-1965 were submitted to the school board for the first time and were discussed; that at that time no written reasons were given for the dismissal; that on March 9, 1964, a summary of reasons having been prepared since March 2nd, the school board acted formally to terminate Koeller's services; that Koeller was not notified of this action until March 12, 1964, the day after the school teachers were called together and told of the school board's determinations about salaries and working conditions for the year 1964-1965 (there having been no negotiations about the MNEA proposals).

In a memorandum accompanying its findings of fact, conclusions of law and order the WERB discussed its reasons for concluding that the respondents were motivated by Koeller's labor activities in ending his employment. The WERB also thoroughly discussed and rejected the other reasons that were alleged to have motivated the respondents relating to the shortcomings of Koeller as a teacher and his disagreement with certain policies established by the school board.

The WERB carefully considered each one of the reasons compiled in the summary prepared by supervisory personnel prior to the school board's final action on March 9th as to why Koeller's contract should not be renewed. The WERB's analysis is summed up as follows:

"It seems incredible to us that the Superintendent could be sincere in the gravity of complaints made against Koeller and at the same time offer to recommend him to another position. We believe this to be a gross act of intimidation."

The WERB concluded:

". . .in light of the entire record, we do not find that Koeller's competence as a teacher or disciplinarian motivated the determination not to extend his teaching contract.

"We have therefore concluded that the Respondent School District refused Koeller a contract in order to discourage membership and collective bargaining activities on behalf of the Welfare Committee of the MNEA."

In any event, it may be assumed arguendo that the school board would have been warranted in terminating Koeller's services on these grounds if the motivation for the action were not connected with his labor activities. Yet the WERB could reasonably find, as it did, that the motivation for failing to renew Koeller's contract was his activities in the MNEA and on behalf of his fellow teachers' welfare.

Agency

The WERB specifically found that Kreuser, Refling, Ussel, and Ladd were supervisory personnel in the employ of the Muskego-Norway school district. The WERB considered the actions of these supervisory personnel in determining whether unfair labor practices had been committed by the school board and the school district. The trial court ruled that there was nothing in the findings of the WERB or in the evidence to establish that these supervisory personnel were agents of the Muskego-Norway school board. Therefore, ruled the trial court, actions of the supervisory personnel could not be attributed to the board in determining whether unfair labor practices had been committed, and only actions by school board members could be considered.

The trial court's ruling places form over substance. Where the WERB expressly found that Kreuser, Refling, Ussel, and Ladd were "supervisory personnel in the employ of said School District," such employment is sufficient to constitute an agency relationship. The employment policies of the school district are implemented through the actions of the supervisory personnel. Under the trial court's ruling, the school board could tacitly engage in unfair labor practices through actions by the supervisory personnel, and the employees discriminated against would have no effective recourse. Such a technical interpretation--as made by the trial court--of the findings of the WERB deprives sec. 111.70 (3), Stats., of any real substance.

By the Court. - Judgment reversed.

STATE OF WISCONSIN: IN SUPREME COURT

Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools, et al., Respondents,

v.

Wisconsin Employment Relations Board,
Appellant,

BELFUSS, J. (dissenting) I dissent from that part of the opinion which holds that the refusal of respondents to renew Koeller's contract was prompted by his labor activities is supported by substantial evidence.

The facts as set forth in the opinion clearly demonstrate the school board was amply justified in discharging Koeller because of his inadequacy in teaching and discipline methods. There is no substantial evidence that the school board discharged him for his union activities; a finding to the contrary rests only upon speculation and conjecture.

IN THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

FIRST APPELLATE DISTRICT

DIVISION TWO

BERKELEY TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, etc., et al., Plaintiffs and Respondents, vs. BERKELEY FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, AFL-CIO, Local 1078, and ERIC ANDERSON Interveners and Appellants.	1 Civil 23751 1 Civil 23996

These consolidated appeals from an order granting a preliminary injunction and a judgment permanently enjoining the Berkeley Board of Education from holding an election among its certificated teachers, raise questions of first impression concerning the Winton Act (Ed. Code, §§13080-13088; Gov. Code, §3501). Plaintiffs and respondents, Berkeley Teachers Association and its officers (hereafter collectively referred to as Association), individually and in their representative capacities, initiated this action for declaratory and other relief against the members of the Berkeley Board of Education (hereafter Board), and the Superintendent of Schools of the Berkeley Unified School District (hereafter District). The interveners and appellants are the Berkeley Federation of Teachers and its president (hereafter collectively referred to as Federation).

The facts are not in dispute. Both the Association and the Federation are voluntary unincorporated associations of the District's certificated employees. Each organization meets the statutory definition of an employee organization (Ed. Code, §13081, subd. (a));1/ the District meets the statutory definition of a public school employer (Ed. Code, §13081, subd. (b)).2/ Pursuant to the Winton Act, the Board on October 19, 1965, adopted its Resolution No. 2860, establishing a negotiating council of nine members "allotted proportionately according to an election of the certificated staff, to represent organizations of certificated staff members in negotiations. . ." On October 22, 1965, the Association filed its complaint alleging that the election procedure violated the Winton Act and the Federation intervened. The preliminary injunction was issued on December 31, 1965, and the permanent injunction on April 29, 1966.

A brief history and description of the Winton Act is necessary for an understanding of the issues presented.3/ In 1961 the Legislature enacted sections 3500-3509 of the Government Code to provide a uniform basis for recognizing the rights of all public governmental employees to join and be represented in their employer-employee organizations or not to join any such organizations and to represent themselves individually. Section 3500 indicates that the representation of public employees in the field of employer-employee relations was no longer the exclusive concern of any public agency of the state, but was instead a matter of general public concern requiring uniform treatment. School districts and their employees and employee organizations were expressly included. In 1965 the Legislature adopted the Winton Act which removed school districts from the scope and operation of the 1961 statute (Gov. Code, §3501) and made the new provisions of sections 13080-13087 of the Education Code applicable only to school districts.

The statement of purposes of the 1965 legislation emphasized the right of public school employees to join organizations of their own choice and be represented by such organizations not only in their employment but also in their professional relationships with their employers and to afford them a voice in the formulation of educational policy. Like its 1961 predecessor, the Winton Act was designed to strengthen existing tenure, merit or civil service systems and other methods of administering employer-employee relations through the establishment of uniform and orderly methods of communication between employees and the public school employers by which they are employed (Ed. Code, §13080; cf. Gov. Code, §3500). The rights of public school employees, their organization and the scope of representation are provided for by sections 13082-13084 of the Education Code (set forth below),[4] which parallel Government Code sections 3502, 3503 and 3504.

1/ "(a) 'Employee organization' means any organization which includes employees of a public school employer and which has as one of its primary purposes representing such employees in their relations with that public school employer."

2/ "(b) 'Public school employer' means a school district, a county board of education, a county superintendent of schools, or a personnel commission of a school district which has a merit system as provided in Chapter 3 of this division."

3/ We are indebted to the excellent memorandum on this subject prepared by Los Angeles County Counsel, H. W. Kennedy.

The novel provisions of the statute are sections 13085-13087. Section 13085 effectuates the legislative purpose of affording certificated employees a voice in the formulation of educational policy by providing in its first paragraph that the public school employer shall meet and confer "with representatives of employee organizations upon request with regard to all matters relating to employment conditions and employer-employee relations," and in addition, "meet and confer with representatives of employee organizations representing certificated employees upon request with regard to all matters relating to the definition of educational objectives, the determination of the content of courses and curricula, the selection of textbooks, and other aspects of the instructional program to the extent such matters are within the discretion of the public school employer or governing board under the law. The designation of an administrative officer as provided herein shall not preclude an employee organization from meeting with, appearing before, or making proposals to the public school employer at a public meeting if the employee organization requests such a public meeting." (Italics added.)

The first paragraph provides the legislative background for the second, which creates and provides for a negotiating council if more than one employee organization represents certificated employees in the District, as follows: "Notwithstanding the provisions of Sections 13082 and 13083, in the event there is more than one employee organization representing certificated employees, the public school employer or governing board thereof shall meet and confer with the representatives of such employee organization through a negotiating council with regard to the matters specified in this section, provided that nothing herein shall prohibit any employee from appearing in his own behalf in his employment relations with the public school employer. The negotiating council shall have not more than nine nor less than five members and shall be composed of representatives of those employee organizations who are entitled to representation on the negotiating council." (Italics added.)

The proviso at the beginning of the second paragraph is an indication that what follows is not in all respects in conformity with the provisions of sections 13082 and 13083 (which appear to limit the scope of representation to employer-employee relations and working conditions) as the negotiating council deals with all "matters specified in this section," namely, employment conditions and matters of educational policy. Significantly, the negotiating council does not represent all certificated employees of the District, but is composed of representatives of those employee organizations entitled to be represented on the negotiating council.

Then follows the sentence which sets forth the statutory formula for determining the number of members of the negotiating council, that employee organizations are entitled to appoint as follows: "An employee organization representing certificated employees shall be entitled to appoint such number of members of the negotiating council as bears as nearly as practicable the same ratio to the total number of members of the negotiating council as the number of members of the employee organization bears to the total number of certificated employees of the public school employer who are members of employee organizations representing certificated employees. Each employee organization shall adopt procedures for selecting its proportionate share of members of the negotiating council, provided that such members shall be selected no later than October 31 of each school year. Within 10 days after October 31, the members of the negotiating council shall meet and select a chairman, and thereafter such negotiating council shall be legally constituted to meet and confer as provided for by the provisions of this article. Employee organizations shall exercise the rights given by Section 13083 through the negotiating council provided for in this section." (Italics added.)

Section 13086 briefly indicates that public school employees shall not be intimidated, coerced, etc. because of their exercise of the right to represent themselves individually in their employment relations (§13082), and section 13087 then provides: "A public school employer shall adopt reasonable rules and regulations for the administration of employer-employee relations under this article.

"Such rules and regulations shall include provision for verifying the number of certificated employees of the public school employer who are members in good standing of an employee organization on the date of such verification, and where a negotiating council is required by Section 13085, for the size of the negotiating council. The public school employer may require an employee organization to submit any supplementary information or data considered by the public school employer to be necessary to the verification of the number of members in an employee organization and such information or data shall be submitted by the organization within 10 days after request, provided that membership lists, if requested, shall not be used as a means of violating Section 13086. In addition, such rules may include provisions for (a) verifying the official status of employee organization officers and representatives, (b) access of employee organization officers and representatives to work locations, (c) use of official bulletin boards and other means of communication by employee organizations, (d) furnishing complete and accurate nonconfidential information pertaining to employment relations to employee organizations and (e) such other matters as are necessary to carry out the purposes of this article."

The final portion of the statute, section 13088 (paralleling §3509, Gov. Code), provides that its enactment shall not be construed to make section 923[5] of the Labor Code applicable.

Both of the courts below apparently concluded that the allotment proportionately of the nine members of the negotiating council by means of an election, participated in by all of the District's certificated employees and in which they are called upon to choose between employee organizations, was not in accord with the intent and purpose of the Winton Act, and was contrary to the express provisions of section 13085 (quoted above) that the members of the negotiating council be selected by the employee organizations representing certificated employees.

4/ Section 13082: "Except as otherwise provided by the Legislature, public school employees shall have the right to form, join and participate in the activities of employee organizations of their own choosing for the purpose of representation on all matters of employer-employee relations. Public school employees shall also have the right to refuse to join or participate in the activities of employee organizations and shall have the right to represent themselves individually in their employment relations with the public school employer."

Section 13083: "Employee organizations shall have the right to represent their members in their employment relations with public school employers. Employee organizations may establish reasonable restrictions regarding who may join and may make reasonable provisions for the dismissal of individuals from membership. Nothing in this section shall prohibit any employee from appearing in his own behalf in his employment relations with the public school employer."

Section 13084: "The scope of representation shall include all matters relating to employment conditions and employer-employee relations, including, but not limited to wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment."

5/ Footnote not cited.

The Federation argues that the election procedure is a proper and reasonable method, authorized by section 13087, and necessitated by the fact that the Legislature has not defined the words "members" and "members in good standing" as used in that section with reference to the number of certificated employees of the District who are members in good standing of an employee organization which is to represent them with regard to all matters specified in section 13085.6/ We cannot agree.

The Board's resolution provides that all of the District's certificated employees, irrespective of whether or not they are members of an employee organization,7/ may participate in an election for the purpose of determining which organization each employee wishes to represent him on the negotiating council. However, as indicated above, section 13085 does not provide for a negotiating council to represent all certificated employees of the District, but a negotiating council composed of representatives of those employee organizations entitled to be represented on the negotiating council. Then, section 13085 provides that the members of the negotiating council are to be appointed, according to the proportionate allotment, by the organizations representing certificated employees. The formula for determining membership on the negotiating council does not take into account the total number of certificated employees who are employed by the District. It sets the proportion as nearly as practicable at the ratio which the certificated employee membership of each of the respective organizations bears to the total certificated employee membership of all such organizations.

(Furthermore, while section 13087 contemplates that a public school employer may establish procedures for determining which of its certificated employees are members of one or more employee organizations, an election is not such a procedure. The procedure contemplated is merely one of ascertainment and verification. The term "election" implies an ability to choose between two or more alternatives. Certificated employees who are members of an employee organization have no choice remaining open to them. Their membership in good standing in an employee organization must be accepted as a designation by them of that organization as authorized to represent them on a negotiating council. The formula of section 13085 for determining the entitlement of an employee organization to appoint members to a negotiating council requires only that those employees who are members of an employee organization may be counted. Under the Winton Act, an election is an inappropriate procedure to ascertain or verify membership in an employee organization.)

It is true that the Winton Act does not precisely define the word "member" as applied to an "employee organization" representing certificated employees. A reading of the statute as a whole, however, clearly indicates that "member" is used in its normally accepted sense and is to be given its ordinary and usual meaning of a certificated employee who joins an employee organization representing certificated employees. The statute does not allow for the interpretation of "member" (advocated by the Federation) which would permit organizational membership to be determined on the basis of preference or choice of all certificated employees whether or not the voting employees are "members in good standing" of the organization. The statute requires organizations (employee organizations representing certificated employees of the District) which have "members in good standing." Section 13087 recognizes that the employee organization is in the best position to advise the District as to the number of certificated employees who are members in good standing on the verification date.

Thus, organizational membership and the number of employees who are members are both considered by the Legislature as facts within the knowledge of the particular employee organization representing certificated employees.8/ By section 13083, the Legislature gave each employee organization the right to represent its members. To further protect the organizations, they were also given the power to adopt reasonable restrictions as to joining and dismissal of individual members. Employee organizations would be deprived of the benefits of section 13083, if membership were determined by the suggested election. In addition, the formula for a certificated employee organization's entitlement to appoint members on the negotiating council would be entirely frustrated if certificated employees who are members of a certificated employee organization were determined by the suggested election rather than by "membership in good standing."

Membership in voluntary unincorporated associations is a personal right based on contract, and can only be divested in the manner provided by the contract (5 Cal.-Jur.2d, pp. 463-465). Once acquired, membership in a labor organization is a property right that the courts will protect. In DeMille v. American Fed. of Radio Artists, 31 Cal.2d 139, the court said at page 149: "The member and the association are distinct. The union represents the common or group interests of its members, as distinguished from their personal or private interest. 'Structurally and functionally, a labor union is an institution which involves more than the private or personal interests of its members. It represents organized, institutional activity as contrasted with wholly individual activity. This difference is as well defined as that existing between individual members of the union.' (United States v. White, 322 U. S. 694, at page 701 [64 S.Ct. 1248, 88 L.Ed. 1542, 152 A.L.R. 1202].)" Recently, our Supreme Court has given recognition to the rights of duly authorized members of unincorporated associations to represent the membership of such an association in a representative court action such as the one here involved (Professional Fire Fighters, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles, 60 Cal.2d 276, 283; International Assn. of Fire Fighters v. City of Palo Alto, 60 Cal.2d 295).

We cannot agree with the Federation's contention that the verification of membership provisions of section 13087 create an ambiguity because the dual membership of many certificated employees9/ makes such verification meaningless. We think that the proportional formula for the appointment of members to the negotiating council adequately takes care of any plural membership problems. Precisely because the dual membership problem was anticipated, section 13085 provides that the number of members on the negotiating council that an organization may appoint shall bear "as nearly practicable" the same ratio to the total number of members of the council as the number of members of the organization bears to the total number of certificated employees who are members of employee organizations. If, for example, an employee's membership is counted in both or all of the organizations of which he is a member for the purpose of determining the make-up of the council, the plural memberships will simply cancel each other out.

6/ We note that in making this argument, the Federation omitted from its brief the portion of section 13085 relating to the appointment of the negotiating council.

7/ The complaint alleged that more than 70 percent of the District's certificated employees were members of the Association; and that 10 percent of the District's certificated employees were not members of any organization representing them.

8/ The federal courts similarly stress as the essential elements of membership in an organized group "the desire of an individual to belong to the organization and a recognition by the organization that it considers him as a member" (Killian v. United States, 368 U.S. 231, 249-250; quoting from Jencks v. United States, 353 U.S. 657, 679.)

9/ Although no figures are provided, all parties assume the existence of a substantial number of overlapping memberships as certificated employees may be members of several organizations and join them for different purposes.

Furthermore, any action by a public school employer requiring a certificated employee who belongs to more than one organization to designate which single organization may count him as a member for purposes of representation on the negotiating council, would amount to an unwarranted interference by an employer with the relationship between the employee organization and its members. Such relationship is a contractual one that imposes duties as well as confers privileges on the member (DeMille v. American Fed. of Radio Artists, 31 Cal.2d 139, 146). One of the duties of a member of an organization is loyalty to the basic purposes of the organization (Davis v. Int. Alliance etc. Employees, 60 Cal.App.2d 713, 715). Thus, where an employee joins an organization that has as one of its primary purposes representing employees in their relationships with a public school employer (Ed. Code, §13081, subd. (a)), an obligation to permit the organization to count him as a member for the purposes of such representation, including participation in a negotiating council, can properly be implied from the membership relationship or imposed by the by-laws (Smith v. Kern County Medical Assn., 19 Cal.2d 263, 265; Neto v. Conselho Amor DaSociedade, 18 Cal.App. 234). Any interference with this contractual obligation by the public school employer would constitute at the most an actionable tort (Imperial Ice Co. v. Rossier, 18 Cal.2d 33, 35) or at least an idle act, since the employee could refuse to make a choice between organizations. Even if such choice were made, each organization could rely on its contractual right to count the employee as a member.

The Federation also argues that the Board may lawfully provide for an election among its teachers to determine their choice of organizations to represent them on the negotiating council as the Winton Act was designed to adopt for public school employees collective bargaining devices long accepted in the field of private employment. As indicated above, section 13088, like its 1961 predecessor (Gov. Code, §3509), expressly provides that section 923 of the Labor Code does not apply to public school employees. Even in the absence of such a provision, it is well settled that by enacting section 923 of the Labor Code, the Legislature did not intend to extend to public employment the collective bargaining procedures and devices applicable to private employment (Nutter v. City of Santa Monica, 74 Cal.App.2d 292, 296-301; Los Angeles Met. Transit Authority v. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, 54 Cal.2d 684).10/

The legislative history of the Winton Act indicates that on May 6, 1965, the Assembly flatly rejected two amendments substituting the collective bargaining procedures applied in private employment.11/ Thus, the conclusion is inescapable that the Legislature intended to bar representational elections from the field of public school employment and expressly rejected the collective bargaining approach of having a single employee organization represent all certificated employees.12/

In view of the above, we conclude that the election envisioned by the Board's resolution was contrary to and in conflict with the clear provisions of the Winton Act. As the governing body of a school district has no authority to enact a rule or regulation that alters the terms of a legislative enactment (Renken v. Compton City School Dist., 207 Cal.App.2d 106, 114), the court below properly granted the relief requested by the Association.

10/ As stated in State v. Brotherhood of R. R. Trainmen, 37 Cal.2d 412, 417: "A concise statement of the characteristics distinguishing public from a private employment in this regard appears in a letter from President Roosevelt to the National Federation of Federal Employees, dated August 16, 1937: 'All Government employees should realize that the process of collective bargaining, as usually understood, cannot be transplanted into the public service, It has its distinct and insurmountable limitations when applied to public personnel management. The very nature and purposes of Government make it impossible for administrative officials to represent fully or to bind the employer in mutual discussions with Government employee organizations. The employer is the whole people, who speak by means of laws enacted by their representatives in Congress. Accordingly, administrative officials and employees alike are governed and guided, an and in many instances restricted, by laws which establish policies, procedures, or rules in personnel matters.' (Quoted in City of Springfield v. Clouse, 356 Mo. 1239 [206 S.W.2d 539, 542-543]; C.I.O. v. City of Dallas, (Tex. Civ. App.) 198 S.W.2d 143, 144-145.)"

11/ "1. Assemblyman Ryan proposed amendments to delete the provisions for a representational negotiating council as now contained in the second paragraph of Section 13085, and to insert in lieu thereof provisions for the election by secret ballot of the members of the negotiating council, which 'members elected to the negotiating council shall be certificated employees who are employed as classroom teachers and who are under contract to the public school employer for the ensuing school year.' The amendments were refused adoption: AYES - 28; NOES - 41. (Assembly Journal for May 6, 1965, pp. 3045-3046, 3047-3048)

"2. Assemblyman Stanton proposed an amendment, to make the collective bargaining provisions of Labor Code Section 923 'applicable to public school employees', by deleting the word 'not' in Section 13088, so that section would read: 'The enactment of this article shall not be construed as making the provisions of Section 923 of the Labor Code applicable to public school employees.' This amendment was refused adoption, without a roll-call vote. (Assembly Journal for May 6, 1965, p. 3048)"

The author of the statute, in a declaration admitted into evidence, stated:

"The issue of voluntary employee association representation versus a governing board-called secret ballot election of all school district employees irrespective of their affiliations was thoroughly debated by members of the Legislature, both in committee and on the floor of the Assembly. Whenever action was taken on the issue, the election was rejected on the ground that AB 1474 was designed to protect, promote and regulate voluntary public school employee associations and to provide means whereby these associations might select spokesmen to represent their members before the governing board of the school district. Both the members of the Legislature and witnesses who testified before committees of the Legislature agreed that a board-called election to bypass these existing associations was in conflict with these objectives."

12/ This rejection has been recognized as a novel innovation in the field of public employment (Section of Labor Relations, Committee on Law of Government Employee Relations, A.B.A. 1966 Proceedings, p. 151).

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Department of the Attorney General
State House - Boston 02133

September 12, 1967

Honorable Owen B. Kiernan
Commissioner of Education
182 Tremont Street
Boston, Massachusetts 02111

Dear Commissioner Kiernan:

You have requested my opinion on whether G.L.c. 39, §§ 23A-23C, the Open Meeting Law, applies to collective bargaining sessions between school committees and school employees. In my opinion it does not.

Collective bargaining with municipal employees is governed by G.L.c. 149, §§ 178G-178N, inserted by St. 1965, c. 763. Section 178I provides:

"The municipal employer and the employee organization recongized or designated as exclusive representative of employees in an appropriate unit shall have the duty to bargain collectively. In such bargaining other than with an employee organization for school employees, the municipal employer shall be represented by the chief executive officer, whether elected or appointed, or his designated representative or representatives. In such bargaining with an employee organization for school employees, the municipal employer shall be represented by the school committee or its designated representative or representatives.

"For the purposes of collective bargaining, the representative of the municipal employer and the representatives of the employees shall meet at reasonable times, including meetings appropriately related to the budget making process, and shall confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours and other conditions of employment, or the negotiation of an agreement, or any question arising thereunder, and shall execute a written contract incorporating any agreement reached, but neither party shall be compelled to agree to a proposal or to make a concession. In the event that any part or provision of any such agreement is in conflict with any law, ordinance or by-law, such law, ordinance or by-law shall prevail so long as such conflict remains. If funds are necessary to implement such written agreement, a request for the necessary appropriation shall be submitted to the legislative body. If such request is rejected, the matter shall be returned to the parties for further bargaining. The preceding two sentences shall not apply to agreements reached by school committees in cities and towns in which the provisions of section thirty-four of chapter seventy-one are operative."

The Open Meeting Law, G.L.c. 39, § 23A, as applicable to municipalities, provides in part:

"As used in this section and in section twenty-three B, the word 'board' shall include every board, commission, committee and sub-committee, however elected, appointed or otherwise constituted, of any district, city or town. It shall also include the governing board of every local housing, redevelopment or similar authority. All board meetings shall be open to the public and to the press unless the board shall vote to go into executive session. Such executive session may be held only for the purpose of discussing, deliberating or voting on those matters which by general or special statute, or federal grant-in-aid requirements cannot be made public, and those matters which if made public might adversely affect the public security, the financial interest of the district, city, town or local housing authority, or the reputation of any person....." (Emphasis supplied.)

After careful consideration, I have concluded that this statute does not apply to collective bargaining sessions with school employees. The decisive point is that such sessions are not "meetings" within the meaning of that term in the statute. The meetings to which the statute refers are rather those in which the internal discussions, deliberations and voting of an agency are of public concern. A collective bargaining session, on the other hand, is a meeting at which the employer and employees are engaged in a process of an interchange and analysis of each other's proposals and counterproposals. This is a different kind of process from that involved in the conduct of an agency's internal deliberations or the making of its official decisions.

The fact that G.L.c. 149, § 178I provides that "In (the) bargaining with an employee organization for school employees, the municipal employer shall be represented by the school committee or its designated representative or representatives" does not change the foregoing conclusion. It is my opinion that by making a specific reference to a school committee, the Legislature did so, not for the purpose of subjecting it to the requirements of the Open Meeting Law, but only to recognize a school committee's traditional independence in the conduct of its own affairs.

That the collective bargaining sessions are not "meetings" within the meaning of the Open Meeting Law is also evident from the second paragraph of § 23A thereof, which provides that "Except in an emergency, a notice of each board meeting shall be filed with the clerk of the municipality in which the board acts, and the notice or a copy thereof shall, at least twenty-four hours, including Saturdays but not Sundays and legal holidays, prior to such meeting, be publicly posted in the office of such clerk or on the principal official bulletin board of such municipality."

It seems clear that the scheduling of collective bargaining sessions could not be arranged with the necessary flexibility for their success if the foregoing notice requirements were applicable. Nor could such flexibility be realized by treating the sessions as "emergencies" so as to excuse compliance with such requirements. Many of the sessions, I would expect, could not be said to be "emergencies" in any true sense of that word.

Nothing in this opinion, I wish to add, should be construed as applying beyond the conduct of the bargaining sessions themselves. I express no opinion on the application of the Open Meeting Law to discussions, deliberations, or votes of a school committee when not actually engaged in such sessions.

Very truly yours,

ELLIOT L. RICHARDSON
Attorney General

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

between

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

of the

WARREN (MICHIGAN) CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS

and the

WARREN EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

September 1, 1967 through January 26, 1970

PREAMBLE

This Agreement, entered into this fourteenth day of June, 1967, is by and between the Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools, Warren, Michigan, hereinafter referred to as the "School Board," and the Warren Education Association, hereinafter called the "Association," affiliated with the Michigan and National Education Associations.

WITNESSETH

Whereas the Board and the Association recognize and declare that providing a quality education for the children of the Warren Consolidated School District is their mutual aim and that the character of such education depends predominantly upon the quality and morale of the teachers, administrators, Board members, and non-instructional employees, and

Whereas the members of the teaching profession are particularly qualified to assist in formulating programs designed to improve education standards, and

Whereas the Board and the Association have a statutory obligation, pursuant to the Public Employment Relations Act, ACT 379 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1965, to bargain in good faith with respect to hours, wages, terms, and conditions of employment for teachers, and

Whereas the parties have reached certain understandings which they desire to confirm in this Agreement,

It is hereby agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I - RECOGNITION

Section 1: The School Board recognizes the Association as the exclusive bargaining representative for all members of the unit which includes: All regularly employed certified teachers under contract; Diagnosticians; Counselors; School Social Workers; Coop. Consultant; Science Consultant; and E.I.P. Consultant, but excluding:

Other personnel employed by the Board of Education of the Warren Consolidated Schools, specifically: Superintendent; Deputy Superintendents; Assistant Superintendents; Directors; Music Coordinator; Reading Coordinator; House Coordinators; Principals; Assistant Principals; E. I. P. Teachers; Nurses; Secretarial and Clerical Employees; Custodial and Maintenance Employees; Cafeteria Employees; Bus Drivers; and the holder of any other non-certified position, and daily substitute teachers.

Section 2: Throughout this Agreement, the term "teacher" shall designate all members of the Bargaining Unit.

Section 3: The School Board agrees that, upon receipt of a signed authorization for deduction of membership fees and regular dues of the Association from any teachers, the sum of said dues and fees as established by the Association will be deducted from the regular salaries of such teachers and remitted to the Association along with a letter of transmittal.

Section 4: Professional Responsibility

A. Membership in the Association shall be open to all teachers regardless of race, creed, sex, marital status or national origin.

B. It is recognized that the proper negotiation and administration of collective bargaining agreements entail expense which is appropriately shared by all teachers who are beneficiaries of such agreements. To this end, in the event a teacher shall not join the Association and execute an authorization for dues deduction, such teacher shall, as a condition of continued employment by the Board, execute an authorization for the deduction, of a sum equivalent to the dues and assessments of the Association which sum shall be forwarded to the Association. In the event that such an authorization is not signed for a period of thirty days following the commencement of employment of the teacher, the Board agrees that in order to effectuate the purposes of the Public Employment Relations Act and this Agreement, the services of such teacher shall be discontinued as of the end of the current school year. Such teacher or teachers shall be notified of the termination of their services immediately upon the expiration of the thirty (30) day period heretofore mentioned. However, if at the end of the school year the teacher or teachers receiving the termination notice shall then be engaged in pursuing any legal remedies contesting the discharge under this provision before the Michigan Tenure Commission or a court of competent jurisdiction, such teacher's services shall not be terminated until such time as such teacher or teachers have either obtained a final decision as to the validity or legality of said discharge, or said teacher or teachers have ceased to pursue the legal remedies available to them by not making a timely appeal of any decision rendered in said matter by the Michigan Tenure Commission or a court of competent jurisdiction.

In any case in which a teacher or teachers contest a discharge under the provisions of the paragraph B, Section 4, Article I, and it is necessary for the Board to defend its position and to engage legal counsel and to incur other expenses in so doing, the Association agrees to pay one half (1/2) of the expenses so incurred by the Board.

ARTICLE II - EFFECT OF AGREEMENT

Section 1: The parties mutually agree that the terms and conditions set forth in this Agreement represent the full and complete understanding and commitment between the parties hereto which may be altered, changed, added to, deleted from, or modified only through the voluntary, mutual consent of the parties in an amendment hereto.

Section 2: Should any Article, Section or clause of this Agreement be declared illegal by a court of competent jurisdiction, said Article, Section, or clause, as the case may be, shall be automatically deleted from this Agreement to the extent that it violates the law, but the remaining Articles, Sections and clauses shall remain in full force and effect for the duration of the Agreement, if not affected by the deleted Article, Section or clause.

Section 3: Any contract between the Board and an individual teacher shall be expressly subject to the terms and conditions of the Agreement.

ARTICLE III - DEFINITION OF RESPONSIBILITIES AND RIGHTS

The parties to this Agreement acknowledge their responsibilities as set forth herein and recognize the interrelationships and interaction of each upon the other.

Section 1: It is recognized by all parties hereto that the Board, on its own behalf and on behalf of the electors of the district, hereby retains and reserves unto itself, all powers, rights, authority, duties and responsibilities conferred upon and vested in it by the laws and the Constitution of the State of Michigan, and of the United States.

Section 2: Teachers are responsible for maintaining a continuous high level of professional service to the welfare and benefit of the student body. Teachers, therefore, are responsible to discharge their teaching assignments with professional proficiency and, to this end, to plan adequately and make conscientious efforts to meet, as required and within reason, with children, parents and/or consultants.

Section 3: The School Board, through its Administration, will sincerely foster the dedication expected of the teachers by planning constructively to provide the best possible teacher facilities attainable within the limits of prudent expenditures, and to assist teachers in the advancement of their skills and techniques by providing meaningful and useful seminars and programs. The Board will continually review and analyze the needs of the School District so that all committees, programs, and projects will relate directly to a quality educational program either by reason of seeking improvement in teaching methods, tools, techniques, and/or professional standards of excellence or by reason of seeking improved efficiency, economy of operation, and/or consideration of ways and means to satisfy the mandatory need for student improvement, greater student achievement and high level employee morale.

Section 4: The Board agrees that it will not directly or indirectly discourage, deprive, or coerce any teacher in the enjoyment of any rights conferred by the laws or Constitutions of Michigan and the United States and that it will not discriminate against any teacher because of his membership in the Association or collective negotiations with the Board, or his institution of any grievance, complaint or proceeding under this Agreement; and that the rights granted to teachers in this Agreement are in addition to those provided in the above-mentioned statutes and Constitutions.

Section 5: Consistent with the Code of Ethics of the Education Profession, teachers shall be entitled to full rights of citizenship and the exercise thereof shall not be grounds for any discipline or discrimination against a teacher.

Section 6: The parties agree that there shall be no discrimination against any employee or applicant for employment by reason of race, creed, color, marital status, sex, or national origin, and that the provisions of this Agreement shall be applied in a manner which is not arbitrary, capricious or discriminatory.

Section 7: Each teacher shall have the right, upon request, to review the contents of his own personnel file. A representative of the Association may, at the teacher's request, accompany the teacher in this review.

Section 8: Disciplinary interviews and reprimands will be considered in private. An affected teacher will, however, have the right, in all such instances, to request the presence of an Association Grievance Committee Representative at said interview and, when such a request is made, the interview will not proceed until the Representative is in attendance.

Section 9: The School Board agrees that its Rules and Regulations governing employee conduct will be reasonable and that enforcement of discipline will be fair and for just cause.

Section 10: The Association shall have the right to post notices of its activities and matters of Association concern on teacher bulletin boards, at least one of which shall be provided in each school building. The Association shall have the right to use the district mail service and teacher mail boxes for communications to teachers.

Section 11: The Association and its representatives shall have the right to use school buildings for meetings, provided that when special custodial service is required, the Board may make a reasonable charge therefor.

Section 12: Duly authorized representatives of the Association and their respective affiliates shall have the right to transact official Association business on school property at all reasonable times, provided that this shall not interfere with or interrupt normal school operations. And further provided, no Association views on matters relating to supervisor-teacher or Board-Association relationships will be discussed in the presence of students.

Section 13: The Association shall have the right to use school facilities and equipment, including typewriters, mimeographing machines, other duplicating equipment, calculating machines and all types of audio-visual equipment, when such equipment is not otherwise in use. Association use of school business equipment will be permitted provided that:

a. Request is made and use arranged for in advance.
b. The use is strictly to service the legitimate business of the Association, such as the duplication of records, notices, correspondence, etc.

c. The purpose is for internal business use of the Association and is not for public distribution.
d. Supplies, in connection with such equipment use, will be furnished or paid for by the Association.

ARTICLE IV - NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES

Section 1: Representatives of the Board and the Association's bargaining committee will meet on the last school day Tuesday of each month for the purpose of reviewing the administration of the contract, and to resolve problems that may arise. These meetings are not intended to bypass the grievance procedure.

Each party will submit to the other, on or before Friday prior to the meeting, an agenda covering what they wish to discuss.

Section 2: All meetings between the parties will regularly be scheduled to take place as promptly as possible at times when the teachers involved are free from assigned instructional responsibilities, unless otherwise mutually agreed.

Section 3: Should such a meeting result in a mutually acceptable amendment of the Agreement then the admendment shall be subject to ratification by the Board and the Association provided that the Bargaining Committee shall be empowered to effect temporary accommodations to resolve special problems.

Section 4: The Board agrees to furnish the Association such information as is requested for the intelligent development of proposals on behalf of teachers or for the processing of any grievance or complaint.

Section 5: The Superintendent will provide the Association with his proposed agenda to be considered at each public meeting of the Board of Education, along with whatever reports, addenda, and other information which is available at the time. Only matters which by their nature must be confidential shall be withheld. This shall normally be restricted to decisions regarding the acquisition of sites or individual employees.

In addition, the Administration will make every effort to keep the Association informed by using the monthly meetings to discuss anticipated revision of educational, construction, or fiscal programs.

ARTICLE V - GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES

Section 1: Definition

Any claim by the Association or a teacher that there has been a violation, misinterpretation, or misapplication of the terms of the Agreement, a violation of their right to fair treatment, or violation of any established policy or practice shall be a grievance, and shall be resolved through the procedure set forth herein.

Section 2: Time Limits

All time limits herein shall consist of school days except that when a grievance is submitted on or after June 1, time limits shall consist of all week days so that the matter may be resolved before the close of the school term or as soon as possible thereafter. Time limits may be extended only with the written consent of the Administration and the Association.

Section 3: Grievance Representation

Upon selection and certification by the Association, the Board shall recognize a grievance representative in each building and an Association grievance committee of eight members and the Executive Secretary.

Section 4: Procedure

The parties acknowledge that it is usually most desirable for an employee and his supervisor to resolve problems through free and informal communications. When requested by either party, the building representative may intervene to assist in this resolution. However, should such informal processes fail to satisfy the supervisor and the teacher, then a grievance may be processed as follows:

Step 1 -- If the complaint is not resolved in the initial meeting, the employee must present the grievance in writing, within five (5) days, to the principal who will arrange a meeting within four (4) days. The Association's representative, the Board's representative, the Association's building representative, and the principal, and the grievant shall be present for the meeting.

The building principal must provide the grievant with a written answer on the grievance within two (2) days. The Association shall refer the grievance to the Board's Representative who will arrange a meeting within five (5) days with the Association's Grievance Committee and the Board's Representatives.

Step 2 -- If the grievance is not satisfactorily resolved in Step 1, the Board's representative will arrange a meeting with the Association's grievance committee and the Board's representatives. Each party shall have the right to include in its representation appropriate witnesses and needed counselors to develop facts pertinent to the grievance.

Upon conclusion of the hearing, the Board will have four (4) days in which to provide their decision in writing to the Association.

Section 5: Arbitration

If either party is not satisfied with the disposition of the grievance at Step 2 or the Step 2 time limits expire without action, then the grievance may be submitted to final and binding arbitration under the rules of the American Arbitration Association which shall act as administration of the proceedings. If neither party files a demand for Arbitration within thirty (30) days of the date for the Board's Step 2 reply, then the grievance shall be deemed withdrawn.

Neither the Board nor the Association will be permitted to assert any grounds or evidence not previously disclosed to the other party.

The arbitrator shall have no power to alter, add to, or subtract from the terms of this Agreement. However, it is mutually agreed that the arbitrator is empowered to include in his award such financial reimbursements as he judges to be proper. Each party shall bear the full costs for its side of the arbitration, and will pay one half of the costs for the arbitrator.

Section 6: The Board acknowledges the right of the Association's Executive Secretary and/or the Board's representative to participate in the processing of a grievance at any level.

Section 7: Provided both parties agree, Steps 1 and/or 2 of the Grievance Procedure may be bypassed and the grievance brought directly to the next step.

Section 8: For the duration of the Agreement, the Association will not engage in, authorize, encourage, either directly or indirectly, any concerted interruption of educational activities due to a cessation, withdrawal or withholding of services in any manner or form either in whole or in part by members of the Bargaining Unit for any reason and no officer or representative of the Association or member of the Bargaining Unit shall be empowered to provoke, instigate, cause, participate in, assist, encourage or prolong any such prohibited activity.

ARTICLE VI - DISCHARGE & DEMOTION

Discharge, demotion, or other involuntary change in the employment status of a teacher shall be for just cause and preceded by: a) The faithful execution of the evaluation procedure and the honoring of all teacher's rights included in this Agreement and applicable statutes, b) The forwarding of a written explanation for the action to the teacher and the Association, c) A complete review of the teacher's personnel file with the teacher and his representative, and d) If requested by the teacher, a hearing before the Board of Education.

ARTICLE VII - EVALUATION PROCEDURES

Section 1: The building principal or his assistant is responsible for written evaluations of all professional employees assigned to his building. His responsibility includes:

a. Orienting all teachers with the evaluative procedures and instruments during the first five (5) weeks of their assignment to his building, and advise the employee as to who shall observe and evaluate his performance.
b. Compile observations made from time to time prior to formal evaluation.
c. Probationary teachers must be evaluated formally once each semester. (Schedule "B" - Once each season)
d. Each formal evaluation must be preceded by at least one classroom observation of at least thirty consecutive minutes and within ten days prior to the evaluation.
e. Conferring with teachers and discussing with them each item which is to be included in their respective personnel files.
f. Providing each teacher with a copy of formal evaluation reports.
g. Provide definite, positive assistance to rectify professional difficulties to teachers receiving substandard evaluations that may lead to dismissal.
h. All monitoring or observation of the work performance of a teacher shall be conducted openly and with full knowledge of the teacher.
i. All tenure teachers must be evaluated once each year.

Section 2: The procedures set forth in Section 1 above shall be fully applicable to those teachers working in assignments set forth in Schedules B and C, except that item "d" may be adjusted to accommodate the exigencies of the activity.

ARTICLE VII - RETIREMENT

Section 1: Employees are required to retire at 65 years of age; however, an employee may be granted an exception to the 65 age requirement on a year to year basis subject to the following:

a. Provide the Board with a complete physical examination report at his own expense.
b. Approval for each additional year will be made by the Superintendent, and not be subject to grievance.

ARTICLE IX - TRANSFERS

Section 1: To be eligible for transfer, a teacher must have an acceptable performance record and be eligible for tenure status in the coming school year.

Section 2: In the event a building principal fails to accept an applicant for transfer, he will provide his reasons in writing if requested to do so.

Section 3:

a. At any time during the school year, a teacher may express his desire to be transferred to a specific or unspecified location.
b. The school administration shall by February 15 of each year post known openings by assignment and location that will be available in the following school year. Teachers desiring to request consideration for any of the posted openings shall have to submit a request no later than March 1 immediately following.
c. The school administration shall, on May 1 of each year, make a supplementary posting for the following school year of all openings existing as of that date. Teachers desiring to request consideration for any such openings shall have to apply by May 10 immediately following.
d. Requests for consideration for specific openings shall supersede and cancel any previous transfer requests made to unspecified locations. All requests except as provided herein shall remain effective until assignments are made which shall normally be by August 1 of each year.
e. All requests shall have to be submitted to the personnel department on forms supplied by the School Administration.

Section 4: Evaluation and Effect of Requests

The consideration of any application shall depend upon demonstrable qualifications and/or lack of qualifications for the position, and length of service in the district. The teacher meriting consideration and with the most service in the district shall be transferred provided that the overall, legitimate objectives of the School Administration are satisfied and the overall, legitimate needs of the School District are not impaired or adversely affected.

Section 5: Method of Assignment

a. Assignment of individual teachers to particular schools will be made by the office of the Superintendent.
b. Assignment of individual teachers to particular class schedules within the adopted general schedule of teaching hours will be made by the involved principals.

Section 6: Unrequested Transfers

A teacher who will be affected by a change in assignment or school location will be notified and consulted by the principal as soon as practicable.

Such changes will be voluntary on the part of the affected teacher provided that the overall, legitimate objectives of the School Administration are satisfied and the overall, legitimate needs of the School District are not impaired or adversely affected.

Section 7: Probationary Assignment Status

If practicable, non-tenure teachers will be retained in the same assignment during their probationary period.

ARTICLE X - STUDENT DISCIPLINE AND TEACHER PROTECTION

Section 1: The Board recognizes its responsibility to give all reasonable support and assistance to teachers with respect to the maintenance of control and discipline in the classroom. The Board further recognizes that the teacher may not fairly be expected to assume the ongoing responsibility for emotionally disturbed students nor to be charged with responsibility for psychotherapy. Whenever it appears that a particular pupil requires the attention of special counselors, social workers, law enforcement personnel, physicians, or other professional persons, the Board will take reasonable steps to assist the teacher with respect to such pupil.

Section 2: It is recognized that discipline problems are less likely to occur in classes which are well taught and where a high level of student interest is maintained. However, a teacher may use such force as is necessary to protect himself from attack or to prevent injury to another student, and may administer corporal punishment according to policies of the Board.

Section 3: A teacher may exclude a pupil from his class when the grossness of the offense, the persistence of the misbehavior or the disruptive effect of the violation makes the continued presence of the student in the classroom intolerable. In such cases, the teacher will furnish the principal with knowledge of the exclusion and as promptly as possible, full particulars of the incident. The affected pupil will be readmitted to the classroom only upon written authorization of the principal, or when requested, by written guidelines from the principal for the future handling of this case.

Section 4: Individual records will be maintained on student discipline and will be available to teachers as an aid for determining disciplinary recommendations concerning particular pupils.

Section 5: Any case of assault or legal action upon a teacher while acting within the scope of his duties shall be promptly reported to the Board of its designated representative.

The Board shall render all reasonable assistance to the teacher in connection with the incident by law enforcement and judicial authority.

Section 6: Time lost by a teacher in connection with any incident in Sections 1 thru 5 above shall be handled as follows:

a. Time for appearances before a judicial body or legal authority shall result in no loss of wages or reduction in accumulated leave.
b. In case of disability, the teacher's wages shall continue in full, without reduction in accumulated leave, until workman's compensation payments begin.
c. In the event of total disability due to incidents in connection with this Article, the Board shall pay to the teacher the difference between the compensation payment and the contractual salary of the employee without reduction of accumulated leave.
d. It being agreed that where a teacher is finally adjudged guilty of a criminal charge or has judgment entered against him in a civil case as related to the incident, the Board has no further responsibility for pay or loss of accumulated leave.

Section 7: No action against a teacher shall be taken on a basis of a complaint by a parent or student, nor any notice thereof shall be included in the teacher's personnel file unless the matter is first reported to the teacher in writing.

ARTICLE XI - SCHEDULES, HOURS, AND ASSIGNMENTS

Section 1: The school calendar shall be as set forth as in Schedule E-G.

Section 2: The school day shall be as set forth below:

	High School	Jr. High School	Elementary
Teacher reports	7:30	8:15	8:00
Teacher leaves	3:15	3:50	3:30

Section 3: The maximum of instructional-supervisory time assigned to a teacher shall be as in the past. Each teacher shall fulfill these responsibilities but will not be required to assume abnormal obligations of time or service not contemplated by the terms and conditions of this Agreement.

It is further agreed that Special Services to first and second grade teachers will be expanded in order to provide for greater diversity in instruction and greater preparation time available to teachers.

Section 4: Lunch Periods

a. Kindergarten teachers shall receive a minimum of one hour free from assigned duty for their lunch period.
b. The lunch period of teachers of grades one through six shall be the same as that of their students provided that teachers may be utilized for supervision during inclement weather or other noncontrollable circumstances and according to the routine duty schedule agreed to by the building committee (Article XIX). However, under no circumstances will the duty free lunch period be less than thirty (30) minutes.
c. Secondary teachers will recieve a minimum of thirty (30) consecutive minutes for a lunch period.

Section 5: Temporary vacancies requiring coverage which are created by the School Administration and absences about which the Administration has received adequate notice, will be covered by substitutes in every case except where none can be obtained and the lack is beyond the control of the Administration.

Temporary vacancies about which sufficient notice is not given or which may result in lightening the teaching load of other teachers, or where emergency conditions make the scheduling of a substitute impractical shall be covered by reassignment of the available staff. However, schedules will be arranged so that additions to regular assignments will be avoided.

Section 6: The parties recognize that optimum school facilities for both student and teacher are desirable to insure the high quality of education that is the goal of both the Association and the Board. It is also acknowledged that the primary duty and responsibility of the teacher is to teach and that the organization of the school day should be directed toward insuring that the energy of the teacher is primarily utilized to this end.

Any teacher desiring to leave his assigned building prior to the completion of his daily schedule as set forth in Section 2 above, shall first secure the permission of his immediate supervisor or his appointee.

Section 7: Inasmuch as the pupil-teacher ratio is an important aspect of an effective educational program and is directly related to the volume of a teacher's work, it is agreed that the following limits on class size represent desired objectives. The utilization of facilities and personnel and the future planning of construction and staff recruitment shall be such as to move toward these objectives.

Elementary		Secondary
K-2	25	General	28	Vocational Shops	24
3-4	27	Lab. Science	26	Homemaking	26
5-6	28	Business	28	Music	28 (except as required for Choir, Band, Orchestra, etc.)
		Typing	33
		Ind. Arts	26
		Drafting	28	Art	26
		P.E.	40	Pool	30

Special Education

Handicapped or mentally retarded	15
Sight saving, hearing conservation	8
Emotionally disturbed	10
Hard of Hearing	10
Deaf	7

Miscellaneous

Secondary Counselors	300

The Board shall endeavor to employ one social worker for each 1800 students and one diagnostician per 5000.

If at any time it is found that a specified limit is exceeded by more than 10% then the involved principal, the involved teacher, an Association representative, and the Superintendent's representative shall meet to plan means for relieving the situation. Agreed to changes will be put into effect before the limit is exceeded by 20%.

For instruction requiring specialized facilities, the available work stations shall control when that number is less than that provided above.

ARTICLE XII - COMPENSATION

Section 1: Annual salaries shall be computed according to Schedules A-C attached hereto, which are incorporated in and made a part of this agreement.

Section 2: Hourly rates to be paid for a teacher's service in Adult Education, Summer School, Workshops, or Driver Education shall be as in Schedule D attached hereto. These wages shall be paid bi-weekly and, at the time of payment, the Board shall be no more than one week in arrears.

Section 3: Insurance

The Board shall purchase the following for each teacher:

a. M.E.S.S.A. Comprehensive Health Care Insurance for the teacher and his dependents including the loss of time benefit amounting to twenty dollars ($20.00) per week, and long term income protection commencing after 52 weeks at 1/2 pay till age 65.
b. Supplementary group life insurance which shall provide the teacher life insurance protection equal to $10,000 and $10,000 additional benefit for accidental death or dismemberment.

Section 4: Automobile Allowance

Teachers required to drive personal automobiles in the course of their employment or otherwise using their automobiles in service to the district shall be reimbursed eight cents (8¢) per mile driven.

Section 5: Payroll Procedures

a. Payroll checks will be issued bi-weekly on Fridays to all employees, except as elsewhere provided. The responsibility of distribution will be made by the immediate supervisor.
b. Contractual salaries will be divided by 21 to determine the gross bi-weekly amount except for those teachers who request a division by 26 on appropriate forms furnished by the administration. This will be paid to the employee, less withholding tax, retirement, and any other deductions selected by the employee.
c. Any balance in the Board's contractual salary commitment to a teacher shall be paid on the last Friday of the school year.
d. Should a regular pay date fall during a period when school is not in session, teachers shall receive the pay due on that date on the last day prior to recess.
e. All authorizations for payroll deductions will be made on one form, and shall be available for:

   i. Association Dues
   ii. U.S. Bonds
   iii. United Foundation
   iv. Additional M.E.S.S.A. Health, Accident and Life Insurance
   v. Credit Union
   vi. Tax-deferred Annuities

Section 6: On any day when school sessions are scheduled but that schedule is cancelled by the Superintendent due to weather or other conditions beyond control and this official closing is announced on Radio Station WJR, then the following provisions for teachers' pay will prevail:

a. If the announcement states that schools are closed, teachers are not to report and will receive full pay.
b. If the announcement states that schools are closed and teachers are to report, then teachers must report. However, if a teacher is unable to report, he shall be paid for such absence and his absence charged against unused personal leave days.

ARTICLE XIII - COMPENSABLE LEAVE

Section 1: Paid for leave time will be provided in order to protect a teacher's income during periods of unavoidable absence. The board's primary concern is for periods of personal illness; however, in appropriate circumstances, bereavement, personal business and emergencies shall constitute legitimate usage of compensable leave.

Section 2: Teachers shall be entitled to a sick leave accumulation at the rate of one day per month of employment and one additional day for the completion of each school year of employment. This sick leave, to the full amount of eleven (11) day accumulation, shall, at the commencement of the school year, be put at the disposal of each teacher. A teacher may draw on his bank as required, subject to the provisions thereof, but, in the event that the service of any teacher is interrupted by reason of discharge, termination, suspension or leave and said teacher has utilized more sick leave days than have been accumulated on the monthly basis, then the value of the excess paid-for leave days shall be deducted from the last paycheck due to the teacher at the time of interruption. Unused sick leave, left over at the end of the school year shall be accumulated to a maximum of one year (200 days).

Section 3: Upon the death or retirement of a teacher. (in accordance with the Michigan Public Schools Employees Retirement Act), the accumulated sick leave to his credit shall have a cash surrender value of 50%.

Section 4: It is agreed that the use of leave days will be strictly confined to the legitimate purposes specified in the schedule, which follows immediately. It is understood that any teacher found to have violated this restiction will be charged with an offense and, in aggravated cases, such teacher shall be subject to possible discharge after a hearing discloses there is reasonable cause for such discharge.

Section 5: Sick leave may be used, in accordance with the schedule specified herein, for personal or family illness, bereavement and personal business. For all absences the teacher is required to notify the School Administration upon the first knowledge of the necessity for the absence.

a. Personal illness: bonafide physical incapacity to report for and discharge duties, to the extent of usued days credited.

Bereavement: Leave, up to a maximum of six (6) days when required, will be granted in the case of the death of a teacher's father, mother, father-in-law, mother-in-law, spouse, children, brother, sister, grandmother or grandfather. The amount of days which will be approved will depend upon the travel and circumstances involved.

One-day leaves may be granted for funerals of others than in the immediate family.

c. Personal Leave: Three (3) days per year will be allowed for personal leave. These may be used for personal business which cannot be conducted on other than a school day according to the following provisions:

1. Personal leave, in all cases except unforseen emergency, requires at least two days advanced notice to the principal or immediate supervisor.

2. Personal leave is to be used for sound, pressing, and unavoidable reasons only, and its proper use may be subject to verification at the request of the School Administration if warranted by the teacher's previous attendance record or if there is legitimate cause to suspect that the leave has been used improperly.

3. Personal leave days are not to be used for any purpose that one could construe to be a failure to accept one's professional responsibility and/or failure to conduct one's self in a professional or ethical manner.

4. Should personal leave be used improperly, it will result in the loss of salary for the day or days in question. Examples of unacceptable uses of personal leave are:

   a) Recreational pursuits
   b) Economic gains
   c) Social functions
   d) Other employment
   e) Seeking new employment
   f) Marriage
   g) Child care
   h) College course registration

5. To avoid unanticipated loss of wages, it is advised that teachers consult with their principals and/or the WEA Executive Secretary regarding the propriety of their leave prior to its use.

Section 6: Workman's Compensation

Workman's Compensation shall be provided as specified by law. In addition, the Board will pay to the teacher the difference between the amount paid to him by the Workman's Compensation insurance and his regular salary, and will charge the employee's sick leave accumulation proportionately for a period equivalent (to the nearest half day) to the supplementary payment.

ARTICLE XIV - NON-COMPENSABLE LEAVE

Section 1: Requests

Upon request to the Superintendent or his representative and certification of need, leaves of absence for physical or mental illness, maternity, and association representation (no more than two per year) will be granted. Similarly, the Board or the Superintendent may grant leaves for other reasons. In all cases except illness the leave shall be for a specific term. However, should the term expire prior to the need of leave, the Board may grant a continuance of the leave. Leave for Association Representation shall be for one year and subject to annual renewal and limited by the number of years service prior to leave.

Section 2: Return From Leave

The teacher is responsible to notify the Superintendent thirty days prior to the date on which he desires to resume active status as an employee. Thereafter the teacher will be reinstated to the first available position for which he is qualified. All benefits which had accrued at the time leave commenced shall be restored to the teacher upon reinstatement. Further, a teacher who was on leave for association representation shall be credited with those salary increments which would have accrued had his services not been interrupted.

Section 3: Termination of Leave

It shall be the responsibility of the teacher to:

a. Inform the Superintendent of any change in the circumstances which created the need for leave.
b. Report for duty upon termination of leave.

Teachers' willful neglect of these responsibilities shall subject them to dismissal as employees.

ARTICLE XV - MILITARY LEAVE

Military leaves will be granted and reemployment will be governed by the provisions of the "Universal Military Training Act."

If National Guard or Reserve encampment should occur during the school year, the teacher required to participate shall be granted a temporary leave of absence. The employee will receive his regular salary minus that which he shall receive from the government for each school day spent in government service.

ARTICLE XVI - MINIMAL STANDARDS AND PROFESSIONAL GROWTH

Section 1: Every effort will be made by the Board to employ a teacher for every regular teaching assignment who has a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university.

Section 2: The employment of teachers not holding a provisional or permanent certificate will be avoided. The Association will be advised of the teachers' names and assignments in those cases where it becomes necessary to employ a teacher with less accreditation than that noted above.

Section 3: The Administration may request that a teacher enroll in specific credit courses so that he might fill certain academic or professional voids and so that he may achieve preparation standards which are mandated by curriculum revisions or applicable accreditation standards. Should the teacher be unwilling or unable to accommodate such a request to the extent of completing four credit hours per year and the want of the indicated improvement prohibits the initiation or continuance of a desired curriculum or accreditation, then the teacher may be reassigned (accommodating his desires as nearly as possible) in order that the objective may be gained. Teachers complying with such requests shall be reimbursed for tuition, books, and ten dollars ($10.00) for miscellaneous expense incurred by enrollment in the classes.

Section 4: A teacher who has acquired a permanent teaching certificate and who continues his professional growth through enrollment in graduate courses related to his professional responsibilities shall be reimbursed for his tuition upon submission of proof that the courses have been successfully completed. Reimbursement shall be limited to twenty dollars ($20.00) per semester hour applied to no more than six hours per calendar year, and shall not apply to hours taken through a program for which teachers receive subsidy from other sources such as NSF, NDEA, etc., except that when the subsidy is less than twenty dollars ($20.00) per hour, the balance shall be reimbursed by the Board. Further, should a teacher accure more than six qualified hours in a given year, the balance may be included for reimbursement in the following year. This clause does not apply to any courses taken prior to September 1, 1967.

ARTICLE XVII - SABBATICAL LEAVE

Section 1: Purpose

In order to provide opportunities for maximal professional improvement, Sabbatical Leave shall be available to teachers for formal, full time study at a recognized college or university.

Section 2: Eligibility

a. An applicant must possess a Michigan Life or permanent certificate and must have accrued seven consecutive, full years of teaching service in the Warren Consolidated School district.*

b. Applicants shall not have received a sabbatical Leave during the seven years immediately preceding any application.*
c. Each applicant must agree to return to service in the Warren Consolidated School district immediately upon termination of Sabbatical Leave and to continue in such service for a period of three years, unless physical disability makes this impossible or there is mutual agreement to the contrary. A signed agreement in the format of a promissory note shall stipulate that the failure of the teacher to provide such service shall result in the obligation to reimburse the district a proportional part of the salary paid to him during Sabbatical Leave determined by the fraction of the three years not served following the leave.

Section 3: Application

a. Applications shall be made to the Committee for Sabbatical Leave on or before annual deadline dates to be established by the said committee.
b. The application shall be accompanied by plans for the use of the Sabbatical Leave, evidence that the applicant has been accepted into a graduate program, and an exposition of the plan's potential for increasing the applicant's professional competence and such other information as may be necessary as determined by the Committee for Sabbatical Leave.

Section 4: Selection

a. The Committee for Sabbatical Leave shall consist of an elementary and a secondary principal appointed by the Superintendent, a teacher appointed by the W.E.A., and the President of the W.E.A. The Committee shall be chaired by the Deputy Superintendent for Instruction, who will vote only in the event of a tie.
b. The Committee will prepare a priority listing of eligible candidates and recommend names for Sabbatical Leave appointments. Provided sufficient qualified applicants have come forth, up to 1% of the body of teachers currently employed will be recommended.
c. Consideration shall be given to:

1. Assured eligibility.
2. The proposed Leave's potential for contributing to the applicant's professional growth.
3. The applicant's prior contribution to the Warren Consolidated Schools and potential for future leadership.
4. The applicant's need for financial support.
5. Any other pertinent factors as established by the Committee.

d. In establishing Sabbatical Leave, the Board of Education shall grant Sabbatical Leave to as many candidates as are recommended by the Committee for Sabbatical Leave but not to exceed a number equal to 1% of the teachers of the school district at the time Leaves are granted.

Section 5: Compensation

a. While on Sabbatical Leave a teacher shall receive 50% of his teaching salary for the time involved.
b. A teacher shall receive the insurance and retirement* fringe benefits as provided for teachers by the Board of Education.
c. The teacher is responsible to notify the Business Office of the place to which his payroll check shall be addressed while he is on Leave. Checks will be mailed to that address on or before the regular paydays.

Section 6: Miscellaneous Administrative Provisions

a. Sabbatical Leave may be for a portion of the year but may not exceed a full school year.*
b. A teacher on Sabbatical Leave may not deviate from his approved plan except with the written permission of the Deputy Superintendent for Instruction.
c. Sabbatical Leave will be automatically terminated should the grantee be placed upon a probationary academic status by his college or university.
d. Any falsification of information by the teacher in application or other reports required as a part of Sabbatical Leave may subject the Leave to termination upon recommendation by the Committee for Sabbatical Leave.
e. Upon return from Sabbatical Leave the teacher shall be advanced on the salary schedule as though he had been employed as a teacher during the period of Leave; he shall be restored to his former position, if possible, or to a position of at least comparable nature of status and seniority.*

* Provided by Section 340.572 of General School Laws

ARTICLE XVIII - ACADEMIC FREEDOM

Section 1: The parties seek to educate young people in the democratic tradition, to foster a recognition of individual freedom and social responsibility, to inspire meaningful awareness of and respect for the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, and to instill appreciation of the values of individual personality. It is recognized that these democratic values can best be transmitted in an atmosphere in which academic freedom for teacher and student is encouraged.

Section 2: Freedom of individual conscience, association and expression will be encouraged and fairness in procedures will be observed both to safeguard the legitimate interests of the schools and to exhibit by appropriate examples the basic objectives of a democratic society.

ARTICLE XIX - BUILDING POLICIES

Principals will establish a representative committee for the joint development of building policies. W.E.A. Building Representatives will be included on these committees.

ARTICLE XX - MAINTENANCE OF STANDARDS

Section 1: All conditions of employment shall be maintained at not less than the minimum standards in effect at the time this Agreement is signed provided that such conditions shall be improved as required by the provisions of this Agreement. This Agreement shall not be interpreted or applied to deprive teachers of professional advantages heretofore enjoyed unless expressly stated herein.

ARTICLE XXI - MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Section 1: The Board recognizes that appropriate texts, library reference facilities, maps and globes, laboratory equipment, audio-visual equipment, teaching supplies, athletic equipment, current periodicals, standard tests and questionnaires, and similar materials are the tools of the teaching profession. The Board agrees at all times to keep the schools reasonably equipped and maintained. The parties will confer from time to time for the purpose of improving selection and use of such educational tools.

Section 2: The Board and the Association mutually recognize the importance of continuous use of adequate teaching reference material in maintaining a high level of professional performance. In furtherance of that recognition, the Board shall endeavor to make such material available in the schools.

Section 3: Each school will have designated areas, apart from students, appropriately furnished for use as teachers' lavatory, teachers' dining room or teachers' lounge, where smoking is permitted. Provision for such facilities will be made in all future buildings.

Section 4: The Board will make every reasonable effort to provide teachers with written notice of assignment for the following school year by the end of the present school year.

Section 5: In the event that it becomes necessary to reduce the number of teachers through layoff from employment by the District, then the teachers with the most service with the District who are fully qualified to staff the positions kept active shall be retained.

Section 6: All instructional positions in Driver Education, Adult Education (embracing subjects taught in the school system during the regular school year), and Summer School shall be filled within the Bargaining Unit. After adequate posting, if the position cannot be so filled, then the Board may fill the position from outside the Bargaining Unit.

Section 7: Teachers may terminate their services with the Board only by mutual consent unless written notice is received by the Board addressed to the Superintendent at least sixty days before September 1.

Section 8: Each member of the Bargaining Unit shall present a physician's current statement or a copy of a recent Michigan Health Department report (from a Mobile Unit) declaring that his lungs are free from tuberculosis, to the Personnel Department once each school year. For the purposes of satisfying the requirements of this clause, certification that a test has been taken will be accepted until results of the test are received.

Section 9: Upon request by the Association, the President of the Association shall be granted one free period per day to perform the business of the Association for which time the Association shall reimburse the school district on a prorated basis in accordance to the portion of time that this time represents to the regular teaching day.

Section 10: Business or Conference Time. In the event that the Association is desirous of sending representatives to local, state or national conferences conducted by the Association for the further-cause of its own professional purposes, or other business leaves pertinent to the Association affairs said representatives shall be excused, providing the frequency does not impair the quality effect of classroom instruction, and providing that said request for leave has been submitted to the Superintendent for his approval as soon as possible prior to the leave. (When these days accumulate to 20 in any school year, the Association will reimburse the district for the costs of substitutes for the additional days.)

Section 11: Names and addresses of newly hired teachers will be provided to the Association following School Board approval of their contracts.

These teachers will be provided with a copy of the current Agreement between the parties.

ARTICLE XXII - COMMITTEES

Section 1: Sabbatical Leave; as in Article XVII.

Section 2: Special Increments

A committee composed of William Randall, Robert James, Louise Rossi, Fritz Pinis, Marion Hasler, David Johnson, those teachers directly involved, and a W.E.A. appointee, will be formed to conduct an in-depth examination of the following special positions. This examination shall consist of the development of work descriptions, responsibilities, hours beyond the normal school day and relationships in the reimbursement schedule. This examination shall be completed on or before February 1, 1968, at which time representatives of the two parties will meet and develop a mutually acceptable schedule of reimbursement. Any changes in the pay percentages resulting from this examination and subsequent meetings of the two parties shall be retroactive to September 1, 1967.

SPECIAL POSITIONS

Aqua Gems	Homebound Teacher
Girls Athletic Association	Type A
Debate, Varsity, High School	Type B
Debate, Reserve, High School	Deaf and Hard of Hearing
Forensics, High School	Visually Hindicapped
Play Director	Diagnostician
Stage Crew Director	Speech Correction

School Social Worker	Counselors

And such other new positions as may be suggested by this examination.

Section 3: Teacher Assignments

A committee composed of David Johnson, William Gordon, Philip Killoran and Walter Benton shall conduct an in depth examination of teacher assignment practices at the secondary level. The committee shall report its findings and recommendations to the Superintendent on or before March 1, 1968. Recommended improvements shall be put into effect for the next school year.

Section 4: Professional Encouragement

A committee composed of William Bigham, David Johnson, Marie Moier and Paul Downing shall develop means for administering and adjudicating the professional growth practices described in Schedule A.

Section 5: Evaluation - to be established by the parties for the ongoing study of teacher evaluation practices and procedures.

ARTICLE XXIII - TERM OF THE AGREEMENT

Section 1: Duration of Agreement

This Agreement shall be effective as of September 1, 1967, and shall continue in full force and effect until the 26th day of January, 1970.

Section 2: Successor Agreements

On or before November 1, 1969, either side may give the other notice, by certified mail, of its desire to terminate, amend or modify this Agreement. Upon receipt of this notice by the other side, arrangements shall promptly be made for negotiations to commence. In the event that neither side gives notice to the other of its intention to terminate, amend or modify the Agreements by November 1, 1969, then the Agreement shall automatically be extended on the same terms for another year and, similarly, from year to year thereafter, with the notification date of intent to terminate, amend or modify beginning November 1 of the successor year.

It being agreed that in the event the average of the base rate of Pontiac School District, Utica Community School District, and Hazel Park School District exceeds the base rate of W.C.S. on any ensuing February 1, this agreement will be declared open for negotiations of wages only.

Likewise negotiations will be reopened on any ensuing February 1 if during the preceding 12 months prior to the particular February 1 the B.L.S. Cost of Living Index exceeds 4.5% or The Improvement in the State Aid Formula exceeds the base established for the 67-68 school year by 15%.

SCHEDULE A

1. Schedules A1, A2 and A3 reflect annual wages to be prorated over the effective period.
2. Credit for experience will be computed on the commencement of employment and thereafter on each September 1.
3. Credit for outside experience: Maximum seven (7) years allowed, including military service and teaching experience. Maximum credit for outside teaching experience and military service - 30%.

   a. Military service at 3% per year for active duty (full time college work in military academies or training programs is excepted.)
   b. Classroom teaching experience
      1. First two (2) years at half credit - 3%
      2. Third, fourth, and fifth year at full credit - 6%
      3. Sixth and seventh year at half credit - 3%
      4. No credit shall be allowed for substitute teaching either inside or outside the system.

4. Vocational Experience: Outside work experience approved by the State Department of Vocational Education as acceptable for vocational certification shall be credited at the rate of one half increment for each year of approved experience 3% (2080 hours) to a maximum of two increments for four years of such experience (12%). Further, this increment credit will only be granted provided the teacher is employed in an appropriate and related vocational program approved for reimbursement by the State Department of Vocational Education, it being understood that with the addition of this experience in no case will the total experience credit exceed 30% as shown in above (credit for outside experience). Teachers currently receiving 4% for a journeyman's card will continue to do so if the provisions of this section do not apply to them.

The salaries set forth in Schedule A are extended from the entry rate at the Bachelor's level in accordance with the following index. (All percentages in previous sections of Schedule A refer to the current B.A. base salary):

Experience	Bachelors	+20 s.h.*	Masters	+15 s.h.	Specialist
0	1.00	1.04	1.06	1.10	1.12
1	1.06	1.10	1.12	1.16	1.18
2	1.12	1.16	1.18	1.22	1.24

7	1.42	1.46	1.52	1.56	1.58
8	1.48	1.52	1.58	1.62	1.64
9	1.54	1.58	1.64	1.68	1.70
10	1.60	1.64	1.70	1.74	1.76
11	1.66	1.70	1.76	1.80	1.82

*Bachelors plus 20 semester hours (these courses shall be on the graduate level or apply toward permanent certification) 4% additional.

Master's Degree plus 15 semester hours (these courses must be at the graduate level unless approved in advance by the Superintendent) 4% additional.

These courses must have resulted in the attainment of a Specialist's Degree or must be (a) in the course of a program toward a Doctor's Degree for which a period of five (5) years will be allowed at the expiration of which time the involved teacher shall be appropriately moved to the MA+15 or Doctorate schedule, or (b) must be for courses approved in advance by the Superintendent.

6. Differential for Master's Degree or Higher Degree.

After five (5) years' teaching experience (teaching experience as credited in our system) the sum of 4% shall be granted for those possessing a Master's Degree or a higher degree. Those who complete the fifth year of teaching experience as credited in Warren during a school year shall be expected to make written request for adjustment. Such adjustment, prorated, shall be added to the final check of the school year.

7. Teachers must present written evidence of qualification to benefit from salary allowances on advanced degree and extra hour schedules. Payment shall be made in a lump sum on a prorated basis at the end of the school year for any credits earned during that year providing an official transcript is received from the college authorities on or before June 1 indicating that the course work has been satisfactorily completed in accordance with college regulations. All credits must be in accordance with the standards established herein and, also, in the Memo of Clarification entitled: "The Index for Salary Schedule".

8. Credit for partial years of prior experience shall be computed to the nearest 1% of the base.

9. Teachers who work a part-time schedule shall receive a prorated annual salary. Such teachers will also receive prorated hospital and medical insurance contributions in accordance with the following formula:

   a. No contribution will be made for those scheduled for less than 3/8 of a regular week.
   b. Those scheduled for 3/8 and up to 3/4 of a regular week will have one-half (1/2) of the contribution made in their behalf, and
   c. Those scheduled for 3/4 or more of a regular week will have the full contribution made in their behalf.

Prorating of salaries will be based on the number of teaching periods in relation to the full teaching load in the same assignment.

10. Non-degree teachers will be paid in accordance with the following schedule:

0 - $5,300.00	3 - $6,200.00
1 - 5,600.00	4 - 6,500.00
2 - 5,900.00	5 - 6,800.00

11. Payroll adjustments will be based on 200 days and the following shall be regarded as paid holidays:

Labor Day
Thanksgiving
New Year's Day
Good Friday
Memorial Day

12. It is agreed that the Board will budget for professional growth increments to be added to schedules A2 and A3. Increments of $600 shall be available to approximately the upper quartile of teachers with more than six years of experience according to the recommendations of the appropriate committee (Article XXII).

SCHEDULE A - 1

In no case will the extension of experience factors extend any salary beyond the maximum for the schedule.

Special Items

IMPASSE RESOLUTION PROCEDURES

Many teacher organization/school board agreements provide that when an impasse or persistent disagreement is reached in negotiation, an impartial third party is selected to assist the negotiators in resolving their disagreement. Many different methods and combinations of methods used to select the impartial third party who may be an individual or a panel of individuals with power to act as mediator, arbitrator, or fact-finder. The third party may be named specifically in the agreement, it may be selected jointly each time, or an independent organization which has been named in the agreement may make the appointment or provide a list of nominees from which the parties may make a selection.

Examples of many of the most commonly used impasse resolution procedures are provided below together with listings of school systems with the various provisions in their 1966-67 agreements. The listings have been taken from Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition ($15, Stock #841-24006), published by the NEA Research Division. In the Negotiation Agreement Provisions, not only are the systems listed according to the type of impasse procedure used, but there is a complete state-by-state listing of all the school systems which have impasse procedures with the page number to indicate where the impasse procedure occurs in the agreement.

Joint Selection Each Time as Needed

The agreement between the Board of Education of the Portland (Maine) Public Schools and the Portland Teachers Association (NEA) states that both the Board and the Association shall select one member of a Board of Review. These two members then jointly select a third member to act as panel chairman. If the two members cannot decide on a third panel member, the Commissioner of Education makes the selection. Therefore, since the agreement provides an alternative in the selection of the third panel member by asking for the aid of the Commissioner of Education, the possibility of an impasse in the selection of a mediation panel is eliminated.

The following is excerpted from the Portland agreement:

2. The Board of Review will consist of three people who shall be selected as follows: Within seven days of the above mentioned request, the Portland School Committee and the Portland Teachers' Association shall each select one person. These two people shall not be members of the Portland School Committee or the Portland Teachers Association. The two persons so selected shall, within five days, select a third person who is not a member of either organization mentioned above. This third person shall serve as Chairman of the Board of Review. If a chairman is not appointed within the specified five days, the Portland School Committee and the Portland Teacher Association shall request the Maine Commissioner of Education to appoint, within five days, a chairman.

3. The Board of Review shall meet with the School Committee and the Portland Teachers Association, make inquiries and investigations, hold hearings and take such steps as it deems appropriate. It shall, within twenty days after the Board of Review holds its first hearing, make findings of fact and recommend terms of agreement. These findings and recommendations are to be made public.

4. The report of such third party shall be advisory only and shall not be binding on either party.

5. The Board of Review shall use its own discretion regarding closed sessions and news releases.

6. Any cost or expense of the Board of Review shall be shared equally.

Other school systems which use joint selection are listed below.

State Education Agency

When impasse occurs between the Butte County Board of Education (Arco, Idaho) and the Butte County Education Association (NEA), they "may request the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to appoint a competent individual or committee to seek to bring about a mutually acceptable settlement." Here the negotiating parties move directly to the state education agency to select the complete mediation panel or mediator if they cannot select the panel members themselves. This differs from the joint selection method where the State Commissioner names only the third panel member, not the entire mediating panel.

The Arco, Idaho, agreement provision reads as follows:

III. MEDIATION AND APPEAL

In case of disagreement about the meaning or application of this agreement, or if an impasse is reached during the professional negotiations, the matter will be submitted to an advisory board within thirty days after the request of either party to the other. The Board will name one adviser and another will be named by the association. A third member shall be named by the first two members and shall be the chairman.

The advisory board will be expected to report recommendations for settlement within fifteen days. The recommendations will be submitted to both parties and shall be made public.

If the advisory board fails to make a recommendation satisfactory to all parties within the specified time, either the Board or the Association may request the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to appoint a competent individual or committee to seek to bring about a mutually acceptable settlement. The person or committee will have the authority to confer separately or jointly with the superintendent, representative of the board and Association, and to utilize any other source of information. The recommendations will be submitted to both parties and may be made public.

If the parties refuse to accept the proposed settlement, the State Superintendent shall so notify the State Board of Education.

IV. COSTS

Any costs and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of the chairman of the above named advisory board shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

The following is a list of the other school systems which use the state education agency to resolve impasses (see explanation on page E-2):

State Labor Board

Michigan state law states that upon request the bargaining representative or public employer has the right to use the mediation services of the State Labor Board. The agreement between the Board of Education of the Clarkston (Michigan) School Board and the Clarkston Education Association (NEA) illustrates this type of provision for resolving an impasse.

Articles V and VI of the Clarkston agreement follow.

V. MEDIATION AND APPEAL

A. Board of Education

If agreement is not attained by the representatives of the negotiating parties, the Association representatives and/or the representatives of the Board of Education may present separate written reports to the Board of Education and the Association membership.

B. Advisory Board

In the event of an impasse during negotiations or in the event of a disagreement concerning the interpretation or application of an agreement, the matter may be submitted to an Advisory Board within fifteen (15) days after the request of either party to the other. The Board will name one advisor and the Association will name another. A third member, who shall be the chairman, shall be named by the first two named members.

The Advisory Board shall report recommendations for settlement within fifteen (15) days. The recommendations shall be submitted to both parties and shall be made public.

C. State Labor Mediation Board

If the Advisory Board fails to make a recommendation acceptable to the parties within the specified time, either the Board or the Association may request the aid of such mediation facilities as may be provided by the State of Michigan. The Mediation Board or its designated representatives shall have authority upon request to confer separately or jointly with members of the Board of Education and/or its representatives as well as designated representatives of the Association. The data or recommendations of the Mediation Board shall be made public.

VI. COSTS

Costs and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of any individual or Advisory Board shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

The 1966-67 agreements which provided for utilizing the services of a state labor board were the following (see explanation on page E-2):

American Arbitration Association

The American Arbitration Association is yet another source which may be used when selecting a third party. The Concord-Carlisle Regional School, Concord, Massachusetts, uses the AAA when the Board and the Joint Professional Negotiations Committee cannot agree upon a mediator. The section from the Concord-Carlisle agreement dealing with the selection of a mediator by the AAA follows:

> If the dates shown on the schedule for final agreement or ratification are not met, the TWO PARTIES will agree upon a mediator to be appointed. In the event of failure of mediation, an arbitrator will be appointed, also by agreement. In a normal year the arbitrator should, if required, be appointed no later than September 1, since the final date for his award would be no later than November 1, as shown by the schedule.
>
> The mediator and the arbitrator may, if desired, be one and the same person.
>
> In the event of the failure of the TWO PARTIES to agree upon a mediator or an arbitrator, as the case may be, he shall be selected in accordance with the rules of the American Arbitration Association.
>
> In the event of the appointment of a mediator or an arbitrator any fees or expenses paid to or incurred by such an individual shall be shared equally by the school committee and the teachers associations.

Other agreements which use the American Arbitration Association in their impasse resolution procedures are listed below (see explanation on page E-2):

U. S. Mediation and Conciliation Service

One 1966-67 agreement, that between the Youngstown (Ohio) Education Association (NEA) and the Youngstown Board of Education, utilized the U. S. Mediation and Conciliation Service in impasse resolution. Sections 2 through 5 of Article III from the Youngstown agreement are as follows:

> Section 2. If the negotiating parties fail to reach agreement on any item under consideration, either party may, after five (5) days written notice to the other, present its position and/or request to the Board of Education at an official meeting of that body, and each party may, in accordance with the Board's policies, present written and/or oral argument and data in support of its position.

Section 3. The Board will exercise its own judgment as to whether the case shall be studied by a special committee of its membership with report to the full Board; heard by the full Board in open meeting; or considered by the full Board as a committee of the whole. In any event, the Board will endeavor to reach a decision in the matter within ten (10) days after its next regular meeting (which time may be extended by mutual agreement), and all parties shall be advised of that decision and shall conscientiously attempt to accept and follow the same.

Section 4. In the event, however, that any of the parties hereto cannot conscientiously accept and follow the Board's decision, the said party shall, within ten (10) days after notice is received of the Board's decision, notify all parties hereto of its inability to accept and follow the said decision, and request referral of the matter to a mediation agency. This agency shall be either the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service or the American Arbitration Association, at the option of the requesting party.

It is mutually agreed that all parties hereto will honor such a request when submitted as specified above. It is further agreed that any judgment, opinion or recommendation of such a mediation agency shall be advisory only, and in no way binding upon any party hereto.

Any costs incident to the use of such mediation service as is contemplated herein shall be the sole responsibility of the party requesting the service.

Combination of Methods

An example of an agreement which utilizes a combination of procedures for resolution of impasse is that between the Red Bank (New Jersey) School District and the Red Bank Teachers Association (NEA). The agreement illustrates joint selection, followed by the use of the State Commissioner of Education, then followed by the American Arbitration Association if the chairman of the Advisory Board cannot be agreed upon. The applicable text follows:

MEDIATION AND APPEAL

If the procedures outlined in Section IV, titled "Procedures," should not result in an agreement satisfactory to both parties, and recognizing that the best interests of the community, the school system, the educational process and all participants therein, will best be served by making every effort to resolve all disputes as near the local level as is possible, the following procedure will be followed in the event that agreement is not reached unless the Board shall in its option elect to proceed directly to the Advisory Board, Section E hereafter:

A. The Association representatives and the Board representatives shall present separate reports stating their points of agreement and disagreement to the full Board. A mutually convenient meeting date shall be set within ten (10) work days, exclusive of officially Board designated holidays or vacations falling within the normal school year, of the date of such requests. It is specifically understood and agreed, however, that no hiatus in this procedure shall be occasioned by the occurrence of the regular summer vacation.

B. Facts, opinions, proposals and counter-proposals will be exchanged freely during the meeting or meetings in an effort to reach mutual understanding and agreement. The Association Welfare Committee, the Board and the Superintendent will act, as far as possible, as a committee of the whole, reviewing all matters pertinent to the issues which are the subject of negotiation.

C. Paragraph E. of Section IV, titled "Procedures," applies in these circumstances.

D. Paragraph F. Section IV, titled "Agreement," applies in these circumstances.

E. Advisory Board: In case of disagreement about the meaning or application of this Agreement, or if an impasse is reached during professional negotiations the procedure will be as follows, however, the subject of whether or not an impasse exists will never be submitted to arbitration:

1. The matter will be submitted to an Advisory Board which will convene within fifteen (15) calendar days after the request of either party to the other, if such time limit can possibly be met. Wherever possible, the Advisory Board will undertake to mediate the dispute in an effort to resolve the difference between the parties before conducting hearings.

2. To insure that such Advisory Board will convene with all possible dispatch, the Board and the Association shall each designate a member of the Advisory Board within three (3) calendar days of receipt, by certified mail, of the request by one party upon the other, for the appointment of such Advisory Board.

3. The two so designated advisors will designate a third member who shall be chairman. If the two named advisors fail to agree upon a third member to function as chairman within eight (8) calendar days of the request which had been made by certified mail of one party upon the other, either of the two so designated advisors is empowered to request the State Commissioner of Education to: appoint the third member if he will do so, or to convene a totally new committee, or to appoint one individual to study the situation and function as a committee of one, to make an advisory recommendation, or to take such other action as he deems best to resolve the dispute. In exceptional circumstances, either the Association or the Board can request the Commissioner to make such appointment from persons not involved in Monmouth County. In the event the Commissioner of Education refuses to act as requested herein, the two parties shall mutually request the American Arbitration Association to submit a roster from which a third party can be selected. Each party to this agreement retains the right to reject all names on the first roster with the further understanding that if they can not reach agreement on names submitted on the second roster that such appointment will be made directly by the American Arbitration Association.

4. The chairman, whether appointed by the two advisors, the State Commissioner of Education, or the American Arbitration Association, shall then convene the Advisory Board as closely to the desired fifteen (15) calendar day period as is practicable.

5. The Board and the Association, during an additional fifteen (15) calendar day period after receiving the advisory recommendations, will meet in an attempt to reach agreement on the recommendations submitted to each.

No items other than those submitted as advisory recommendations will be considered or introduced into these series of meetings.

6. If such agreement is reached, paragraph F. of Section IV, titled "Agreement," will apply in these circumstances and neither the Board nor the Association will publicize the recommendations of the Advisory Board.

7. If such agreement based upon the advisory recommendations is not reached, either the Board or the Association is free to follow any course of action legally its right.

8. The Advisory Board shall limit itself to the issues submitted to it and shall consider nothing else.

F. In recognition of the fact that full, complete and orderly channels have been established for the peaceful and just settlement of all disagreements arising under the terms of the Agreement, the Association, therefore, agrees to take no concerted action as described or defined by the word "sanctions" against the school board or the school district except as agreed in sub-section 7, paragraph E, this section.

VI. COSTS

In recognition of the fact that this Agreement provides opportunity for utilizing the services of individuals not a party to the Agreement, and to use them in an advisory or consultant basis by either of the parties unilaterally or jointly, it is agreed that:

A. If such individual is retained by one party in the behalf of that party, the fees and expenses will be wholly borne by the party making such retention.

B. If such individual is retained by both parties jointly, as a mutually agreeable consultant or advisor, the fees and expenses of the individual will be equally shared by the Board and the Association.

C. If any individual or committee is appointed under the terms of this Agreement by the State Commissioner of Education or the American Arbitration Association, the fees and expenses of such individual or committee will be equally shared by the Board and the Association.

Selection Is Named in Agreement

Some agreements may name a specific mediator whom negotiators may use when impasse occurs; e.g. "John Doe will be secured at the request of either the Board or the Association if the parties are unable to reach agreement during negotiations." The specified person could be a mediator supplied by the American Arbitration Association or a local mediator known by Board and Association members.

The following four school systems specify the mediator in the agreement (see explanation on page E-2):

Description and Analysis

CALIFORNIA SUPREME COURT DENIES HEARING IN BERKELEY CASE

The December issue of the NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST carried the text of the California Court of Appeal decision in the case of Berkeley Teachers Association v. Berkeley Federation of Teachers which upheld the method of determining the composition of the membership of the negotiation councils as stipulated by the Winton Act, California's teacher negotiation statute. The Appeals Court also denied the Federation's allegation that representation elections were legal under the act.

On November 22, 1967, the California Supreme Court denied a hearing in the case, making the decision of the Court of Appeal final.

MICHIGAN COURT RULES FINAL AND BINDING ARBITRATION OF GRIEVANCES LEGAL

The Circuit Court of Berrien County, Michigan, has ruled that a school system may enter into a grievance procedure in a bargaining agreement which has as its last step final and binding arbitration of the grievance. A grievance brought by two members of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFL-CIO) against the Benton Harbor School District was at issue in the case decided by the court.

The Benton Harbor School District had entered into an agreement with the union voluntarily, the agreement containing final and binding arbitration as the last step in its grievance procedure. After the grievance filed in behalf of the two union members reached the arbitration phase, the school district notified the union it would not proceed with the arbitration.

Important in this case is the limitation placed in the agreement upon the powers of the arbitrator: He shall have no power to change, modify, or alter the existing contract between the parties or any of the provisions of the same.

While many agreements contain this limitation on the arbitrator's powers, the decision's importance lies in its allowance of binding arbitration of grievances. Full text of the decision begins on page C-1.

This decision should have considerable impact upon the disposition of grievances in Michigan and in other states.

NEW DENVER, COLORADO, AGREEMENT

On November 21, 1967, the agreement between the Denver Classroom Teachers Association (NEA) and the Denver Public Schools was signed by the Denver Board of Education representatives. The agreement is effective January 1, 1968, through April 6, 1969.

Incorporated in the agreement is an extensive section on mediation (Articles 5-5 through 5-7) and an Article devoted to the Association president who is granted a year's leave while in office. One-half of the president's salary is paid by the Denver Classroom Teachers Association and one-half by the Denver Public Schools.

NEW YORK STATE'S NEW PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD RENDERS DECISION IN NEW YORK CITY CASE

Shortly after New York State's new Taylor Act went into effect on September 1, 1967, the New York City Schools were hit by a strike called by the United Federation of Teachers, Local 2, American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO). Under the Taylor Law the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) is authorized in § 205, 5(i) to hold hearings and make such inquiries as it deems necessary for it properly to carry out its functions and powers.[1/]

In the hearings held during October 1967 the New York City Board of Education charged the UFT with striking in violation of the New York State Public Employees' Fair Employment Act (Taylor Act). The UFT (the respondent) had collected resignations from many members.

In its first decision affecting employees in education the PERB stated:

WE FIND THAT:

1. Respondent caused the strike;
2. Respondent did not make good faith efforts to terminate the strike;
3. The public employer did not engage in such acts of extreme provocation as to detract from the responsibility of the employee organization for the strike;

WE FURTHER FIND THAT:

4. The strike was a premeditated act, planned and prepared over a long period of time;
5. The strike was announced even before respondent's own strike deadline.

In its Decision and Order, dated November 30, 1967, the PERB withdrew payroll dues deduction rights from the UFT for 12 months. In addition, it ordered that such payroll deduction rights "shall be restored at the end of such period of twelve months only after the United Federation of Teachers, Local 2, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, has affirmed that it no longer asserts the right to strike against any government...."

The full text of the document begins on page C-4.

Editor's Note: The fine of $150,000 levied against the UFT for violation of the injunction against the teachers' striking is now in the process of appeal.

NEWPORT, RHODE ISLAND, ARBITRATION AWARD

In the development of its first negotiation agreement the Newport, Rhode Island, School Committee and the Teachers Association of Newport (NEA) disagreed over a number of items including the salary schedule, fringe benefits, and whether a number of items were or were not negotiable. Were the items to be determined negotiable, they would become part of the agreement.

The arbitrator was assigned to the case by the American Arbitration Association; he said his function was "to determine the merits of all the proposals and counter-proposals submitted by each of the parties during negotiation and at the arbitration hearing, and to decide the content of the collective bargaining agreement they contemplate executing."

In addition to salary and fringe benefit awards the arbitrator made all of the disputed items negotiable. Text of the award begins on page C-6.

NEW TEACHER PROVISIONS IN TWO AGREEMENTS

The orientation of teachers new to the school system of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is considered in the comprehensive agreement with the Milwaukee Teachers Education Association:

NEW TEACHERS

1. A program shall be conducted for the introduction of new teachers into the school system, providing a minimum of three days of orientation prior to the beginning of the school year.

2. Each new teacher shall be assigned to an experienced member of the staff of his school to whom the new teacher may turn for advice and guidance during the school year.

3. New teachers shall be given a written contract together with a copy of the Board rules and of this document developed through negotiations with the Milwaukee Teachers Education Association.

The agreement between the American Federation of Teachers, Local 1275 (AFL-CIO), and the Board of Education, City of Ashland, Wisconsin, considers the probationary period of teachers new to Ashland in its Article XIII.

ARTICLE XIII PROBATIONARY PERIOD

1. A beginning teacher in the Ashland school system who is without prior teaching experience will serve a three year probationary period. An experienced teacher, new to the system, can, on the basis of good performance, complete the probationary phase of his employment in less than three years, but never in less than one year.

2. The performance of probationary teachers will be assessed by either the elementary coordinator or the high school principal. Teacher performance and growth will be reported to the superintendent who in turn will recommend to the Board of Education the renewal or non-renewal of probationary teacher contracts.

Data and Statistics

PATTERNS IN NEGOTIATION

Data on the role of the superintendent in negotiation and on who negotiates for the school board were published in the September and December 1967 issues of NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST. These data were obtained from the NEA Research Division's 1966-67 survey of written negotiation procedures. Considered separately the two tables of data provide valuable insight into the differing roles and procedures followed by school systems in the various states. However, when the data are considered together, the various states show many differences.

Eleven states reported 50 or more school systems with written negotiation agreements in 1966-67. The data for them and for the nation as a whole were distributed into separate contingency tables. In each table the responses on the role of the superintendent were distributed along the vertical axis while those relating to the negotiators for the school board were distributed along the horizontal axis.

Calculations (chi square) were made for each table on the basis of the frequencies in each cell to test for observed distributions (responses) which were significantly different from the expected or theoretical distributions. Responses for the states of New York and Washington could not be expected to be duplicated by chance more often than once in a hundred times ($p<.01$); the corresponding rates for the states of California, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Wisconsin, and the nation as a whole were not more than once in a thousand times ($p<.001$). The observed distributions for Illinois and Oregon were not significantly different from the expected or theoretical distributions.

The tables for the 11 states and the United States will be found on the six pages which follow. The number of useable responses is given in each cell in each table.

To facilitate visual interpretation of the data in the tables, five intervals were utilized. In addition to the use of blank cells where there were no responses, the intervals and the keys were:

Less than 2.0 percent
2.0 to 9.9 percent
10.0 to 19.9 percent
20.0 to 39.9 percent

Judicial Decisions, Opinions, and Statutes

STATE OF MICHIGAN

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF BERRIEN

LOCAL 953, affiliated with the International Union of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, and COUNCIL 55, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, Plaintiffs, vs. SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF BENTON HARBOR, Defendant.	No. C-6229(B) OPINION ON ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

The facts are not contested by the parties in this cause.

Defendant, a public school district of Michigan, entered into a collective bargaining agreement, attached as exhibit A to the complaint filed in this cause, with plaintiff union effective December 19, 1966, and for a term ending June 30, 1968, which in this case covers the custodial and maintenance employees of defendant. The agreement said in part that it was "to promote orderly and peaceful labor relations for the mutual interest of the employer and the employee."

Said agreement provided for binding arbitration of issues arising in the future between the parties concerning the application and interpretation of the terms of the agreement or its effect, and established a five-step procedure for handling any dispute or grievance.

The provisions governing the fifth step are in issue here. It is provided that when the first four steps are exhausted (as was done in this case) either the employer or the union on written notice to the other may refer the grievance for arbitration and the American Arbitration Association shall be asked to supply a list of names of seven available arbitrators. Each party shall alternately strike a name and the last remaining name shall be the arbitrator. The jurisdiction of such arbitrator is limited ". . .to the interpretation of the meaning of the provisions of this agreement." It is specifically provided relative to the arbitrator that:

> "He shall have no power to change, modify, or alter the existing contract between the parties or any of the provisions of the same."

The decision of the arbitrator must be given in 15 days and is binding on both parties who equally share the fees and expenses of the arbitrator.

On or about February 13, 1967, written grievances concerning overtime pay and job posting were filed by Oswald Hobdy and Frank Manderino, members of plaintiff union and maintenance employees of the defendant, with Edward Troffer, Director of Building and Grounds. The disputes failed of settlement in the first four steps of the grievance procedure.

As required by step 4 of the agreement of the parties hereto, mediation was requested from the Michigan Labor Mediation Board. After conclusion of the mediation effort, the state mediator ruled that ". . .both parties are now free to pursue the grievances in accordance with the collective bargaining agreement which provides for arbitration."

Plaintiff union then by written notice referred the grievance to arbitration and a list of arbitrators was requested from the American Arbitration Association.

Howard A. Cole was designated by the parties as arbitrator and notice of the time and place of the hearing was sent to the parties. At first, claiming the request for arbitration was untimely, the defendant school district rejected the union's request for arbitration, but on or about April 21, 1967, it waived the objection and agreed to arbitration.

On June 2, 1967, defendant notified by letter plaintiff union that it would not proceed with arbitration. (Exhibit C attached to the complaint.)

Claiming irreparable injury, plaintiff union filed this suit asking an order by this court directing defendant to proceed with arbitration of the grievances of Hobdy and Mandarino as provided for by Step 5 of Section 5 of the collective bargaining agreement of the parties hereto.

The parties hereto are in conflict as to the law.

Defendant claims it can not comply with Step 5 in the arbitration provisions of the collective bargaining agreement because of the opinion of the Attorney General of Michigan dated May 26, 1967, and bearing opinion number 4578, a copy of which was attached to and made a part of the answer filed by defendant. It is claimed therefore by defendant that it had no lawful authority to enter into the contract with the union representatives of its employees providing for binding arbitration and it can not comply with the same on the aforesaid grievances of employees Hobdy and Mandarino.

Oral argument was held before the court on June 15, 1967, on the order to show cause secured by plaintiff against defendant. Thereafter this court has been favored with excellent briefs by able counsel representing both parties to this suit.

The legal issue involved may be briefly and simply stated as follows:

Is this defendant school district prohibited by law from proceeding with binding arbitration as provided in its voluntary collective bargaining agreement with the plaintiff union?

There is no case known to the parties or this court decided in Michigan on this question or on the facts of this cause.

Unless the law of this state prohibits school districts from agreeing to binding arbitration of grievances of their employees under their collective bargaining agreements, the defendant in this cause is by the terms of its written contract with the plaintiff union obligated to proceed with said Step 5, i.e., binding arbitration of the grievances of Hobdy and Mandarino.

Each case must be decided on its own facts and merit. Here it must be noted (1) the collective bargaining agreement in issue was voluntarily entered into by both parties to this suit, and presumably both benefited therefrom, and (2) the provision in said Step 5 for binding arbitration provides that while the decision of the arbitrator is final and binding on both parties, the arbitrator's jurisdiction is "limited to the interpretation of the meaning of the provisions of this agreement and to the compliance of either party with its obligations under this agreement. He shall have no power to change, modify, or alter the existing contract between the parties or any of the provisions of the same." Further, it should be noted that the arbitrator is selected by joint participation of the parties, who equally share his fee and expenses and he is a person approved and listed by the American Arbitration Association.

This court recognizes that for many years collective bargaining, well recognized in this and all other states, has often included provisions for compulsory arbitration. In other matters (contract claims, valuation disputes, insurance claims, etc.) the Michigan legislature and courts have favored arbitration as an efficient, fair and usually inexpensive means to resolve disputes. Labor difficulties like strikes, walkouts, slowdowns, etc., have been avoided or lessened because of the availability of arbitration. The public interest is best served in education, as well as other activities, if a means is found to resolve differences within the framework and language of a labor contract.

This court recognizes that school districts and their boards are creations of the state legislature and may exercise only those powers and rights given expressly or by implication by the legislature (Senghas v. L'Anse Creuse Public Schools, 368 Mich. 557, McLaughlin v. Board of Education, 255 Mich. 667). The court further recognizes that employees of school districts are public employees and as such in various instances do not enjoy the same rights as private employees.

In view of the aforesaid opinion of the Attorney General, the defendant was quite correct in refusing to proceed with arbitration until the courts have spoken, which is now being done. The Attorney General's opinion is not binding on this or higher courts.

The plaintiff would prefer to call this a "voluntary labor arbitration" with binding effect, and the defendant a "compulsory arbitration." This is dealing in the emotional impact of words rather than their legal effects. In this cause we have a voluntary agreement which includes compulsory or binding arbitration. It can be used to the benefit of both parties, as well as the public.

This court agrees that there is no statute of Michigan expressly providing that school districts or other public employers may agree to binding arbitration, and there is no statute expressly prohibiting it. But is there not the implied power to do so in Section 15 of Act 336, P.A. 1947, as added by Acts 397 and 379, P.A. 1965?

Therein it is provided that a public employer shall "bargain collectively" and may "make and enter collective bargaining agreements." Further, bargaining collectively is defined among other goals as "the negotiation of an agreement or any question arising thereunder (emphasis added)." Certainly giving the power to enter into a contract would include the power to settle disputes arising under the terms of such contract. Negotiations as to "wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment" can well include the power to arbitrate disputes on these points after the contract is signed.

The said law does also provide "such obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession." Defendant places reliance on this provision. Does this prohibit school districts from voluntarily agreeing to binding arbitration in a collective bargaining agreement voluntarily entered into as to disputes arising as to the application and interpretation of the terms of the agreement or its effect? Or, as this court finds, does such quoted part of the statute, while giving much the same right to collective bargaining as is provided to private employers and employees, mean that neither party entering into collective bargaining discussions prior to any written contract must agree to proposed terms or make concessions? This court believes such provision applies before any agreement is executed and does not prohibit fulfillment of binding arbitration once it is included in a voluntarily excuted collective bargaining agreement between the public employer and employee, which is the situation we have in this cause. In short, such provision insures both parties the right to bargain to an impasse with no compulsion on the school board to agree to a collective bargaining agreement or to enter into an agreement.

The Attorney General in his said opinion states, "... it is abundantly clear that the Board of Education is not required by that Act to agree to a proposal or be compelled to make a decision." This is what this court has just stated. But this applies before the contract, if any, is made. The Attorney General does not state whether once the concession is voluntarily made by the public employer, as was done by this defendant, that the concession (i.e., binding arbitration) is not enforceable. The Attorney General's opinion is as to conditions and rights before the contract, not after the contract itself is voluntarily made, which is this present cause.

The arbitration provisions of the agreement in this case do not appear to be any abdication or delegation of its policy-making authority or concessions by the defendant to the arbitrator of plaintiff union.

The rule of interpretation of statutes is that words will be given their plain or their common meaning. "Collective bargaining" has certainly for thirty years and more included bargaining for more than only terms, conditions and compensation for work. The term at the time the legislature used it included bargaining as to binding machinery to arbitrate disputes as to wages, hours and conditions of employment arising from the labor contract.

Had the legislature intended that binding arbitration within the terms of the labor agreement be not embraced in its use of the words "collective bargaining," it could have easily and briefly so stated. It did not do so and this court must find that the right to collective bargaining includes the right to provide for binding arbitration. Had the legislature intended only to permit limited negotiations between the public employer and employee, it could have used specific terms and rights rather than the general term "collective bargaining." The use and effect of binding arbitration of grievances under a labor contract must be presumed was well known to the legislature as it was to all citizens who have any knowledge of labor relations. It might be noted that the legislature did not hesitate to prohibit the right to strike.

Defendant argues that binding arbitration in its labor contract with plaintiff will or does mean that the union will be setting powers, policy or rights which the board of education alone holds. Not so. The arbitrator is not the union's agent. He or she is selected after first being approved as to qualifications by the American Arbitration Association. He or she is determined after each party has an equal voice in the selection of the arbitrator. His or her expenses and fees are shared equally by the parties. The arbitrator can not add to or change the contract, but specifically is limited to deciding a grievance which the parties to the contract can not resolve within "the provisions of the agreement." This is not giving the arbitrator the right to decide matters outside the agreement or to disputes not covered by the contract.

This is not a situation of passing to an individual the rights and duties of the state legislature or of the board of education of the defendant school district. It is an amicable and more efficient means than resignation, walkout or strike by the employees to resolve any difficulties within a contract previously acceptable to and executed by the parties.

The Attorney General's said opinion cites Norwalk Teachers Ass'n. v. Board of Education of the City of Norwalk, 83 A2d 482. This case recognized (Supreme Court of Connecticut) the right of the board of education to enter voluntarily a contract to arbitrate a specific dispute. The court recognized the differences between binding arbitration of any and all matters, which it would not approve and which is not the case here, and arbitration of matters within the voluntary contract, which is the case here.

Reference is made to a recent decision of the Supreme Court of Wisconsin, Local 1226, Rhinelander City Employees, AFSCME, et al v. City of Rhinelander, Sup. Ct. No. 245, June 6, 1967. The contract in Rhinelander called for "final and binding" arbitration of grievances under the collective bargaining agreement. As in the present cause, such arbitration was limited to the contract itself. The court denied the defense that the arbitration clause was not binding on the city, and it further held that the courts had authority to enforce or require compliance with arbitration agreements.

Certainly where no law or public policy prohibits a contract on behalf of public employees containing a provision for binding arbitration of issues within the contract itself, the contract, like any other contract, must be enforced by the court. Defendant claims only the defense that as a matter of law the contract provision for binding arbitration can not be enforced. Defendant does not dispute the court's authority to enforce the contract and any and all provisions it finds valid.

Having found that the parties hereto could have entered a contract providing for binding arbitration of disputes within the terms of the contract itself and did so, the prayer of plaintiff for an order directing defendant to proceed with final and binding arbitration of the grievances of Oswald Hobdy and Frank Mandarino as provided by the collective bargaining agreement of the parties hereto is granted. Plaintiff will prepare the appropriate order and submit the same to defense counsel and then to this court for approval.

CHESTER J. BYRNS, Circuit Judge

PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD

IN THE MATTER OF UNITED FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, LOCAL 2, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, AFL-CIO, Party Charged, THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, Party Making Charge.	DECISION AND ORDER

On October 18 and 19, 1967 this Public Employment Relations Board held a hearing on charges filed by the Board of Education of the City of New York alleging that the United Federation of Teachers, Local 2, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called respondent, had violated §210 of the New York State Public Employees' Fair Employment Act. Subdivision 1 of that section states:

> No public employee or employee organization shall engage in a strike, and no employee organization shall cause, instigate, encourage or condone a strike.

Prior to the date of the hearing the General Counsel of this Board made a motion for leave to intervene in the proceedings and, over the objection of both original parties, the motion for leave to intervene was granted pursuant to §206.2(n) of the Rules of this Board.

On September 11, 1967 approximately 900 schools operated by the New York City Board of Education were scheduled to open and offer their normal services to students returning from their summer vacations. On that date there was no contract between the Board of Education and respondent. The prior contract had expired on June 30, 1967 and no new contract was ratified by respondent membership until September 28, 1967. During the period between September 11, 1967 and September 28, 1967 approximately 80% of the teachers employed by the Board of Education failed to report to work. That absentee rate contrasts with a normal absentee rate of between 3% and 5%, a rate which was restored after the agreement was ratified.

This Board determines that the unusually high absentee rate between September 11, 1967 and September 28, 1967 constituted a strike, and that such strike was caused by respondent. The absentee rate was occasioned by a concerted work stoppage by members of the respondent pursuant to its position of "no contract, no work". This concerted work stoppage was designed to pressure the Board of Education into granting a more favorable contract than respondent anticipated that it might obtain absent such work stoppage; it was accompanied by picketing and public declarations that the teachers will continue to withdraw their services until a satisfactory contract is negotiated. These circumstances make it clear that a strike has transpired even though many members of respondent executed statements of resignations which they delivered to respondent. Unlike a strike, resignation contemplates a severance of relationship between an employee and an employer. No such severance was contemplated in the instant situation. The respondent adopted the procedure of accumulating statements of resignation upon the recommendation of its Strike Strategy Committee and it assured its constituency that it would fully protect all teachers who signed the resignation statements. In point of fact, when it became apparent that some of the consequences of a resignation might follow the submission of the resignation statements, respondent decided not to submit them, and never did.

Respondent must be charged with full responsibility for the strike. By vote of its membership it adopted the "no contract, no work" policy which occasioned the strike; it solicited resignation statements; it prepared and distributed picket signs; it solicited persons to walk the picket lines; it instituted a telephone recording system whereby a tape-recorded message was played for the information of over 100,000 callers urging them to withhold their services; it announced the inevitability of a work stoppage of sufficient magnitude to prevent schools from reopening on September 11, 1967 even before that date; finally, speaking through its president, it stated that it was engaged in an act of civil disobedience - that is, it admitted that it was in violation of the law albeit for reasons that it deemed to be justifiable.

In defense of its action, respondent has advanced the theory that the terms of §210 of the Act which prohibit strikes by public employees are inapplicable unless the procedures set forth in §209 of the Act for the resolution of impasses have been utilized, and within a specified period of time before the budget submission date (Respondent's reply brief, page 4). We reject this contention. The prohibition against strikes by public employees was not an innovation of the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act and the impasse resolution procedures were not - as alleged by respondent - the quid pro quo for the strike prohibition. The prohibition against strikes by public employees is derived from the common law where it was unconditional. It was articulated in the Condon-Wadlin Law in which it was also unconditional. The strike prohibited has been continued by the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act.

The language of §209 also makes it clear that the invocation of the impasse procedures specified therein is not a prerequisite for the application of the strike prohibition. Subdivision 3 of §209 provides for the invocation of the impasse procedures on the request of a party to a dispute or by this Board upon its own motion. Neither respondent nor the Board of Education requested this Board to invoke the impasse procedures; the Board decided not to invoke them on its own motion because substantially equivalent procedures were already being applied when, on September 1, 1967, the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act became effective. As a matter of fact, there was both mediation and fact-finding by nationally recognized labor relations experts, including public recommendations, prior to the commencement of the strike. Moreover, the report of the fact-finding panel was presented to and accepted by the Board of Education which, by the terms of the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act, §201, subd. 12, was the legislative body which was charged with making the final determination. Under the circumstances, the contention of the respondent that it was denied the benefits of the impasse resolution procedures of the law is without substance.

In reply, respondent conceded that there may have been substantial compliance with the impasse resolution procedures, but insists that this was inadequate because such procedures did not take place within a specified period of time before the appropriate budget submission date. That budget submission date was January 1, 1967, a time before the enactment of the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act. It therefore appears to be the theory of respondent that the Act permits strikes by public employees after its effective date so long as the budget submission date involved was prior to that effective date so as to render the application of the impasse procedures impossible. This theory is rejected. Neither the legislative history nor the language of the statute suggests any intent to create a period of time during which strikes would not be prohibited. The statute requires this Board to consider three criteria in determining whether an employee organization has violated the statute. They are (1) whether the employee organization causes the strike or tries to prevent it; (2) whether the employee organization made or was making good faith efforts to terminate the strike; and (3) whether, if so alleged by the employee organization, the public employer engaged in such acts of extreme provocation as to detract from the responsibility of the employee organization for that strike. The Legislature did not establish as a criterion the implementation of the impasse procedures other than as this bears upon extreme provocation.

Although there were only eleven days after the effective date of the Act before the strike deadline announced by respondent, this circumstance does not justify a strike. The strike deadline was an illegal artificiality created by respondent under its "no contract, no work" policy. Except for this policy, there was no reason why respondent could not have continued to negotiate beyond September 11, 1967 with a demand that the terms of any contract which would emerge should be made retroactive to September 11, 1967.

Having concluded that the respondent had violated §210 of the Public Employees' Fair Employment Act, we must now decide what penalty to impose. The statute provides that an employee organization which is determined by this Board to have caused a strike shall lose the right to membership dues deductions for a period not to exceed 18 months. As a further guide, the statute requires this Board to consider the three criteria already referred to.

WE FIND THAT:

1. Respondent caused the strike;

2. Respondent did not make good faith efforts to terminate the strike;

3. The public employer did not engage in such acts of extreme provocation as to detract from the responsibility of the employee organization for the strike;

WE FURTHER FIND THAT:

4. The strike was a premeditated act, planned and prepared over a long period of time;

5. The strike was announced even before respondent's own strike deadline.

ACCORDINGLY, WE ORDER THAT:

The rights of the United Federation of Teachers, Local 2, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, to membership dues deduction shall be forfeited for a period of twelve months commencing on the first practicable date, and that it shall be restored at the end of such period of twelve months only after the United Federation of Teachers, Local 2, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO has affirmed that it no longer asserts the right to strike against any government; provided, however, if a fine imposed on the United Federation of Teachers, Local 2, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, pursuant to subdivision 2 of §751 of the Judiciary Law remains wholly or partly unpaid, after the exhaustion of the cash and securities of the United Federation of Teachers, Local 2, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, such membership dues deduction shall be continued to the extent necessary to pay such fine and the Board of Education of the City of New York shall transmit such monies to the Court.

Reproduced below is the major portion of an arbitration award resulting from unresolved issues in the negotiation between the Newport (Rhode Island) School Committee and the Teachers Association of Newport (NEA). Not included is the section of five pages which dealt with specific language for the agreement awarded by the arbitrator as noted in the section provided.

In the Matter of the Arbitration Between: Teachers Association of Newport and Newport School Committee American Arbitration Association Case Number 1130-0187-67	John T. Conlon Arbitrator

Pursuant to the provisions of Title 28 of the General Laws of the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, as amended, the undersigned was duly appointed Arbitrator in the above entitled matter by Notice from the American Arbitration Association, dated July 17, 1967.

The Petition

The Teachers Association of Newport, as the party submitting the Demand for Arbitration in this case, petitioned the Arbitrator at the hearings for:

> An award concerning hours, salary, working conditions and other terms of professional employment encompassed in the proposed contract provisions submitted by the Teachers Association of Newport.

The Hearings

Hearings on this matter were held on July 31 - August 1, 1967 in the Newport School Administrative Offices, Newport, Rhode Island. Present and representing each of the parties at these hearings were:

For the Newport School Committee:	For the Teachers Association of Newport:
Paul F. Murray	Edward B. Talbot
Robert W. McBrier	Robert Chanin
Thomas F. Coristine, Jr.	Roger Aubin
John F. MacDonnell	Evelyn C. Carroll
Nicholas S. Logothets	Terrence C. Burns
David L. Jenkins	Sherwin J. Kapstein
Patrick G. Kirby	Mary King
	Jean Conheeny
	James R. Chapman
	Francis X. MacKinnon
	Terrence M. Murphy
	Harry F. Vaughan

Throughout the hearings full opportunity was permitted each of the parties to present argument and exhibits in support of their respective positions, and to examine and cross examine witnesses.

At the conclusion of the hearings the parties agreed by joint stipulation to waive the ten-day statutory requirement for the filing of the Arbitrator's decision, and set August 28, 1967 as the deadline for the receipt of the award.

Subsequent to the hearings the Arbitrator requested of the parties, through the office of the American Arbitration Association, additional evidence relating to teachers' salaries. Said information was received in a letter from Mr. John F. MacDonnell, Superintendent of Schools, dated August 16, 1967.

Positions of the Parties

The evidence introduced at the hearings established that the parties have reached an impasse in their negotiations over the terms of an initial collective bargaining contract. It is also disclosed that the areas of disagreement essentially encompass all of the terms proposed for that agreement by each of the parties during the course of their negotiations and during the arbitration hearing. The substantive issues which are in dispute fall into three clearly defined classifications: one, the extent and form of a salary adjustment; two, the establishment on a contractual basis of several employment practices of a non-salary economic nature; and three, a similar establishment of several additional terms and conditions of employment of a non-economic character.

The positions of the Teachers' Association of Newport (T.A.N.) and the Newport School Committee (N.S.C.) on the issues in dispute may be summarized as follows:

I. Salary:

	Class I		Class II*		Class III		Class IV*
	Min.	Max.	Min.	Max.	Min.	Max.	Min.	Max.
A. Schedules Proposed by T.A.N. (T.A.N. Ex.'s #8 5/29/67; and #10, 7/31/67)	$5,900	$8,900	$6,000	$9,600	$6,200	$9,800	$6,300	$10,300
B. Schedules adopted by N.S.C. (T.A.N. Ex.'s #10, 12, 7/31/67; Letter, 8/16/67)	5,500	8,100	5,800	8,400	6,100	8,700	6,400	9,000

*Also, change adopted by N.S.C. from +30 to +36 credit hours required.
Class V established, Base salary plus $1,100 at each step for teachers holding doctorate degree.

. . . . . .

C. Administrative Salary Adjustments, Proposed by T.A.N. (T.A.N., Ex. #8)

Ratios for increments based on maximum step, B.A. Schedule:

.1 - .25	Department Chairmen
.25	Dean of Girls
.15	Director of Athletics
.05	Part-time Guidance Counselors

D. Supplementary Activity Salary Schedule, Proposed by T.A.N. (T.A.N. Ex. #8.) — increments ranging from $200 - 800 for participation in eight (8) extracurricula activities.

E. Athletic Coaches Schedule, Proposed by T.A.N. (T.A.N. Ex. #8) — increments ranging from $350 - 1,500; six (6) step system in each of five classifications.

F. Substitute Teacher Rates, Proposed by T.A.N. (T.A.N. Ex. #8) — Graduated scale from $20 to $30 /day.

G. Military Service Credit, Proposed by T.A.N. (T.A.N. Ex. #8) — Maximum of two (2) years credit, or two (2) steps on appropriate salary schedule.

H. Special Education Teachers, Proposed by T.A.N. (T.A.N. Ex. #8) — $600 increment for participation in program.

The T.A.N. estimates of gross additional cost resulting from implementation of the above proposals are (T.A.N. Ex. #21):

A. $387,700
B. $ 83,000
C. $ 10,400
D. $ 4,700
E. $ 9,500
F. None provided
G. None provided
H. $ 4,500

II. Non-Salary Economic Matters:

Item (Proposed by T.A.N.)	T.A.N. Estimate of Gross Additional Annual Cost	(T.A.N. Ex. #21)
A. Health Insurance	$31,600	($12.90/mo./teacher)
B. Additions to staff for:
(1) Daily Preparation Time	$22,400	(4 teachers @ $5,600 each)
(2) Non-Teaching Duties (total)	$27,000-28,000	(teachers aides)
(3) Specialist Services	$210,000	(30 teachers @ $7,000 each)
(4) Reduction in Class Size	$19,600	(3-1/2 teachers @ $5,600 each. Secondary Program only)
C. Travel: Assignments & Transfers	$200	(@ $.10/mile)
D. Sabbatical Leave	--	($1,800-1,825/yr.teacher)

II. Non-Salary Economic Matters: (Continued)

Item (Proposed by T.A.N.)	T.A.N. Estimate of Gross Additional Annual Cost (T.A.N. Ex. #21)
E. Textbooks	$18,000	(@ $10.00/pupil)
F. Supplies	$5,000
G. Summer School & Adult Education	$6,000	(@ $7,50/hr.)
H. Teacher Facilities	$16,350

According to the T.A.N., the gross additional annual cost of the proposals indicated in I and II above to the City of Newport should be reduced by: (1) the fact that funding would be required for only 21/26 of the pay periods of the present fiscal year (e.g., September 1, 1967 - June 30, 1968), (2) the increase of $85,500 in the School Committee's budget for salary in the present fiscal year as approved by the City Council, and (3) the anticipated normal allocation of state aid in the amount of 30% of expenditures. Following appropriate adjustments in gross costs due to these factors, the so-called "true-cost" projected by the T.A.N. of implementing the programs proposed above was estimated to be $364,150.

Other than for item I.B. (Salary) above, and for the reasons indicated hereinafter in this section, no comparable cost estimates for the above proposals were submitted by N.S.C.

III. Non-Economic Matters

According to testimony by the T.A.N. the following non-economic proposals submitted by the T.A.N. were:

A. Discussed during negotiation sessions and substantial and tentative agreement by the parties was reached thereon:

Article (T.A.N. Ex. #8)	Title	Section(s)
9	Teaching Assignments & Transfers	A,C,D,E,F,H
10	Promotions	all
11	Teacher Files	all
12	Protection
13	Personal Injury Benefits and Property Damage
14	Leave	A-1,2,first sentence of 3, B,C,
16	Special Education Centers	all
19	Textbooks	A,C,
20	Supplies	B,C,D
21	Summer School and Adult Education	A,B,C
22	Use of School Facilities	all

B. Not discussed, or not discussed at length during negotiations, and no agreement reached thereon:

Article (T.A.N. Ex. #8)	Title
1	Recognition
2	Negotiation Procedure
3	Grievance Procedure
18	Insurance and Annuity Plan (especially Sec. B)
23	Dues Deduction
24	General
25	Duration
Appendix B	Individual Contracts

With reference to non-economic matters, the N.S.C. maintained that tentative agreement was not achieved on certain of the items indicated in A above, and was most highly tentative and subject to further discussion on the remainder. In addition, the N.S.C. introduced into evidence at the arbitration hearing a copy of counterproposals on non-economic matters prepared for presentation at the last negotiation session, but never formally or previously submitted to the T.A.N. These counterproposals related to the following matters:

Article (N.S.C. Ex. #2)	Title
1	Teaching Hours and Teaching Load
2	Class Size
3	Teacher Facilities
4	Teaching Assignments and Transfers
5	Promotions
6	Teacher Files
7	Protection
8	Personal Injury Benefits and Property Damage
9	Leave
10	Evaluation of Teachers
11	Summer School and Adult Education
12	Use of School Facilities
13	Grievance Procedure

The position of the N.S.C. was that in many if not most instances the intent and effect of the above identified counterproposals did not differ significantly from the proposals on these matters submitted by the T.A.N. The representatives of the T.A.N., by way of response, maintained that the differences in the two sets of proposals on non-economic matters were material and substantial in every respect.

The above summarizes the differences between the positions of the parties on the substantive issues involved in their negotiations. Also, however, a deep difference of opinion exists between their respective positions on their individual and joint responsibilities in bargaining collectively under the provisions of the recently amended Title 28 of the General Laws.

In essence the position of the N.S.C. on this matter may be stated as follows. By long standing state statute the care, control, and management of individual school systems in Rhode Island is vested in the elected School Committee of each community. With the exception of hours and salary, the only two items expressly designated as negotiable under the amended provisions of Title 28, the N.S.C. retains its traditional and exclusive right to determine policy in all other school-related matters. To enter into a binding contract with the T.A.N. on these latter matters would, it was maintained, represent a forfeiture of the N.S.C.'s legal responsibility for administrative governance.

In addition, the N.S.C. further justified its position on this issue by citing limitations on its ability and responsibility to commit the expenditure of public money under the terms of a negotiated collective bargaining contract. Final fiscal authority, it was stated, resides in the municipal City Council, not in the N.S.C. Hence, it therefore is not legally possible for the N.S.C. to enter into a binding agreement on matters involving the expenditure of money other than for salary, and thus commit the City Council and a subsequent School Committee to the support of the activities involved. Finally on this point, by implication if not by express statement, the N.S.C. appeared to infer that the limitation on the authority of the arbitrator in his decision to bind the parties to the expenditure of money raised doubts as to their obligation to negotiate over such matters.

The position of the T.A.N. on the issue of the legal responsibilities of the parties in bargaining collectively differs markedly from that of the N.S.C. As interpreted by the T.A.N., the provisions of the statute requiring bargaining over ". . .working conditions and other terms of professional employment." clearly implies a legal obligation to negotiate all proposals relating to these matters and to incorporate agreement reached thereon in a binding contract. Matters involving the expenditure of money not only are not expressly exempted from this requirement, but rather were intended by the legislature to be included within the scope of this obligation.

According to the T.A.N., the fundamental criterion that should govern the terms to be included in a collective bargaining agreement is what is "needed" in order to improve the school system. The N.S.C. has an obligation under the law to negotiate with the T.A.N. the means by which these needs are to be satisfied, to enter into a binding contract incorporating therein the agreement reached on these matters, and to present and justify before the City Council the monies which shall have to be appropriated to accomplish the objectives involved. For the year at hand, the N.S.C. should be obliged, following a precedent established in 1965, to request of the City Council the supplementary funds required to effectuate the terms of the projected collective bargaining agreement, the anticipated and ultimate effect on the tax rate notwithstanding.

Discussion and Opinion

The function of the Arbitrator in this case is, in effect, to determine the merits of all of the proposals and counterproposals submitted by each of the parties during negotiation and at the arbitration hearing, and to decide the content of the collective bargaining agreement they contemplate executing. This is a monumental task, and an awesome responsibility. It is undertaken with a full awareness that under the provisions of Title 28 of the General Laws, as amended, the decision of the Arbitrator shall be binding on all matters not involving the expenditure of money.

As a prior condition to deciding the merits of the positions of the parties on the substantive matters at issue, the Arbitrator of necessity must first determine the nature and extent of the party's obligation to bargain on these matters under the applicable statutory provisions.

To the mind of the undersigned Arbitrator the intent of the state legislature on this question is not in every instance readily determinable from the express provisions of existing law. Whereas the statute defines in precise fashion the obligation of the parties to bargain over matters relating to ". . .hours, (and) salary. . ." it does not similarly identify the scope of that obligation with respect to ". . .working conditions and other terms of professional employment." It therefore is only with the latter provisions that a major problem of interpretation and application of legislative intent lies. A determination on this issue is essential to the case at hand, and must be imputed from the total evidence available.

In the absence of express statutory provisions or other compelling evidence to the contrary, it is held, after careful deliberation, that the only reasonable and logical interpretation of legislative intent with reference to the terms in question is that consistent with their traditional and customary usage in the sister field of industrial employment, and as it is evolving in the more recently organized field of public employment. In general, in each of these fields, these terms and variations of them normally are accorded a very broad and almost ever expanding definition and construction, to the extent that matters not otherwise expressly prescribed as non-negotiable typically are considered and held to come within the range of items upon which bargaining is mandatory.

Further, inasmuch as in normal practice many if not most of the programs and activities established under these or essentially similar terms elsewhere involve the expenditure of money, it must be assumed, again in the absence of explicit statutory qualification or other evidence to the contrary, that it was the intent of the legislature that the parties would be required to bargain over matters involving the expenditure of money. The inclusion in Chapter 9.3-8 of Title 28 of the provision "Whenever salary or other matters requiring appropriation of money. . .are to be included as matter of negotiation or collective bargaining. . ." is construed and held to reinforce this interpretation of legislative intent.

On the basis of the foregoing it therefore is ruled that all of the proposals submitted by the T.A.N. legitimately are subject to the bargaining process under existing statute.

It also follows in order not to make the collective bargaining process no more than an ineffective ritual, but rather to secure the stated statutory objective of high quality education, that the obligation of the N.S.C. logically must be inferred to extend to presentation before the City Council of all of the agreements reached in negotiation which involve the expenditure of public funds. Whether the City Council thereafter has the authority to reduce in any way the funds so committed is not an issue which the Arbitrator is empowered to decide. But it is within his proper jurisdiction in this case to rule that under the law it was not intended that the N.S.C. would be the final judge on these matters.

Having thus decided the issue relating to the scope of the legal responsibilities of the parties in bargaining collectively, it now is appropriate to turn to the substantive matters in dispute.

First and foremost of these is the difference of opinion which exists between the parties as to the salary structure which should be in effect during the coming school year. On the basis of the evidence presented at the hearing and that obtained subsequent thereto, it does appear that the schedule adopted for 1967-68 by the N.S.C. and the City Council is low in relative and absolute terms when compared with these generally in effect in comparable cities and other communities within the state. In order to remain competitive in the academic market place in attracting qualified new teachers to the Newport system, to aid in the retention of experienced teachers presently in the system, and to promote self-improvement of such teachers through advanced graduate study, an upward adjustment in excess of that already adopted appears imperative and warranted.

It is the opinion of the Arbitrator, and is so decided, that the above objectives can best be accomplished by an additional across-the-board increment graduated according to steps in each classification of teachers in the manner and amounts indicated below:

Steps	Class I	Class II	Class III	Class IV
1-4	$100	$100	$100	$100
5-8	200	200	200	200
9-	300	300	300	300

In the absence of state governmental action to the contrary, it is further awarded that the N.S.C. may not unilaterally and at this time establish Class V in the salary structure, adjust credit hour requirements for upward reclassification of teachers from 30 to 36 hours, or alter previously existing definitions of creditable hours.

All of the remaining salary adjustment and non-salary economic proposals submitted by the T.A.N. appear in the judgment of the arbitrator to have merit, in varying degrees. However, in light of the magnitude of the improvements awarded in the basic salary structure, and after careful consideration of the total circumstances existing in the school system and in the community, it is the conviction of the Arbitrator that only the most pressing and deserving of the proposals, from both an educational and financial point of view, should be incorporated in an agreement.

It is the best judgment of the Arbitrator that the most worthy and most feasible of these proposals are those relating to the institution of a health insurance program for teachers, the provision of student-parent aides and specialist services to teachers, and the promotion of sabbatical leave opportunities for qualified candidates. The need and desirability of instituting these programs on a contractual basis were well established at the hearings.

It therefore is awarded that the programs identified below shall be incorporated in the collective bargaining agreement and supported in the amounts and manner indicated:

Program	Amount	Explanation
Health Insurance	$31,600	(@ approximately $12.90/ mo./teacher)
Student-Parent Aides	10,000	(exclusive of volunteer aide services)
Specialist Teachers	49,000	(7 teachers at approximate average annual salary of $7,000 each)
Sabbatical Leaves	27,000	(15 teachers at approximately $1,800 each annually)

Further it is recommended, though not awarded as mandatory, that a Joint Study Committee composed of all interested parties be established to make recommendations to the approximate authorities as to the administration of the above identified programs.

With respect to all of the other salary and non-salary economic proposals submitted by the T.A.N., the parties shall be free under the terms of this award to negotiate and incorporate in an agreement provisions relating to these matters. Should such voluntary action on their part for any reason not be forthcoming, it is the decision of the Arbitrator that at least for this moment the T.A.N. shall forego their proposals on each of these matters.

The parties to this dispute are not in essential disagreement over the great majority of the non-economic items which they propose to be included in their collective agreement. There is significant disagreement however between their respective positions as to the precise provisions which should be included in the contract in order to effectuate each of the programs or activities involved. All of the proposals of a non-economic nature submitted by each of the parties, and all of the evidence advanced in support of their positions on these matters, have been carefully reviewed by the Arbitrator. Those proposals which, in the judgment of the Arbitrator have inherent merit, and which appear desirable and necessary for inclusion in the contract in order to effectuate the objectives and obligations of the parties in bargaining collectively, are incorporated, in the form and manner decided by the Arbitrator most reasonable and appropriate, in the following section entitled Award.

Before proceeding to the express statement of the decision reached on all of the foregoing matters, the Arbitrator feels compelled to make a general and summary comment.

The evidence introduced at the hearings established that several problems exist in the school system in Newport. In general, however, these problems are not unique to their community. Many exist in varying degrees in school systems throughout our country. Some have persisted for many years.

In recognition of the existence of these problems, our federal government, state and local governments, and private foundations in recent years have devoted considerable thought and resources to determining and promoting solutions to them.

One of the solutions increasingly being adopted to solve the problem of a generally inadequate system of communication between school committees and teachers is the requirement under the law that such parties henceforth shall engage in collective bargaining over matters of vital importance to the educational program and over which they have a mutual and compatible interest.

The State of Rhode Island, for one, has imposed such a requirement. For the first time the N.S.C. and the T.A.N. have undertaken to fulfill their responsibilities in bargaining collectively under the applicable statute. Also for the first time, or so it is understood, the matters remaining at issue between the parties, not having been resolved in negotiation, have been referred to arbitration for a decision.

It is the conviction of the Arbitrator that the Award presented immediately hereinafter represents a just and equitable settlement of the issues in dispute. The parties are urged to incorporate forthwith in a collective bargaining agreement the decisions rendered therein. It is anticipated and forecast by the Arbitrator that such provisions, together with those evolving in the future through good-faith bargaining, will resolve most and hopefully all of the problems in the school system in Newport.

John T. Conlon
Arbitrator

Award

Subject only to changes which may occur on matters which the parties to this arbitration are not bound by law to accept the decision of the Arbitrator as final and binding, and over which joint agreement through negotiation henceforth may and hopefully shall be forthcoming, it is hereby awarded that the collective bargaining contract between said parties shall read as follows:

Article I - Recognition

As stated in Article I, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article II - Negotiation Procedure

As stated in paragraphs A,1, C, and D, only in Article II, T.A.N. Ex. #8, except that the date for the commencement of negotiations shall read "Not later than October 15. . ."

Article III - Grievance Procedure

A. Definitions

As stated in paragraphs A, B and C in Article XIII, N.S.C. Ex. #2.

B. Purpose

As stated in Section B, Article III, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

C. Procedure

As stated in Section C, Article III, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

D. Miscellaneous

As stated in Sections D and E, Article III, T.A.N. Ex. #8, except that paragraphs I, J, M and O of Article XIII, N.S.C. Ex. #2 shall also be added to these provisions.

Article IV - Salary

As stated in Article IV, paragraph A only, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article V - Teaching Hours and Teaching Load

As stated in Article V, T.A.N. Ex. #8, except for the following changes:

(1) Section A.2 shall be changed only to read ". . .will end thirty (30) minutes after the aforesaid dismissal times."

(2) Section F shall be changed only to read ". . .determines that they are compelled by necessity or are otherwise justified in the best interests of the educational process."

(3) Section G shall read "Teacher participation in extracurricular activities will be voluntary and teachers will be compensated by reasonable amounts for such participation whenever possible."

Article VI - Class Size

As stated in Article VI, T.A.N. Ex. #8, except that Section A.1 therein shall be changed to read: "The Superintendent of Schools shall make an effort to schedule and maintain class sizes of approximately twenty-five (25) students in the secondary school system."

Article VII - Non-Teaching Duties

As stated in Article VII, Section A.1 only, T.A.N. Ex. #8, except that the second sentence of this section shall be changed to read "Therefore the Committee agrees to employ teacher aides and/or clerks by the beginning of the 1967-68 school year. . .and the like."

Article VIII - Teacher Facilities

As stated in Article 3, N.S.C. Ex. #2.

Article IX - Teaching Assignments and Transfers

As stated in Article IV, Sections A-F and H, N.S.C. Ex. #2, and as stated in the introductory paragraph and Section G, Article IX, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article X - Promotions

As stated in Article X, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article XI - Teacher Files

As stated in Article XI, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article XII - Protection

Shall read as follows: "The Committee shall consider any case of assault of any personnel of the school system and shall take whatever action it deems reasonable and/or necessary under the circumstances."

Article XIII - Personal Injury Benefits & Property Damage

As stated in Article VIII, N.S.C. Ex. #2.

Article XIV - Leave

As stated in Article IX, Sections A and B in their entirety, N.S.C. Ex. #2, and Section C therein except as to be amended and changed as follows:

(1) Paragraph 3 of Section C, first sentence, shall be changed to read ". . .the substitute who replaces him, or a minimum of $1800 per year, whichever is the higher."

(2) Paragraph 4 of Section C shall be deleted and shall be replaced by Paragraph 5, Section D, Article XIV, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

(3) Paragraph 3, Section D, Article XIV, T.A.N. Ex. #8 shall be added to the provisions of this Section.

Article XV - Evaluation of Teachers

As stated in Article XV, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article XVI - Special Education Centers

As stated in Article XVI, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article XVII - Specialists

As stated in the first sentence of Section A, Article XVII, T.A.N. Ex. #8, together only with the following additional statement:

"Accordingly, it is agreed that an attempt shall be made by the school authorities responsible to appoint, as soon as possible, a minimum of seven (7) additional such specialists at an approximate average annual salary of $7,000 each."

Article XVIII - Insurance and Annuity Plan

As stated in Article XVIII, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article XIX - Textbooks

As stated in Article XIX, Section A only, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article XX - Supplies

To read only as follows: "General supplies shall be ordered by the school authorities responsible so that to the extent reasonably possible all items are available as needed."

Article XXI - Summer School and Adult Education

As stated in Article II, Section A, first sentence only, and Sections B, C, and D, N.S.C. Ex. #2.

Article XXII - Use of School Facilities

As stated in Article XXII, Sections A and D only, T.A.N. Ex. #8, subject however to the addition at the end of Section A of the phrase ". . .during non-school hours."

Article XXIII - Dues Deduction

As stated in Article XXIII, T.A.N. Ex. #8.

Article XXIV - General

As stated in Article XXIV, T.A.N. Ex. #8, except for the following changes:

(1) The second sentence of Section B, "When it is necessary. . .substitutes." shall be deleted.

(2) The word "reasonable" shall be added to Section D so as to read "The Committee will, upon reasonable request, provide. . ."

(3) Section E shall be deleted.

Article XXV - Duration

As stated in Article XXV, T.A.N. Ex. #8, except with the addition of September 1, 1967 as the date on which the contract becomes effective.

Appendix A

Section I-A only, Salary Schedule, T.A.N. Ex. #8, and to read only as follows: Effective as of the date of this agreement, the salary schedule adopted by the Committee and the City Council shall be revised so as to provide salary increments to all persons covered by this Agreement in the amounts and manner indicated below:

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

MADE AND ENTERED INTO BY AND BETWEEN

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1 IN THE CITY AND COUNTY OF DENVER AND STATE OF COLORADO

AND

DENVER CLASSROOM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA)

THIS AGREEMENT is made and entered into by and between SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1 IN THE CITY AND COUNTY OF DENVER AND STATE OF COLORADO and DENVER CLASSROOM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION this 21st day of November, 1967.

The Board and the Association recognize that providing a high quality education for the children of Denver is the paramount objective of the School District, that high morale of the teaching staff is necessary for the best education of children, and that:

The Board is elected by the qualified electors of the School District as the governing body of the School District and, as such, possesses all powers delegated to a board of education or to a school district by the Constitution and laws of the State of Colorado, together with the duties imposed thereby.

The Superintendent is the chief executive officer of the Board, and as such, administers the affairs and programs of the School District as provided by law and Board policy.

Teachers and the Board share responsibility for providing education of the highest possible quality for the pupils of the School District, and both parties recognize that teachers have the major role in direct contact with pupils.

Attainment of the objectives of the educational program conducted in the Denver Public Schools requires mutual understanding and cooperation between the Board and the teachers. To this end, good-faith negotiations between the Board and the Association with a free and open exchange of views are desirable.

Teaching is a profession requiring the possession of specialized educational qualifications, and the success of the educational program conducted in the Denver Public Schools depends upon the willing services of well-qualified teachers who are satisfied with the conditions provided by the Board.

Teachers have the right to join, or refrain from joining, any lawful organization for their professional or economic improvement and for the advancement of public education, but membership of a teacher in any organization shall not be required as a condition of employment by the School District.

The instruction process is the primary function of the school and support personnel should arrange their work to enhance this process insofar as possible.

NOW, THEREFORE, the parties agree as follows.

ARTICLE 1

Definitions

1-1 The term "teacher" as used in this Agreement shall refer to all regularly assigned teachers represented exclusively by the Association in the negotiating unit as defined in Article 3, Recognition.

1-2 The term "Board" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Board of Education of School District No. 1 in the City and County of Denver and State of Colorado.

1-3 The term "Association" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Denver Classroom Teachers Association.

1-4 The terms "School District" and "Denver Public Schools" as used in this Agreement shall mean School District No. 1 in the City and County of Denver and State of Colorado.

1-5 The term "Superintendent" as used in this Agreement shall mean the Superintendent of Schools of School District No. 1 in the City and County of Denver and State of Colorado.

1-6 The term "school year" as used in this Agreement shall mean the period of time from the opening of the schools of the district in the fall, usually in September, through the closing of the schools of the district in the spring, usually in June.

ARTICLE 2

General

2-1 The Board shall continue its policy of not discriminating against any teacher on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, marital status, or membership in any teacher organization.

2-2 The Association shall continue to admit persons to membership without discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, or marital status, and to represent equally all teachers without regard to membership in any teacher organization.

2-3 To the extent feasible, the Board will provide the Association with an advance copy of the agenda for each official Board meeting.

2-4 This Agreement constitutes Board policy for the term of said Agreement and the Board and the Association will carry out the commitments contained herein and give them full force and effect.

2-5 No provision, term or condition of this Agreement shall be in any way interpreted as affecting or changing the provisions of the retirement plan of the School District now in effect or any of the policies, rules or regulations made pursuant to said retirement plan.

2-6 No change, rescission, alteration or modification of this Agreement in whole or in part shall be valid unless the same is ratified by both the Board and the Association and endorsed in writing hereon.

2-7 This Agreement shall be governed and construed according to the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado.

2-8 The Board and Association recognize that the Board has certain powers, discretions and duties that, under the Constitution and Laws of the State of Colorado, may not be delegated, limited or abrogated by agreement with any party. Accordingly, if any provision of this Agreement, or any application of this Agreement to any teacher covered hereby shall be found contrary to law, such provision or application shall have effect only to the extent permitted by law, but all other provisions or applications of this Agreement shall continue in full force and effect.

2-9 In case of any direct conflict between the express provisions of this Agreement and any Board or Association policy, practice, procedure, custom or writing not incorporated in this Agreement, the provisions of this Agreement shall control.

ARTICLE 3

Recognition

3-1 Pursuant to the provisions of the resolution adopted by the Board on February 8, 1967, and the results of the election called by the Board in said resolution, the Board has recognized the Association as the exclusive representative of all members of the teaching staff of the Denver Public Schools, except the following:

Speech Correctionists
Adult Vocational Education Teachers Nurses Psychologists
Social Workers
Dental Hygienists
Audiometrists
Dentists
Physicians
Supervising Teachers Deans Coordinators
Principals
Assistant Principals Supervisors Directors
Administrative Directors
Executive Directors
Assistant Superintendents
Superintendent

3-2 The Board hereby reaffirms recognition of the Association and agrees that the Association shall continue as such exclusive representative until April 6, 1969, and for such additional periods of time as its recognition may be extended under procedures approved by the Board.

3-3 All rights and privileges granted to the Association under the terms and provisions of this Agreement are for the exclusive use of the Association.

ARTICLE 4

Annual Negotiations

After approval and execution of this Agreement and upon request by the Association to the Board or by the Board to the Association, after March 1 of each year during the term of this Agreement, the Board and the Association will negotiate as provided in Article 5; provided, however, that such negotiations shall terminate not later than June 1 of each year unless extended by mutal consent.

ARTICLE 5

Negotiating Procedure

5-1 Initiating Negotiations

5-1-1 Written requests for negotiations between the Board and the Association may be submitted on such matters concerning teachers' salaries, wages, hours and conditions of employment as the parties from time to time may agree to negotiate. Such request will specify the subject matter to be considered and will include the specific written proposal or proposals to be negotiated.

5-1-2 A written response will be made within ten days of the receipt of any such written request.

5-1-3 Negotiations mutually agreed upon will be conducted at times and places mutually agreeable to the negotiators named by each party; provided, however, that the first meeting shall be held within ten days of such written response.

5-2 Conducting Negotiations

5-2-1 During negotiation, the Board and the Association will present relevant data, exchange points of view, and make proposals and counter proposals. Upon request of either party, the other will make available for inspection its records and data pertinent to the subject of negotiation.

5-2-2 As of the time they are made available to the Board, the Board will provide the Association with a Superintendent's proposed budget for the next fiscal year, as well as available preliminary budgetary information and proposals affecting teachers' salaries, wages, hours and conditions of employment.

5-2-3 Either party may, if it so desires, utilize the services of outside consultants and may call upon professional and lay representatives to assist in the negotiations.

5-2-4 If negotiations are scheduled during the school day, the negotiators shall be released from their regular duties without loss of pay.

5-2-5 Negotiations shall be conducted in closed sessions unless both parties agree to the contrary.

5-2-6 During negotiations as described in 5-1, 5-2 and 5-3 of this Article, releases to news media or otherwise shall be made only as agreed to jointly.

5-3 Joint Study Committees

5-3-1 The negotiators are empowered to create joint study committees.

5-3-2 Consultants may be used if deemed necessary by either party.

5-3-3 If meetings of joint study committees are scheduled during the regular school day, members of such committees shall be released from their regular duties without loss of salary.

5-3-4 Recommendations and reports of joint study committees are advisory in nature.

5-3-5 Upon completion of its study and submittal of a written report on the subject assigned to it, a joint study committee shall be considered dissolved, and once dissolved, no such committee shall be reactivated except by mutual consent of the Association and the Board.

5-3-6 The above statements do not preclude the creation of any committee authorized by the Association or the Board to conduct an independent study on any subject.

5-4 Adopting Agreements

5-4-1 Tentative agreements reached as a result of such negotiations will be reduced to writing and will have conditional approval of both parties pending the public hearings on the proposed budget for the ensuing fiscal year. After adoption of such budget, and after ratification by both parties, the final agreement will be signed by the Board and the Association and will become an addendum to this Agreement.

5-4-2 After budget hearings are commenced, negotiations may be reopened as a result of such budget hearings. In that event, they shall be resumed not later than the Monday following the regular October Board meeting and shall be concluded not later than the second Thursday after the regular October Board meeting. These dates may be modified by mutual consent.

5-5 Mediation

5-5-1 If the negotiations described in Sections 5-1 and 5-2 have reached an impasse, the issues in dispute shall be submitted to mediation for the purpose of inducing the Board and the Association to make a voluntary agreement. In the event that the parties are unable to agree upon a mediator, the mediator shall be selected in the following manner:

5-5-1-1 Immediately after demand for or submission to mediation, the American Arbitration Association shall submit simultaneously to each party an identical list of the names of five persons skilled in mediation of educational matters. Each party has seven days from the mailing date in which to cross off any names to which it objects, number the remaining names in order of its preference and return the list to the American Arbitration Association. If a party does not return the list within the time specified, all persons named therein shall be deemed acceptable.

5-5-1-2 From among the persons who have been approved on both lists, and in accordance with the designated order of mutual preference, the American Arbitration Association shall invite the acceptance of a mediator.

5-5-1-3 If the parties fail to agree upon any of the persons named or if those named decline or are unable to act, or if for any other reason an appointment cannot be made from such lists of names, the American Arbitration Association shall appoint a mediator from its other members without submitting additional lists.

5-6 Conducting Mediation

5-6-1 The format, dates and times of meetings will be arranged by the mediator and such meetings will be conducted in closed sessions.

5-6-2 The mediator will meet with the Board and the Association, either separately or together.

5-6-3 To the extent that tentative agreements are reached as a result of such mediation, the procedures provided in Sections 5-4-1 and 5-4-2 shall apply. If mediation fails in whole or in part, the mediator shall report the issues which remain in dispute to the respective parties.

5-6-4 The costs for the services of the mediator, including per diem expenses, if any, and actual and necessary travel expenses, shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

5-7 Fact Finding

5-7-1 If the mediation described in Section 5-5 has failed to bring about agreement on all issues, either the Board or the Association may request that the issues which remain in dispute be submitted to a fact finder. In the event that the parties are unable to agree on a fact finder, the fact finder shall be selected in the manner provided in Section 5-5 for selecting a mediator.

5-7-2 The fact finder will have the authority to hold hearings and make procedural rules.

5-7-3 All hearings by the fact finder shall be held in closed session and no news releases shall be made concerning progress of such hearings.

5-7-4 Within a reasonable time after the conclusion of such hearings, the fact finder shall submit a report in writing to the Board and the Association only and shall set forth in the report his findings of fact, reasoning, and recommendations on the issues submitted. The report shall be advisory only and binding neither on the Board nor the Association.

5-7-5 Within five days after receiving the report of the fact finder, the Board and the Association will meet to discuss the report. No public release shall be made until after such meeting.

5-7-6 The respective parties shall take official action on the report of the fact finder no later than fifteen days after the meeting described in Section 5-7-5 above.

5-7-7 To the extent that tentative agreement is reached on the issues in dispute as a result of such fact finding, the procedures provided in Sections 5-4-1 and 5-4-2 shall apply.

5-7-8 The costs for the services of the fact finder, including per diem expenses, if any, and actual and necessary travel expenses, shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

5-7-9 Either party may request that an official stenographic record of the testimony taken at the fact finding hearings be made and a copy of any transcript shall be provided to the fact finder. The party requesting a stenographic record shall pay the costs thereof except that if the other party shall request a copy of any transcript, it shall share the entire cost of making the stenographic record.

ARTICLE 6

Successor Agreement

6-1 If the Association continues as the exclusive negotiating representative of teachers for additional periods of time under procedures approved by the Board, this Agreement shall be automatically extended for such additional periods of time, otherwise it shall expire as of the date that the Association's representation of teachers shall terminate.

ARTICLE 7

Grievance Procedure

7-1 Definitions

7-1-1 A "grievance" shall mean a complaint by a teacher, or teachers, in the negotiating unit that there has been a violation, a misinterpretation, or inequitable application of any of the provisions of this Agreement, except that the term "grievance" shall not apply to any matter as to which (1) the method of review is prescribed by law, or (2) the Board is without authority to act.

7-1-2 An "aggrieved person" is a teacher or teachers asserting a grievance.

7-1-3 A "party in interest" is an employee who might be required to take action or against whom action might be taken in order to resolve a grievance.

7-2 Purpose

7-2-1 Good morale is maintained, as problems arise, by sincere efforts of all persons concerned, to work toward constructive solutions in an atmosphere of courtesy and cooperation. The purpose of this procedure is to secure, at the lowest possible administrative level, equitable solutions to the problems which may, from time to time, arise. Both parties agree that these proceedings will be kept as informal and confidential as may be appropriate at any level of the procedure.

7-2-2 Nothing herein contained will be construed as limiting the right of any teacher having a grievance, to discuss the matter informally with any appropriate member of the administration and having the grievance adjusted, provided the adjustment is consistent with the terms of this agreement. The Association shall have the opportunity to be present and to state its views at any level in the grievance procedure beyond LEVEL ONE.

7-3 Procedure

Since it is important that grievances be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each level should be considered as a maximum, and every effort should be made to expedite the process. The time limits specified may, however, be extended by mutual agreement.

If a grievance is filed which might not be finally resolved at LEVEL THREE under the time limits set forth herein prior to the end of the school year, and which if left unresolved until the beginning of the following school year could result in irreparable harm to a party in interest, the time limits set forth herein will be reduced so that the grievance procedure may be concluded prior to the end of the school year, or as soon thereafter as is practicable.

7-3-1 LEVEL ONE

A grievance will first be discussed with the aggrieved person's principal with the objective of resolving the matter informally, at which time the aggrieved person (1) may discuss the grievance personally, (2) may request that the Association's Representative accompany him, or (3) may request that the Association's Representative act in his behalf.

7-3-2 LEVEL TWO

7-3-2-1 If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at LEVEL ONE, or if no decision has been rendered within ten school days after presentation of the grievance, he may file the grievance in writing with the Association within five school days after the grievance decision has been rendered at LEVEL ONE or within fifteen school days after the grievance was presented at LEVEL ONE, whichever is sooner. Such grievance shall be then filed by the Association with the Superintendent's office within five school days after receiving such written grievance.

7-3-2-2 The Superintendent, or his designee, will represent the Administration at this LEVEL of the grievance procedure. The Superintendent, or his designee, will meet with the aggrieved person in an effort to resolve the grievance; such meeting will take place within five school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Superintendent.

7-3-3 LEVEL THREE

7-3-3-1 If the aggrieved person is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at LEVEL TWO, or if no decision has been rendered within ten school days after the Superintendent, or his designee, has heard the grievance, he may within five school days request in writing that the Association submit his grievance to arbitration. If the Association deems the grievance meritorious, it may demand arbitration within fifteen school days after receipt of the aggrieved person's request.

7-3-3-2 In the event the parties are unable to agree upon an arbitrator, he shall be selected in the manner provided in Section 5-5 for selecting a mediator.

7-3-3-3 The arbitrator will have authority to hold hearings and make procedural rules. He will issue a report within a reasonable time after the date of the close of the hearings or, if oral hearings have been waived, then from the date the final statements and evidence are submitted to him.

7-3-3-4 All hearings held by the arbitrator shall be in closed sessions and no news releases shall be made concerning progress of the hearings.

7-3-3-5 The arbitrator's report shall be submitted in writing to the Board and the Association only, and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasoning, conclusions, and recommendations on the issues submitted. The arbitrator's recommendations shall be consistent with law and with the terms of this agreement. His report shall be advisory only, and binding neither on the Board nor the Association.

7-3-3-6 Within five school days after receiving the report of the arbitrator, the Board and the Association will meet to discuss the report. No public release may be made until after such meeting.

7-3-3-7 The Board shall take official action on the report of the arbitrator not later than at the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board subsequent to the meeting metioned in Section 7-3-3-6 above.

7-3-3-8 The costs for the services of the arbitrator, including per diem expenses, if any, plus actual and necessary travel and subsistence expenses, shall be shared equally by the Board and the Association.

7-3-3-9 Any party may request an official stenographic record of the testimony at the hearings under the terms and conditions provided in Section 5-7-9.

7-4 Rights of Teachers to Representation

7-4-1 Neither the Board nor any member of the administration shall take reprisals affecting the employment status of any teacher, any party in interest, any Association Representative or any other participant in the grievance procedure by reason of such participation.

7-4-2 Any party in interest may be represented at any level of the grievance procedure by a person, or persons, of his own choosing, except that he may not be represented by a representative or an officer of any teacher organization other than the Association. When a teacher is not represented by the Association, the Association shall have the right to be present and to state its views at any level of the grievance procedure except at LEVEL ONE.

7-5 Miscellaneous

7-5-1 If, in the judgment of the Association, a grievance affects a group of teachers, the Association may submit such grievance in writing directly to the Superintendent's office, and the processing of such grievances may be commenced at LEVEL TWO. The Association may process such a grievance even though the aggrieved persons do not wish to do so.

7-5-2 Decisions rendered at LEVEL TWO of the grievance procedure will be in writing setting forth the decision and the reasons therefor, and will be transmitted promptly to all parties in interest and to the Association.

Decisions rendered at LEVEL THREE will be in accordance with the procedures set forth in Section 7-3-3.

7-5-3 All written and printed matter dealing with the processing of a grievance will be filed separately from the central office personnel files of the participants.

7-5-4 To facilitate operation of the grievance procedure, necessary forms for filing, for serving notices, for making appeals, for making reports and recommendations, and other necessary documents will be jointly prepared and distributed by the Superintendent and the Association.

7-5-5 The Board agrees to make available to the aggrieved person and his representative, all pertinent information not privileged under law, in its possession or control and which is relevant to the issues raised by the grievance.

7-5-6 When it is necessary at LEVEL TWO or LEVEL THREE for a representative, or representatives, designated by the Association, to attend a meeting or a hearing called by the Superintendent, or his designee, during the school day, the Superintendent's office shall so notify the principal of such Association Representatives, and they shall be released without loss of pay for such time as their attendance is required at such meeting or hearing.

7-5-7 No grievance shall be recognized by the Board or the Association unless it shall have been presented at the appropriate level within thirty school days after the aggrieved person knew, or should have known, of the act or condition on which the grievance is based, and if not so presented, the grievance will be considered as waived, provided that no grievance shall be recognized at LEVEL TWO unless it shall have been filed with the Superintendent's office within at least forty-five days after the act or condition upon which it is based occurred.

ARTICLE 8

Teaching Hours and Teaching Load

8-1 The regular school day for teachers is from 8:30 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. Teachers scheduled to begin their duties earlier, or to continue until a later time as a result of double sessions or extended school days, will not be required to be on duty longer than the total hours of the regular day without additional compensation or compensatory time off, except as is provided in Section 8-3 below. The principal shall have authority to permit teachers divergence from the regular school day.

8-2 The work year of teachers covered by the classroom teachers' salary schedule (other than new teachers who may be required to attend pre-session orientation meetings) shall be determined by the official school calendar. Teachers shall be paid additional compensation for employment prior to or after the dates scheduled on the official school calendar. The compensation is to be determined on the basis of the then current teachers' salary schedule.

8-3 The principal, together with the School Building Committee, will make decisions relating to building meetings and evening meetings in each school. Generally, Wednesday will be the day used for such meetings. One Wednesday each month may be used for Area meetings, or other such meetings, called by the Superintendent. It is assumed that such meetings will be used only as necessary to insure effective school operation.

8-4 Teachers assigned to new positions during the regular school year may be required to attend additional in-service orientation sessions.

8-5 Teachers will have an uninterrupted, duty-free period of at least forty-five minutes for lunch except when emergencies or special events make it necessary to alter the schedule. Teachers shall be permitted to leave the building during their lunch periods. The school office will be notified when a teacher plans to be out of the building during this time.

8-6 Teachers shall have a planning period each day during which they will not be assigned to any other duties except for emergencies or unusual scheduling problems.

8-7 The accepted and desirable teaching load for secondary school teachers shall be five teaching periods a day. This should include classes in not more than two subject areas nor more than three teaching preparations except in cases where unusual circumstances require other provisions.

8-8 If a teacher is placed in charge of a building during the absence of the principal from that building, the teacher may reasonably expect relief from one or the other of his assignments (either office or classroom) as the length of the principal's absence seems to require.

8-9 The Board and Association agree that matters concerning class size, flexible scheduling, maximum teaching load and other related subjects, need continuing study and investigation. These will be taken up by the Professional Council for action.

ARTICLE 9

Teacher Schedules

9-1 Teachers shall be notified of their tentative program, schedule, or grade level assignment for the ensuing year as soon as the master schedule is prepared. In addition, they will be notified of any changes in their tentative program, schedule, or grade level assignment for the ensuing year, including the schools to which they will be assigned, as soon as practicable.

9-2 In order to assure that students are taught by teachers working within their areas of greatest competence, teachers shall not be assigned, except in accordance with the regulations of the State Board of Education and for good cause shown, to subjects or grades or other classes outside the scope of their teaching certificates or their major or minor fields of study.

9-3 In arranging schedules for teachers who are assigned to more than one school, an effort shall be made to limit the amount of interschool travel. Such teachers shall be notified of any change in their schedules as soon as practicable.

9-4 Teacher schedules shall be made without regard to race, creed, color, national origin, sex, marital status, or membership in any teacher organization.

9-5 Experience levels of teachers will be given consideration in terms of school, schedule, program, or grade level assignments.

ARTICLE 10

Non-Teaching Duties

10-1 The Board and the Association recognize that a teacher's primary responsibility is to teach and that his energies should, to the extent possible, be utilized to this end. Therefore, the Board agrees to make every effort to reduce the following non-teaching duties through the use of teacher aides and part-time clerical assistants so that teachers will have more time to devote to teaching activities:

Non-teaching assignments, including but not limited to, health services, supervision of study halls, corridors, playgrounds, cafeterias, streets and sidewalks, and busses.

Collecting money from students.

Delivering books to classrooms, taking inventories, duplicating instructional and other materials, calculating attendance records, and other similar clerical functions.

10-2 Teachers shall not be required to transport pupils to activities which take place away from the school building.

10-3 The Board and Association agree that the efficiency and effective use of teacher aides is an area that needs continuing study and investigation. This will be taken up by the Professional Council.

ARTICLE 11

Teacher Evaluation

11-1 Evaluation of a teacher's performance shall be conducted in accordance with acceptable personnel practice. The teacher will be fully informed by the principal as to how such evaluation shall be conducted.

11-2 Teachers will be given a copy of any evaluation report and will discuss such report with the person preparing it before it is submitted to the permanent central office teacher's file. After such review, the teacher shall affix his signature to indicate that he is aware of the contents of the report.

11-3 Participation in extra-curricular activities shall not constitute a valid basis for evaluating a person's classroom teaching performance.

11-4 No teacher's compensation shall be reduced below the amount to which he is entitled under the then current salary schedule without just cause, provided, however, that if a teacher is receiving additional compensation for the performance of additional duties, such additional compensation shall not be payable in the event the teacher is relieved of such additional duties. Whether or not just cause exists in any case shall be subject to the grievance procedure.

ARTICLE 12

Teacher Files

12-1 All teacher permanent central office files shall be maintained under the following conditions:

12-1-1 All materials placed in the permanent central office teacher's file, and originating within the School District, from this date forth shall be available to the teacher at his request for inspection.

12-1-2 Material originating within the School District and which is derogatory to a teacher's conduct, service, character or personality shall not be placed in a teacher's file unless the teacher has had an opportunity to read the material.

The teacher shall acknowledge that he has read such material by affixing his signature on the actual copy to be filed. Such signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with the content of such material.

12-1-3 The teacher shall have the right to answer any material filed, and his answer shall be reviewed by the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Services and attached to the file copy.

12-1-4 All references and information originating outside the School District on the basis of confidentiality and information obtained within the School District in the process of evaluating the teacher for employment shall not be subject to this agreement and therefore shall not be available for inspection by the teacher.

ARTICLE 13

Instructional Materials

13-1 The Board will endeavor to provide sufficient instructional materials to insure that each pupil will have the best possible access to them.

13-2 Each school will be allocated a revolving fund through their .240 budget account to be used for the purchase of instructional materials that are not otherwise readily obtainable by the teacher. Each teacher may request of the principal authorization for such items as specially needed in his class.

13-3 The Board and Association agree that matters concerning instructional materials need continuing study and investigation. This will be taken up by the Professional Council.

ARTICLE 14

Transfer

14-1 A change in teaching position from one school to another may be requested by the teacher affected, by the principal of the teacher's school, or may be initiated by the Superintendent and his staff. The approval of the Superintendent or his designee is required.

14-2 General Principles

14-2-1 The principle criterion for consideration of a request for transfer is whether or not the request will result in the best educational program for the School District. A request for transfer will not be granted if the teacher does not qualify for the existing vacancy.

14-2-2 The best educational program results from the selection of a school faculty which is well-balanced in terms of the teachers' experience, general background, and competence. Careful consideration will be given to each of the above when filling vacancies.

14-3 Transfer -- Requested by Teacher

14-3-1 Not later than April 20 of each school year, the Superintendent shall have posted in the office of each school, a list of the known vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

14-3-2 Teachers who desire a transfer to another building shall file a request on the appropriate form with the Superintendent not later than May 1 of each year. Requests on file prior to the posting of vacancies will also be considered. If a transfer is to be made, the teacher and the administrators concerned will be notified in writing of the new assignment. Except in unusual cases, teachers who are to be transferred will be notified before May 20.

14-3-3 Not later than May 20 of each school year, the Superintendent shall have posted in the office of each school building a supplemental list of known vacancies which will occur during the following school year.

14-3-4 Not later than June 1 of each school year, teachers may file applications for transfers to positions listed on the supplemental list of vacancies. Requests on file previous to the posting of vacancies will also be considered. If a transfer is to be made, the teacher and administrators concerned will be notified in writing of the new assignment. Except in unusual cases, teachers who are to be transferred will be notified in writing before the close of the school year.

14-3-5 No assignments of new teachers in the school system shall be made until all pending requests for transfer have been processed. If a teacher does not wish to be considered for vacancies which occur in the summer, the teacher must cancel his request for transfer in writing.

14-3-6 In considering a request for transfer, the convenience and wishes of the individual teacher will be honored to the extent that they do not conflict with the instructional requirements and best interests of the School District.

14-3-7 If more than one teacher has applied for the same position, the teacher best qualified for that position shall be appointed. Qualifications being substantially equal, seniority in the School District shall control.

14-3-8 All requests for transfer on file in the Superintendent's office shall be destroyed on October 31 of each year. All renewals or new requests for transfer must be filed on or after November 1 of each year.

14-3-9 Nothing in this Article shall prevent a teacher from requesting a transfer at any time.

14-3-10 On or about June 15, the Superintendent shall make available to the Association a system-wide schedule showing the names of all persons who have been transferred and the nature of such transfers. A supplemental listing of transfers and their nature shall be made available to the Association by the end of August.

14-4 Transfers -- Requested by Administration

14-4-1 Notice of transfer shall be given to teachers as soon as practicable and, under normal circumstances, not later than June 1 of each school year.

14-4-2 A transfer will be made only after a meeting between the teacher involved and the Superintendent, or his designee, at which time the teacher will be notified of the reasons therefor. In the event that the teacher objects to the transfer, he may immediately notify the Association. The Superintendent, or his designee, will then meet with the teacher and the Association representative to discuss the matter.

14-4-3 A list of open positions in the school system will be available to all teachers being transferred. When a choice of positions is possible, teachers may indicate an order of preference for appropriate consideration.

14-4-4 Transfers because of changes in enrollment or other unusual situations may be made at any time.

ARTICLE 15

Summer School and Evening School

15-1 Summer School

15-1-1 A statement of all subject area openings for summer school teachers will be adequately publicized by the Superintendent and shall be posted in each school building as early as possible, and under normal conditions not later than the preceding March 15. Applications must be submitted within two weeks of the posting of said notices. Teachers who have applied for such summer school positions will be notified of the action taken regarding their applications as early as practicable, and under normal circumstances not later than May 10.

15-1-2 Positions in summer school will, to the extent possible, be filled first by regularly appointed teachers in the Denver Public Schools.

15-1-3 In filling such positions, consideration will be given to a teacher's area of competence, major and minor fields of study, quality of teaching performance, and attendance record.

15-1-4 In areas where there are more qualified applicants for summer school positions than positions available, preference shall be given to applicants who have taught not more than two summer sessions immediately preceding the current year.

15-1-5 When a sufficient number of regularly appointed teachers in the Denver Public Schools is not available to fill the positions, they will then be filled next in order of preference, by substitute teachers in the Denver Public Schools

To the extent that they are applicable, the same criteria that are used in making appointments from among regularly appointed teachers will be used in regard to substitute teachers.

15-1-6 Teachers employed in summer school may use previously accumulated sick leave but shall not be entitled to additional sick leave credits by reason of summer school employment.

15-1-7 Summer school teachers shall be paid an hourly rate of pay according to the formula set forth in Section 2-1-2 of Schedule 2 attached hereto and applied to the then current salary schedule.

15-2 Evening School

15-2-1 Teachers who wish to apply for positions in the evening school, except for the adult vocational education classes, shall make written application directly to the Emily Griffith Opportunity School prior to June 1 for the following school year.

Teachers who have applied for such evening school positions will be notified of the action taken on their applications as early as practicable and under normal circumstances not later than September 1.

15-2-2 Positions in the evening school except for adult vocational education classes will, to the extent possible, be filled first by regularly appointed teachers in the Denver Public Schools.

15-2-3 In filling such positions, consideration will be given to a teacher's area of competence, major and minor fields of study, quality of teaching performance, and attendance record.

15-2-4 In areas where there are more qualified applicants for evening school positions than positions available, preference shall be given to applicants who have taught not more than two years immediately preceding the current school year.

15-2-5 When a sufficient number of regularly appointed teachers in the Denver Public Schools is not available to fill the positions, they will then be filled next in order of preference, by substitute teachers in the Denver Public Schools. To the extent that they are applicable, the same criteria that are used in making appointments from among regularly appointed teachers will be used in regard to substitute teachers.

15-2-6 Evening school teachers shall be paid an hourly rate of pay according to the formula set forth in Section 2-1-2 of Schedule 2 attached hereto and applied to the then current salary schedule.

ARTICLE 16

Vacancies in Other Than Classroom Teaching Positions

16-1 A copy of the "Job Descriptions for Personnel in Administrative, Supervisory, Teaching, and Auxiliary

Assignments" shall be placed in the faculty room, library, or other appropriate place in each school or department. This manual is to include the official title, function, responsibility and authority, typical duties, and specification profile of each job classification. A copy of the current salary schedule will be included in the manual.

16-2 Teachers who desire consideration for vacancies in other certificated positions may submit a letter of application to the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Services at any time.

16-3 The Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Services shall acknowledge promptly in writing the receipt of such application.

ARTICLE 17

Teacher Facilities

17-1 Each school will have the following facilities:

17-1-1 Space in each classroom in which teachers may safely store instructional materials and supplies, provided that the Board shall not be held to be the insurer of the teachers' personal belongings stored in such space.

17-1-2 A desk and chair for each teacher except in unusual circumstances.

17-1-3 Well-lighted and clean teacher rest rooms.

17-2 In so far as financially practicable and as expeditiously as possible, each school shall be provided with the following:

17-2-1 A work room for teachers containing equipment and supplies to aid in the preparation of instructional materials.

17-2-2 A furnished room to be used as a faculty lounge. Such room will be in addition to the aforementioned teacher work room.

17-2-3 Telephone service available to teachers which permits privacy of conversation.

17-2-4 Space in the parking lot at each school will be reserved for teacher parking.

17-3 When new schools are constructed, they will include teacher facilities of the nature noted above.

ARTICLE 18

Personal Injury Benefits and Property Damage

18-1 Temporary Disability

18-1-1 Whenever a teacher is temporarily absent from school and temporarily unable to perform his duties as a result of personal injury incurred in the scope and course of his employment and not the result of his own negligence, he will be paid his full salary less the amount of any workmen's compensation payments or award made for temporary disability due to said injury for the period of such temporary absence for a total period of six months from the date of such injury, or remainder of the school year, whichever is longer. No part of such temporary absence, not in excess of a total period of six months from the date of such injury will be charged against the teacher's ordinary sick leave.

18-1-2 The Board shall have the right to have the teacher examined by a physician designated by the Board to assist it in determining the length of time during which the teacher is temporarily unable to perform his duties, and that the disability is attributable to the injury involved. In the event that there is an adjudication of the period of temporary disability in the appropriate workmen's compensation proceeding, the Board may adopt such adjudication.

18-2 The Board will reimburse teachers for any clothing or other personal effects damaged or destroyed in the scope and course of employment, provided such damage or destruction is not the result of the teacher's negligence.

ARTICLE 19

Teacher Protection From Assaults

19-1 Any teacher who has suffered any assault in connection with his employment shall immediately make a written report of the circumstances thereof to his principal and shall make supplemental written reports attaching copies of any summons, complaint, process, information, indictment, notice or demand served upon him in connection with such assault within five days after he has been served therewith, and reporting the final disposition of any such proceeding.

19-2 Such reports will be forwarded to the Board through the Superintendent's Office and, in the event civil or criminal proceedings are brought against the teacher, the Board will comply with any reasonable request by the teacher for information in the Board's possession not privileged by law or policy of the District and relevant to the incident reported.

19-3 If criminal or civil proceedings are brought against a teacher alleging that he committed an assault in connection with his employment, such teacher, after making the reports described in Section 19-1 above, may request the Board's assistance in the preparation of the teacher's defense. Upon receipt of such request, the Board will instruct its attorney to consult with the teacher's legal counsel and cooperate with him in the preparation of the teacher's defense, insofar as the interests of the teacher and the District are not conflicting.

19-4 Nothing in this Article shall prejudice any action that the Board might otherwise take regarding the teacher's employment status.

19-5 Liability insurance coverage in the amount of $100,000.00 shall be provided to each teacher. Costs of such coverage shall be paid by the Board, provided that such costs shall not vary substantially from the preliminary cost estimate of $2,500.00 per year, upon which this agreement is based.

19-6 The Board and the Association reaffirm their support of DPS Policy #1214 A, Pupil Conduct.

ARTICLE 20

Group Life Insurance

20-1 It is recognized by the Board and the Association that the group life insurance program of the School District is a condition of employment affecting all of the School District employees and cannot be negotiated with any single group. Therefore, the Board and Association agree that the following Association proposal shall be submitted to a vote of all School District employees to ascertain their preferences in connection with any change in the current group life insurance program:

> The amount of employee participation in the group life insurance program shall be reduced from 25¢ to 10¢ per $1,000.00 of group life insurance coverage per month above the initial $2,000.00 of coverage.

20-2 It is further agreed that other proposals which are within the monetary limitations suggested by the Association's proposal may be submitted to the School District's employees at the same time.

20-3 The results of such vote can not be binding on the Board, but in reaching its decision, the Board agrees to be guided by the preferences so expressed.

ARTICLE 21

Transportation Allowance

21-1 Teachers whose duties require daily travel between two or more schools are authorized reimbursement for automobile use. They will be paid a flat rate of $15.00 per month, vacation time and time off payroll excluded, to cover the cost of owning a car available to the District, plus six cents per mile for operating costs. Teachers authorized transportation allowance are required to carry bodily injury liability insurance of not less than $50,000.00 per person and $100,000.00 per accident, and property damage liability insurance of not less than $5,000.00.

21-2 Teachers whose duties require less than daily travel between two or more schools shall be reimbursed at the rate of ten cents per mile for the use of their personal automobile.

21-3 Teachers authorized transportation allowance but not owning or driving an automobile are reimbursed for actual bus fare expenditures.

ARTICLE 22

Salaries

22-1 Effective September 1, 1968, the salary schedule for all teachers covered by this Agreement shall be as set forth in Schedules 1 and 2 which are attached to this Agreement and made a part of this Article by this reference.

22-2 Special Increment

22-2-1 The currently existing special increment of $350.00 per annum which is granted to regular contract tenure teachers who have completed at least seventeen years of active teaching service with the Denver Public Schools, including probationary years, will remain in effect until September 1, 1968.

22-2-2 Effective September 1, 1968, the amount of such special increment will be increased from $350.00 per annum to $400.00 per annum and the teaching service requirement will be reduced from seventeen years to fifteen years of active teaching service with the Denver Public Schools, including probationary teaching service.

22-2-3 Those teachers who have or shall have qualified for the currently existing special increment described in Section 22-2-1 above, prior to September 1, 1968, shall receive an additional $50.00 per annum effective September 1, 1968.

22-3 After September 1, 1968, additional special increments will be granted to teachers who have or shall have qualified for the special increment described in Section 22-2 above and who shall have performed additional five year periods of active teaching service with the Denver Public Schools after having qualified for the special increment described in Section 22-2 above or after September 1, 1968, whichever is later. The amount of such additional increments shall be $400.00 per annum for each such five year period of active teaching service.

22-4 Effective September 1, 1968, teacher participation in the extra-curricular activities of athletics coaches, band, dramatics, and forensics directors shall receive additional compensation in accordance with the applicable provisions of Section 2-1-6 of Schedule 2.

22-4-1 Present practices and policies concerning extra-curricular compensation for duties beyond the regular school day shall continue in effect.

22-4-2 The Board and Association agree that matters concerning additional compensation for duty beyond the regular school day need continuing study and investigation. These will be taken up by the Professional Council for action.

ARTICLE 23

Sick Leave

23-1 Each teacher shall be entitled to sick leave with full pay for up to ten school days in each year. When the effective date of appointment of a teacher is before the beginning of the second semester of any year, he will be given credit for the full annual sick leave allowance. When the effective date of appointment of a teacher is on or after the beginning of the second semester, the teacher will be given credit for five days sick leave allowance. Unused sick leave shall be accumulated from year to year.

23-2 In the event of absence of a teacher for illness or accident in excess of twenty consecutive school days, the Board may require an examination by a physician, such examination to be at the Board's expense.

23-3 In the event a teacher has used all his accumulated sick leave, he may request that the Board grant him additional leave. The Board may require an examination by a physician, such examination to be at the Board's expense.

23-4 Long-term substitute teachers who are assigned to duty for sixteen or more consecutive school days are credited with that proportionate part of five days sick leave as the remaining days in the semester are to the total days in the semester.

23-5 Previously accumulated sick leave days will be restored to all reappointed teachers.

ARTICLE 24

Temporary Leaves of Absence

24-1 Teachers shall be granted the following temporary leaves of absence with pay during each school year upon written application to the principal. Exceptions may be made during periods of emergency, when there is an unusual number of teacher absences because of illness and when there is an inadequate supply of substitute teachers available. The Superintendent will notify the Association when such periods of emergency occur when some leaves may not be granted.

24-1-1 Two days of leave with full pay during each school year for the purpose of transacting or attending to personal, legal, business, household, or family matters which require absence during school hours. It is intended that leave under this Article shall be available for reasons of hardship or other pressing need, and not merely for personal convenience.

24-1-2 One day leave to receive a college degree.

24-1-3 One day leave to attend the graduation of a member of the teacher's immediate family (father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, husband, wife).

24-1-4 Up to five days leave in event of the death or serious illness in the teacher's immediate family (father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, husband, wife or persons living in the teacher's household). Such leaves are to be charged to sick leave.

24-1-5 Up to three days leave for religious holidays.

24-1-6 Up to two days leave to visit other schools or school systems for the purpose of improving classroom instruction and upon the completion of prior arrangement with the schools or school system involved.

24-1-7 The time necessary for appearances in any legal proceeding connected with the teacher's employment or with the school system or in any other legal proceedings if the teacher is required by law to attend.

24-2 The Superintendent, or his designee, may grant permission to teachers to attend educational meetings without loss of pay, but permission to be absent from any assignment for more than ten days (not necessarily consecutive) in any one year is granted only by the Board of Education upon the recommendation of the Superintendent, or his designee. A record of the conditions of such permission is kept on file in the Office of the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel Services.

24-3 All leaves granted under the provisions of this Article, will be in units of full days or half days.

24-4 Leaves requested under this Article during the opening three full weeks or closing two weeks of the school year, the closing week of the first semester, and the opening week of the second semester, will be granted only in unusual circumstances.

24-5 Application for leaves of absence under this Article should be submitted as far in advance as possible to the principal for clearance, and must be submitted at least 24 hours before taking such leave except in the case of emergencies.

ARTICLE 25

Extended Leaves of Absence

25-1 The Board agrees that up to three teachers designated by the Association will upon request be granted a leave of absence for up to two years, without pay, for the purpose of engaging in Association (local, state, national) activities. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be considered as if he were actively employed by the Board during the leave and will be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been absent.

25-2 Peace Corps leave will be granted, without pay, any teacher who enlists for a period not to exceed two years. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be placed on the salary schedule at the level which he would have achieved had he remained actively employed in the system during the period of his absence. Peace Corps leave is for one year at a time and the teacher must renew his leave for an additional year.

25-3 Military Leave

25-3-1 Emergency military leave as provided by Colorado Revised Statutes 1963, 94-1-34 will be granted, without pay, to any teacher who is inducted or enlists in active military services in time of war or other emergency declared by the proper authority of the State or of the United States. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be placed on the salary schedule at the level which he would have achieved if he had not taken such leave. Military leave is for one year at a time and the teacher must renew his leave each year thereafter for the duration of the period of such war or other emergency.

25-3-2 A military leave of up to fifteen days in any calendar year without loss of pay or other benefits under the provisions of Colorado Revised Statutes 1963, 94-1-33 will be granted to any teacher who is a member of the National Guard or any other component of the military forces of the State or reserve forces of the United States and who is engaged with such organization or component in training or active service ordered or authorized by proper authority pursuant to law.

25-4 Regularly appointed teachers who have completed at least three continuous years of service shall be granted maternity leave of up to two years without pay or increment. A teacher who becomes pregnant shall notify her principal in writing as soon as pregnancy has been definitely determined. Continued employment will normally be possible until the end of the twenty-fourth week of pregnancy, but will depend upon the physical condition of the teacher. Appropriate medical evidence of fitness will be required prior to return from such leave, but a teacher will in no event return earlier than the beginning of the semester following the date on which the child is six months old.

25-5 Regularly appointed teachers who have completed at least three continuous years of service shall be granted a leave for the adoption of a child of up to two years without pay or increment. The adoptive mother shall notify her principal and the Executive Director for Personnel Services as soon as the date of adoption has been definitely determined. The adoptive mother shall state the birth date of the child at the time of such notification. If the child is less than six months old, the teacher will in no event return earlier than the beginning of the semester following the date on which the child is six months old.

25-6 A leave of absence of up to one year, without pay or increment, will be granted for the purpose of caring for a sick member of the teacher's immediate family and such leave may be extended for one year.

25-7 Any teacher whose personal illness extends beyond accumulated sick leave allowable will be granted a leave of absence of up to one year without pay or increment, and such leave may be extended for one year. Request for such leave must be accompanied by a statement from a regularly licensed physician that such leave is necessary. The request for such leave also must be approved by the Director of the Department of Health Services. Upon return from such leave, a teacher will be assigned to the same position, if available, or, if not, to a substantially equivalent position.

25-8 Regularly appointed teachers who have completed at least ten years of active service in the Denver Public Schools will be granted, upon request, a year's leave of absence with one-half pay for restoration of health. Upon return from such leave, the teacher will be considered as if he were actively employed by the Board during the leave and will be placed on the salary schedule at the level he would have achieved if he had not been absent. Request for such leave must be accompanied by a statement from a regularly licensed physician that such leave is necessary. The request for such leave also must be approved by the Director of the Department of Health Services. Such leave of absence may be extended without pay or increment for an additional year. Maternity and adoption leave is not covered by this section.

25-9 A teacher has the right to become a candidate for public office and to serve in such elective office unless there is a specific legal prohibition. Regularly appointed teachers who have completed at least three continuous years of service will be granted a leave of absence without pay in order to run for, or serve in, public office.

25-10 Regularly appointed teachers who have completed at least three continuous years of service in the Denver Public Schools shall be granted upon request, leaves of up to one year without pay or increment for professional study, travel, or research other than those covered under Article 26, Sabbatical Leaves of Absence. Such leaves may be extended up to one year without pay or increment.

25-11 All requests for extended leaves of absence will be applied for and granted in writing.

25-12 The time on extended leaves of absence shall not be counted in computing the probationary period required for tenure purposes.

ARTICLE 26

Sabbatical Leaves of Absence

26-1 Sabbatical leaves of absence are granted for professional improvement upon recommendation by the Superintendent, subject to the following conditions:

26-1-1 Requests for sabbatical leaves of absence must be received by the Superintendent in writing in such form as may be required by the Superintendent not later than November 1 or April 1 of the year preceding the semester of the school year in which the sabbatical leave is requested except in the case of emergencies.

26-1-2 The teacher must have completed at least five consecutive full school years in active service as a regularly appointed teacher in the Denver Public Schools, in order to be eligible to request a sabbatical leave.

26-1-3 Teachers on sabbatical leaves of absence will be paid at one-half of their annual salary rate. Upon return, the teacher shall be placed on the appropriate step in the salary schedule as though such teacher had not been on leave.

26-1-4 A sabbatical leave of absence may be extended without pay or increment for one additional year.

26-1-5 The teacher shall agree to return to employment with the Denver Public Schools for one full year in the event of a one-half year leave of absence, or two full years in the event of a full year leave. The teacher also shall agree to notify the Office of the Superintendent for approval of any projected changes in his plan for professional improvement.

26-1-6 The teacher returning from a sabbatical leave of absence for professional improvement shall submit to the Superintendent a report containing transcripts of all college and university study while on leave, a description of travel, and all other items of information pertinent to an evaluation of his program.

ARTICLE 27

The Professional Council

27-1 The Professional Council shall be composed of the Executive Director and five members of the Executive Committee of the Association, the Superintendent and five persons designated by him.

27-2 The Professional Council shall meet at least once a month during the school year to discuss and study subjects mutually agreed upon relating to the school system.

27-3 The Professional Council is empowered to appoint committees composed of teachers and administrators to study and report upon mutually agreed upon subjects. On completion of its study and report on the subject assigned to it, each committee shall be considered dissolved, and once dissolved no committee shall be reactivated except by mutual consent of the members of the Professional Council.

27-4 The clerical expenses of the Professional Council and its sub-committees shall be paid by the Board.

27-5 Association representatives on the Professional Council shall be released from school duties for monthly meetings of the Professional Council without loss of salary whenever it is jointly decided to hold such meetings during the school day. Members of subcommittees may also be excused without loss of salary under the same conditions.

ARTICLE 28

School Building Committees

28-1 A committee of teachers shall be created in each school building from a faculty of that building.

28-1-1 In schools having a faculty of fewer than forty teachers, the committee shall consist of three teachers. Two members of the committee shall be elected by the teachers in the building. One member of the committee shall be appointed by the Association.

28-1-2 In schools having a faculty of at least forty teachers, but fewer than eighty teachers, the committee shall consist of five teachers. Three members of the committee shall be elected by the teachers in the building. Two members of the committee shall be appointed by the Association.

28-1-3 In schools having a faculty of eighty or more teachers, the committee shall consist of seven teachers. Four members of the committee shall be elected by the teachers in the building. Three members of the committee shall be appointed by the Association.

28-2 All elections under Section 28-1, above, shall be conducted by the Association members within the school. All teachers within the school shall be eligible to vote for and hold elective positions of the committee irrespective of membership in the Association.

28-3 The principal of each school shall meet at least once a month during the school year with the School Building Committee to discuss school operations and questions relating to the implementation of this Agreement.

28-4 The principal may have additional administrative staff from the building present at such meetings if he so desires. Additional meetings may be held at the request of either party. Proposed changes in existing rules and procedures and new rules and procedures for each school shall be subjects for discussion at such meetings. Such rules shall not be inconsistent with the terms of this Agreement.

ARTICLE 29

Association President

29-1 The Board shall grant leave for one year, with pay, to the President of the Association during his term in office. The Association shall reimburse the Board for one-half of the President's salary.

29-2 The President of the Association, or his authorized designee, shall be allowed to visit schools. Upon his arrival at any school, he shall notify the office or the principal in order to facilitate the purpose of his visit.

29-2-1 Visits that are made to solve special problems of teachers which necessitate the interruption of class schedules shall be arranged for in advance with the principal, or in his absence, the acting administrator.

ARTICLE 30

Use of School Facilities

30-1 The Association will have the right to use school buildings for meetings, without cost, as approved by the appropriate administrative office provided that such meetings do not interfere with the normal operation of the school.

30-1-1 Meetings of Association groups within a school shall be arranged for in advance through the office of the principal.

30-1-2 General Association meetings shall be arranged for by request to the Building Use Office, School Administration Building, on Denver Public Schools Form 1619, on or before October 1 of each school year. The Building Use Office should be informed of any subsequent changes in dates, times, or rooms to be used. Emergency meetings may be arranged for by contacting the Building Use Office at other times during the school year.

30-2 The Association will have the right to place notices, circulars, and other material on designated school bulletin boards and in teachers' mail boxes.

30-2-1 Authorized representatives of the Association will assume responsibility for posting or distributing of materials for the Association.

30-2-2 An information copy of distributed notices, circulars, and other material shall be sent to the principal at the time of posting or distribution.

30-2-3 Any material of political nature which endorses or opposes a political issue or a candidate for public office may not be so distributed or posted.

ARTICLE 31

Dues Deduction

31-1 The Board agrees to deduct from teachers' salaries an amount to cover dues for the Association, the Colorado Education Association, and the National Education Association, as the teachers individually and voluntarily authorize the Board to deduct, and to transmit the amount so authorized to the treasurer of the Association.

31-2 Every teacher who desires to authorize such deduction shall file with the School District Secretary through the office of the Association, a signed and dated "Denver Classroom Teachers Association Salary Deduction Authorization Form" authorizing the School District Treasurer to deduct from his monthly earnings and to remit to the treasurer of the Association, an amount equal to 1/12 of the dues required for membership in the organization or organizations specified in Section 31-1 above. Such forms shall include a waiver of all right and claim against the Board and the School District and the officers and agents thereof, for monies deducted and remitted in accordance with said authorization, and an agreement that such deductions and remittances shall continue from year to year as so authorized, unless such teacher notifies the School District Secretary in writing, on an appropriate form, that he desires to discontinue or to change such authorization, said notice to be received by the first day of the month in advance of the effective date of such discontinuance or change.

31-3 Deductions shall be made uniformly on each monthly payroll period. The School District Secretary shall not be required to honor for any month's deduction, any authorizations that are delivered to him later than the tenth day of the month prior to the distribution of the payroll from which the deductions are to be made.

31-4 If a teacher who is absent on account of sickness, leave of absence, or for any other reason has no earnings due him for the month, no deductions will be made for that teacher for that month. The Association will arrange collection of dues for that month directly with the teacher.

31-5 The Association agrees to save the Board harmless from any action growing out of these deductions and commenced by any teacher against the Board or the School District and assumes full responsibility for the disposition of the funds so deducted once they have been turned over to the treasurer of the Association.

31-6 A service charge of five cents per month per individual teacher authorization shall be retained by the school district to help defray costs of making such deduction.

ARTICLE 32

Effective Dates and Duration

32-1 The provisions of this Agreement which do not require expenditure of School District funds shall be effective as of the date of this Agreement. The provisions of this Agreement regarding salary increases shall be effective September 1, 1968. All other provisions of this Agreement shall be effective January 1, 1968.

32-2 This Agreement shall remain in full force and effect until April 6, 1969, at which time it shall terminate unless the Association shall continue as the sole negotiating representative of the teachers of the School District under procedures to be approved by the Board.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the parties have caused their corporate names to be hereunto subscribed by their respective presidents and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed and attested by their respective secretaries, the day and year first above written.

SCHEDULE 2

2-1 Compensation of teachers being paid by month, day, or hour shall be based upon the following formula and amounts effective September 1, 1968.

2-1-1 Curriculum development assignments - $6.15 per hour

Divide the Master's annual salary at midpoint on the schedule by the number of contract days (190) in the regular school year for contract teachers and further divide by the number of hours (7-1/4) in a contract teacher's day.

2-1-2 Summer school and evening school teaching - $6.15 per hour

Divide the Master's annual salary at midpoint on the schedule by the number of contract days (190) in the regular school year for contract teachers and further divide by the number of hours (7-1/4) in a contract teacher's day.

2-1-3 Inservice education - $4.00 per hour

Sixty-five percent of the rate paid for curriculum development assignments.

2-1-4 Substitute teachers (16 or more days) - $31.60 per day

Divide the beginning Baccalaureate salary by the number of contract days (190) in the regular school year for a contract teacher.

2-1-5 Teachers for homebound children - $6.15 per hour

Divide the Master's annual salary at midpoint on the schedule by the number of contract days (190) in the regular school year for contract teachers and further divide by the number of hours (7-1/4) in a contract teacher's day.

2-1-6 Extracurricular Activities

Athletics coaches, band, dramatics, and forensics directors

Athletics coaches, band, dramatics, and forensics directors receive their regular salaries as teachers plus an extra stipend for extra activities.

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES CONTAINED IN NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS

Grievance procedures are found in 370 (24 percent) of the 1,540 negotiation agreements between school boards and professional employees for 1966-67 on file in the NEA Research Division depository. In the event a grievance is not settled within the administration channels of the school system, 314 (85 percent) of these 370 grievance procedures provide for the final appeal to be made to an agency outside the local school system. This agency's finding may be advisory or final and binding. Advisory arbitration, mediation, or fact finding is specified in 58 percent of the 314 grievance procedures which provide for outside appeal; final and binding arbitration is the termination point in 35 percent.

Nine out of 10 of the 370 grievance procedures are contained in agreements from states which had passed negotiation statutes prior to the NEA Research Division's survey. Of all agreements in Michigan, 95 percent contain a grievance procedure, and 29 percent provide final and binding arbitration of grievances. Of all agreements in Massachusetts 82 percent contain grievance procedures, but 62 percent provide for the settlement of grievances through final and binding arbitration. Other states in which agreements provide final and binding arbitration of grievances are, in descending order of frequency: Rhode Island (22.2 percent), Connecticut (17.2 percent), New York (6.4 percent),[1/] Pennsylvania (2.3 percent), Illinois (1.6 percent), Wisconsin (1.5 percent), and New Jersey (0.6 percent).

Of the 314 grievance procedures providing appeal to an outside agency, 142 (45 percent) specify that the selection of the arbitrator, mediator, or review panel is to be made through the state labor board. These labor boards are provided in Massachusetts, Michigan, and Wisconsin. In 114 (36 percent) of the 314 grievance procedures, the American Arbitration Association provides assistance to the parties in selecting a third party.

Of the 142 grievance procedures referred to the state labor boards for final appeal, 18 percent specify that the decision will be final and binding. Whereas, in the 114 grievance procedures referred to the American Arbitration Association for final appeal, 75 percent specify final and binding arbitration. The following summary presents the method and type of final appeal contained in negotiated grievance procedures.

Agency of final appeal	Type of mediation/arbitration

1/ All of these agreements are in New York City.

In 1965-66, a study of grievance procedures in school systems with enrollments of 12,000 or more reported 129 grievance procedures from various documents. Nine grievance procedures were found to provide for a final appeal outside the local school systems, eight of which were contained in negotiation agreements.[2/] It was reported then that the impact of negotiation upon formal grievance machinery could be significant. A year later in 1966-67, a negotiation survey revealed 185 professional negotiation agreements in school systems of 12,000 or more enrollment. Grievance procedures which provide for final appeal outside the local school system were contained in 45 of these agreements.

Following is a list of school systems with negotiation agreements which contain a grievance procedure with the final appeal being outside the local school system. The asterisk (*) indicates final and binding arbitration. The remainder of the school systems provide for advisory arbitration, mediation, or fact-finding.

For more detailed information on impasse procedure, see the December issue of NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST.

Description and Analysis

WHO CAN REPRESENT A GRIEVANT?

Under exclusive representation who can represent an employee in processing a grievance? Certainly the designated bargaining agent can. May the employee represent himself? May the employee be represented by his own counsel?

According to the Michigan Labor Relations Board decision involving the Avondale School District and an individual, grievances cannot be presented to a board of education by an individual, with or without counsel. The grievance must be presented to the board of education (if so stated in the negotiation agreement) through the steps outlined in the grievance procedure and through the exclusive representative of the employees. Text of the decision begins on page C-3.

FLORIDA COURT DECREE REQUIRES SCHOOL BOARD TO MEET WITH TEACHERS

In a September 25, 1967, decree, Judge L. Clayton Nance of the Broward County, Florida, Circuit Court ordered a 1967-68 minimum salary of $5,600 for the Broward County School System. He also ordered the Broward County Board of Public Instruction to adopt a "professional communications policy."

TWO AGREEMENTS

Beginning on page D-1 will be found the comprehensive agreement between the District 149 Classroom Teachers Association (NEA) and the Board of Education of School District 149, Dolton, Cook County, Illinois. The agreement is for the period from July 1, 1967, through June 30, 1968.

A procedural agreement between four New York State school systems and a teachers organization begins on page D-10. The school systems are Central High School District No. 1, and Union Free School Districts Numbers 13, 24, and 30, of Valley Stream, New York. The four boards of education entered into an agreement with the Valley Stream Teachers Association (NEA) for the period July 1, 1967, through June 30, 1968.

CONTENT OF FUTURE ISSUES

Some of the content planned for the remaining issues of Volume 1 are:

- Texts of agreements from some states not previously represented
- Preliminary data from the 1967-68 survey of written teacher/school board negotiation agreements
- New York State Public Employment Relations Board case regarding a request for decertification of a teacher organization as exclusive representative plus applicable PERB rules on the subject
- Michigan Labor Mediation Board case involving arbitration of grievances and union security clauses.

Data and Statistics

WHAT'S BEING NEGOTIATED?

How many negotiated agreements in the United States between teacher organizations and school boards contain this provision? How many agreements in my state contain this provision as a negotiated item? The question, What is negotiable? is often asked today. The tables that follow should answer some of those questions.

Each agreement in the NEA Research Division's depository was analyzed for over 150 content items. Each agreement is listed by name for each provision contained in the agreement in Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition (Stock No. 841-24006, $15); the tables in this article were prepared from this publication.

Table 1 lists for each state the number of agreements and the number of agreements containing the indicated provisions, those which deal with the negotiated procedures and could be found in all agreements.

Provisions which have been negotiated, such as leaves or a salary schedule, are found only in the 398 comprehensive agreements (Level IV) as shown in Table 2. Only 12 states are represented in the comprehensive agreements on file in the NEA Research Division.

It should be remembered that if an item is not included in an agreement, it may be included in a state statute, or it may be specifically excluded by a court ruling, by a state statute, or for some other reason. Some items which have not been negotiated or changed by negotiation may continue in effect and be found in the school system's policies. Thus, this listing must be considered only as a listing of provisions in 1966-67 negotiation agreements, not an all-inclusive listing of school system policies and practices.

Judicial Decisions, Opinions, and Statutes

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE SEVENTEENTH

JUDICIAL CIRCUIT, IN AND FOR BROWARD

COUNTY, FLORIDA

CIVIL ACTION NO. 67-5707 Judge Nance

THE BOARD OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION OF BROWARD COUNTY, FLORIDA

Plaintiff, vs.

BROWARD COUNTY CLASSROOM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, INCORPORATED, a Florida non-profit Corporation, and DAVID L. PIERCE, its President, and LYNN Q. GILMORE, its Executive Secretary; THE FLORIDA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, INC., a Florida non-profit Corporation, and DEXTER HAGMAN, its President, and ED HENDERSON, its Executive Secretary; and THE NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION, INC., a foreign non-profit Corporation and its officers.

Defendants,

DECREE

This cause came on before the Court on the 12th day of September, 1967, upon the Plaintiff's Petition for a Temporary Injunction without Notice and the Court having considered same and ordering the Plaintiff to give Notice to all parties, the Court then set a hearing on said Petition for Temporary Injunction for 5:00 o'clock P.M. on the 12th day of September, 1967; that at the appointed hour all parties appeared by and through their respective counsel and the Court, having heard opening statements by counsel for all parties, ordered the parties to appear by their counsel in the Court's Chambers for a Pre-trial Conference; that thereafter all parties appeared by and through their respective counsel at said Pre-trial Conference and upon the conclusion of same and the parties having announced that they had reached an Agreement to settle all issues as contained in Plaintiff's Complaint, the Court then reconvened at 3:00 o'clock P.M. on the 13th day of September, 1967 at which time the said Agreement of the parties was read by the Court Reporter into the Official Record of this Court. The Court having considered said Agreement and having heard argument of Counsel and being fully advised in the premises, THEREFORE:

ORDERS, ADJUDGES AND DECREES as follows:

1. That this Court has jurisdiction of the parties hereto and of the subject matter hereof.

2. That upon the joint motion of the parties hereto the pleadings in this cause be and they are hereby amended to conform to the terms of this Decree.

3. That upon the Agreement and stipulation of Counsel for all parties hereto the Court does hereby ratify, adopt, approve and confirm the following Agreement:

A. That all instructional personnel of the Broward County School System shall return to work forthwith for the school year 1967-68 at a salary base of FIVE THOUSAND, SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS ($5,600.00) on the index.

B. That The Board of Public Instruction of Broward County, Florida shall adopt the following professional communications policy to be effective immediately:

(1) It is recognized by all parties that teaching is a profession.

(2) The Broward County Board of Public Instruction recognizes The Broward County Classroom Teachers Association, Inc. and The Broward Administrators and Supervisors Association as communicating agencies for professional personnel.

(3) The membership of this Professional Communications Committee shall be comprised of five (5) of the teaching members of the Classroom Teachers Association, two (2) representatives of The Broward Administrators and Supervisors Association. They shall meet with two (2) of the School Board members and the Superintendent. Each organization shall have the right to select its own representation.

This group shall be called a Coordinating Committee and shall meet monthly as agreed upon by the members. Special sessions may be called by a committee majority.

(4) Facts, opinions, proposals and counter-proposals should be exchanged freely during the sessions in an effort to reach mutual understandings.

(5) The internal structure of the Committee and the development of operating procedures shall be left to the discretion of the committee.

(6) When the members of the Coordinating Committee reach agreement, it shall be incumbent upon the representatives of the professional organizations to secure official actions from their respective associations prior to presentation to the Board of Public Instruction for official action.

(7) It is clearly understood that The Board of Public Instruction has the final authority in determining policy and program in the operation of the Public Schools in Broward County, Florida.

C. The Board of Public Instruction of Broward County, Florida will forthwith submit the following letter to The Broward County Legislative Delegation:

"Gentlemen:

The crisis now facing Broward County Schools is partially the result of the failure to provide sufficient finances.

We urge you to convene a special session of the State Legislature so that the problems of the schools in Broward County, as well as all of Florida, can be resolved immediately.

Enclosed is statistical material regarding the effects of the last Legislative session on the Broward County Public Schools."

D. Any funds which might be appropriated for instructional purposes by a Special Session of the Legislature in 1967-68 school year, will be added to that part of the program for which such funds were intended.

E. All possible action will be taken immediately to correct undesirable education conditions in this County. (The Board of Public Instruction of Broward County has already indicated its intention to accomplish this by appointing a Committee including Classroom Teachers Association and Broward Administrators and Supervisors Association representation to develop a millage and bond program).

F. All purported resignations heretofore submitted to The Broward County Board of Public Instruction shall be returned forthwith by the Plaintiff to the Clerk of this Court, and they shall be burned by the Clerk of this Court. The names of persons having submitted said purported resignations shall not be released. It is further agreed that no punitive or retaliatory actions shall be taken against any member of the teaching profession for his or her action, or failure to act, to bring about the improvements stated herein.

G. No settlement reached between the parties hereto shall, in any way, constrain the Defendants or their members from full support of The Florida Education Association, Inc.; provided, however, that no such action taken by any Defendants shall breach or induce the breach of the terms of this negotiated Agreement; and, provided further, that nothing herein contained shall act to prevent The Board of Public Instruction from exercising its legal duties, responsibilities, and/or remedies in connection with assuring the operation of public schools in Broward County, Florida.

4. The court will, and does hereby, retain jurisdiction over the parties hereto and the subject matter of this cause for the purpose of strict enforcement and all parties are hereby directed to comply with the full terms of this Decree, it being the purpose and intention of this Court that Broward County shall suffer no further loss, defeat or destruction as a result of those matters complained of in the Complaint filed herein. It is the intention of this Court that interference with this Decree will not be tolerated.

DONE AND ORDERED in Chambers this 25th day of September, 1967, at Fort Lauderdale, Broward County, Florida.

TRIAL EXAMINER'S DECISION AND RECOMMENDED ORDER

APPEARANCES:

For the Respondent: Harry D. Wise, Jr., Attorney

For the Charging Party: Craig and Fieger, by Bernard J. Fieger, Attorney

For the Intervenor: Ellmann and Ellmann, by Harvey Wax and Erwin B. Ellmann, Attorneys

The above-entitled matter having come on for hearing before the undersigned Trial Examiner of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, at Detroit, Michigan, on February 3, 1967, and the entire record having been considered, including post-hearing briefs filed by all of the parties on various dates during February, March and April, 1967, the undersigned hereby makes the following findings of fact, conclusions of law, and recommendations to the Board for the disposition of the case:

FINDINGS OF FACT

Avondale School District Board of Education, the Respondent herein, is a public employer within the meaning of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as most recently amended by Act 379 of the Public Acts of 1965 (Public Employment Relations Act, M.S.A. sec. 17.455), hereinafter referred to as PERA.

On June 22, 1966 Harold Strayer, a teacher employed by the Avondale School District, filed charges, pursuant to Section 16 of PERA, alleging that the employer had engaged in, and was engaging in unfair labor practices within the meaning of Section 11 of PERA. The specific allegation is as follows:

> "That the employer violated Section 11 of the Public Employment Relations Act in that it has refused to permit the individual employee to present his grievance with counsel of his choice and has attempted to dictate to said employee the identity of said counsel."

The Board issued Complaint against the Respondent on August 5, 1966. After a conference held in the case by Trial Examiner Bert Wicking during September, 1966, the matter was adjourned because of the parties' desire to attempt to negotiate certain stipulations and agreements. Since the issue in dispute was not resolved between the parties, the case was finally reset for hearing and transferred to the undersigned.

The Answer filed by the Respondent denies the violation as alleged, asserts that it is ready, willing and able to allow the Charging Party to present his grievance, avers that the Avondale Education Association is the duly designated bargaining agent for certified teachers and the proper organization to represent him, and claims that Section 11 of PERA does not guarantee an individual employee a right to counsel of his choice in a grievance hearing. Finally, the Answer alleges that the charge is not brought in good faith but is an attempt to embarrass and harass the Respondent. In this connection, the Answer asserts that Charging Party is President of Avondale Federation of Teachers, a dissident group which was defeated by Avondale Education Association in a representation election.

At the commencement of the hearing, the Charging Party objected to a motion by Avondale Education Association to intervene in this case, since the case involves an individual's rights vis a vis his employer. The undersigned allowed the intervention, since the Association's rights as exclusive bargaining agent are unquestionably affected by a determination of the extent of an individual's right, if any, to process his own grievance outside of the contract procedure.

Most of the vital facts in this case are undisputed. Harold Strayer was president of the Federation at the time of the representation case and afterwards. By April, 1966 the Association was negotiating with the Respondent for a collective bargaining agreement. On April 25, Strayer met with Superintendent of Schools, John W. Dickey, regarding a "grievance" he had written concerning the need for certain equipment in his academic department. During the discussion reference was made to Strayer's personnel file. Strayer asked permission to inspect the file. Dickey sent him photostats of several memoranda and confidential file notes relating to Strayer's actions. Much of the material was critical of Strayer. Strayer, upon receiving the material, wrote to Dickey, asking that the material be removed from his file or that he be given a hearing before the Board of Education concerning the contents of the file. He also pointedly took exception to the accuracy of several specific statements in the file. Strayer was notified he could appear before the Board of Education on June 20, 1966.

On that date he arrived at the hearing with Bernard J. Fieger (the same attorney representing him in this unfair labor practice case). Strayer testified that the Board of Education refused to hear his grievance with Attorney Fieger representing him, saying that it would hear it if he was alone (and with the Association represented). Superintendent Dickey suggested it would be permissible for him to be represented by an Association lawyer. However, according to Strayer's testimony, the Board of Education "neither affirmed nor denied" that he could be represented by another attorney of his own choice, aside from Fieger. According to the minutes of the meeting the Board of Education President informed Strayer that he could not be represented by Attorney Fieger because Fieger represents the Federation, while the Association is the recognized bargaining agent.

As of June 20, 1966, a contract containing a grievance procedure was still under negotiation between the Association and the Respondent. That agreement was subsequently executed in September, 1966, after Strayer filed his charges with the Labor Mediation Board. On July 25, 1966 the Association offered to process his grievance if he would file it with the Association. (Strayer chose to proceed on his own.) The Association President, R. F. Welty, expressed the view to Strayer that he had two other choices: pursue the grievance individually with a Federation representative, or "accept private council (sic) and process this matter as a grievance". Later on, Welty determined that he had spoken in error when he had expressed the opinion that Strayer had a right to process his own grievance with private counsel.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

This case presents one fundamental question and one narrow issue. The fundamental question is whether PERA grants to individual employees an enforceable right to have job-related grievances adjusted outside of the grievance procedure, where a majority organization has been recognized as exclusive representative of the employees in the particular unit. The narrow issue is whether PERA prohibits a public employer from restricting the individual employee's choice of counsel, once the employer has agreed (whether under legal compulsion or not) to hear and adjust the employee's grievance outside the grievance procedure.

While the Supreme Court apparently has not addressed itself to these issues, the National Labor Relations Board and the several Courts of Appeals have, with one exception, uniformly interpreted the federal statutory counterpart of PERA Section 1[illegible] as not creating any right whatsoever in the individual employee to compel his employer to meet with him for the purpose of adjusting his grievances.

Section 9 (a) of the National Labor Relations Act, as amended (29 U.S.C. sec. 159 (a), reads as follows:

> "Sec. 9 (a) Representatives designated or selected for the purposes of collective bargaining by the majority of the employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes, shall be the exclusive representatives of all the employees in such unit for the purposes of collective bargaining in respect to rates of pay, wages, hours of employment, or other conditions of employment: Provided, That any individual employee or a group of employees shall have the right at any time to present grievances to their employer and to have such grievances adjusted, without the intervention of the bargaining representative, as long as the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective-bargaining contract or agreement then in effect: Provided further, That the bargaining representative has been given opportunity to be present at such adjustment."

In light of the legislative debates in Congress concerning the section and its provisos, it has generally been held that the purpose of the first proviso was simply to avoid a construction of the statute which would make it a violation of the bargaining duty for an employer to voluntarily listen to individual complaints. In Broniman v. A & P Tea Co., 353 F2d 559 (CA6, 1965), 60 LRRM 2566, cert. denied 384 U.S. 907 (1966), the Sixth Circuit Court stated as follows:

> "The plaintiff seeks an order requiring the defendant to meet with the plaintiff for the purpose of processing his grievance. The nature of the action herein and the relief sought are based on a misconception of the statute in question. The employer is not required to meet for the purpose of adjusting a grievance. The statute provides a permissible step in adjustment, not a required one. In other words, this section of the statute grants a privilege to the employee. He may or may not take his grievance directly to the employer, as he chooses. If he takes his grievance directly to the employer, the employer may not wish to attempt to make an adjustment in the absence of the union representative and he cannot be compelled to do so. There could be a good reason for this."

The Second Circuit, in Black-Clawson Co., Inc., v. International Association of Machinists, 313 F2d 179 (CA2, 1962) 52 LRRM 2038, put it this way:

> "It seems clear, therefore, that rather than conferring an indefeasible right upon the individual employee to compel compliance with the grievance procedure up to and including any arbitration provision, section 9 (a) merely set up a buffer between the employee and his union, 'permitting' the employee to take his grievances to the employer, and 'authorizing' the employer to hear and adjust them without running afoul of the 'exclusive bargaining representative' language of the operative portion of section 9 (a)."

The NLRB has adopted the same interpretation of the proviso and has consistently refused to find an employer's refusal to meet with an individual or minority group to constitute an unfair labor practice. Federal Telephone and Radio Corporation, 107 NLRB 649, 33 LRRM 1203 (1953); Youngstown Cartage Company, 146 NLRB 305 (1964). Accord: General Counsel Rulings 317 and 418 of 1952, 31 LRRM 1103, 31 LRRM 1039; Woody v. Sterling Aluminum Products, Inc., 243 F. Supp. 764 (E.D. Mo., 1965). Contra: Douds v. Local 1250, RWDSU, 173 F2d 764 (C.A.2, 1949).

The Wisconsin Employment Relations Board has reached the opposite result under a statutory provision which is undoubtedly drawn from the federal statute's section 9 (a), but which is much more emphatic in stressing that the employee has an enforceable right to present his own grievance and compel its adjustment. Section 111.05 (1) of the Wisconsin Statutes provides that > "any individual employee or any minority group of employees in any collective bargaining unit shall have the right at any time to present grievances to their employer in person or through representatives of their own choosing, and the employer shall confer with them in relation thereto." (emphasis supplied)

The Wisconsin Board, in Milwaukee Teachers Union, Local 252, AFT v. Board of School Directors of the City of Milwaukee And Milwaukee Teachers' Education Association, Dec. No. 6995-A (1966), interpreted the above proviso as limiting the exclusiveness of the so-called exclusive representative by creating an employer duty to confer with an individual or a minority group. The Michigan Legislature also borrowed from Section 9 (a) of the federal statute when it enacted Section 11 of PERA, which reads as follows:

> "Representatives designated or selected for purposes of collective bargaining by the majority of the public employees in a unit appropriate for such purposes, shall be the exclusive representatives of all the public employees in such a unit for the purposes of collective bargaining in respect to rates of pay, wages, hours of employment or other conditions of employment and shall be so recognized by the public employer: Provided, That any individual employee at any time may present grievances to his employer and have the grievances adjusted, without intervention of the bargaining representative, if the adjustment is not inconsistent with the terms of a collective bargaining contract or agreement then in effect, provided that the bargaining representative has been given opportunity to be present at such adjustment."

However, the Michigan language weakens rather than strengthens the wording of the federal statute. Reference to a "group of employees" is eliminated, thereby eliminating the possibility of a construction that minority unions have rights in the grievance area. (Howlett, "Michigan's New Public Employment Relations Act", 45 Mich. State Bar Journal 12, f.n. 15). Next, the permissive word "may" is substituted for "have the right", in connection with the individual's presentation of his grievances and the employer's adjustment thereof.

It seems obvious that both the Wisconsin and Michigan draftsmen consciously departed from the somewhat ambivalent language of the federal proviso, but with opposite ends in mind. In the case of Section 11 of PERA, the intent of the draftsmen must have been to assure that the prevailing NLRB and federal judicial construction would be followed. Accordingly, it is held here that no right to process his own grievances inures to an employee as a consequence of the proviso to Section 11 of PERA. The proviso is no more than a grant of immunity to an employer against being charged with a refusal to bargain (in violation of Section 10 (e) of PERA) in the event the employer voluntarily chooses to listen to and adjust an employee's grievance outside of the ordinary grievance machinery.

Individual teachers or other public employees possessed no general right to compel their employers to meet and adjust their grievances prior to the 1965 enactment of PERA. Since PERA is a "collective bargaining" law, the policy of which is to make the organization backed by the majority the "exclusive" agent for all employees, it would be an anomaly if it were found that the statute also created a right of "individual" bargaining. Such would be contrary to the whole tenor of the statute.

In Melvindale-Northern Allen Park School District, MLMB C66 F-57, 1967 Labor Opinions 167, the Board adopted the trial examiner decision, which contained the following statement:

> "Loss of a representation election does not mean the losing organization must disband, but it does mean that the employer must cease dealing with the organization in matters affecting wages, hours and conditions of employment, and must accord to the winning organization the status of bargaining representative of all the employees within the unit." (emphasis in text)

Lest the above finding be misconstrued as meaning that employees have no right to voice their disapproval of conditions of employment unless they use the recognized agent's grievance procedure, the undersigned hastens to add that, while an employee complaining or grieving on his own has no statutory "status" or "right" to insist on being heard, he does, nevertheless, have the protection of PERA against employer coercion or discrimination because of such complaints or grievances. (See Livonia Board of Education, MLMB C67 C-15, trial examiner decision issued June 23, 1967; exceptions now pending before the Board.)

The Charging Party in the instant case argues that, regardless of the existence or non-existence of a Section 11 right to compel the School Board to hear and adjust an individually-filed grievance, the facts of this case show that the School Board agreed to hear the grievance and to permit counsel to participate, but balked at Strayer's choice of counsel because the attorney in question also represented the Avondale Federation of Teachers. The argument, while not completely elaborated in the Charging Party's brief, would appear to be that the ban against Attorney Fieger's appearance constituted (a) interference with Strayer's right to engage in union activity or (b) discrimination against him because of his pro-Federation sentiments. While Section 10 (a) and (c) of PERA prohibit interference or discrimination, which are listed as unfair labor practices, the refusal to permit Strayer to have any given attorney represent him, at a hearing to which he had no right in the first place, was not the sort of interference or discrimination contemplated by PERA.

The charges here allege a violation of Section 11, not Section 10 (a) or (c). Section 16, which confers on this Board the power to remedy unfair labor practices, provides that violations of Section 10 "shall be deemed to be unfair labor practices." Accordingly, the charges filed by Strayer do not, on their face allege commission of an unfair labor practice. However, even ignoring that problem, the record does not establish interference or discrimination of the sort prohibited by Section 10 to have occurred. If Strayer had no right to a hearing on his individual grievance, then the School Board's willingness to hear him did not make it mandatory that he be allowed counsel of his choice. Finally, the Charging Party's bootstrap argument is adversely affected by Strayer's own testimony that the Board of Education "neither affirmed nor denied" that he could be represented by another attorney of his choice (aside from Mr. Fieger).

It is concluded that the Board of Education did not, by refusing to permit an individual employee to present his own grievance through counsel of his choice, violate PERA, even if the refusal were based on the fact that the attorney in question was also counsel for a minority employee organization.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

For the reasons set forth above, it is recommended that the Board enter an Order, dismissing the charges and complaint in their entirety.

Negotiation Agreements

AGREEMENT

between

SCHOOL DISTRICT 149
COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS

and the

DISTRICT 149 CLASSROOM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA)

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 149
PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT

The Board of Education of District No. 149 (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") and the District 149 Classroom Teachers Association (hereinafter referred to as the "Association") do hereby concur and agree that the following statement of principles and policies is hereby adopted to provide for the best possible education for the students attending schools of District No. 149 and for the welfare and professional growth of the teachers, supervisors and administrators employed by said District.

I. Recognition.

The Board recognizes that teaching is a profession. It further recognizes that the best interests of public education will be served by establishing procedures to provide for an orderly method for the Board and representatives of the Association to discuss matters of common concern, to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement on these matters and to appeal through professional and educational channels in the event of impasse. To this end the Board extends to the Classroom Teachers Association sole and exclusive negotiating rights on behalf of all certificated personnel - teachers, supervisors, and administrators (excluding the Superintendent of Schools, District No. 149) employed by the District.

II. Principles.

A. Attainment of Objectives.

The attainment of objectives of the educational program of the District requires mutual understanding and cooperation among and between the Board, the Superintendent and administrators, and the certificated teachers of the District.

To this end a free and open exchange of views through fixed and established channels of communication is both desirable and necessary with all parties participating through their properly selected representatives in the deliberations leading to the determination of those matters affecting the welfare and performance of district certificated personnel.

It is further understood and agreed that representatives of the Association shall be encouraged to participate in a free and open exchange of ideas and opinions without fear of any form of reprisal.

B. Professional Certificated Personnel.

It is recognized that teaching is a profession requiring specialized and educational qualifications and that the success of the educational program of the District depends upon the maximum utilization of the abilities of certificated personnel who are comfortable and secure under the conditions under which their services are rendered. It is further recognized that the certificated personnel employed by the District shall have the right to join or not to join, participate in, or not to participate in, any employee organization not prohibited by law for their professional or economic improvement, but that membership in any organization shall not be required as a condition of employment.

C. Association Participation.

The Board through its designated representatives, serving as a negotiating committee, agrees to meet with representatives of the Association for the purpose of discussion and reaching mutually satisfactory agreement only on matters pertaining to salaries, working conditions, welfare provisions, and other professional matters as hereinafter enumerated.

It is further understood that any and all action of the negotiating committee of the Board is subject to approval by a majority of the Board, and that the action of the Association is subject to the approval of a majority of its membership.

III. Procedures.

A. Meetings.

Meetings between the representatives of the Board and the Association to discuss an alleged violation of this agreement may be called upon written request of the Association or the negotiating committee of the Board with the approval of the Board, or by the Board, or the Superintendent of Schools. Such meetings shall be held within 15 calendar days of the date of said notification. Requests for meetings must specify the matters to be discussed and the subject of the meeting.

The Classroom Teachers Association and/or the Board shall have the right to request that the Superintendent of Schools and specific supervisory or administrative personnel be in attendance at such meetings. It is understood that no supervisors or administrators shall be present unless the Superintendent is also in attendance.

B. Requests for Meetings.

Requests from the Board or the representatives of the Association for meetings as described in Paragraph III-A will in all cases be made through the Superintendent of Schools. Notices of meetings called at the request of the Superintendent shall be presented in writing to the representatives of the Association and to the head of the negotiating committee of the Board, either personally, or by certified mail if the notice cannot be given personally.

Step I. The grievant, individually or through its Classroom Teachers representative, will contact the Principal of the Building in which employed in an effort to attain satisfaction.

Step II. In the event the grievance or dispute cannot be settled in Step I the grievance shall be reduced to writing by the grievant, the Building Principal shall state his/her position in writing (copies of both letters being submitted to the representatives of the CTA) and said letters shall be then forwarded to the Superintendent.

The Superintendent will conduct a meeting between grievant, principal (third party if another person is involved) and CTA representative in an effort to satisfy the grievance.

Step III. Only after exhausting the procedures of Step I and II above shall a meeting be called with the Board Committee.

It is agreed and understood that no meetings involving an aggrieved district employee shall be held with the Board committee unless the representatives of the Association, the aggrieved, the Superintendent, and the appropriate building Principal, are present. Should any third party/parties be involved, such persons shall also be present at the meeting at the request of any party.

It is not necessary that the aggrieved employee have the Association representative as spokesman in the presentation of the grievance in either Step I or Step II, but the CTA as the sole bargaining agent for all teachers must become a party to the grievance beginning in Step II. Should the grievant prefer to make an individual plea or statement in Steps II and/or III, such permission will be granted by the Association representatives who may, at their option, be present at all hearings even if not as a participant. All meetings on grievance matters involving specific individuals shall be held in private session.

C. Exchange of Facts, Views.

Facts, opinions, proposals and counterproposals may be exchanged freely in all meetings under this agreement in an effort to reach mutual understanding. Materials relevant to the subject matter of a meeting may be submitted in written form to all parties to a meeting at the time of or prior to the meeting.

The Board or CTA representative may in any meeting, with the prior approval of the other, call upon competent professional and/or lay representatives to participate in any meeting under the terms of this agreement. (see Section VI - Costs.)

D. Resolution of Grievance.

When the participants in any grievance under the conditions of the Agreement have reached an understanding the grievance and decision thereon shall be reduced to writing, initialed by all participants with copies thereof placed in the proper personnel files of parties to the grievance.

IV. Appeals.

A. Failure to Resolve Grievance.

In the event the grievance cannot be resolved in either Steps I, II or III, or as set forth above in Article III, the grievance shall be presented to the Board of Education in Executive session with all parties to the grievance in attendance. The resolution by the Board shall be reduced to writing and copies placed in the personnel files.

Should the grievance continue unresolved a Fact Finding Board will be named as follows:

One member appointed by the Board President;
One member appointed by the Association; and
A third member selected by the appointees who will serve as chairman.

The Fact Finding Board will have authority to hold private meetings, collect evidence in such manner as it deems necessary, and to confer with any or all parties to the dispute in an effort to obtain a satisfactory solution.

If within 60 days a solution of the grievance is not attained, the Fact Finding Committee will present its recommendations to the Board of Education in Executive session with all parties to the grievance present and the Board of Education shall then make its final determination. There shall be no appeal from this decision of the Board.

V. Strike Prohibition.

Recognizing that strikes by public employees are illegal and prohibited by law, and recognizing further that neither the Board nor the Association can condone strike activity as a means of settling any dispute, it is understood and agreed that every effort will be made to discourage any strike action or picketing by certificated employees of the District.

It is further agreed that during the term of this Agreement, any economic strike, picketing, slowdown, or concerted refusal to render full and complete service to the District by certificated personnel employed by the District, shall be considered a violation of the employee(s) teaching contract and grounds for immediate dismissal. Should the Association encourage or indicate approval of strike action, picketing, slowdown or a concerted refusal to render full and complete service for any reason, this Agreement shall become null and void.

It is understood and agreed that should another election of an exclusive negotiating agent be conducted under the provisions of Section VIII - C, as a condition for placing any organization on the ballot, its officers must affirm in writing its recognition and support of the laws prohibiting strikes by public employees, and also affirm in writing that that organization will, under no circumstances, participate in any strike, picketing, slowdown, or refusal to render full services, and that it will not impose any duty or obligation on any of its members to conduct assist or participate in such a strike, picketing, slowdown, or refusal to render full service.

VI. Costs.

All participants to a grievance, subject to the rules and regulations of their office or organization, shall have the right to employ the services of consultants in the deliberations. Costs accruing for such consultant will be paid by the employer of the consultants.

VII. Articles.

The salary schedules and policy statements attached hereto in the form of Articles are made a part of this Agreement.

VIII. Duration.

The provision of this Agreement and attached Articles shall be effective as of July 1, 1967, and shall continue in full force and effect until June 30, 1968, and year to year thereafter.

Either party desiring changes in the Agreement shall notify the other party in writing at least 30 days prior to April 1, of any year and a negotiation meeting will be convened within 15 days thereof.

IX. Final Determination.

The Association recognizes that the School District in accordance with the provisions of the School Code of the State of Illinois, shall be governed by the Board of Education and that the Board of Education cannot lawfully delegate its authority with reference to any decision affecting the school system. It is not the intent of this Agreement to violate any section of School Code, the laws of the State of Illinois, or of the U.S.A.

ARTICLES

Referred to in Section VII of Professional Negotiation Agreement

I. Salaries.

It is the intent and desire of the Board and the Association that the Attached Salary Schedules (Appendix A, B, C and D) for certificated employees, excluding the Superintendent of Schools, and as may be revised from time to time, shall be made a part of this Agreement.

The Board and the Association acknowledge and concur, however, in recognizing that the effective date of such schedule is dependent upon an availability of funds, such availability to include but not be limited to an upward modification in moneys available from the State of Illinois and/or a successful referendum to increase the Educational Fund tax rate of the District.

The Board and the Association agree and concur further in the intent to continue meetings periodically to determine if budgetary cost savings can be realized which will make formal adoption of this schedule feasible and possible.

II. Teaching Conditions.

A. The Board will make every effort to minimize class size as is economically feasible.

B. A clerk/s shall be hired on a full or part time basis as deemed appropriate by the Superintendent, for each school for the purpose of assisting teachers in their administrative functions. Such clerks shall, but not be limited to, the collecting of moneys, running dittos, and other functions requiring teachers' time. Such clerks shall not be used by teachers for the purpose of grading test papers (objective nor subjective nor standard) nor shall they be used to perform functions normally assigned to teachers.

C. Each teacher shall be entitled to a minimum 40 minute lunch period.

D. Material centers shall be established in each school for grades 1 - 3, 4 - 6, and in Junior High School.

E. Each teacher shall have a planning period each day.

F. Teachers shall have the right to participate and cooperate in planning teaching schedules and the school calendar. Teachers who participate in this summer activity shall be limited to not more than three in number, appointed by the Classroom Teachers Association, shall not be reimbursed for the work, and must agree to meet with the Superintendent (or his designated representatives) at his convenience for planning purposes.

G. The Board shall investigate the availability of non-paid teachers aides to render assistance to the classroom teachers in administrative details.

Should teachers aides be available, the Board, in cooperation with the Association, will develop a procedure for introducing such persons into the District.

III. Teacher Assignments.

A. A committee of the Association shall work with the administration on the development of an in-service training program for new teachers.

B. New teachers (beginning teachers) will not be assigned to low ability groupings if practicable and subject to the determination of the building principal.

C. Department chairmen shall be appointed by the administrative staff for all academic subjects at the Junior High School level, and also for Art, French, Speech, Remedial Reading, Physical Education, Music, and Special Education at both the Junior High and grades 1 to 6 inclusive school levels.

The Department Chairmen shall work with the Curriculum Coordinator in an advisory capacity on all matters affecting the curriculum development of the department.

Department Chairmen shall not be reimbursed for this assistance, nor shall any teacher be required to accept such chairmanship.

D. Teachers employed in the District for the first time may, if they desire, have free time, not to exceed more than 4 periods of 40 minutes each during the school year, to observe the work of the more experienced teachers in the district.

Such observation shall be scheduled through the superintendent's office but with the prior approval of the teacher to be observed.

E. It is agreed that a reasonable ratio of students to teachers assigned Lunch Room duty is considered to be no more than 100 to 1 and the administrative staff will attempt to maintain such ratio.

IV. Pupil Promotions.

A. The evaluation of the classroom teacher shall be given prime consideration in determining the promotion or retention of a pupil.

B. Should in any instance, the Superintendent override the teacher's position relative to promotion or demotion, a full explanation will be given to the teacher involved. The teacher in her discussion with the Superintendent concerning a reversal of his/her opinion on the subject may have Association representation if he/she so desires.

V. Protection of Teacher.

A. Liability injurance for liability incurred in connection with the performance of assigned duties, in the amount of $1,000,000.00, shall be carried on each teacher at the expense of District No. 149.

B. The teacher shall be included in any parent-principal and/or Superintendent conference regarding parental complaint against the teacher or his/her teaching method or performance.

C. New teachers may request special help or assistance from their appropriate supervisors, principals, or the Superintendent. Requests for Superintendent assistance shall be channeled through the principal of the building in which the teacher is employed.

D. A definition of the duties and responsibilities of the curriculum coordinator and the supervisors shall be reduced to writing and presented to each teacher at the start of each school year.

E. A licensed registered nurse shall be scheduled to be in each building a part of each day.

VI. Instructional Services.

A. The Association shall be permitted to have a volunteer teacher committee for each grade at the elementary level and for each department at the Junior High level, to assist and advise the Curriculum Coordinator in the selection of text books and instructional materials.

B. Prior to setting up new teaching programs, teachers shall be given an opportunity to comment and suggest. When possible, the aid of experts shall be employed in the creating of new instructional programs. The CTA may recommend such experts, but final selection shall be made by the Superintendent exclusively.

C. The Association, in cooperation with the Administrative Staff, shall undertake a study to determine if in-district workshops for graduate college credit can be arranged and a full report shall be made to the Board.

D. The Board of Education shall approve payment of tuition costs up to a maximum of $35.00 per semester hour, for courses pre-approved by the Superintendent and taken by certificated employees at summer or night school, which work will be toward an advanced degree or professional growth. Reimbursement of tuition up to $35.00 per semester hour shall be made upon presentation to the Superintendent of evidence of satisfactory course completion. Completion as used in this context shall imply satisfactory work in accordance with standards established by the college or university.

VII. General.

A. A committee of not more than three (3) persons appointed by and representing the Association shall be entitled to meet with the Board of Education once monthly for a period not to exceed one (1) hour for an exchange of views on matters affecting teaching personnel. Those matters dealing with specific personnel shall be in Executive Session.

Such meetings shall be requested through the Superintendent's office at least one (1) week in advance of the desired meeting.

B. No policy effecting teacher income or working conditions shall be unilaterally adopted by the Board without prior opportunity for a negotiating meeting being offered to the Association.

C. A request for an election to decertify the Association as the sole negotiating agent for the certificated personnel of the District, and for another certification election, may be submitted to the Board for its action, on but not before the first day of school September, 1969, nor later than the 15th day of October, 1969, and on each succeeding year thereafter, upon presentation to the Board of Education of a petition signed by at least 75% of all certificated personnel employed by the District requesting such election.

D. The school district shall permit, upon individual request, a payroll deduction for professional dues. The amount of deduction may be spaced over four (4) consecutive periods as the individual may desire.

E. The President of the Association shall be free of extra duty assignments during the term of the presidency.

F. The Association President shall be given 1/2 day released time each two weeks.

G. An office - desk space - will be made available to the CTA in one building depending upon the availability of space.

H. Summer school teachers shall be selected by the Superintendent. All teachers shall have an opportunity to make application for such assignments. The teachers of summer school kindergartens shall be paid at the same pro rata hourly as those teachers assigned to academic instruction.

VIII. Sick Leave. (Board Policy 4141)

Sick leave for certificated personnel shall be allowed as provided by the School Code. In addition to the benefits allowed under this code section, this District will allow the following benefits:

A. All accumulated and unused sick leave salaries at the end of any three-year period shall be paid as part of the salary schedule to the employee at the end of such contractual period at the following rates:

> Two-thirds of one day's salary pro-rated on the yearly salary figure for each day of sick leave not used.
>
> Sick leave is defined as:
>
> 1. Inability to work because of personal sickness or injury.
> 2. Absence for examination or treatment by a doctor, dentist or eye specialist.
> 3. Quarantine at home or necessity to take care of a member of immediate family.
> 4. Death in immediate family, household or close relative.

B. Any certificated personnel, upon termination of employment before three years of employment have been completed, shall be paid for all unused sick leave at the termination of employment on the basis of the above described rate. (School Code: Article 22, Section 6, Pages 227-228)

C. Days of accumulated sick leave will not be decreased as a result of payment in cash for unused sick leave.

IX. Pregnancy. (Board Policy 4141)

A. Request for Reassignment.

1. In the event a teacher under contract becomes pregnant, the following policy will apply:

The conditions of her contract will cease at the time it is necessary to relieve her of her duties. The teacher will be required to submit a resignation.

2. A physician's statement will be the basis on which the term of her pregnancy is determined. If the teacher is teaching grades 1, 2, or 3, she will cease her teaching duties and will be replaced after five months of pregnancy. If the teacher is teaching grades 4 through 8, she will cease her teaching duties after three months of pregnancy. If the teacher becomes pregnant and her health is seriously affected and it is felt by the building principal and Superintendent that her efficiency as a teacher is also seriously affected, then the teacher will cease her duties.

B. A teacher desiring consideration for reassignment in this District must make a written request to the Superintendent within 18 months from time of resignation.

C. Neither the Superintendent nor the District is obligated to reassign teachers who have resigned because of pregnancy and request reassignment.

D. Teachers reassigned to duty will be reinstated on the salary schedule with full credit for term of service.

X. Educational and Sabbatical Leave. (Board Policy 4141)

A. During the summer, educational leave may be granted for the purpose of study for an advanced degree to the administrative and supervisory staff making request. Approval shall be made at the discretion of the Superintendent and approval of the Board of Education, and said leave shall be for a maximum of eight weeks.

B. Section 24-6.1 of the School Code of the State of Illinois (Sabbatical Leave) shall be adopted as policy with the following clarifications and exceptions:

1. Sabbatical Leave may be granted to certificated personnel performing contractual service to the District, for the purpose of taking courses for credit at an accredited college or university. Sabbatical Leave shall be for a minimum of four months and a maximum of one year.

2. Any certificated personnel desiring a Sabbatical Leave for other purposes as described in the section of the School Code are required to submit a written request to the Superintendent. The Superintendent shall submit such requests with his recommendation to the Board of Education.

3. This leave may be granted after completion of at least six years of satisfactory service as a full time certificated person and may again be granted after completion of a subsequent period of six years of service. A leave granted for a period of one school year or less shall bar a further Sabbatical Leave until completion of six years additional satisfactory service. The leave shall be conditioned upon a plan for resident study, proposed by the applicant and deemed by the Board to benefit the school system, which plan shall be approved by the Board and not thereafter modified without the approval of the Board.

At no time shall the number of persons on Sabbatical leave exceed three.

4. Before a leave is granted, the applicant shall agree in writing that if at the expiration of such leave he does not return to and perform contractual continued service in the District for at least one school year after his return, all sums of money received from the Board during his Sabbatical Leave will be refunded to the Board unless such return and performance is prevented by illness or incapacity.

5. During absence pursuant to such leave, such certificated person shall receive the same basic salary as if in actual service, except that there shall be deducted therefrom an amount equivalent to the amount payable for substitute service. However, such salary after deduction for substitution service shall in no case be less than 1/2 of the then current contractual salary or the statutory minimum, whichever is greater. The person on leave shall not engage in any activity for which salary or compensation is paid unless the activity is directly related to the purpose for which the leave is granted and is approved by the Board. A Sabbatical Leave may be granted to enable the applicant, if otherwise eligible, to accept scholarships for study or research. Unless justified by illness or incapacity, failure of any person granted a leave to devote the entire period to the purposes for which the leave was granted shall constitute a cause for removal from teaching service.

6. Upon expiration of a leave granted and upon presentation of evidence satisfactory to the Board showing compliance with the conditions of the leave, certificated persons shall be returned to a position equivalent to that formerly occupied. The contractual continued service status of the person on Sabbatical Leave shall not be affected.

7. Absence during a leave granted pursuant to this Section shall not be construed as a discontinuance of service for any purpose, including progression on the salary schedule if one is in effect in the district. The Board shall pay the contribution to the Teachers' Retirement System required of the person on leave computed on the salary of such person for the year immediately prior to the leave.

8. This Section in no way limits the power of the Board to grant leaves for other purposes.

XI. Special Leave. (Board Policy 4141)

A. Two days of special leave will be allowed each year for reasons beyond the teachers' control, which will not be accumulative and which will be granted at the discretion of the Superintendent upon receipt by him of a written request stating the reason(s).

XII. Military Leave. (Board Policy 4141)

A. Military leave shall be administered according to applicable Federal or State Law. In the absence of Federal or State Law, military leave is considered to extend from the date of teacher request to the date of teacher application for reassignment to teaching duties, plus additional time to coincide with the start of a new school year (August or September). Application for reassignment to teaching duty must be made within 45 days of honorable discharge.

B. Military leave shall not be counted toward tenure, longevity, nor shall such time be applied toward meeting salary time requirements. Sick leave shall not be accumulative during military leave, nor shall the teacher on military leave be paid a salary.

XIII. Holiday Pay. (Board Policy 4141)

A. Full time employees of School District No. 149 shall be paid compensation for days designated as legal holidays. (Policy adopted February 22, 1961.)

XIV. Professional Growth. (Board Policy 4131)

The Board of Education encourages all personnel employed by the District to participate in educational opportunities to improve their professional growth. Request for permission to attend such professional improvement programs during school hours and/or for reimbursement for expenses incurred shall be directed to the Superintendent for action. (Approved October 26, 1966.)

XV. Physical Examination. (Board Policy 4114)

Teachers are required to present a physical examination report upon employment in the School District or at any other times to be decided by the Superintendent. Teachers forty years of age or older are required to present a physical examination report every year while employed in the School District. Urinalysis and blood count are to be included in the physical examination. (School Code: Article 24, Sections 24-5, Page 229.)

Teachers are required to submit a chest X-ray report at the beginning of each school year. Teachers under thirty years of age may submit a Mantoux test report in lieu of a chest X-ray. (School Code: Special Acts, Sections 1-7, Pages 462-465.)

XVI. Absences. (Board Policy 4151)

A classroom teacher must be present a minimum of one hour and forty minutes in any one-half day to receive remuneration for that particular one-half day of instruction. (Policy adopted February 15, 1961.)

XVII. Children of District Employees.

The children of non-resident members of the professional or non-professional staff may be enrolled in the schools of the District at any time. This is a condition of employment by the Board of Education.

Central High School District No. 1

Union Free School District No. 13

Union Free School District No. 24

Union Free School District No. 30

Valley Stream, New York

and the

VALLEY STREAM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION, INC. (NEA)

July 1, 1967 - June 30, 1968

PREFACE

This agreement is made and entered into this 27th day of June 1967 by and between the Board of Education of Central High School District No. I, Union Free School Districts No. 13, 24 and 30 (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") and the Valley Stream Teachers' Association (hereinafter referred to as the "Association").

PREAMBLE

The parties recognize that the laws of this state and sound principles impose on them interrelated duties and responsibilities in conducting the affairs of this school district. In order to insure the efficient administration of this school district, and to assure the teaching staff, through their freely chosen representatives, participation in the determination of the terms and conditions of their employment and in developing of the highest standards of educational practices, the parties agree to:

1. the recognition of the Valley Stream Teachers' Association as the exclusive bargaining agents for the teaching staff

2. the delineation of the areas of negotiation and mediation

3. the establishment of a written procedure for Association-Board discussions on educational planning

4. the establishment of a formal procedure for negotiations and mediation

5. the acceptance of the JOINT CODE OF ETHICS as developed and adopted jointly by the New York State School Boards' Association and the New York State Teachers' Association in 1950 and amended in 1964.

The details of the agreement follow:

Article I - Recognition

During the period of this agreement, the Board recognizes the Valley Stream Teachers' Association as exclusive agent for negotiation for all the personnel in this district who are on the regular teachers' salary schedule. Both parties agree that all other personnel in administrative or supervisory capacity are excluded. It is recognized that department chairmen, and certain other persons, serve in a dual capacity and have both administrative and classroom duties. It is, therefore, agreed that the Association's representation of these persons is limited to their salaries, class loads, and non-administrative duties.

The Association recognizes the District Principal as the chief executive officer of this school district, and as the responsible administrator for educational planning, for development of curriculum, for supervision of personnel, and all other activities as set forth in Board policies, and according to applicable state laws. It is agreed by the Association that prior to formal meeting with the Board, all questions, requests and recommendations concerning matters of negotiation, covered in Article III shall be submitted through the District Principal and discussed with him.

The Boards recognize the chief officer of the Association (V. S. T. A.) and grant up to three full days' leave with pay for him to attend educational meetings, subject to prior agreement with the District Principal as to time.

The Board and the Boards of Education in Union Free School Districts Nos. 13, 24 and 30 and the Board of Education of Central High School District No. 1, meet from time to time to discuss matters of mutual concern relating to their respective school districts. This has been named the "Joint meeting of the Boards", (referred to herein as "Joint Boards"). A committee of the Joint Boards called the Boards' Negotiating Committee will meet with the Valley Stream Teachers' Association's Negotiating Committee as outlined in Article IV, to discuss matters which are of concern to all of the districts and its staff. This practice, IVa, is subject to the existing by-laws of the Joint Boards, which by-laws recognize that the Joint Boards have no power to make any binding decisions and that all decisions can only be made by each of the Boards of Education at its own meetings, as required by law.

The Board, having received satisfactory evidence from the Valley Stream Teachers' Association that the Association in fact has been designated by the majority of teachers in this District as their bargaining agent, recognizes the Association as the exclusive bargaining agent for the teaching staff for the purposes of this agreement.

Nothing stated or implied in this agreement shall be construed as requiring a teacher to be a member of the Association as a condition of employment in this district.

The Board reserves the right to meet with any other group or organization to hear its views and requests on negotiable matters, provided that the Association is duly notified of such meetings and is afforded the opportunity of attending.

Article II - Educational Consultation

It is agreed by both parties that the teaching staff shall have the opportunity to participate in and contribute to the educational planning in this district. To this end the District Principal or his designee will meet with the Association once each month during the school year to consult on matters of mutual concern and to advise the Association of administrative proposals for future educational planning. Either party may invite additional participants as required.

The Association recognizes the authority and role of the duly appointed administrators as contained in the policies of the Board and in the administrative regulations.

The Board shall meet with the Association at least once a semester to review educational policies. It will be the intent of these meetings to allow a complete interchange of views on all matters not subject to negotiation as set forth elsewhere in this agreement.

Article III - Matters for Negotiation and Mediation

Both parties agree that all matters specifically covered in this article are subject to negotiations and, in the event of an impasse, the matters not resolved shall be subject to mediation as set forth in Article IV.

a - Terms of Employment and Salary

For the purpose of this section the provisions set forth in the current by-laws, paragraphs 4 through 11 and 15 shall prevail.

b - Extra Pay for Extra Service

For the purpose of this section, the provisions set forth in the current by-laws, paragraphs 12 and 13, including Appendix D shall prevail.

It is agreed by both parties that the District Principal, or his designee, has the sole right to determine the qualifications of teachers for assignment to extra curricular activities (pursuant to administrative regulations). The Board reserves the right to determine those activities which will be established, continued, or eliminated as it deems best for the pupils and for the district.

Acceptance of assignments to extra curricular activities shall be voluntary, except in those instances, when in the judgment of the principal, faculty supervision is required and no qualified volunteer is available, after notice to the district's faculty. Such assignment shall be accepted by the teacher so assigned, after a meeting with the principal and receipt of a written statement of the reason(s) for the assignment. This assignment is not to exceed one semester or a season unless the assignment is a year round activity.

c - Leaves of Absence

For the purposes of this section, the provisions of the current by-laws, paragraphs 16 through 20 inclusive, shall prevail.

d - Substitute Teachers

For the purposes of this section, the provisions of the current by-laws, paragraph 23, shall prevail.

e - Insurance

Both parties agree to continue the hospital and medical insurance plan now in effect for employees and their families under The New York State Employees' Health Insurance Program.

f - Other Specific Conditions

For the purposes of this section, the provisions of the current by-laws, paragraphs 14, 21 and 25 shall prevail.

g - In-Service Credit

For the purposes of this section, the provisions of Appendix C of the current by-laws shall prevail.

h - School Hours and Calendar

1 - Both parties agree that, except for activities related to the educational program, or programs such as open school nights, graduations, __*__ hours including a lunch period. Professional responsibilities and obligations such as student assistance, parent conferences, faculty, departmental and guidance meetings, committee service (which shall be voluntary) and other activities related to the educational program will require additional time at school.

2 - It is agreed that when there are conferences, committees, meetings or other activities related to the educational program, teachers engaged in them will continue in attendance and participation until the close of the activity.

3 - The fourth Monday of each month during the school year shall be reserved for Association meetings, to begin at the end of the school day, after the dismissal of pupils.

4 - Both parties agree that the school year will be comprised of not less than 180 days of instruction, exclusive of emergency or special closing days, and that a school calendar for the ensuing year of 184 working days will be prepared jointly by the Association and District Principal not later than March 1st.

i - Grievance

For the purposes of this section, the provisions of the "Grievance Procedure" as indicated in the district by-laws shall prevail.

j - Interpretation of Agreement

Article IV - Negotiation Procedure

a - Negotiating Committees

The negotiating committee for the districts shall be made up of not more than ten members of the Association and not more than nine

* CHS #1 - Seven hours
U.F.S.D.
#13 - Six hours and 30 minutes
#24 - Seven hours
#30 - Six hours and 50 minutes

members of the Boards. The District Principal shall be an observer and may serve as a consultant to the Committee. In accordance with paragraph 4 of Article I these Committees shall meet in concert when considering those negotiable items of concern to the four districts of Valley Stream. Both parties agree, through this committee, to bargain in good faith and to strive diligently to resolve all issues with due regard to the public interest.

b - Call for Negotiating Meetings

The first meeting of the negotiating committee shall be held no later than December 15th of each year and shall be convened at a mutually agreeable date. Subsequent meetings shall be held at such times as mutually agreed upon, or by special call in not less than 10 days nor more than 20 days after such notice, by either party. Such requests for negotiations shall be in writing, dated, and shall be sent through the District Principal. Any special requests shall specify the matter(s) to be negotiated.

c - Time Limitation on Budget Matters

It is specifically agreed that all requests to discuss matters which would require funds to be placed in the budget shall be made on or before December 15th of each year.

d - Issues and Requests

All data, information, statistics, and background on specific matters to be negotiated shall be submitted through the District Principal. For possible clarification of the issues, he may consult with either or both parties. Any data, information or statistics to be used by either party in negotiating meetings shall be submitted to the other party in advance of such meeting. The services of consultants may be utilized during deliberations. The costs must be borne by the party making use of the consultants.

e - Resolution of Issues or Impasse

The negotiating committee shall continue to meet and deliberate until all issues are resolved or an impasse has been reached. An impasse shall be considered to exist on any issue when:

1 - no common agreement of both parties has been reached after 45 calendar days have elapsed after the date of the first discussion by the negotiating committee unless extended by mutual agreement or

2 - both parties agree that further deliberation by the negotiating committee will not resolve the issue.

f - Publication of Any Information

While negotiations and mediation are in progress on any issues, it is agreed that neither party will resort to the use of public media in any effort to affect the outcome unless any release or communication to the public has a mutually agreed upon content.

g - Summary of Negotiations

There shall be prepared, a written statement, indicating the tentative agreements reached through negotiations. This tentative agreement, signed by the Chairman of each negotiating committee, shall be submitted to the respective parent bodies, and shall be of no effect until formal action and approval by both parties. A similar, but separate, summary shall be prepared on those issues still unresolved. This document may be used by either, or both, parties for submission to mediation.

Article V - Mediation Procedure

a - Notice of Intent to Mediate

If an impasse has been reached as set forth in Article IV, either party by written notice to the other party, may indicate its desire to submit any unresolved issue to a mediator. This notice should be filed with the other party within 10 days after an impasse has been established and should indicate specifically the issue(s) to be mediated.

b - Selection of Mediator

Both parties will attempt to select a mediator by mutual agreement. If the parties are unable to agree on a mediator within seven calendar days after an impasse has been reached, then the District Principal shall immediately request the American Arbitration Association to name a mediator.

c - Role of Mediator

The mediator shall use every effort to aid the parties to reach agreement. Both negotiating parties shall, in good faith, be available to the mediator. If an agreement is not reached within 20 days the mediator shall prepare a written account of his findings of fact and his recommendations of terms for a resolution of the issue(s).

It is agreed by the parties that the recommendations of the mediator are not binding on either party and are of an advisory nature only. The parties shall report their acceptance or rejection of the mediator's recommendations within 10 days. The report of the mediator may be made public by either party.

d - Final Decision by Board

If the recommendations of the mediator are accepted by the Board of Education and the Association, the issue(s) shall be considered resolved in accordance with the recommendations. If either party rejects the mediator's recommendations, the Board, only after due and careful consideration of all factors, shall decide the issue(s) as is its responsibility according to the laws of this state.

e - Costs of Mediation

All costs incurred in securing and utilizing the services of a mediator shall be borne equally by the Association and the Board.

Article VI - Work Stoppage

The Association and the Board subscribe to the principle that differences should be resolved by peaceful and lawful means without interruption to the school program. The parties further recognize that strikes and work stoppages by any members of the teaching staff are unlawful and contrary to public policy.

The Association therefore agrees that there shall be no strikes, work stoppages or concerted refusal to perform assigned duties by any employee covered by this agreement.

The Board, on its part, agrees to make every effort to effect settlement of all issues in the best interests of the students of this district.

Article VII - Legal Limitations

Should any provisions of this agreement be found contrary to any Federal or State Law, or any local superseding ordinance or statute, then such provisions of the agreement shall be considered void and shall be rewritten to conform with said laws.

Article VIII

This agreement shall become effective on July 1, 1967 and will remain in effect until June 30, 1968, or until a new contract is negotiated, except as amended in writing by mutual consent of both parties.

The agreement may be extended for periods of one year when both parties mutually consent.

THE SCHOOL ADMINISTRATOR AND PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATION

Presentation Delivered in Topeka, Kansas on April 17, 1967
by
Dr. Forrest E. Conner, Executive Secretary
American Association of School Administrators

Mass action for individual benefit is by no means a new concept. It has been used ever since the days of the Industrial Revolution and the formation of craft guilds. Nearly every segment of society, except the teaching profession, has used it. Some notable examples are the medical societies which have used collective action to secure favorable legislation with regard to licensing and other features in the practice of medicine; business and industry both have employed mass action to obtain reasonable profit rates, favorable tariff laws, and the like; the profession of law has employed mass action to attain a monopoly on the license and practice of law in our country. The labor unions, of course, have brought the practice to the peak of perfection in obtaining favorable working conditions and pay for the working man of America. Therefore, strong teacher organizations demanding a voice in policy making as well as welfare benefits should not have surprised us, but they did.

There were several reasons for the teaching profession to get into this particular arena. The image of the meek, mild, timid, unmarried teacher who rarely spoke on school matters outside her classroom has long since disappeared. Today there is more and better preparation for teaching, more men and more married teachers, tenure, knowledge of their professional rights and responsibilities, and far more assertiveness than a few years back.

There was another factor. The teachers of our country had taken a look at the economy and had noted our general prosperity, the advance in the standard of living, and their low ranking on the pay scale and said, "We want our share." And rightfully so because even today with advancing teacher salary schedules, except for the beginning teacher with a B.A. degree, the teaching profession still lags behind on the pay scales compared with other vocations and professions requiring equal preparation.

We now live, whether we like it or not, in a new age of political activism in which collective action and thrusts for power are both fashionable and effective. Teachers, like other groups of employees, have learned this fact of life and are beginning to capitalize upon it for their purposes.

We may deplore all these events as selfish power grabs or applaud them as indications that our teaching force has finally arrived at a sense of professional dignity that augurs well for both the profession and education. Regardless of how one views the trend, it is here.

The term "professional negotiation" came into being in Denver in 1962 at the NEA Convention held in that city. It was new to boards of education, and they reacted vigorously and belligerently, asserting that it was an infringement on the legal powers of the board.

It was new to school administrators. Some felt shunted aside. Others regarded it as an infringement on administrative authority; and some regarded it as a backhanded slap by the very people for whose wages and favorable working conditions they had fought so hard.

So there was turbulence - for teachers, administrators, school boards and professional organizations. It was like three cub bears trying to handle one bottle of pop.

Five years have now elapsed since Denver and 1962, and some elements of sense and proportion are beginning to emerge from a confusing picture.

Negotiation, clearly, is one means by which the creative capacities of the professional staff members can be tapped.

Most school administrators have been pleased with the ever-increasing competence of the profession. Generally, school administrators have applauded the willingness of teachers to assume increasing professional responsibility. But many have wondered about the long-range effects of teacher aggressiveness and, in some cases, militancy. This is readily understandable.

The phenomenon of negotiation has brought perplexing problems to the doorstep of the school administrator.

The over-all problem is this: What is the appropriate role of the superintendent in the processes and procedures through which teachers may share in policy making particularly, though not solely, when their salaries, benefits, and working conditions are involved?

Of this we can be sure: School administrators cannot afford to be in the untenable position of trying blindly to apply traditional concepts to new and changing circumstances. School administrators must reshape and redesign their leadership role, using all the intelligence, insight, and understanding which can be brought to bear.

To assist them with this leadership role, AASA published last fall, with the help of a number of experienced and insightful people, a booklet entitled The Administrator Views Professional Negotiation. We could not have published it three years ago. It is a sign of progress in resolving difficulties. In this book, some forthright stands were taken. In other words, we stuck our necks out. It received wide acclaim.

Actually, what was said in this book was only a detailed elaboration of many of the things that AASA had already said in its resolutions and publications.

For example:

In its 1965 resolution entitled "Staff Relations," AASA said this:

> We believe that teachers, school boards, and administrators are all committed to the advancement of public education and that the goals and interests of these groups are highly interrelated. We believe strongly that the development of school policies and programs and the solution of school problems can best be accomplished by these groups. . .We believe that shared responsibility for policy and program development is a professional concept requiring a unique professional approach. We maintain that the superintendent of schools has a unique responsibility to provide leadership in these matters.

The philosophy of staff relations having been stated, it remained to define positions on a number of hard, practical issues related to this important concept.

In 1963 AASA developed and published a policy statement entitled Roles, Responsibilities, Relationships of the School Board, Superintendent, and Staff. It contains a section which sets forth the beliefs of school superintendents concerning the development of personnel policies. The section bears restatement in the context of professional negotiation:

> We believe that the superintendent has a responsibility to see that opportunities are provided for staff members - teachers, supervisors, principals, and specialists - to play appropriate roles in developing personnel policies and in maintaining professional working conditions.
>
> We believe that the superintendent has a responsibility to assist staff members - in ways satisfactory to them - in studying welfare problems, in developing proposals pertaining to staff welfare, and in presenting them to the school board for consideration and action.
>
> We believe that shared responsibility in policy development is a professional concept. It assumes a commonality of goals and interests among teachers, school boards, and administrators; and it assumes that service to children is the paramount consideration and that welfare provisions for teachers are means to that end.
> We believe that the right to discuss pros and cons and to participate in developing a program does not imply the right to make decisions. Although consensus should always be patiently sought and will often prevail between staff and school board, the board must retain its responsibility and legal right to make decisions.

It is apparent that the development of personnel policies in the sixties calls for far different, and certainly more formalized, procedures than heretofore have existed in most school systems throughout the nation. Professional negotiation agreements represent one approach to the matter; collective bargaining contracts, another. The wishes of the professional staff on negotiation procedures and on the content of agreements will frequently prevail. It is essential, however, that the superintendent of schools be deeply and actively involved in the development of policies which affect the staff and the school system's operation.

Need for Written Negotiation Agreements

One of the fundamental principles of effective school personnel administration is that policies should be in writing, widely disseminated, and, where appropriate, officially adopted by boards of education. These principles are equally pertinent in the area of collective negotiation. There are obvious advantages to be gained from putting agreements in writing.

It is estimated that apart from the 12 states which have laws on the matter, with several other pending, there are several hundred locally developed negotiation agreements presently in existence. It seems apparent that there are few jurisdictions in which there would be legal impediments in the way of boards of education wishing to adopt such agreements. In view of the advantages to be gained from their adoption and the ever-mounting pressures being exerted for the development of appropriate formalized negotiation procedures, AASA has recommended that all school districts develop and adopt written negotiation agreements appropriate to their own unique local circumstances.

Exclusive Negotiation

The existence within a district of more than one employee organization claiming to represent the professional staff presents a thorny problem to boards of education and their chief school administrators. Although in the absence of a statute a board cannot be compelled to recognize one organization exclusively for the purpose of negotiation, virtually every one of the voluntary negotiation agreements currently in existence provides for the recognition of a single organization as representative of the staff. Of the current state legislation, California's law is the only one which specifically calls for proportional representation.

From a practical standpoint, it makes good sense to negotiate with a single organization, providing, of course, that it can be ascertained beyond any doubt that such an organization can speak for the majority of the staff. The rational basis for a policy of granting exclusive negotiation rights is the power of a board of education to adopt those policies which in its judgment promote the best interests of the school system and the educational program. Such a policy is desirable and legal in most jurisdictions so long as two conditions are met: (a) that the policies developed by means of negotiation with representatives of the majority organization be uniformly applicable to all staff members, regardless of membership in the organization; and (b) that the rights of all individuals and minority groups to present their views to the board of education at an open meeting be vigorously protected.

Composition of the Negotiation Unit

AASA contends that education is a unique enterprise in that much of its success depends upon the closest possible working relationships among teachers, principals, administrators, and supervisors. In order to maintain this type of relationship, it is desirable for all segments of the professional staff to belong to a single staff organization.

On the other hand, each segment of the professional staff should be able at all times to arrive at considered judgments about matters of importance free of domination or coercion from other segments. In some jurisdictions, it may be desirable to maintain independent classroom teacher and administrative-supervisory units within a single organization, each free to develop independent judgments where appropriate. Any differences or disagreements among various segments of all-inclusive organizations should be thoroughly aired and reconciled before negotiations take place.

It seems clear that a pattern of negotiation forced upon unwilling individuals or borrowed from the AFL-CIO without regard to the unique characteristics of education will in the long run be unsatisfactory and work to the detriment of all concerned. All-inclusive organizations have operated successfully in the past and will continue to operate successfully in the future as long as all parties desire to make them operate successfully and as long as the specialized needs of units within the organizations can be met satisfactorily. Local preference, based upon unique local circumstances and not upon arbitrary rules handed down from outside agencies, should determine the type of negotiation unit which most satisfactorily fills the needs of the district.

AASA maintains that local education associations made up of teachers, supervisors, principals, and administrators working together in close harmony best serve the cause of education. Whatever the pattern of representation or organization eventually chosen, however, no teacher, supervisor, principal, coach, counselor, or administrator should be unrepresented in the process.

Content of Negotiations

The question, "What is negotiable?" has been the subject of much controversy in educational circles. Some hold that all matters are negotiable; textbook selection, building construction, sequence of curriculum, and the selection of instructional materials are but a few examples. Others contend that negotiable matters should be restricted to salaries, benefits, and working conditions. Arguments can be marshalled on both sides of the question. The Association finds the reasoning for a more broadly construed concept of negotiation most persuasive. There is a substantial difference between bargaining over wages and hours in the industrial context and negotiating over matters of common interest in the educational context. If education is truly a profession, all professional personnel have a legitimate interest in the decisions that affect their pupil clientele, the effectiveness of their own work, and the quality of the educational program.

Obviously, negotiating the selection of a specific textbook for a specific course offering would be nonsensical, as would negotiating a curricular sequence or the educational materials to be purchased for third-grade social studies. However, the process by which these basic decisions are made can be negotiated.

Most agreements go far beyond what one normally envisions as "welfare" concerns. The Association believes negotiation, in good faith, should encompass all or some aspects of such items as:

1. Curriculum
2. Inservice education
3. Personnel policies
4. Teaching assignments
5. Transfers and promotions
6. Recruitment of teachers
7. Discharge and discipline of teachers
8. Provision of physical facilities for teachers
9. Budget preparation
10. Lunch and rest periods
11. Salaries and wages
12. Welfare benefits
13. Class size
14. Leaves of absence
15. Expiration date of negotiation agreement
16. Other mutually agreed upon matters which directly affect the quality of the educational program.

The Association believes that some items are not negotiable and that a school board may refuse to bargain about non-negotiable subjects without violating its duty to negotiate in good faith. A school board should not negotiate any items which would violate existing state laws. It could not agree, for example, to operate a school system less than the minimum number of days required by state law; nor could it negotiate a millage rate in excess of the legal maximum; nor could it negotiate a clause in the contract permitting employees to strike in violation of state law; nor should it negotiate any item that would result in violation of the applicable code of ethics. Illustrations of other non-negotiable items include, but are not limited to, the following: the selection of legal counsel to the board of education, determination of the financial accounting system to be employed by the board, and selection of the superintendent, principals, and other administrative and supervisory personnel. Here again, except in the case of the superintendent, the process may be negotiable, but the selection of individuals should always remain the prerogative of the superintendent to recommend and the board to appoint.

Mediation and Appeal Procedures

Successful negotiation results in agreement acceptable to all parties. It would be naive to suppose, however, that negotiation always leads to agreement. There will be times, despite good-faith efforts to arrive at equitable solutions to common problems, when persistent disagreements simply cannot be resolved by the parties involved in the negotiation process. Although boards of education cannot and should not give up their legal responsibility to arrive at final decisions concerning matters of policy, there are no legal barriers to seeking the advice and recommendations of impartial, knowledgeable third parties. Such a step should not be taken lightly, nor before the most painstaking work on the part of the superintendent, board, and staff to seek a satisfactory compromise. Failing this, however, there should be some recourse. The channel of resolution should be developed along with, and be an integral part of, the written negotiation agreement. In 1963, AASA published the following statement in Roles, Responsibilities, Relationships of the School Board, Superintendent and Staff:

> We believe that both the board and the professional staff - teachers, principals, and other administrators - should, at a time that is free from tension and controversy, develop together a plan to be used in case of persistent disagreement. In those few, highly unusual instances where major controversy threatens to disrupt the schools, an appeal to an unbiased body should be available to either the board or the teachers, or both. The function of this third party should be limited to fact finding and to advisory assistance. Its identity might vary from state to state, but it should always be an agency which has responsibility for some segment of public education in the state. Included among such organizations might be a state board of education, a state department of education, a state university, or a state public college. It should be made clear that such a study would be conducted without disruption of the schools. A report should be made to both the board of education and the staff.

Sanctions

Any negotiation or bargaining process envisions power on both sides of the table. The board's power is legislative and financial. The teacher's power is withholding of services.

In its book, School Administrators View Professional Negotiation, AASA has endorsed the type of sanction which involves unfavorable publicity focused upon intolerable educational conditions. As AASA has stated in Roles, Responsibilities, Relationships of the School Board, Superintendent and Staff:

> We believe that in those exceedingly rare situations where the professional staff believes that the school board or some other legal fiscal control body has denied reasonable requests for conferences, for study, and for presentation of welfare proposals, or has demonstrated flagrant unwillingness to provide reasonable salary contracts or other welfare provisions, the professional staff has the right to present all the facts to the public and to their professional associates in other school districts. On the other hand, where the staff obstinately holds to an unreasonable position which disrupts or seriously impairs the operation of the schools, the school board has comparable rights and obligations.

When applied on a responsible, professional basis, sanctions can be a very powerful tool for the resolution of serious educational problems.

Strikes

Teacher strikes, or the withdrawals of service, whether or not taking place in conjunction with sanctions, are illegal. There are statutes in 15 states prohibiting various types of public employees, often including teachers, from striking. There are no statutes which provide that teachers may strike. In the absence of statutory provision, the judicial view has traditionally been that public employees do not have the right to strike.

Aside from the legal implications of teacher strikes, there are moral and ethical considerations. Children should not be deprived of their education, nor should communities be deprived of their schools. Moreover, the strike, involving refusal of services to the district and the children is usually a violation of the teacher's contract and a detraction from the ethical image of one charged with instilling in students the concept of responsibility in meeting and fulfilling obligations.

Responsible teachers organizations should not be left without a powerful means with which to resolve intolerable situations or educational conditions, the solution of which has defied all reasonable procedures of negotiation. Such a potent tool exists in sanctions - a dignified procedure worthy of a true profession. The sanction does not involve interruption of teachers' services to the students during the school year. Its impact is primarily on the civic body - board, community, or state - responsible for the intolerable conditions, rather than on the children.

AASA endorses the proper and considered use of sanctions by a professional organization. It does not condone teachers' strikes under any condition.

The Unique Position of the Superintendent of Schools

There is no position in the profession of education comparable to that of the superintendent of schools.

Today, the superintendent of schools occupies a complex and demanding position. He is often torn between diverse alternatives, obligations, and responsibilities.

Yet, it seems clear that the professional superintendent has one allegiance that transcends all other commitments. Although he is a devoted member of his professional group and deeply concerned with the success of his associates, his allegiance to the learner supersedes all other loyalties. This commitment need not and should not place him in conflict with his colleagues. Its very nature makes him seek assiduously and vigorously to maintain environmental circumstances which his associates desire, need, and must have to work to best advantage. One of the major concerns of the superintendent always has been and always should be to help provide those conditions which enable teachers and all other staff members to achieve their professional goals.

Neither does this freedom of operation by the superintendent suggest disloyalty to the school board. As a matter of fact, it is his professional judgment, wisdom, and leadership that make him valuable to the board.

Three roles the superintendent can play:

1. Refrain entirely from negotiations leaving it entirely to the board and the representatives of teachers.
   a. This isolates the superintendent.
   b. It denies both parties to negotiations the information and understanding of the superintendent.
2. Bargaining agent of board - definitely the board's man - no pretense of representing teachers.
   a. Leaves him only one hat to wear, 'tis true, but
   b. It is repugnant to most administrators.
   c. It sets him up as an adversary of the professional staff.
3. "Independent" third party.

   Counselor to both groups, supplier of information, referee, judge, active participant, "soother", cajoler.

Much depends on attitude of Board, negotiating group and atmosphere of negotiations, which role he will play.

A Time for Action

New patterns of staff relationships require many changes in local school administration. Paternalism is no longer fashionable. Old, established traditions and processes no longer suffice. It avails little to debate the desirability of these changes in relationships or to bemoan their speed. Changes are here, and their pace will quicken rather than abate in the years ahead.

It is the firm belief of AASA that problems are better prevented than solved, and that satisfactory negotiation procedures are best developed before the need for them becomes acute. We believe that the superintendent of schools, if he is to continue in his position of educational leadership, must assume responsibility for initiating and guiding changes in established patterns of staff relationships. Written negotiation agreements which carefully delineate the roles and responsibilities of the superintendent, the board, and the teachers are essential to the smooth and efficient operation of the schools.

The superintendent must contribute his professional judgment, experience, and understanding to the development of appropriate new procedures of staff negotiation.

Rarely do I end a speech with a poem. In this case, I am reminded of one of Edwin Markham's poems:

> He drew a circle that shut me out -
> Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout.
> But Love and I had wit to win:
> We drew a circle that took him in!

Whether or not professional negotiation will become an abomination or a blessing to the profession will depend largely upon the ability of the board of education, the teachers association and the superintendent to draw circles that take each other in.

Description and Analysis

FIRST REPRESENTATION DETERMINATION IN EDUCATION UNDER RULES OF PROCEDURE ESTABLISHED BY NEW YORK STATE'S PERB

New York State's Taylor Law established a Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) to supervise the operation of the law, make determinations of representation, etc. To implement the Taylor Law, the PERB established various rules and regulations which were designed to help administer the law in an orderly fashion; these regulations were published by the PERB as Rules of Procedure: A Guide to the Taylor Law. The sections of this publication dealing with representation and certification of employee organizations begin on page C-22.

While the rules go into substantial detail in a number of areas, one of the most interesting sets of rules deals with certification of an organization without an election. The PERB established two sets of percents. Each percent in the first column denotes the percent of unit employees having selected the majority organization for negotiation purposes. In the second column are corresponding minimum percents of employees which must have selected a competing organization for negotiation purposes in order to prevent certification of the majority organization without an election.

This rule was used by the PERB in making its first representation determination in education, between the Amityville Teachers Association (NEA) and the Amityville Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO). Each organization wished to represent the teachers in Union Free School District No. 6 of Babylon and Oyster Bay, New York. The text of the PERB's determination of the Amityville Teachers Association as the exclusive negotiating agent begins on page C-28.

WOODBRIDGE, NEW JERSEY, STRIKE CONTEMPT CONVICTIONS UPHELD BY STATE SUPREME COURT

In October 1966, the Woodbridge Township Federation of Teachers, Local 866, American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO), struck the schools of Woodbridge, New Jersey. A court restraining order was issued to end the strike, but was disregarded by a national AFT leader and local leaders. The leaders were convicted of contempt of court; and the sentences were appealed to the New Jersey Supreme Court where the judgments were affirmed.

To date, no negotiation agreement has been filed for the Woodbridge schools; the NEA Research Division has been advised that none has existed for either 1966-67 or 1967-68.

The New Jersey Supreme Court's decision on the matter begins on page C-20.

FOUR PROCEDURAL AGREEMENTS

The February issue of the Digest carried the texts of an Illinois comprehensive agreement and a New York State detailed procedural agreement between four school systems and one teachers organization. Four procedural agreements, one each from California, Oregon, Texas, and Washington, are included in this issue to provide a broad view of many different types of procedural agreements. The May 1967 Digest carried five procedural agreements, one each from Colorado, Kansas, and Delaware, and two from Illinois.

The California agreement provides an example of the types of procedures used in California and Minnesota for the determination of representation on a negotiating council. The Oregon agreement, like all Oregon agreements, does not recognize an organization for negotiation purposes, but rather an elected committee of individuals. On the other hand, the Texas agreement recognizes organizational representation, but utilizes a consultation committee. An example of an agreement which is not of a "special type" is provided by one from Washington.

The school systems, recognized organizations, and the pages on which the agreement begin are:

MICHIGAN LABOR MEDIATION BOARD UPHOLDS ARBITRATION OF GRIEVANCE DECISION; SUPPORTS "AGENCY SHOP" TYPE OF UNION SECURITY CLAUSES

In a lengthy and detailed decision in a case between the Oakland County (Michigan) Sheriff's Department and the Oakland County Board of Supervisors and Metropolitan Council No. 23, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFL-CIO), the Michigan Labor Mediation Board (LMB) made some interpretations of the Michigan Public Employment Relations Act (PERA) which will probably have substantial impact on negotiation in education.

The Labor Mediation Board concurred with the Berrien County Circuit Court decision which allowed final and binding arbitration of grievances which occurred under an agreement entered into voluntarily (Negotiation Research Digest, January 1968, C-1).

The additional problem of "union security" provisions in agreements was presented to the LMB for consideration in the case; two separate dissenting opinions were added to the LMB decision on this matter. After a detailed discussion of the various types of union security provisions involving Supreme Court of the United States decisions, National Labor Relations Board rulings, and other opinions and decisions, the LMB indicated that "agency shop" type union security provisions were not in opposition to the PERA. (An agency shop provision is one in which each employee pays to the organization representing him for purposes of collective bargaining, organization dues or their equivalent if he does not care to join the organization.)

The LMB stated:

A requirement that employees pay their share of the cost of negotiating and administering a collective bargaining agreement neither discourages nor encourages membership in the labor organization selected by the majority of employees in the bargaining unit to represent them. It is not discriminatory, as the requirement that each employee pay his pro rata share of the costs applies alike to all employees in the bargaining unit, whether they are, or are not, members of the union.

The Warren, Michigan, agreement published in the December 1967, Negotiation Research Digest contains such an agency shop provision.

OREGON ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES ON REOPENING OF NEGOTIATION AFTER VOTER DEFEAT OF SCHOOL BUDGET

Two Oregon Attorney General's opinions, published in the September 1967, Negotiation Research Digest, dealt in part, with the use of consultants to help resolve disagreements and exclusive representation of the certificated personnel by the elected committee.

Because of the defeat of a number of school budgets by the voters of Oregon, a number of questions were raised about the necessity for the school board to reopen negotiation. The opinion clarifies those situations.

Data and Statistics

NEGOTIATION AND THE COMMITTEE

School systems often set up committees to investigate and recommend solutions to problems. What purposes can committees serve in teacher/school board negotiation? And which negotiation agreements specifically provide for committes?

Research studies suggest that advantages of the committee approach are:

- Promotion of the free exchange of comments and ideas
- Utilization of expertise within the staff
- Involvement of more staff members in commitment to decisions made
- Reduction of potential conflict through continuous discussion
- Administration of specific policies through joint committees
- Study of difficult and complex policies and programs.

Certain teacher-school board negotiators have incorporated the committee approach in their negotiation agreements. Of the 1,540 agreements listed in Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition ($15, Stock #841-24006), 181 have one or more joint teacher/administrator/school board committees; 92 percent of these 181 agreements were comprehensive agreements.

Approximately 30 percent (54) of the 181 agreements contain provisions for two or more committees, or a total of 287 committees exclusive of grievance committees.

The committees provided for in negotiation agreements are of two kinds, broad general committees and specific provisional committees. The broad general committees meet regularly or upon request of either party to discuss problems of the professional or educational programs. Problems for discussion are not defined in the agreement but may vary depending on the circumstances. The specific committees are limited to specific problems and their recommendations are limited to particular provisions.

Excerpts from Pontiac, Michigan (NEA), Littleton, Colorado (NEA), and Palmer, Massachusetts (NEA), illustrate the broad general committee approach.

ARTICLE XI - THE PROFESSIONAL RELATIONS COMMITTEE

The Association will establish a Professional Relations Committee which will meet each month during the school year with the Superintendent and administrators he selects as representatives of the Board of Education to discuss and study matters of mutual interest concerning the Pontiac Schools which fall outside of provisions of this contract.

The purpose of these meetings shall be to provide a means whereby (A) the items of concern to the Association may be brought to the attention of the Board representatives for consideration, (B) items of concern to the Board representatives may be brought to the attention of the Association for consideration, (C) information may be exchanged, (D) a high level of mutual understanding may be maintained, and (E) matters pertinent to the general welfare of teachers and the school district may be discussed.

The operating procedures and meeting times for discussions between the PRC and Board representatives shall be determined annually prior to October 1 by the participants.

The PRC will serve in an advisory, consultative, and fact-finding capacity to the Board of Education through the Board representatives.

PRC members and representatives of the Board may consider, but are not restricted to, the following matters:

1. The quantity and quality of instructional materials.
2. Educational programs.
3. Provision of specialists in the school district.
4. The summer school program.
5. Summer use under contract of teacher time.
6. Educational innovations and experimentation.

7. Professional growth of teachers.
8. Problems of intergroup relations.
9. Development of an evaluation process for tenure teachers.

ARTICLE IV

1. Provision for Continual and Permanent Board-Teacher Communication

   a. In order to further establish a cooperative spirit and a mutual understanding between the Staff and the Board of Education, periodic informal meetings will be held with the Board of Education, the Littleton Education Association, and the Central Administrative Staff. Such meetings might well include other personnel as needed and as required by individual agenda items. The purpose of such meetings is not only to establish mutual understanding but also to discuss those areas of District-wide concern including questions relating to District policy, implementation of such policy, general teacher welfare, budgetary procedures, instructional matters, and other such items.

   b. The dates for five bi-monthly meetings shall be established each September by the Superintendent of Schools. Additional special meetings may be called as needed by mutual agreement.

   c. Discussion items shall be established by submission to the Superintendent of Schools from the LEA Board of Directors, the Superintendent of Schools himself, and the Board of Education at least two days prior to the scheduled meeting date. If no items are submitted for discussion, the Superintendent of Schools shall contact the President of the Board of Education and the LEA President for possible cancellation of regularly scheduled meetings.

Palmer, Mass. (NEA)

Section XII
Consultation Procedure

1. The consultation procedure shall be as follows:

   a. If a proposal is initiated by the Organization, it shall be submitted in writing with the request for a meeting to the Superintendent or his designee, who shall acknowledge receipt within three days thereafter and meet with the Organization to discuss the proposal within fifteen days thereafter. If, as the result of this meeting or subsequent meetings arranged to the mutual satisfaction of the Organization and the Superintendent or his designee, agreement is reached on the proposal, it shall be presented to the Committee as a joint recommendation of the Superintendent and the Organization. If such discussions do not result in agreement, or if the Organization is dissatisfied with the course of discussions with the Superintendent, the Organization may so notify the Committee in writing and shall have the right to present its proposal directly to the Committee in a working session not more than one month thereafter.

   b. If the proposal is initiated by the Committee or the Superintendent, the Superintendent or his designee shall submit the same in writing to the Organization, which shall acknowledge receipt within three days thereafter and meet with the Superintendent or his designee to discuss the proposal within fifteen days. Thereafter the procedure shall be as set forth in paragraph 1 above.

   c. Any proposal adopted by the Committee and initiated or approved by the Organization shall be reduced to writing, signed by the Committee and the Organization, and shall, when appropriate, become an addendum to this Agreement. In any discussions as aforesaid, the Committee or the Organization may utilize the services of outside consultants and may call upon professional and lay representatives to participate.

2. In addition to consultation on proposals to become part of the Agreement, certain provisions of this Agreement call for consultation in accordance with the foregoing procedure in the administration or modification thereof. It is agreed that by mutual consent such procedure may be altered and adapted to the needs of the situation in order, as informally and effectively as possible, to achieve the continuing communication which will best assist the Board in reaching its decisions.

3. Further, the Committee recognizes the Organization's contributions to date and desires to encourage the active participation of teachers in the development and implementation of the best possible educational programs for the school children of Palmer, including State and Federal aid programs. To this end, the Executive Committee of the Organization may appoint an Educational Improvement Committee of not fewer than seven teachers to be chaired by a classroom teacher which will be responsible for developing recommendations to the Committee in the field of educational programs. The Committee agrees that the Superintendent or his designees will meet and consult with said Committee after classroom school hours, so that there may be a full and free exchange of information and opinion. The frequency of said meetings is to be determined by mutual agreement of parties concerned.

Excerpts from Grand Blanc, Michigan (NEA), East Hartford, Connecticut (NEA), and Belleville, Illinois (AFT), illustrate the specific provisional committee approach.

ARTICLE XVII

Professional Study Committees

A. There is hereby established a Professional Study Committee whose purpose it will be to study and make recommendations with respect to compensation for extra duties. The Board and the Association will appoint an equal number of representatives to serve on this committee. This committee's recommentations will be submitted in time to be considered when Schedule A is reopened for negotiation.

B. There is hereby established a Professional Study Committee whose purpose it will be to study and make recommendations with respect to the problems incurred by teachers at the end of the marking period. The Board and the Association will each appoint an equal number of persons to serve on this committee. This committee's recommendations will be submitted no later than February 1, 1967.

C. There is hereby established a Professional Study Committee whose purpose it will be to study and make recommendations with respect to the policies and procedures involved in teacher evaluation. The Board and the Association will each appoint an equal number of persons to serve on this committee. This committee's recommendations will be submitted no later than February 1, 1967.

The following list represents a set of guidelines which have been mutually agreed to by the Board and the Association and should be regarded as directives for the committee:

1. An effective evaluation policy is based primarily on self appraisal. Every effort should be made to provide opportunity for individual teachers to analyze their own strengths and weaknesses and to give direction to their self-improvement.

2. Purposeful evaluation of teachers must be founded on the idea of improvement and growth of those being evaluated through appraisal and analysis of their strengths and weaknesses. Teachers should view evaluation as an activity that guides and counsels them in their work.

3. Evaluation of teachers and teaching should be a countinuous rather than a spasmodic or periodic procedure.

4. Teachers should be permitted to participate in the development and implementation of the evaluation practices employed.

5. Effective and fair evaluation of teachers should be made in the light of recognized objectives and ideals.

6. Evaluation procedures should be sustained by cooperative planning and understanding among the total professional staff.

7. Direct observation plays an important part in the evaluation process. Therefore, a checklist of items that are regarded to be elements of a good teaching-learning situation should be used and periodically evaluated.

8. Following any type of evaluation there should be a conference between the person who does the evaluating and the person who has been evaluated. Often this conference will merely reassure the teacher that the evaluation has indicated that he is performing well; sometimes it will include specific suggestions about areas that appear to need attention.

   The conference might well conclude with the writing of a summary statement to which both participants can agree, so the points that were discussed became a matter of record and can be reconsidered at a later date. This is particularly valuable when specific areas need correction. The persons participating in the conference might each be provided a copy of the agreements reached during this conference.

9. Whenever an evaluation summary is made, either orally or in writing, it should be based upon the evaluator's frequent and direct observations and contacts with the person who is being evaluated. Many educators agree that there should be no less than two evaluation conferences with each teacher during a school year - one at mid-year and another toward the close of the school year.

10. The Board of Education should be responsible for providing teachers with in-service experiences designed to assist the individual in overcoming areas of weaknesses.

Note: The items which follow are to be regarded as additional ideas for this committee to consider in its deliberations and not necessarily as directives:

1. Consideration should be given to the provision for a teacher evaluator in addition to an administrative appraisal.

2. Provision might also be made for teacher evaluation of administrative personnel.

D. The Board and the Association recognize the necessity for the formulation of a policy with respect to academic freedom. For this purpose a study committee (having equal membership appointed by the Board and the Association) will be formed to mutually develop a policy for implementation by March 15, 1967.

ARTICLE XVII

CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT

The Association is interested in curriculum development and recognizes that rapid technological and sociological changes and growth mandate constant study of and revision in our curriculum and instructional program. The Board of Education is aware of the value of summer workshops and knows that they have been beneficial in other districts. The Board therefore will sponsor two curriculum study groups (elementary and secondary) during the summer of 1967 and will compensate the participating teachers. The Superintendent of Schools shall determine the nature of the study to be undertaken as well as the composition of the two groups.

Belleville, Ill. (AFT)
Belleville AFT Local 673

7. The In-Service Training and Evaluating Committee shall constitute an Evaluating and Classification Committee. Its membership shall include one representative from each of the following organizations or groups within District #118: The Association for Childhood Education, The American Federation of Teachers Local 673, the Belleville Grade Teachers Association, the Board of Education, the Administration, the Directors, and the Principals. The Evaluating and Classification Committee shall review, approve or reject Courses of Study pursued at the University, College, or Extension level, and evaluate credits for such advancement work, insofar as professional growth and compensation on the Salary Schedule are concerned. Request for approval of such "Advancement Courses" (Credit Courses) must be submitted in writing to the In-Service Training and Evaluating Committee, which in turn shall make recommendations to the Board. Final approval is to be given by the Board.

The following tabulation of the 287 committees by form and type shows that broad general committees are about as prevalent as specific provisional committees. The provisional committees are divided into two categories: instructional programs and personnel policies, and further divided by specific area of concern.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

LABOR MEDIATION BOARD, LABOR RELATIONS DIVISION

OAKLAND COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT and OAKLAND COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS, Respondents, and METROPOLITAN COUNCIL NO. 23, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF STATE, COUNTY & MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES, AFL-CIO, Charging Party	Case No. C66 F-63

DECISION AND ORDER

On June 9, 1966, Metropolitan Council No. 23, American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, filed a charge against the Oakland County Sheriff's Department averring that the Oakland County Sheriff's Department had refused to bargain on a number of issues. Breach of Section 10(e) of the Public Employment Relations Act (Mich. Stat. Ann. 17.455 10) was alleged.

On August 4, 1966, an amended charge was filed by Council No. 23 directed against both the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

An answer and special appearance was filed by the Oakland County Board of Supervisors contending that "joining the Oakland County Board of Supervisors . . . is without foundation in law or fact and is an attempt to unlawfully bypass the election and certification process required under Act No. 379 of the Public Acts of 1965".1/

Hearings were held before the Labor Mediation Board's Chief Trial Examiner, who issued his Decision and Recommended Order on April 20, 1967.

Exceptions were filed by the Respondents to the Decision and Recommended Order.

The Trial Examiner disagreed with the contention of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors that it was not a proper party to the proceedings. He found that both the Oakland County Board of Supervisors and the Sheriff of the County of Oakland are public employers within the meaning of the Act.

We have reviewed the findings and recommendations of the Trial Examiner with respect to this issue and find no prejudicial error. The Oakland County Board of Supervisors had knowledge of the original representation proceeding, and subsequently participated in collective bargaining between the Oakland County representatives and the Charging Party's bargaining committee. We adopt the Trial Examiner's Decision on this issue.2/

Of interest is an opinion of Michigan's Attorney General dated April 10, 1967, issued to the Prosecuting Attorney of Delta County, Michigan. The Prosecuting Attorney inquired whether the Sheriff, under Michigan Statutes Annotated 5.863, having power to appoint and revoke appointments of deputies may, "rather than the Delta County Board of Supervisors . . ., in fact, be the employer of the deputy sheriffs." The Attorney General noted that > ". . . the 1963 Constitution provides that boards of supervisors shall be established in each organized county and shall have legislative, administrative and such other powers and duties as provided by law. See Article VII Secs. 7 & 8."

He concluded:

> ". . . it is my opinion that Delta County Board of Supervisors is the Employer of the deputy sheriffs and, as their public employer, is the body to negotiate with the Delta County Deputies Association if the latter is certified as the exclusive bargaining agent of the sheriffs of Delta County."

If the issue here discussed is raised in a representation proceeding in the future, adoption of the Attorney General's opinion would require that the Board of Supervisors, rather than the Sheriff, be designated as the employer. Here, representatives of the Board of Supervisors participated in collective bargaining and thus recognized its status as an employer. The Board of Supervisors was not damaged in any way by its inclusion as a respondent.

1/ Public Employment Relations Act (Mich. Stat. Ann. 17.455 (12) et seq)

2/ One statement of the Trial Examiner, standing alone, may give an erroneous impression. The Trial Examiner said: "The Oakland County Board of Supervisors may not require certification by this Board as a condition precedent to bargaining where it entertains no real doubt as to the union's majority." Approval of the Trial Examiner's decision is not to be construed as approval of the Bernel Foam doctrine, 146 NLRB 1277, 55 LRRM 1039 (1964), as interpreted by subsequent cases. See Joy Silk Mills, Inc., 85 NLRB 1263, 24 LRRM 1568 (1949); mod. and enf'd, 185F.2d 732, 27 LRRM 2633 (195[illegible]). We have not held in any case that lack of a "real doubt as to (a) union's majority," standing alone, is a basis for an order directing collective bargaining.

The Trial Examiner also found Respondents guilty of refusal to bargain for:

> "Insisting or conditioning the removal of Sergeant Fauser from the Union negotiation committee or in any other manner insisting upon negotiating as to the size and membership of the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO bargaining Committee."

Respondents excepted to the Trial Examiner's findings on the ground that (1) the supervisory or non-supervisory status of Sergeant Fauser is not properly an issue in these proceedings; (2) the Trial Examiner ignored the testimony of Sheriff Frank Irons, who described the duties of Sergeant Fauser, which, Respondents allege, disclose that he is a supervisory employee; and (3) there was no allegation in the charge or amended charge or statement supporting the charges, and no evidence at the hearing, that Sergeant Fauser ever attempted to enter a bargaining session.

We agree with Respondents that Respondents should not be found to have refused to bargain because of the absence of Sergeant Fauser from the bargaining sessions.

The supervisory or non-supervisory status of sergeants was not determined in the representation proceedings between the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and the American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO (Case No. R66 B-59, 1966 Michigan Labor Opinions 53). Sergeants and other employees were allowed to vote by stipulation of the parties, subject to challenge. The votes of the sergeants and other employees were not required in determination of the results of the election; hence the issue was not resolved in the representation case.

The status of Sergeant Fauser and other employees who voted subject to challenge may be determined in a petition for clarification of the bargaining unit. Indeed, this would appear to be the proper forum for such determination.

This is recognized by the Trial Examiner who, after counsel for the Respondents interposed a question as to questioning concerning the supervisory or non-supervisory status of sergeants, said:

> "I think the proper way to determine, perhaps, whether a particular employee should be included in the bargaining unit or not is to ask, is to have a motion made for clarification of the bargaining unit."

But decision does not require a determination of that issue or of the supervisory or non-supervisory status of Sergeant Fauser. Decision is based on the evidence presented in these proceedings. The Charging Party has not sustained the burden of proof that the Respondent refused to bargain because Sergeant Fauser was a member of the Charging Party's bargaining committee. Howard J. Draft, Staff Representative of State, County & Municipal Employees, testified:

> "The name of Sergeant Fauser was brought up, and I was informed that there was no need to bring Sergeant Fauser into negotiations as they wouldn't talk to him."

There was no testimony that an attempt was ever made to have Sergeant Fauser participate in negotiations. There never was, therefore, a refusal of Respondents to discuss wages, hours and working conditions with a committee of which Sergeant Fauser was a member. At most, there was a statement that Respondents would not deal with a committee of which Sergeant Fauser was a member, but no refusal to do so.3/

Our Order will eliminate item 1 b from the Recommended Order.

The third issue involves Respondents' refusal to bargain concerning arbitration as the terminal point of a grievance procedure.

The Board authorized amicii curiae to brief and argue orally the two issues of arbitration as the terminal point in a grievance procedure and union security as mandatory subjects of bargaining.4/

The Trial Examiner found that arbitration as the terminal point in a grievance procedure is a proper subject of collective bargaining, citing Steelworkers v. Warrior & Gulf Navigation Co., 363 U.S. 574, 80 S. Ct. 1347, 46 LRRM 2416 (1960), which enunciates the principle that arbitration is "now the national policy to encourage settlement of grievances via the arbitration process."5/

The Trial Examiner concluded:

> "It is incongruous that Public Employers, under jurisdiction of the Act, may submit to arbitration disputes involving contracts covering varied subjects such as purchase of supplies, services and construction, and yet be precluded from submitting grievances to arbitration only because they appear in the industrial relations context."6/

A grievance procedure, the Respondents contend, which vests in an arbitrator power to reverse a discharge of a deputy sheriff or other employee is illegal because in derogation of the sheriff's statutory power under the "Sheriff's Act" (Mich. Stat. Ann. 5.861, et seq.) to hire or fire his employees. Respondents also contend that a sheriff may not be required to bargain with respect to seniority provisions because the sheriff has power to appoint employees of his department and "the surrender by a sheriff during the bargaining of a statutory right to hire and fire would be in 'derogation' of the so-called Sheriff's Statute."

3/ National Labor Relations Board v. Security Guard Service, 66 LRRM 2247 (5th Cir., 1967), is not apposite. It involved a charge of discharge under Section 8(a)(3) of the National Labor Relations Act. The Court of Appeals enforced an NLRB finding that sergeants possessed only directive, not supervisory powers and consequently were not supervisors. The NLRB stated at 59 LRRM 1685-1686, adopting the Trial Examiner's language, that "it would be anomalous, I think, to find that sergeants are supervisors in an 8(a)(3) proceeding, and at the same time hold the Respondent to the rule applied in an 8(a)(5) proceeding requiring it to bargain in a unit which includes supervisors." While NLRB has determined the supervisory or non-supervisory status of employees in 8(a)(5) cases, such determination is unnecessary here because the evidence does not establish a refusal to bargain with a committee of which Sergeant Fauser was a member.

4/ Amicii curiae who filed briefs and argued orally were: Michigan State AFL-CIO, Michigan Conference of Teamsters, Genesee County, Michigan Education Association, City of Detroit, American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, and International Building and Construction Trades Council of Detroit.

5/ See also, Steelworkers v. American Manufacturing Company, 363 U.S. 564, 80 S.Ct. 1343, 46 LRRM 2414 (1960), and Steel workers v. Enterprise Wheel & Car Corporation, 363 U.S. 593, 80 S.Ct. 1358, 46 LRRM 2423 (1960).

6/ See Cogan, "Are Government Bodies Bound by Arbitration Agreements?" 22 The Arbitration Journal 151 (1967), for discussion of the impact of arbitration agreements on states and the government of the United States.

The Sheriff's Act provides:

"Each sheriff may appoint 1 or more deputies, for whose official acts he shall be in all respects responsible, and may revoke such appointments at his pleasure; and persons may also be deputed by any sheriff, by an instrument in writing, to do particular acts."

The Sheriff's Act and the Public Employment Relations Act must be construed, if possible, to give meaning to each of the statutes.7/

The Public Employment Relations Act requires the sheriff to bargain with the exclusive representative of his employees in an appropriate unit.8/

The sheriff is required to engage in good faith collective bargaining and to enter into a contract embodying the conditions of employment bargained to agreement by the sheriff and the exclusive bargaining representative of the sheriff's employees.9/

Respondents urge that the sheriff's statutory power to hire and fire precludes the sheriff from limiting his authority by agreeing that an arbitrator may determine whether an employee -- and specifically, a deputy sheriff -- may be discharged for just cause. Virtually lost in the argument by the parties and the amicii curiae is the use of arbitration as a means of determining disputes involving grievances concerning working conditions other than discharge.

We conclude that arbitration as a terminal point in the bargaining procedure is a mandatory subject of bargaining for the Oakland County Sheriff and his representatives designated by the Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

A sheriff's power to appoint deputy sheriffs at his pleasure and to revoke such appointments at any time is the same power vested in private employers by the common law.10/ A private employer, absent statutory limitation, may hire and fire at will. His power is neither greater nor less than that vested in the sheriff by statute.

But the power of private employers changed. A private employer's power was limited by the National Labor Relations Act, first enacted in 1935, which required employers to engage in good faith collective bargaining with exclusive representatives of their employees.11/ Among bargainable issues are discharge and a grievance procedure as a means of determining whether a discharge is for just cause.12/ Arbitration is a recognized terminal point in a grievance procedure.

There is no basis for distinguishing between a statutory requirement that a private employer bargain with respect to discharge and a grievance procedure and that a public employer be required by statute to do so.

Arbitration has long been recognized as a means of determining disagreements which arise between an employer and his employees and which are unsettled by the grievance procedure. While a private employer's refusal to agree to an arbitration provision is not, per se, a refusal to bargain, since a concession does not need to be made, assuming good faith, the issue of arbitration is bargainable.13/ The power of a private employer, absent a limiting statute, to discharge is equal to that of a public employer. Indeed, a sheriff, an office known to the English common law, had power to appoint deputy sheriffs and to revoke their appointments prior to the enactment of the Michigan statute.14/

8/ The appropriate unit was determined in Case No. R66 B-59, 1966 Michigan Labor Opinions 53, to include deputy sheriffs.

9/ Under Section 15 of PERA, working conditions which public employer and bargaining agent have agreed may be included in a resolution or ordinance. Either resolution or ordinance would seem not to be applicable in the case of a sheriff, although a Board of Supervisors might adopt a resolution or ordinance setting out the "bargain."

10/ Both private employers and their employees were considered to have the right to contract for the employees' services, a right which could not be limited by government. Allen v. Flood, H. L. (1898) A. C. 1; National Protective Association v. Cumming, 170 N.Y. 315 (1902); Interborough Rapid Transit v. Lanvin, 247 N.Y. 65 (1928); Interborough Rapid Transit v. United Clay Mines Corporation, 219 F.2d 120 (6th Cir., 1955); White v. National Labor Relations Board, 255 F.2d 564 (5th Cir., 1958). If an employer can pursue an issue to an impasse, then it is a mandatory subject of bargaining. If an issue is not a mandatory subject of bargaining, an employer need not bargain in good faith on the subject, but may simply refuse to discuss it. See, also, National Labor Relations Board v. American National Insurance Co., 343 U.S. 395 (1952). In this case, the employer refused to agree to an arbitration clause, but the Supreme Court found that he had bargained in good faith.

14/ See, for example, 1 Blackstone's Commentaries 339, et seq., where there is a discussion of the English sheriff's duties and powers. Because he performed many duties, he had the power to appoint ". . . an under-sheriff, bailiffs, and gaolers; . . . ." See, also, Vol. 25, The Laws of England, p. 800, Sheriff and Bailiffs, Part II, sec. 1: "1375. Only one under-sheriff of a county may be appointed, and he may be removed at the pleasure of the high sheriff even though his appointment purported to be irrevocable." English case law on this subject includes Norton v. Simmes (1614) Hob. 12, Moore (K. B.) 856 and Commons Digest, tit. Viscount (B. 1.). This absolute power to appoint and discharge was a part of the American Common Law, but it was always subject to qualification for abuse, civil service, and the Commissioners' power over the budget. Board of Commissioners, 71 U. 593, 268 P. 783 (1928).

Other limitations on the power of an employer to discharge are found in fair employment practices statutes and civil rights acts.15/

If Respondents' contention were carried to its logical conclusion, a sheriff could discharge for union activity, an act specifically made an unfair labor practice by Section 10 of the Public Employment Relations Act.

If Respondents' contention should be sustained, the legality of arbitration as a terminal point in a grievance procedure would have equal applicability to other public employees, including probate court employees (Mich. Stat. Ann. 27.3178(12), (13); county clerks' employees (Mich. Stat. Ann. 5.833); registers of deeds' employees (Mich. Stat. Ann. 5.983); and county treasurers' employees (Mich. Stat. Ann. 5.683). Public employers generally, without statute, have power to employ needed employees, subject to appropriations of the legislative body having power to appropriate for the appointing officer or body.

While the sheriff, as well as other public employers, is vested only with such authority as is granted by the state legislature, the legislature has directed that all public employers subject to legislative control engage in good faith bargaining.

Collective bargaining includes the power to establish, by mutual agreement, a grievance procedure and arbitration as a method of resolving impasses. The public employer does not, in any way, abrogate its authority to enter into the terms of a collective bargaining agreement. The arbitration with which we are concerned relates only to the interpretation and enforcement of an agreement to which the public employer has already consented. This is an essence of collective bargaining, or, as the U.S. Supreme Court said in Steelworkers v. Warrior & Gulf Navigation Co., 363 U.S. 574 (1960), "part and parcel of the collective bargaining process itself."

The Public Employment Relations Act requires a sheriff, as well as other public employers, to bargain with his employees' bargaining representative and authorizes him to enter into a collective bargaining agreement covering wages, hours and working conditions.16/ The privilege to work and retain employment, unless discharged for cause, is one of the most basic conditions of employment which an employee may enjoy.

If there were a contract, but no arbitration, a collective bargaining agent, and perhaps an employee, would have power to enforce the provisions of the contract through suit in the circuit court. Arbitration in the labor area is a substitute for a lawsuit. The philosophy expressed in the Steelworkers Trilogy17/ with respect to the private sector is equally applicable to the public sector.

Arbitration is a process which aids in the maintenance of the integrity of the negotiated contract. As stated by the Supreme Court in Wiley & Sons v. Livingston, 376 U.S. 543, 549 (1964):

> "This court has in the past recognized the central role of arbitration in effectuating national labor policy."

The role of a grievance procedure in the employer-employees relationship is well stated by the National Labor Relations Board in Danner Press, Inc., 153 NLRB No. 87, 59 LRRM 1597, 1598 (1965):

> "The (National Labor Relations) Board has from the beginning of the Act's administration recognized grievances as normal and proper subjects of collective bargaining. Both the Board and the courts have further acknowledged that the statutory obligation of an employer to bargain collectively with the representative of its employees does not end with the making of a collective contract, but that the duty to bargain postulated by the Act compels the continuation of bargaining after negotiation and execution of the contract to settle disputes as to its meaning and application."18/

Public entities have power to enter into enforceable contracts to arbitrate disputes involving commercial transactions.19/ The Public Employment Relations Act equates collective bargaining contracts entered into by public employers with contracts in the commercial area. Whatever doubt there may have been with respect to the authority of public employers to enter into collective bargaining agreements has been removed by the Public Employment Relations Act. We can conceive of no valid reason for excepting disputes in the employer-employee relationship from the general power of a public employer to 16/ PERA, Sec. 15: "A public employer shall bargain collectively with the representatives of its employees as defined in section 11 and is authorized to make and enter into collective bargaining agreements with such representatives. For the purposes of this section, to bargain collectively is the performance of the mutual obligation of the employer and the representative of the employees to meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment, or the negotiation of an agreement, or any question arising thereunder, and the execution of a written contract, ordinance or resolution incorporating any agreement reached if requested by either party, but such obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession." As discussed in the text above, the issue as to whether it is the sheriff or the Board of Supervisors which should be named as the employer in this proceeding is of minimal importance here. The Board of Supervisors participated in the collective bargaining and knew that the sheriff was named as an employer in the representation proceedings. Both, as public employers, are required to bargain in good faith.

arbitrate disputes between a public employer and the other contracting party.

We are aware that the Attorney General, in an opinion issued May 29, 1967, has held that boards of education do not have statutory authority to enter into contracts providing for binding arbitration of grievances.

The Attorney General cites a number of cases to support his conclusion, none of which arose under a state statute which, like Michigan's Public Employment Relations Act, requires public employers to engage in collective bargaining.

Thus in Mugford v. Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, 185 Md. 266, 44 A.2d 745 (Md. Ct. App., 1945), an action was brought to void an agreement between the city and a labor union and to restrain the city from extending a preferential advantage to a union. But in Maryland, there was no statute authorizing public employers to execute collective bargaining agreements; hence the case is without persuasive effect in Michigan.

In Norwalk Teachers Association v. Board of Education of Norwalk, 138 Conn. 269, 83 A.2d 482 (1951), cited in the Attorney General's opinion, the court held:

> "If it is borne in mind that arbitration is the result of mutual agreement, there is no reason to deny the power of the defendant to enter voluntarily into a contract to arbitrate a specific dispute (although the board of education's) power to submit to arbitration would not extend to questions of policy but might extend to questions of liability . . . Agreement to submit all disputes to arbitration, commonly found in ordinary union contracts, are in a different category." (emphasis supplied)

At the time of the decision in Norwalk Teachers Association, there was no statute authorizing or requiring public employers in Connecticut to engage in good faith collective bargaining. Yet the Connecticut court approved arbitration of contracts to arbitrate disputes between the school board and its employees' representative.

In Fellows v. Latronica, 151 Col. 300, 377 P.2d 547, 549 (1962), where the court disclaimed the applicability of Colorado law to the statutory scheme now in effect in Michigan, the court noted in its opinion that while there was no authority in a city to enter into a collective bargaining agreement, "this opinion should not be construed as decisive of any issue arising under a contract with a labor union where specific charter provisions or a statutory authority exists for such contract." (emphasis supplied) Manchester v. Manchester Teachers Guild, 100 N.H. 507, 131 A.2d 59 (1957), concerns only the right of public employees to strike.

In accord with our opinion are the decisions of the Supreme Court of Wisconsin in Local 1226, Rhinelander City Employees, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO v. City of Rhinelander, 35 Wis. 2d 209, 151 N.W. 2d 30 (1966), and Muskego-Norway Consolidated Schools v. Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, 32 Wis. 2d 478, 151 N.W. 2d 84 (1966).

Wisconsin, like Michigan, has a statute which requires public employers to engage in collective bargaining.20/

Rhinelander City Employees reversed a prior decision, Local 1111 of United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers of America v. Allen-Bradley Co., 259 Wis. 609, 49 N.W. 2d 728 (1951), in which the court held that it had no power to order an employer to perform an agreement to arbitrate.

We are in accord with the decision of the Honorable Chester J. Byrns, Berrien County Circuit Judge, in Local 953, International Union of American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, et al. v. School District of the City of Benton Harbor, No. C-6229 (b), dated October 12, 1967, No. 216 GERR p. E-1 (October 30, 1967), in which the court enforced the arbitration provision of a collective bargaining agreement between the parties. In discussing the opinion of the Attorney General in his opinion, Judge Byrns said:

> "This court agrees that there is no statute of Michigan expressly providing that school districts or other public employers may agree to binding arbitration, and there is no statute expressly prohibiting it. But is there not the implied power to do so in Section 15 of Act 335, P.A. 1947, as added by Acts 397 and 379, P.A. 1965?
> "Therein it is provided that a public employer shall 'bargain collectively' and may 'make and enter collective bargaining agreements.' Further, bargaining collectively is defined among other goals as 'the negotiation of an agreement or any question arising thereunder (emphasis supplied by court).' Certainly giving the power to enter into a contract would include the power to settle disputes arising under the terms of such contract. Negotiations as to 'wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment' can well include the power to arbitrate disputes on these points after the contract is signed.
> "The said law does also provide 'such obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession.' Defendant places reliance on this provision. Does this prohibit school districts from voluntarily agreeing to binding arbitration in a collective bargaining agreement voluntarily entered into as to disputes arising as to the application and interpretation of the terms of the agreement or its effect? Or, as this court finds, does such quoted part of the statute, while giving much the same right to collective bargaining as is provided to private employers and employees, mean that neither party entering into collective bargaining discussions prior to any written contract must agree to proposed terms or make concessions? This court believes such provision applies before any agreement is executed and does not prohibit fulfillment of binding arbitration once it is included in a voluntarily executed collective bargaining agreement between the public employer and employee, which is the situation we have in this cause. In short, such provision insures both parties the right to bargain to an impasse with no compulsion on the school board to agree to a collective bargaining agreement or to enter into an agreement."

The Respondents cite cases enunciating the rule of law that repeal of statutes "by implication" is not favored: Reynolds v. Miller, 274 Mich. 354 (1936); People v. Harrison, 194 Mich. 363 (1916); State Highway Commission v. Detroit City Controller, 331 Mich. 337 (1951); Regents of the University of Michigan v. Auditor General, 109 Mich. 134 (1896); and Village of Highland Park V. McAlpine, 117 Mich. 666 (1898)

The succinct answer is that the Public Employment Relations Act is not general legislation. It is most specific. It requires that the public employer engage in good faith collective bargaining.

Arbitration has been a bargainable issue in collective bargaining for many years, promoted during World War II by the National War Labor Board as a sensible means of deciding contract disputes.

It is unnecessary to decide in this case whether an agreement to arbitrate a dispute involving discharge of a deputy sheriff is binding upon a successor sheriff.

20/ Wisconsin Employment Labor Relations Act, Wis. Stat. Ch. 111.70, 111.80 (1967)

The Sheriff's Act authorizes a sheriff to revoke appointments of deputy sheriffs "at his pleasure" which suggests that a successor sheriff cannot be bound in this respect by his predecessor. We see no problem with respect to the incumbent sheriff, who, should he agree to arbitrate the issue of discharge, is simply limiting his own statutory power to discharge during the term of his office.

We express no opinion with respect to the power of one sheriff to bind a successor sheriff on the issue of discharge, a power specifically provided for in the statute.

We envisage no problems with respect to other conditions of employment not specified in the statute. In this respect, one public employer, including a sheriff, has power to bind his successors in office with respect to conditions of employment not regulated by statute in the same manner as a public employer has the power to contract for street sprinklers, fire engines, surveys and architects.21/

Respondents except to the Trial Examiner's finding that union security is a mandatory subject of collective bargaining.

Respondents, the City of Detroit and Genesee County contend:

(1) If the Michigan Legislature had intended to legalize union security, it would have added to Section 10(c) of the Public Employment Relations Act the clarifying statement which appears in Section 8 (a)(3) of the National Labor Relations Act:

> "Provided, that nothing in this act or any other statute of the United States shall preclude an employer from making an agreement with a labor organization to require as a condition of employment membership therein. . . . "

The Michigan Legislature, being full aware of the above provisions of the National Labor Relations Act, purposely excluded the 8(a)(3) exception to the prohibition against discrimination appearing in Section 10(c). Without this proviso a public employer by agreement to a union security clause, would encourage union membership. The Supreme Court of the United States, in National Labor Relations Board v. General Motors Corporation, 373 U.S. 734, 53 LRRM 2313 (1963), pointed out that Sections 8(3) and (7) standing alone, without the proviso, would be construed to outlaw union security arrangements.

(2) It is against the principles of public employment, as the Legislature was aware, to require that any citizen who is qualified and wishes to hold a position in the public service be required to join a labor organization under penalty of forfeiting his right to retain his public position. To require present employees to become members of a union in order to continue in employment would unconstitutionally impair existing employment contracts.

(3) To discharge an employee from public service for failing to join a public employee union would discriminate against such employee and encourage employee membership in a labor organization. The Public Employment Relations Act makes no distinction between "legal or illegal encouragement" of union membership as contended by the Trial Examiner.

(4) Requirement of union membership or payment of dues as a condition of employment for either present or future employees would violate the general civil service provisions of public employers which usually prohibit discharge of employees for political or religious reasons or for reasons other than the good of the service. The City of Detroit notes that Section 6 of Article Eleven of the 1963 Constitution authorizes public employers to establish, modify or discontinue a merit system for employees other than teachers under contract or tenure by a vote of the electors.22/

(5) In the absence of a statute, a public employer may not enter into any agreement, arrangement or course of conduct which would give preference to union labor, citing Lewis v. Detroit Board of Education, 139 Mich. 307 (1905).23/

(6) The inclusion of Section 14 in the Michigan Labor Mediation Act which affirmatively recognizes union security agreements evidences an intent to prohibit such agreements in public employment.24/

(7) The provision of Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act which authorizes employees to refrain from union activities is not applicable, as it, too contains an exception, i.e., "except to the extent that such right may be affected by an agreement requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment as authorized in Section 8(a)(3)." The language of Section 10 is a refutation of the conclusion of amicii curiae supporting the Charging Party that there "is neither express authorization for, nor prohibitions of, union security." Section 10(c) takes union security from the province of Section 15.

The Charging Party and the several amicii curiae which filed briefs in support of the Trial Examiner's decision contend:

(1) Union security has traditionally been considered a subject for collective bargaining and a condition of employment under both the National Labor Relations Act and the Michigan Labor Mediation Act.

(2) The Public Employment Relations Act contains no prohibition against union security agreements; hence it is a mandatory subject of bargaining.

21/ 10 McQuillin, Municipal Corporations, Sec. 29.101, "Binding Successors to Contracts."

22/ City of Detroit points out correctly that the extent to which constitutional, statutory or charter provisions relative to the employment of public employees may be in conflict with various forms of union security are not presently vital to the determination of the question at issue. This would be, as the City of Detroit notes, a possible area of concern which might apply in individual instances under a contractual union security provision.

App. 2d 36, 210 P.2d 305, 309, 310 (1949); and Perez v. Board of Police Commissioners, 78 Cal.App. 2d 638, 647, 178 P.2d 537, 543 (1947). In the latter case, the court stated:" . . . nothing can be gained by comparing public employment with private employment; there can be no analogy in such a comparison." In Michigan, however, the legislature, by enactment of the Public Employment Relations Act, determined that the industrial type of employer-employee relations and collective bargaining should apply to the public sector.

24/ Also cited is the "Report of Governor Romney's Advisory Committee on Public Employees Relations", which recommends that public employers and unions be expressly authorized to include in collective bargaining agreements union security provisions of the type authorized by the National Labor Relations Act. This, urges the City of Detroit, is a recognition that the power does not presently exist.

(3) Michigan has not enacted a right-to-work statute, thus disclosing that there is no policy objection to union security in Michigan.

(4) The Public Employment Relations Act was not copied from the National Labor Relations Act. The legislative history of the two statutes differed and the two acts differ in many respects, including, importantly for this purpose, the omission in Section 9 of the Michigan statute of the provision in Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act that employees "shall also have the right to refrain from any or all of such activities. . . . " The original National Labor Relations Act (Wagner Act) did not prohibit voluntary closed shop agreements, and Section 16(3) of the Labor Mediation Act "has long been understood without benefit of proviso" to authorize union security.

(5) Section 10(c) should be construed in the light of the stated purpose of the Act to "declare and protect the rights and privileges of public employees."

(6) Section 10(a) is all inclusive, as subsections (b), (c), (d), and (e) specify particular types of interference.

(7) Section 10 applies only to unilateral interference by an employer, and not to provisions of a mutually negotiated collective bargaining agreement.

(8) The Public Employment Relations Act does not prohibit employees from agreeing to become and remain members of a labor organization. To require them to do so would not "discriminate" within the meaning of 10(c), because the employees themselves, through their duly appointed agent, would have agreed to union membership as a condition of employment.

(9) The Public Employment Relations Act follows closely in its operative provisions the patterns set by the Labor Mediation Act, which does not prohibit union security provisions in a collective bargaining contract. Section 14 of the Labor Mediation Act was included to preclude an erroneous interpretation that without it union security clauses might be invalid.

(10) Section 10 of the Public Employment Relations Act, like Section 16 of the Labor Mediation Act, prohibits employers from interfering only with the rights conferred by Section 9 -- thereby establishing the same rule in public employment as in private employment. The principles of the Labor Mediation Act are to be applied to public employment unless there is a strong and categorical indication to the contrary.

(11) Any advantageous condition of employment bargained by the union "encourages" union membership. An employer who requires minority as well as majority support of the organization properly representing all employees in the bargaining unit is no more "discriminating" than when the employer applies all other terms and conditions of the agreement even-handedly to all members of the bargaining unit.

(12) All "discrimination" is not outlawed; only "illegal" discrimination. For example, permitting the certified or recognized union to post notices on the bulletin board to hold meetings on the employer's premises or granting leaves to union representatives may be "discriminatory," but they are not violative of the statute.

(13) A union has the obligation to negotiate in behalf of all employees: Hughes Tool Co. v. National Labor Relations Board, 147 F.2d 69 (CA 5, 1945); Hughes Tool Co., 104 NLRB 318 (1953); Wallace v. National Labor Relations Board, 323 U.S. 248 (1944); and Steele v. Louisville & N.R.R., 323 U.S. 192, 204 (1944)

Neither of the parties nor any of the amicii curiae have cited any decision which prohibits a public employer and a labor organization representing the employees from agreeing that all employees must become members of a labor organization. Our research has not brought to light any such case. Indeed, at common law, an employer had unlimited right to discriminate against his employees.25/

Any restriction, therefore, on the legal power of a public employer and a labor organization to execute a collective bargaining agreement which includes a union security provision must be found either in (1) a difference between public employers and private employers, (2) a distinction between public employees and private employees, or (3) the Public Employment Relations Act.

Both the Charging Party and Respondent, and their supporting amicii curiae, appeal to legislative history to support their respective positions. Unfortunately, the Michigan Legislature does not report the debates in Senate or House of Representatives, and committee reports are infrequent. There was no committee report from either the Senate or House of Representatives Labor Committee prior to the presentation of HB 2953, which, after amendment, became the Public Employment Relations Act. Consequently, legislative history, insofar as it is of assistance in determining the issue before us must be gleaned from a determination as to what the legislators could reasonably have been expected to do in view of federal and state legislation already in the statute books.

It is not possible to determine from legislative history whether the omission in the Public Employment Relations Act of the proviso (Charging Party's item 4) of Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act was intended to legitimatize union security provisions in collective bargaining contracts, and whether the omission of the additional exception (Respondent's item 7) was intended to prohibit the inclusion of union security clauses in collective bargaining contracts.

The Michigan Legislature, we agree, knew the Congressional history of the Wagner, Taft-Hartley and Landrum-Griffin Acts. That the federal law was an element in the enactment of the Public Employment Relations Act is apparent, as the Michigan statute follows the language of the federal statute in a number of respects. Indeed, it is clear that in several areas, including Section 10, the Michigan Legislature adopted the federal legislation for Michigan's public sector. To the extent that this was done, the interpretation of the language of the federal statutes is of assistance in decision here.

25/ Discrimination: This right includes refusal to hire, People v. Chicago M. & St. P.R. Co., supra, note 10, and New York Central v. Schaffer, supra, note 10; threats to discharge if the employees do not quit the union (yellow dog), Coppage v. Kansas, 236 U.S. 1 (1915), Tosh v. West Kentucky Coal Co., 252 Fed. 44 (6th Cir., 1918); Sherman v. Abeles, 265 N.Y. 282, 193 N.E. 241 (1934); and discrimination in discharge or hire based on reasons of affiliation or lack of it, Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Brotherhood, 281 U.S. 548 (1929), Drake Bakeries v. Bowles, 31 O.N.P.N.S. 425, Rosenthal-Ettlinger Co. v. Schlossberg, 266 N.Y.S. 762 (1933), Bayonne Textile Corporation v. American Federation of Silk Workers, 114 N.J. Eq. 307, 168 A. 799 (1933). Yellow Dog Contracts. Not only were yellow dog contracts legal, Tosh v. West Kentucky Coal Co., 252 Fed. 44 (6th Cir., 1918), Sherman v. Abeles, 265 N.Y. 282, 193 N.E. 241 (1934); Hitchman Coal Company v. Mitchell, 245 U.S. 229 (1917), Interborough Rapid Transit v. Green, 227 [illegible] 258 (1928), United Shoe Machinery Corporation v. Fi[illegible] 37 Mass. 537, 130 N.E. 86 (1921), and People v [illegible] 185 N.Y. 257, 77 N.E. 1073 (1906). Attempts [illegible] several states to outlaw yellow dog contracts prior to [illegible]ris-LaGuardia were voided as an invasion of freedom of contract, Adair v. United States, 208 U.S. 161 (1908), and Coppage v. Kansas, 236 U.S. 1 (1915).

We find no validity in the argument that there is some inherent difference with respect to union security as a subject of bargaining between private and public employment (Respondents' items 2 and 3). The Michigan Legislature established, for the public sector, the same type of (a) right to engage in concerted activities, (b) collective bargaining, (c) method of choosing a collective bargaining representative, and (d) unfair labor practices as are found in the private sector, with one substantial exception. Public employees are prohibited from striking (Section 2); but in other respects, their rights to engage in concerted activities and to be free from unfair labor practices committed against them are as provided in the private sector by both the National Labor Relations Act and the Michigan Labor Mediation Act.26/ In addition, and of importance in determination of the issue here: neither the proviso in Section 8 (3) of the Wagner Act nor in 8(a)(3) of the Taft-Hartley Act is included in Section 10(c) of the Public Employment Relations Act.

We likewise find no merit in the argument that the principles of public employment, including civil service statutes and ordinances, prohibit union security provisions in collective bargaining agreements (Respondents' item 4). To the extent that specific conditions of employment are written into statutes, such provisions may become part of the "bargain" between the parties, in the same manner that minimum wages under federal and state minimum wage laws, and the overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, are part of every collective contract to which they are applicable.

If there is an unconstitutional impairment with respect to employees already employed, that issue may be determined with respect to an individual dispute brought to the proper tribunal (see Respondents' item 2; footnotes 22 and 23). If a union security provision conflicts with an employee's individual contract, which includes civil service or other contract rights, court or other tribunal will so find.

But the existence of civil service statutes and ordinances and other contract provisions included in contracts does not, per se, affect the legality, and therefore, the bargainability, of a union security provision. And it is evident that this issue of unconstitutionality is not germane with respect to employees hired after a collective bargaining agreement, which includes a union security clause, has been executed by a public employer and an exclusive bargaining representative.

Section 10(a) renders it unlawful for a public employer to interfere with, restrain or coerce public employees in the exercise of their rights guaranteed by Section 9. We are not persuaded that Section 9 is determinative of the issue before us (Charging Party's item 6), as a union security clause in a contract neither promotes nor impairs the right of employees to engage in the concerted activities specified in Section 9. While it may be "all inclusive," Section 9 neither authorizes nor prohibits union security as a mandatory subject of collective bargaining.

We reject the concept that Section 10 applies only to unilateral interference by an employer, but does not apply to a mutually negotiated collective bargaining agreement (Charging Party's item 7). Section 10 prohibits specified acts. Engaging in them in concert with a union does not make them legal.

What, then, is the meaning of Section 10:

"It shall be unlawful for an employer or an officer or agent of a public employer. . . (c) to discriminate in regard to hire, terms or other conditions of employment in order to encourage or discourage membership in a labor organization. . . ."

There are, as the Charging Party and supporting amicii curiae urge, acts which may be discriminatory in the sense that they do not apply exactly the same to all persons or groups; and a good contract does encourage union membership (Charging Party's item 11).27/ But this argument, pressed to its logical conclusion, would authorize any contract provision in a contract, including some which might be contrary to specific prohibitions in other statutes.28/ A line must be drawn at some point. The issue here is whether the inclusion of compulsory union membership in a collective contract is the type of requirement, or act, of a public employer which encourages union membership within the interdiction of the section.

The issue is not what the Board believes ought to be the type of union security, if any, which should be included in collective bargaining contracts, but, "What does the Public Employment Relations Act authorize or prohibit?"

The basic contention of the Respondents is that Section 10(c) of the Michigan Public Employment Relations Act does not contain the proviso of the companion Sections 8(3) of the Wagner Act and 8(a) (3) of the Taft-Hartley Act. Under 8(3) of the Wagner Act, all types of union security including the closed shop, were protected by the proviso. In the Taft-Hartley amendment to 8(3) of the Wagner Act, all types of union security except the closed shop were protected by the proviso. Absent the proviso from 10(c) of the Public Employment Relations Act, the Respondents reason, all forms of union security are illegal under the section.

It may be urged that Section 10(c) is limited to discrimination as between employees in a bargaining unit or in a group employed by the employer, such as the discharge of a part of the employees in a group, because they promoted or participated in an organizing campaign in the employing unit.29/

Section 10(c), however, must be interpreted in the context of its adoption.

The thrust of Section 10(c), like Section 8(3), is prohibition of discrimination against unions. Individual employees may be involved because part of an anti-union program carried out, or participated in, by an employer. The concept of the Wagner Act was to promote the right of collective bargaining by employees who desired to be represented for that purpose by an exclusive bargaining agent. Section 8(a) (1) of Taft-Hartley and Section 10(a) of the Public Employment Relations Act are directed primarily toward protection of individuals acting in concert; Section 8(a) (3) and 10 (c) toward labor organization protection with individuals involved, but as participants in the organization or organizational activity.

26/ The unfair labor practices are "lifted" from the Wagner Act rather than the Taft-Hartley Act, as there are no union unfair labor practices in the Public Employment Relations Act and only limited unfair labor practices in Section 17a of the Labor Mediation Act.

Ct. 1517, 91 L.Ed. 1848, reh. denied, 332 U.S. 826, 68 S. Ct. 159, 92 L.Ed. 401.

The right of employees to organize into unions and to bargain through a union was a developing concept. It was recognized by Congress in the Railway Labor Act enacted in 1926, 44 Stat. 577, which was interpreted by the Supreme Court in Texas and New Orleans Railroad Company v. Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, 281 U.S. 548 50 S. Ct. 427, 74 L.Ed. 1034 (1930). The Act authorized collective bargaining, and stated that:

"Representatives for the purposes of this Act, shall be designated by the respective parties. . .without interference, influence, or coercion exercised by either party over the self-organization or designation or representatives by the other." (p. 567)

The Court noted:

"It is at once to be observed that Congress was not content with the general declaration of the duty of carriers and employees to make every reasonable effort to enter into and maintain agreements concerning rates of pay, rules and working conditions, and to settle disputes with all expedition in conference between authorized representatives, but added this distinct prohibition against coercive measures. This addition cannot be treated as superfluous or insignificant, or as intended to be without effect." (pp. 567-568)

In 1933, Congress enacted the National Industrial Recovery Act, 48 Stat. 195, which included Section 7(a), which required that a code of fair competition should contain a provision that:

"Employees shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and shall be free from the interference, restraint, or coercion of employers of labor, or their agents, in the designation of such representatives or in self-organization or in other concerted activities to the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection."

Thus, the concept of free collective bargaining without interference -- and thus without encouragement or discouragement -- by an employer was advanced.

After the Supreme Court declared NIRA unconstitutional in 1935,30/ the Wagner Act was enacted, which contained a Section 7, but without the right to refrain from engaging in union activities. Section 8 unfair labor practices were included to implement Section 7 rights. The Wagner Act was primarily concerned with the organizational phases of labor relations and the activities of employers which violated the employees' Section 7 rights.

This is well stated by Archibald Cox and Derek Curtis Bok:

"The Wagner Act of 1935 established on a permanent foundation the legally protected right of employees to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. The basic idea reaches back before 1900 but much of its elaboration was the work of the NIRA period.

"Section 8(1) declared it to be an unfair labor practice for an employer 'to interfere with, restrain or coerce employees in the exercise of rights guaranteed in Section 7.' This provision covers generally such anti-union tactics as beating up labor organizers, locking the employees out to destroy incipient unions, industrial espionage and other use of the employer's economic power to prevent unionization. Threats of economic reprisal or promises of benefit are unfair labor practices. Section 8(1) also forbids subtler anti-union tactics such as wage increases carefully timed to show the employees that nothing would be gained by joining a union.

"Subsections (2), (3) and (4) of Section 8 proscribe specifically some of the more offensive anti-union tactics in which employers had engaged.

"The provisions just summarized continue to apply after a union has become the bargaining representative, but their importance is greatest during what may be called the organizational phase of labor management relations — the period in which employees are taking steps to form a union or in which an outside union is seeking to persuade them to organize. For it is at this time that employees need the most protection and the employer is most likely to attack the union."31/

This reasoning is substantiated by National Labor Relations Board v. Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, 301 U.S. 1, 57 S. Ct. 615, 81 L.Ed. 893 (1937), where the Wagner Act was held constitutional. The Court sustained the concept that engaging in unfair labor practices affected commerce, and said:

"Experience has abundantly demonstrated that the recognition of the right of employees to self-organization and to have representatives of their own choosing for the purpose of collective bargaining is often an essential condition of industrial peace."

Thus, the concept was discrimination which interfered with organizational activities per se, rather than discrimination between individuals.

While the legislative history is not sufficiently definitive to furnish a clear cut answer to the Congressional intent with respect to the impact of the proviso to Section 8(3) on union security, the report of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, in speaking of the proviso, said:

"The proviso (to Section 8(3)) is not intended to require any employer to enter into an agreement conditioning employment upon membership in any labor organization. . . . This proviso is not a mandate, but is a permissive exception made necessary by other provisions of the law. If this proviso were not in the bill, a willing employer and willing employees could not of their own accord agree that thereafter a person seeking employment should be required, as a condition of employment, to join the employees' organization."32/ (emphasis supplied)

The difficulty in determining the impact of the proviso is evident from National Labor Relations Board v. General Motors, 373 U.S. 734, 738, 83 S. Ct. 1453, 10 L. Ed. 2d 670, 53 LRRM 2313 (1963), where the Court said:

"Section 8(3) under the Wagner Act was the predecessor to Sec. 8(a)(3) of the present law. Like Sec. 8(a)(3) Sec. 8(3) forbade employers to discriminate against employees to compel them to join a union. Because it was feared that Sec. 8(3) and Sec. 7, if nothing were added to qualify them, might be held to outlaw union-security arrangements, such as the closed shop, see 79 Cong. Rec. 7570 (statement of Senator Wagner), 7674 (statement of Senator Walsh); H.R. Rep. No. 972, p. 17; H. R. Rep. No. 1147, p. 19, the proviso to Sec. 8(3) was added expressly declaring:

30/ Schechter Poultry Corporation v. United States, 295 U.S. 495, 55 S. Ct. 837, 79 L. Ed. 1570 (1935).

31/ Labor Law, Cases and Materials, The Foundation Press, pp. 118, 119.

32/ Senate Committee on Education and Labor, Report No. 1184, p. 6.

"Provided, That nothing in this act . . . or in any other statute of the United States, shall preclude an employer from making an agreement with a labor organization . . . to require as a condition of employment membership therein, if such labor organization is the representative of the employees as provided in section 9(a) . . . ."

"The prevailing administration and judicial view under the Wagner Act was or came to be that the proviso to Sec. 8(3) covered both the closed and union shop, as well as less onerous union security arrangements, if they were otherwise legal. The National Labor Relations Board construed the proviso as shielding from an unfair labor practice charge less severe forms of union-security arrangements than the closed or the union shop, including an arrangement in Public Service Co. of Colorado, 89 N.L.R.B. 418, 26 LRRM 1014, requiring non-union members to pay to the union $2 a month'for the support of the bargaining unit.' And in Algoma Plywood Co. v. Wisconsin Board, 336 U.S. 301, 307, 23 LRRM 2402, which involved a maintenance of membership agreement, the Court, in commenting on petitioner's contention that the proviso of Sec. 8(3) affirmatively protected arrangements within its scope, of Garner v. Teamsters Union, 346 U.S. 485, 33 LRRM 2218, said of its purpose: 'The short answer is that Sec. 8(3) merely disclaims a national policy hostile to the closed shop or other forms of union-security agreement.' "

While the Supreme Court opinion suggests that Section 8(3) might be held to outlaw union security arrangements, we read the report of the Senate Committee on Labor and Education as more than an exposition of the law as it existed when the Wagner Act was originally enacted. To repeat the words of the report, if the proviso were not included, an employer and a collective bargaining agent "could not of their own accord agree that thereafter a person seeking employment should be required, as a condition of employment, to join the employees' organization." If they could not so agree, it means that without the proviso, there could be no union security.

The concept that Section 8(3) is directed more against anti-union discrimination than discrimination between employees in a particular group is well stated by the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc. v. National Labor Relations Board, 107 F.2d 555, 564 (7th Cir., 1939):

"We believe that the term 'discrimination' takes its meaning from the context of Section 8(3), and that it refers to anti-union discrimination, that is, to a different treatment accorded union employees solely because of their union memberships or activities and without reference to whether they hold comparable or noncomparable jobs. To restate and summarize, Section 8(3) prohibits certain employer conduct, namely, the discouragement of union membership by means of anti-union discrimination. It directly protects union membership, and it indirectly protects employees engaged in lawful union activities from discharges that would effect a discouragement of union membership. See National Labor Rel. Board v. Fansteel Metallurgical Corp., 306 U.S. 240, 59 S. Ct. 490, 83 L.Ed. 627, 123 A.L.R. 599, National Labor Relations Board v. Sands Mgf. (sic) Co., 306 U.S. 332, 59 S. Ct. 508, 83 L. Ed. 682." (emphasis supplied)

This meaning of Section 8(a)(3) is recognized in National Labor Relations Board v. Stremel, 141 F.2d 317, 318 (10th Cir., 1944). The National Labor Relations Board had entered a cease and desist order against the operator of a coal mine who locked out all his employees. In enforcing the Board order which, among other things, found that the employer had breached Section 8(3) of the statute, the court said:

"A shut-down or lock-out of employees for the purpose of discouraging membership in a labor organization constitutes a discrimination within Section 8(3)(1) of the Act."33/

This decision, like others, discloses that, in context, the term "discrimination" has a broader meaning than differentiation or distinction between employees in a particular unit or group. If "to discriminate" or "discrimination" were to be defined as narrowly as the Charging Party suggests, a lockout of all employees in a unit to interfere with an organizing drive would not be discrimination under Section 8(3) of its successor, Section 8(a)(3), because there would be no different treatment as between employees.

This philosophy of Section 8(a)(3) is recognized by the majority opinion in Textile Workers Union of America v. Darlington Manufacturing Co., 380 U.S. 263, 272, 85 S. Ct. 994, 13 L.Ed. 2d 827 (1965). While the Court held that it is not an unfair labor practice for an employer to close his entire business, even if the closing were due to an anti-union basis, the Court recognized that there would be discrimination within the meaning of Section 8(a)(3) of the National Labor Relations Act if all employees were terminated for the purpose of discouraging the unionization of the company's employees:

"We are not presented here with the case of a 'runaway shop,' whereby Darlington would transfer its work to another plant or open a new plant in another locality to replace its closed plant. Nor are we concerned with a shutdown where the employees, by renouncing the union, could cause the plant to reopen. Such cases would involve discriminatory employer action for the purpose of obtaining some benefit from the employees in the future."

This emphasis on the anti-union, as distinguished from individual, discrimination is present in National Labor Relations Board v. National Garment Co., 166 F.2d 233, 238 (8th Cir., 1948), where a successor owner was found to have breached Section 8(a)(3) even though the acts held to be unfair labor practices were committed against all employees without distinction between them. The Court said:

"The contention of respondents that they did not discriminate against the employees because they laid off employees, both union and non-union, may not be sustained. They discriminated against all employees by treating them differently than they would have treated them had some of them not joined the union within the plain intendment of Sections 7 and 8(1)(3). 'It shall be an unfair labor practice for an employer to interfere with, restrain or coerce employees in the exercise of the rights guaranteed in section 7 (of self organization in labor unions) (3) by discrimination in regard to tenure of employment' N.L.R.B. v. Cape County Milling Co., 8 Cir., 140 F. 2d 543, 152 A.L.R. 144; N.L.R.B. v. Somerset Shoe Co., 1 Cir., 111 F.2d 681; N.L.R.B. v. National Motor Bearing Co., 9 Cir., 105 F. 2d 652, 657, 658."34/

33/ The Court cited National Labor Relations Board v. National Motor Bearing Co., 105 F.2d 652, 657 (9th Cir., 1939); Atlas Underwear Co. v. National Labor Relations Board, 116 F.2d 1020, 1023 (6th Cir., 1941); National Labor Relations Board v. Mall Tool Co., 119 F.2d 700, 701 (7th Cir., 1941).

34/ The omission of discrimination with respect to "tenure" by the Michigan Legislature does not, in our opinion, create a difference in meaning as between the federal and state statutes, as the term "tenure" is included in the broader words "terms" and "conditions of employment." See also, National Labor Relations Board v. National Motor Bearing Co., 105 F.2d 652 (9th Cir., 1939), and the decision of the National Labor Relations Board in 5 NLRB 409, 2 LRRM 8 (1938).

That Section 8(a)(3) is directed primarily against anti-union discrimination is the thrust of Radio Officers' Union of the Commercial Telegraphers Union, AFL v. National Labor Relations Board. 347 U.S. 17, 74S. Ct. 323, 98 L.Ed. 455 (1954). The Court held that Section 8(a)(3) of the amended National Labor Relations Act provides that it is an unfair labor practice for an employer to discriminate against his employees to encourage or discourage union membership. One of three cases heard by the Supreme Court involved an alleged breach of Section 8(a)(3). The Court affirmed a Court of Appeals decision which enforced an order of the National Labor Relations Board in which an employer, from self-interest and not from a desire to encourage union membership, accorded union members wage treatment more preferential than that accorded non-members. The union involved was a close one, admitting only first-born sons of members.

In discussing Section 8(a)(3), the Court said: "Thus Sec. 8(a)(3) and 8(b)(2) were designed to allow employees to freely exercise their right to join unions, be good, bad or indifferent members, or abstain from joining any union without imperiling their livelihood. The only limitation Congress has chosen to impose on this right is specified in the proviso to Sec. 8(a)(3) which authorizes employers to enter into certain union security contracts, . . . (emphasis supplied)

". . . Thus, an employer can discharge an employee for non-membership in a union if the employer has entered a union security contract valid under the Act with such union, and if the other requirements of the proviso are met. No other discrimination aimed at encouraging employees to join, retain membership, or stay in good standing in a union is condoned." (pp. 40-42)

This language is consistent with the concept that the purpose of Section 8(a)(3) was anti-union discrimination, as distinguished from individual discrimination, and that the proviso was added in order that there might be individual discrimination in requiring employees to become members of a union under a union security clause authorized by the proviso.

The Court also said:

"Moreover, the National Labor Relations Board in its annual reports regularly reiterates this requirement in its discussion of Sec. 8(a)(3). For example, a recent report states that 'upon scrutiny of all the facts in a particular case, the Board must determine whether or not the employer's treatment of the employee was motivated by a desire to encourage or discourage union membership or other activities protected by the statute.' " (pp. 43-44)

Mr. Justice Black, in his dissenting opinion, also views Section 8(a)(3) as being directed primarily against discrimination with respect to unions per se. Mr. Justice Black said:

"Behind the Labor Act was a long history of employer hostility to strong unions and affection for weak ones. Power over wages, hours and other working conditions permitted employers to help unions they liked and hurt unions they disliked. To enable workers to join or not join unions without fear of reprisal, Congress passed the Labor Act prohibiting such employer discrimination.

"The Board has been careful in Sec. 8(a)(3) cases to make findings that employer discrimination was motivated by hostility or favoritism toward union membership." (pp. 58-59)

At least one Court of Appeals has treated the proviso as an affirmative authorization for a union security provision in the contract. The Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit35/ said:

"In our view, the proviso validates an employer's 'agreement with a labor organization to require as a condition of employment (to which the agreement shall become applicable) membership therein on or after the thirtieth day following the beginning of such employment.' We have added the bracketed phrase to the proviso in order to make explicit what we think is a necessary implication of the statutory language. For a collective bargaining agreement, in its nature, applies not to employment at large, but to some class or classes of persons employed somewhere by the contracting employer." (emphasis supplied)

While there is no affirmative legislative history, we believe that the Michigan Legislature, with its knowledge of, and reliance on, provisions of the National Labor Relations Act, would have included the proviso had it been intended that union security provisions be considered as outside the interdiction of Section 10(c).

We believe the better and more persuasive position to be that without the proviso, a union or closed shop provision is prohibited; therefore, it is not a mandatory subject of collective bargaining.

The prohibition, however, is the encouragement and discouragement of union membership. A union is required to represent all employees in the bargaining unit in good faith and without discrimination. Thus, union membership is discouraged if employees enjoy the fruits of the union vine without sharing the cultivation of the vineyard. Grapes may not be harvested until the ground has been prepared; the vines planted, trimmed and sprayed; the soil weeded and fertilized.

As the Supreme Court of the United States said in Ford v. Huffman, 345 U.S. 330, 337, 73 S.Ct. 681, 97 L.Ed. 633 (1953):

"The statutory obligation to represent all members of an appropriate unit requires them to make an honest effort to serve the interests of all those members without hostility to any."36/

Thus, under this concept, a public employer who refuses to agree to a contract provision which will require all employees to share in the cost of an exclusive bargaining representative to negotiate and administer a collective bargaining contract might be said to be discouraging union membership. Certainly, there is an encouragement of "free riders" who gain the benefits of the efforts of the bargaining representative, but do not share in the costs. And this employer treats all employees alike for the employer has refused (as an employer has the privilege of doing if he bargains in good faith) to agree to a contract clause requiring the non-union member to pay his part of the cost of contract negotiation and administration.

Briggs, 338 Mich. 549, 61 N.W. 2d 615 (1956); and Ostrofsky v. Steelworkers, 171 F.Supp. 782 (D.C. Md., 1959) aff'd, 273 F.2d 414 (4th Cir., 1960).

But this employer's act is passive, not active. It is a refusal, not an affirmative act. Such refusal, assuming bargaining in good faith, is recognized by Section 15 as within the power of a public employer, for the section provides that the requirement to bargain in good faith "does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require the making of a concession."

This, it seems to me, is the place where the line should be drawn, in a reasonable interpretation of Section 10(c).

A requirement that employees pay their share of the cost of negotiating and administering a collective bargaining agreement neither discourages nor encourages membership in the labor organization selected by the majority of employees in the bargaining unit to represent them. It is not discriminatory, as the requirement that each employee pay his pro rata share of the costs applies alike to all employees in the bargaining unit, whether they are, or are not, members of the union.

I conclude that an agency shop provision in a collective bargaining agreement is not prohibited by the Public Employment Relations Act; therefore, the agency shop is a mandatory subject of bargaining. This is the type of contract provision whereby an employee in the bargaining unit who chooses not to become a member of the labor organization which is the exclusive bargaining representative may be required, as a condition of employment, to pay to such labor organization an amount equal to the union membership fee and dues.

It might be urged that there are fraternal and social aspects to union membership, and that some unions include insurance benefits with dues' payment; hence payment by a non-member of an amount equal to a union's dues is discriminatory and may encourage membership in that an employee may believe that if he must pay an amount equivalent to dues, he "might as well" join the union. This was the philosophy of the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Nationa' Labor Relations Board v. Local 138, International Union of Operating Engineers, ___F.2d ___, 66 LRRM 2703 (1967), a case involving a charge of discrimination in the administration of a hiring hall.

The fraternal and social aspects of unions and insurance contracts for members have lessened in recent years, as unions have become primarily representatives of employees in bargaining units. Whatever difference there may be between the costs of the representative function and other union activities is minimal, and not a basis for distinguishing between a contract provision requiring payment of dues equivalent and some lesser amount.

While an agency shop provision which provides for a payment by non-members of an amount less than the dues might be negotiated, I do not view the traditional agency shop type of agreement as prohibited by Section 10(c).

In my opinion, the inclusion of Section 14 of the Labor Mediation Act is support for the Respondents' position rather than the Charging Party's contention; and it is one factor in my determination that union shop provisions do fall within the prohibition of Section 10(c). Had the Legislature intended to provide for the same type of union security in the public sector as is authorized in the private sector, it is reasonable to believe that the legislators, who debated amendments to the Labor Mediation Act at the same time they considered and amended the Hutchinson Act, would have included a provision in the Public Employment Relations Act similar to Section 14 of the Labor Mediation Act (Respondents' item 6)

We are not persuaded by the argument that the lack of a right-to-work statute in Michigan is a factor in decision here. So-called right-to-work statutes enacted by a number of states are applicable solely to the private sector (Charging Party's item 3). The issue here is solely a matter of statutory construction.

The policy of the Act which declares the purpose to declare and protect the rights and privileges of public employees cannot be read as authority for any particular type of collective bargaining agreement. Each labor organization has the responsibility (discussed above) of representing the employees in the bargaining unit it represents in good faith (Charging Party's item 5). The protection afforded to, and benefits negotiated for, public employees by a collective bargaining agreement are available to all employees in the bargaining unit.

Thus, the payment for this protection, the negotiation of the benefits and administration of the contract by all employees neither encourages nor discourages union membership. It discriminates against none. It is consistent with Section 16.

LABOR MEDIATION BOARD

In the Matter of OAKLAND COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT and OAKLAND COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS, Respondent, and METROPOLITAN COUNCIL NO. 23, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF STATE, COUNTY & MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES, AFL-CIO, Charging Party.	Case No. C66 F-63

CONCURRING AND DISSENTING OPINION

I concur with the decision of Board Chairman Howlett and Board Member Weiss on the issues of joinder of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors; that the Charging Party has not sustained the burden of proof that the Respondent refused to bargain because Sergeant Fauser was absent from the bargaining sessions. I also concur with my colleagues that arbitration as a terminal step in the processing of grievances is a mandatory subject of bargaining; however, like Chairman Howlett, I "express no opinion with respect to the power of one sheriff to bind a successor sheriff on the issue of discharge, a power specifically provided for in the statute."

The issue of union security is one pregnant with complications and contradictions. I agree with Chairman Howlett that the agency shop is a mandatory subject of bargaining; but, as to other forms of union security, we are not in accord, infra; I am completely at variance with Board Member Weiss on this issue, infra.

The basic contention of the Respondents on this issue is that Section 10(c) of the Michigan Public Employment Relations Act (hereinafter referred to as PERA) does not contain the proviso of the companion sections 8(3) of the Wagner Act and 8(a)(3) in the amendment of that section of the National Labor Relations Act (hereinafter referred to as NLRA) by the Taft-Hartley Act. Under 8(3) of the Wagner Act, all types of union security, including the closed shop, were protected by the proviso. In the Taft-Hartley amendment to 8(3) of the Wagner Act, all types of union security except the closed shop were protected by the proviso. Absent the proviso from 10(c) of PERA, the Respondents reason, all forms of union security are illegal under the section.

It is clear that the proviso was inserted in the federal act to eliminate any misconstruction of Section 8 (a)(3) of NLRA making the employer guilty of a Section 8(a)(3) unfair labor practice if it entered into any type of union security agreement which was not specifically authorized by the proviso to the section.

Neither the National Labor Relations Board nor the federal courts have ever passed upon the issue of union security before us because the federal legislation comparable to Section 10(c) has always contained the proviso. It, therefore, becomes our responsibility to decide this issue without the benefit of precedent, either at the state or federal level.

In the Board decision and in the briefs submitted by some amicii curiae, stress is placed upon the Supreme Court decision in National Labor Relations Board v. General Motors Corporation, 373 U. S. 734, 738-39, 83 S. Ct. 1453, LRRM 2313, 2315 (1963), wherein the Court said:

> "Section 8(3) under the Wagner Act was the predecessor to §8(a)(3) of the present law. Like §8(a)(3), §8(3) forbade employers to discriminate against employees to compel them to join a union. Because it was feared that §8(3) and §7, if nothing were added to qualify them, might be held to outlaw union security arrangements, such as the closed shop, see 79 Cong. Rec. 7570 (Statement of Senator Wagner), 7674 (Statement of Senator Walsh): H. R. Rep. No. 792, p. 17; H. R. Rep. No. 1147, p. 19, the proviso to §8(3) was added expressly declaring: . . ." (emphasis supplied)

The Supreme Court in this case did not determine that absent the proviso, union security agreements are illegal. All it did was tract the legislative history of Sections 8(3) under the Wagner Act, and 8(a)(3) of the present law, and state the reason for adding the proviso to those sections by the Congress.

10(c) of PERA makes it unlawful for an employer "to discriminate in regard to hire, terms or other conditions of employment in order to encourage or discourage membership in a labor organization . . . . " Two conditions must be met in order to find a violation of this provision: (1) there must be discrimination on the part of the employer; and (2) the discrimination must either encourage or discourage membership in a labor organization.

In Radio Officers Union v. NLRB, 347 U.S. 17, 33 LRRM 2417 (1954), the Supreme Court dealt with three situations involving alleged violations of Section 8(a)(3):

> "The language of 8(a)(3) is not ambiguous. The unfair labor practice is for an employer to encourage or discourage membership by means of discrimination. Thus, this section does not outlaw all encouragement or discouragement of membership in labor organizations; only such as is accomplished by discrimination is prohibited. Nor does this section outlaw discrimination in employment as such; only such discrimination as encourages or discourages membership in a labor organization is proscribed." (emphasis added) (pp. 42-43)

In Local 357, Teamsters v. NLRB, 365 U. S. 667, 47 LRRM 2906 (1965), the Supreme Court in the majority opinion said:

". . . The truth is that the union is a service agency that probably encourages membership whenever it does its job well. But as we said in Radio Officers v. Labor Board, supra., the only encouragement or discouragement of union membership banned by the Act is that which is 'accomplished by discrimination.'" (pp. 675-676) (emphasis supplied)

In this case, Mr. Justice Clark, in his dissenting opinion, dissects and analyzes Section 8(a)(3) of NLRA. His analysis is most helpful in reaching a decision on the union security issue in this case. He said:

"Section 8(a)(3) provides, in part, that it shall be an unfair labor practice for an employer 'by discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization.' (emphasis added) "As I view this prohibition, which by Sec. 8(b)(2) is also applied to unions when causing or attempting to cause any employer to violate this section, two factors must be present before there is an unfair labor practice: (1) discrimination in the hiring or tenure of employees which is intended to, or inherently tends to, result in (2) encouragement or discouragement of membership in a union.

"The word 'discrimination' in the section, as the Board points out and I agree, includes not only distinctions contingent upon 'the present or absence of union membership,' ante, p. ____, but all differences in treatment regardless of their basis. This is the 'cause' portion of the section. But Sec. 8(a)(3) also includes an 'effect' clause which provides that the intended or inherent effect of the discrimination must be 'to encourage or discourage (union) membership.' The section has, therefore, a divided structure. Not all discriminations violate the section, but only those the effect of which is encouragement or discouragement of union membership. Cf. Radio Officers v. Labor Board 347 U.S. 17, at 43, 33 LRRM 2414: 'Nor does this section outlaw discrimination in employment as such; only such discrimination as encourages or discourages membership in a labor organization is proscribed.' Each being a requirement of the section, both must be present before an unfair labor practice exists. . . ." (pp. 688-689) (emphasis supplied)

He also said:

"Even if we could draw no support from prior cases, the plain and accepted meaning of the word 'discrimination' supports my interpretation. In common parlance, the word means to distinguish or differentiate. (emphasis added)

Without good reason, we should not limit the word to mean to distinguish in a particular manner (i.e., on the basis of union membership or activity) so that a finding that the hall dispatched employees without regard to union membership or activity bars a finding of violation. The mere fact that the section might be read in the manner suggested by the union does not license such a distortion of the clear intent of the Congress, i.e., to prohibit all auxiliaries to the closed shop, and all pressures on employee free choice, however subtly they are established or applied. Moreover, our interpretation in Radio Officers v. Labor Board, supra, supports this position. There we said: (see supra, p. 3)"1/ (p. 689)

Having given consideration to the twofold aspect of the nature of the unfair labor practice prohibited by Section 8(a)(3) of NLRA and likewise by 10(c) of PERA, as the language is nearly identical in both sections, it becomes necessary to consider if both conditions of the section are met in the various types of union security provisions. The ambit of such provisions, as shown by long experience in collective bargaining in the private sector, are closed shop, union shop, agency shop and maintenance of membership with some modifications of these four to be found occasionally.

The closed shop type of union security agreement provides that all members of the bargaining unit must be members of the representative of the employees, and all hiring must be made from the membership of the bargaining representative. Applying the definition of "discrimination," i.e., "to distinguish or differentiate" as defined by Justice Clark in the Teamsters case, I find no discrimination in treatment of employees in a closed shop union security arrangement. All employees are treated the same; they are all required to belong to the collective bargaining representative.

Likewise, there is no difference of treatment of employees under union shop union security provisions, because all employees are required to maintain their membership in the collective bargaining representative and all new hires are required to become members. Thus, all are treated the same -- without discrimination.

In the agency shop type of union security arrangement, employees are not required to become members of the collective bargaining representative, but, if they elect not to join, they are required to pay into the treasury of the collective bargaining representative the equivalent of initiation fees and dues as reimbursement for servicing the collective bargaining agreement. Moreover, the nonmember is entitled to the same services from the collective bargaining representative as the member. The choice is with the employee -- he may or may not become a member as he chooses. When he chooses not to become a member, he is required to pay his share of the cost of servicing the collective bargaining agreement the same as the member, and he receives the same services as the member. I find no discrimination and, therefore, no Section 10(c) proscription to this kind of union security.

Under some maintenance of membership union security provisions, employees are divided into two classes. Members of the bargaining representative are required to maintain their membership as a condition of employment. Those who are not members are not required to become members as a condition of employment, nor are they required to pay to the collective bargaining representative the equivalent of initiation fees and dues. Maintenance of membership of this kind involves a patent discrimination against bargaining representative members which inevitably discharges union membership. For that reason, I conclude that it comes within the interdiction of Section 10(c) and constitutes an unfair labor practice.

1/ Discrimination within the proscriptions of Section 8(a)(3) and 8(b)(3) of the National Labor Relations Act takes many forms: involuntary reduction of seniority, refusal to hire for an available job, and disparate wage treatment, Radio Officers Union v. NLRB, supra; derogating employment status of employee, NLRB v. Miranda Fuel Co., Inc. 326 F.2d 172, 54 LRRM 2715 (2nd Cir., 1963); assignment of work to union members only, Carpenters v. NLRB, 286 F.2d 533, 47 LRRM 2254 (D.C. Cir., 1960); union attempt to induce secondary employees not to handle primary employer's products, Sheet Metal Workers v. NLRB, 293 F.2d 141, 48 LRRM 2243 (D. C. Cir., 1961); union insistence on employer agreement requiring foremen to be union members, Typographical Union, Local 38 v. NLRB, 278 F.2d 6, 46 LRRM 2132 (1st Cir., 1960); requiring union membership as a condition of employment without allowing 30-day grace period, Fabricators Local 810, 128 NLRB 1002, 46 LRRM 1457 (1960); refusal to hire without work permit, District Council of Detroit v. NLRB, 285 F. 2d 289, 47 LRRM 2200 (D.C. Cir., 1960).

Other types of union security arrangements and modifications of those set forth above may or may not come within the prohibition of Section 10(c), depending upon the application of the two criteria set forth in the section to the facts and circumstances of those situations as they may arise.

In the Matter of. OAKLAND COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT and OAKLAND COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS, Respondents, and METROPOLITAN COUNCIL NO. 23, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF STATE, COUNTY & MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES, AFL-CIO, Charging Party.	Case No. C66 F-63

CONCURRING AND DISSENTING OPINION

I concur with Board Chairman Howlett and Board Member Walsh on the issues of joinder of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors: burden of proof with respect to Sergeant Fauser; and arbitration as the terminal step in the grievance procedure as a mandatory subject of bargaining.

My colleagues have found it unnecessary to determine the effect of grievance arbitration on the statutory powers of a sheriff who succeeds a sheriff who may have agreed to arbitration as the terminal point in a contract grievance procedure. In my opinion, the Board should affirmatively state its position on this issue. I do not believe that such an arbitration clause as would result from collective bargaining with an incumbent Sheriff can be binding on future or successor sheriffs, who would take office upon election, or the death of the incumbent sheriff.

It is a recognized fact that a public employer, such as a Sheriff may bind his successors to contracts regarding proprietary matters (see footnote 21, majority opinion), but this principle does not extend to governmental matters covered by statute.

Specifically, a new Sheriff, whether elected or takin over for a deceased Sheriff, may with statutory impunity discharge all appointees of the past Sheriff. Lamoreaux v. Attorney General, 89 Mich. 146, 50 N.W. 812 (1891).

Likewise, I would extend this limiting principle to all public employers whose governmental functions are carried out under specific statutes like the Sheriffs Act, (for example, the Probate Court, County Clerk, Register of Deeds and County Treasurer as found on page 11 of Majority Opinion).

I further dissent from Chairman Howlett's finding that an agency shop is a mandatory subject of bargaining, and from Board Member Walsh's finding that all forms of union security except maintenance of membership are mandatory subjects of bargaining.

My reasons for dissenting are numerous. I think Michigan law is contrary to the proposition that a General law, such as PERA, may overrule a specific statute, such as the Sheriffs Act.

> "Broadly speaking, a general law within the intent of constitutional provisions requiring uniform operation of general laws is a law which affects all the people of the state or all persons or things of a particular class. While a statute which is applicable to all of the people of the state and which operates in all parts of the state is most general in its character, it is not necessary that a law in order to be general shall affect all of the people of the state, or all of the state, it need not be universal in application, and it need not include or embrace all the subjects with which it deals, nor need it include all classes of individuals. It may be intended to operate over a limited territory, and, if every person or locality brought within the relations and circumstances provided for by the law is affected, the law may be general although presently operative but on a single individual or thing, place, or political subdivision, and its general character is not affected by the number of persons, things or localities which come within the scope of its operation, or on the number without the class." C.J.S. Vol. 82; Par. 762; pp 264, 270, 271.

Whereas a "Specific Law" is:

> "A statute which relates to persons or things as a class is a general law, while a statute which relates to particular persons or things of a class is special." 82 C.J.S.; Par. 163; p. 277

From these definitions, it should be apparent that PERA would be a General Law that applies to the class of public employment, and the Sheriffs Act, or other acts, is a specific act and covers a specific person in respect to one particular act.

Inherent in Michigan law is the idea that repeal by implication is not favored. Village of Highland Park v. McAlpine, 117 Mich. 666, 76 N.W. 159 (1898); Highway Commission v. Detroit City Controller, 331 Mich. 337, 49 N.W. 2d 318 (1951); People v. Harrison, 194 Mich. 363, 160 N.W. 623 (1916); Reynolds v. Miller, 274 Mich. 354, 264 N.W. 399 (1936).

General laws cannot repeal special statutes absent a repealing clause or terms clearly repugnant to the repealed act intended to revise the regulation.

In Regents of the University of Michigan v. Auditor General, 109 Mich. 134, 66 N.W. 956 (1896), a special statute requiring the state to pay 7% interest to the University was held not repealed by a general law establishing usury interest rates at 6%. The court held at page 137:

> "It is a general rule of construction that an act passed for a particular purpose, it is not abrogated by general legislation, sufficiently broad to include it, unless the intent to abrogate it is clear."

This case affirmed a similar principle as found in People v. Daniel Hanrahan, 75 Mich. 611, 42 N.W. 1124 (1889); and McKenna v. Edmundstone, 91 N.Y. 231 (1883).

Most recently, the Supreme Court of Michigan dealt with this same issue in Northville Coach Lines, Inc., v. City of Detroit, 379 Mich. 317, 150 N.W. 2d 772 (1967) where an issue was raised as to whether the General Home Rule Act was passed with an intent to repeal specific provisions of the Special Motor Carrier Act. The Court said:

> "We agree with plaintiff's contention in this regard and, also, with their statement that had it been the intent of the legislature by Act 3, PA. 1939, to repeal the provisions of the Motor Carrier Act, such intent would have been made manifest in clear and unmistakable language. A clear intention to repeal must be shown." (Emphasis Supplied).

Other recent cases indicate that repeal by implication is not favored especially where there is a situation of a general law overruling a special law.

There is a presumption of no repeal intended without specific language so stating. Saginaw City Council v. Saginaw Board of Estimates, 256 Mich. 624, 239 N.W. 872 (1932); Yarger v. City of Hastings, 375 Mich. 413, 134 N.W. 2d 726 (1965); Attorney General ex rel. Owen v. Joyce, 233 Mich. 619, 207 N.W. 863 (1926)

The present language of PERA, particularly with no proviso such as that found in LMA and NLRA, expresses no intent to overrule special statutes enacted to regulate the hiring and firing of public employees. Thus, I conclude that special statutes like the Sheriffs Act must remain intact from the proposed repeal found in the Majority Opinion.

Also, I believe that a discharge for refusal to tender dues or the equivalent under a union security clause is violative of the Sheriffs Act (M.S.A. Sec. 5.863), Veterans' Preference Act (M.S.A. Sec. 4.1221), Teachers' Tenure Act (M.S.A. Sec. 15.1971) and Civil Service systems on all governmental levels (Const. Art. VII, Sec. 22; Art. XI, Sec. 6).

I have dealt with the Sheriffs Act in detail, supra, and I now turn to the Veterans' Preference Act which provides preferential appointment to public service for honorably discharged servicemen and women. This statute does not apply to layoff (Swantush v. Detroit, 257 Mich. 389, 241 N.W. 265 (1932); does not regulate the terms of employment, but rather the status (Walking v. Smith, 276 Mich. 193, 267 N.W. 616 (1936)); and does not impinge on the constitutional right of municipal self-government (Smith v. Flint City Commissioners, 258 Mich. 698, 242 N.W. 814 (1932)).

These qualifications are to prevent veterans preference beyond the public need, but present a direct conflict with the closed shop union security proposed by Member Walsh. In such a case, the special statute regulating veterans should remain intact from assault by the general PERA.

Job security for the veteran is provided in M.S.A. Sec. 4.1222 which provides that no veteran holding public employment shall be removed, suspended or transferred without his consent except for misconduct after a hearing.

Annotations under this section include O'Donnell v. Liquor Control Commission, 288 Mich. 377, 284 N.W. 915 (1939), holding that a discharge for political reasons could not be sustained, and feeble attempts to reinstate the dischargee upon order of the reviewing Governor were not in good faith.

Also in layoff situations a person in military service, who had been in public service prior to the military, gets his military time added to his seniority in case he wants to return to the same position upon his discharge from the military.

It is obvious that a union security clause discharge would violate these specific Legislative pronouncements.

The Teacher's Tenure Act defines Teachers as certificated personnel and certificated is defined by the State Board of Education, not by a union, as a working condition.

Additionally, M.S.A. Sec. 15. 1991 provides that after a teacher serves his probationary period he will be continuously employed, and not discharged for failure to pay union dues as that is not just or reasonable cause within M.S.A. Sec. 15.2001. Contracts with terms inconsistent with tenure are generally not valid. (M.S.A. Sec. 15.2054; LaShells v. Henen, 98 Cal. App. 6, 276, p. 377 (1929)).

Also, M.S.A. Sec. 15.2065(1) provides for reemployment of honorably discharged veteran teachers without loss of seniority. Finally, M.S.A. Sec. 15.2001 says that discharge of a teacher may be made only for just cause after a full hearing.

All of these previous statutes are special statutes by definition, and consequently may not be superseded by PERA. It has to be assumed that the Legislature was aware of such prior enactments so, absent a specific expression of intent in PERA to supersede such, there can be no implied conditioning of these statutes by PERA.

The opinion of Chairman Howlett states that the special statutes must be reconciled with PERA to give meaning to both. He then proceeds to establish the validity of PERA and leaves any possible conflicts to the courts. To me, this position presupposes that there are certain conflicts and this jeopardizes the entire holding by attempting no careful consideration of them. Further, this position assumes that PERA and the Special Statutes are on an equal footing which is obviously invalid. This position is untrue because (1) PERA is a General Statute, whereas others are specific; (2) certain Civil Service setups are constitutional entities, not flowing from the Legislature as PERA; and (3) parties responsible for setting certain conditions of employment (e.g. State Board of Education defining "certificated," and as the final step in grievance and discharge machinery) are not subject to PERA's bargaining, and any attempt to limit that power is invalid.

I think that under our Constitutional form of government the Legislature is intended to be the guardian of public policy. It must be assumed that the Legislature was aware of these policy considerations when PERA was passed. However, it seems that my fellow Board Members have chosen to ignore the express intent of the Legislature, and public policy inconsistent with their positions -- to read into the law what they feel should be there. This is illegal as a usurpation of the Legislative function. See, for example, Green v. Graves, 1 Doug. 351 (1844); Twp. of Leoni v. Taylor, 20 Mich. 148 (1870); City of Big Rapids v. Big Rapids Furniture Mfg. Co., 210 Mich. 158, 177 N.W. 284 (1920); Central Mut. Ins. Co. of Chicago v. Kalamazoo Circuit Judge, 278 Mich. 221, 270 N.W. 275 (1936); Paselli v. Utley, 286 Mich. 638, 282 N.W. 849 (1938); Village of Kingsford v. Cudlip, 258 Mich. 144, 241 N.W. 793 (1932); Noey v. City of Saginaw, 271 Mich. 595, 261 N.W. 88 (1935); Roosevelt Oil Co. v. Secretary of State, 339 Mich. 679, 64 N.W. 2d 582 (1954); Melia v. Employment Security Comm., 346 Mich. 544, 78 N.W. 2d 273 (1956); Mack v. Reo Motors, Inc., 345 Mich. 268, 76 N.W. 2d 35 (1956).

There is a significant difference in public and private employment despite the wholesale adoption of private techniques in the public area.

The idea of "publicness" has been lost in the Majority Opinion. This idea is demonstrated by the fact that if public employees strike there can be no duplication of services as in the private sector. PERA was passed under the State police powers so the safety and welfare of the people must be maintained -- which does not allow for union security discharges where workers are in short supply or truly essential such as Policemen, Nurses, Firemen, etc. Government services are not operated with a profit motive but rather as economically and efficiently as possible -- which is frustrated when the supply of workers is not available because of a desire not to join a union; unions being an industrial phenomenon some people seek to escape by working for the Government.

In the school situation, compromising the special statutes with PERA in the manner followed by the majority might lead to the loss of school aid, tax exemptions, and criminal prosecution of school boards. School Boards are lay people chosen to represent the entire community.

And, since when did the Legislature, by enacting PERA, make union dues a prerequisite to working for the Government? It is a basic principle of public employment that the merit system was to cure the bad effects of the political "spoils" system -- which evils may be continued under another "spoils" system.

There is no protection of minority rights in PERA, as there are no union unfair practices, no secret ballots for union security, no provisos as to tender of dues, and no positive protection in a suit for fair representation. Under the fair representation decisions of the Michigan Courts there is no contract of membership (Hartley v. Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, 283 Mich. 201, 277 N.W. 885 (1938)), considerable union discretion in handling members (Zdero v. Briggs Manufacturing Co., 338 Mich. 549, 61 N.W. 2d 615 (1953)); Cortez v. Ford Motor Co., 349 Mich. 108, 84 N.W. 2d 523 40 LRRM 2474 (1957); Sheremet v. Chrysler Corp., 372 Mich. 626, 127 N.W. 2d 313 (1964), and the employee must exhaust all available union and employer grievance procedures (Kennedy v. UAW, 3 Mich. App. 629, 143 N.W. 2d 133 (1966); Ries v. Evening News Assn., 370 Mich. 614, 122 N.W. 2d 663 (1963). All of this is a condition to bringing a suit which is a costly and time-consuming protective device.

In the private sector, the U.S. Supreme Court has held that union security is no more violative of freedom of association than an integrated state bar. However, in certain situations under the Railway Labor Act, the same court ordered a rebate of dues used for politics to objecting members.

In a recent case, Keyishian v. Board of Regents of New York, 385 U.S. 589, 87 S.Ct. 675, 17 L.Ed. 2d 629 (1967), the court struck down a loyalty oath for a college professor as violative of his right to associate. The Court overruled Adler v. Board of Education, 342 U.S. 485, which had held that if a teacher did not like the conditions of employment concerning association he should look elsewhere. As Michigan makes the exaction of a similar "non-communist" oath a condition precedent to employment and state aid (M.S.A. Secs. 15.701-2), I see no practical difference between an oath to not participate in "Communist" groups and an oath to support a union, where both are exacted as a condition of employment. If a loyalty oath violates the Constitution, then a union oath would do the same.

Freedom of association and the merit system is violated by saying, "You must support a union to work here," just the same as saying, "You must be a Republican or Catholic to work here." To uphold such a term of employment would be to say that a person can only properly perform the work if he supports the union, which is inane.

I also believe that union security is violative of PERA Section 10(c) and the NLRA counterpart 8(a)(1).

On page 27 of House Report No. 245 on the Taft-Hartley Amendments, it was stated:

> "A committee amendment assures that when the law states that employees are to have the rights guaranteed in section 7, the Board will be prevented from compelling employees to exercise such rights against their will, . . . In other words, when Congress grants to employees the right to engage in specified activities, it also means to grant them the right to refrain from engaging therein if they do not wish to do so."

Preceding this is the policy statement in Norris-La Guardia indicating the right to refrain, and Senate Report 573 on the Wagner Act stating a right to refrain existed in 8(3) though not within the terms of Section 7.

What all this adds up to is that a right to refrain may be implied from the expressed right to organize.

In interpreting Sec. 8(a)(1), the courts have found that the interference and coercion forbidden is not restricted to union activity but applies to all concerned activity. NLRB v. Phoenix Life Ins. Co., 167 F.2d 983, 22 LRRM 2089 (7th Cir., 1948); cert. denied 335 U.S. 845, 22 LRRM 2590 (1948). Also the practice in hiring or not hiring union men may violate 8(a)(1) but not 8(a)(3), since the conduct may not discriminate or encourage but have the effect of restraining free choice. NLRB v. Corning Glass Works, 293 F.2d 784, 48 LRRM 2759 (1st Cir., 1961); NLRB v. Burnup & Sims, Inc., 379 U.S. 21, 57 LRRM 2385 (Sup. Ct., 1964).

Union security in public employment will be coercing the employees' rights to refrain with respect to union choice and all other matters relating to seniority, etc. By not including a provision similar to section 14 of LMA in PERA, the Legislature indicates a laissez faire attitude toward the individual's right to refrain -- if that provision violates any other provisions it would not be valid.

Other policy matters are like those found in Petrucci v. Hogan, 27 N.Y.S. 2d 718 (1941), where the courts would not allow a union security discharge on the municipal transit lines because it could not discover anything in Civil Service regulations relating to union membership as a condition of employment. Furthermore, in Michigan, municipalities may outlaw unionism of certain classes of public employees who owe an undivided loyalty to the Government. F.O.P. v. Harris, 306 Mich. 68, 10 N.W. 2d 310 (1943); Local 201, American Federation of State Employees v. City of Muskegon, 369 Mich. 384, 120 N.W. 2d 197; cert. denied, 375 U.S. 833 (1964).

PERA is not ambiguous. LMB v. Jackson County Road Commission, 365 Mich. 645, 114 N.W. 2d 183 (1962). The absence of a proviso similar to section 14 of LMA, has been noted in the "Report of Governor Romney's Advisory Committee on Public Employees Relations:

> "Public employers and unions should be expressly authorized to include in their collective bargaining agreements 'union security' provisions of any type authorized, in the case of private employers, by the National Labor Relations Act, including 'agency shop' provisions, subject to condition that membership in the union should be open to every employees in the bargaining unit on a non-discriminatory basis."

Absence of such a proviso would invalidate all union security because of the working of Sections 8(3), 8(1) and 7 of the Wagner Act as noted on page 6 of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor Report No. 1184:

> "This proviso is not a mandate, but is a permissive exception made necessary by other provisions of the law. If this proviso were not in the bill, a willing employer and willing employees could not of their own accord agree that thereafter a person seeking employment should be required as a condition of employment to join the employees' organization. The reason is that an employer is elsewhere in the bill forbidden to indulge in "discrimination in regard to hire . . . to encourage. . . membership in any labor organization or "to attempt, by interference or coercion, to impair the exercise by employees of the right to form or join labor organizations."

I note with interest the Majority's analysis of the problem as referred to in the NLRB v. General Motors Corp., 373 U.S. 734, 83 S. Ct. 1453, 10 L.Ed. 2d 670 (1963) case. That case viewed the Legislative History of the Wagner Act as grounds for fear that sections 8(3) and 7 taken together would outlaw union security. It was more than fear and it was more than 8(3) and 7.

Viewing the report as indicative of Congressional feeling there was more than fear -- the Legislature viewed outlawing of union security as a fact.

Similarly, I agree with Chairman Howlett that the absence of a proviso in PERA indicates a Legislative intent to not have union security. But I cannot be a party to the Chairman's hyper-technical reading of sec. 10(c) as allowing an agency shop.

I disagree with the Chairman's reading of the Sec. 10(c) term "membership" to allow agency shops. First of all, the Supreme Court has held that agency shops satisfy the "membership" term of 8(a)(3) of NLRA. NLRB v. General Motors, supra. And, secondly, although 14(b) of Taft-Hartley allows states to restrict union security it also used the term "membership", and the Supreme Court has not struck down right to work laws that also outlaw agency shops. Retail Clerks v. Shermerhorn, 373 U.S. 746, 83 S. Ct. 1461, 10 L.Ed. 2d 678 (1963).

Thus, I would not find any union security arrangements mandatory subjects of bargaining absent a Legislative Amendment. So I find Member Walsh's position equally untenable as viewing 10(c) "discrimination" as the key and neglecting further analysis.

It is my conclusion that the general -- special statute dichotomy, statutory construction, and sound public policy necessitate a finding that union security is not a mandatory subject of bargaining under PERA as presently enacted.

SUPREME COURT OF NEW JERSEY

A-24 September Term 1967

In the Matter of WILLIAM BLOCK, JOSEPH CASELLA, JAMES GILL, JAMES HIGHBERGER, ROBERT HUGHES, AGNES MORAVEK, KATHY McGREGOR, RAYMOND PETERSON, CHARLES RICHARDS, STEVE VAGRIN, WILLIAM WEINBRENNER, and WOODBRIDGE TOWNSHIP FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, LOCAL #822, AMERICAN FEDERATION OF TEACHERS, A.F.L.-C.I.O., an unincorporated association, charged with contempt of court.

Argued September 26, 1967 --
Decided December 18, 1967
On appeal from the Superior Court, Chancery Division, Middlesex County.
Mr. Abraham L. Friedman argued the cause for appellants (Mr. Samuel L. Rothbard, of counsel; Messrs. Rothbard, Harris and Oxfeld, attorneys).
Mr. Francis C. Foley argued the cause for respondent.
The opinion of the Court was delivered PER CURIAM.

Defendants were convicted in summary proceedings for contempt of court arising out of violations of a restraining order issued to end a strike by school teachers in Woodbridge, New Jersey. The Woodbridge Township Federation of Teachers, Local #822, American Federation of Teachers, A.F.L.-C.I.O., was fined $1,000; defendant Casella was fined $1,000 and sentenced to serve six months in jail, the last three months being suspended, subject to probation for two years; defendant Richards was fined $1,000 and sentenced to a term of three months, the last two months being suspended, subject to probation for one year; and the remaining individuals were each fined $500 and sentenced to a term of one month, which jail sentence was suspended, subject to probation for a year. We certified the appeals before argument in the Appellate Division.

In October 1966 the defendant Local #822, representing slightly more than half of the 821 teachers of Woodbridge, presented to the Board of Education a list of demands embodied in a document called Project Mews. By letter to the Board dated January 10 signed by its president, defendant Richards, the Local advised that its Executive Council had adopted the following resolution the day before and had directed its release to all teachers, members of the Board, and news media:

"Whereas, Unless the priority proposals of Project Mews and a revised salary guide of $6,000 to $12,000 be met by the Board of Education, therefore, Resolved, the Executive Council of the Woodbridge Township Federation of Teachers will recommend that immediate steps be taken to affect a work stoppage in the Woodbridge Township Schools."

On January 15, a meeting of about 400 teachers was held. Defendant Casella, a representative of the national union, who, according to the testimony, is called when help is needed, attended the meeting. Apparently no strike vote was taken, but the members voted to meet at 7:00 a.m. the next day to discuss what to do.

The record does not reveal what happened at that meeting on January 16, but some 400 teachers failed to report for work and picket lines were established. The strike being illegal, a restraining order was sought and obtained that day. At a meeting of the teachers that evening, the restraining order was read to the assemblage and copies were served on all defendants except Gill, who was served at 7:00 a.m. the next day. At that meeting Casella and Richards asked the Board to meet to discuss the demands, and when the Board president replied that the Board would meet if the teachers returned to the classrooms, Casella informed the Board and all present that the teachers "were operating from a position of strength" and "they would stay out, out on strike or what have you, until they had a specific agreement with the Board." Casella then announced a meeting would be held at 7:00 a.m. the next morning (January 17) and left, followed by a substantial number of the teachers.

The teachers met at 7:00 a.m. on the 17th with Richards presiding and Casella present. There was no further picketing, but 420 teachers did not report for duty. At about 1:50 p.m. on the 17th Richards wired the Board that "if you desire to reopen the Woodbridge schools, call our office 636-2799." The teachers met again at 7:00 a.m. on the 18th, and more than 400 teachers stayed away from the schools. Later that day the order to show cause issued in these contempt proceedings.

Defendants say the restraining order was too vague to support these charges. The order, though comprehensively phrased to avoid verbal nuances, was plain in its restraints, and surely so with respect to the conduct upon which the convictions rest. None of the defendants could have doubted that the restraining order enjoined that he or she did. We have sketched the role of Richards, including the telegram which stated in effect that the stoppage would continue, despite the restraining order, unless the Board communicated with him.

Casella was particularly vocal in his defiance of the restraining order. We noted above his categorical statement that the restraining order would be ignored, made to the assembled teachers on the evening of the 16th after the order was read and served. Earlier that day, upon being told by a member of the press that an injunction was being sought, Casella replied that "We don't know what injunctions are about. They are only an anti-labor tactic. They have never settled the teachers' dispute." Again, when told by a reporter that the court was considering the issuance of the contempt order to show cause, Casella told the reporter that "citations were a bunch of nonsense," that he did not believe anyone would be arrested but "the teachers were prepared to go to Devil's Island and spend the rest of their lives there." These statements were published as Casella obviously knew they would be. As to the other individual defendants, all of whom were either officers or members of the negotiating committee, the testimony showed that all of them stayed away from work on the 16th, the 17th and the 18th notwithstanding service of the restraining order prior to the scheduled time for reporting on the 17th, and none of them phoned in to say he or she would be absent or why.

Defendants say the evidence was insufficient to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. We think the recited evidence, none of which was contradicted, is ample, and we agree with the trial court's findings. We find also that the circumstances justify the sentences imposed.

Defendants urge a number of additional challenges, none of which requires extended treatment. It was not error to deny the demand for trail by jury. See In re Buehrer, decided this day. Here defendants contend additionally that N.J.S.A. 2A:15-56 calls for trial by jury. The statute relates to labor disputes as defined in N.J.S.A. 2A:15-58, and a controversy between government and its employees is beyond its scope. See The Delaware River and Bay Authority v. The International Organization, &c., 45 N. J. 138, 148-150 (1965).

Defendants, who did not move to vacate the restraining order or to obtain a stay of it, now seek to challenge it on constitutional themes. Passing the issue whether the order may thus be questioned in a contempt proceeding, see Walker v. Birmingham, ___ U.S. MMM, 18 L. ed. 2d 1210 (1967); In re Carton, 48 N.J. 9, 17 (1966), we find no substance in any of the several complaints. There is no issue of involuntary servitude under the Thirteenth Amendment; the individual teachers were free to quit but they could not strike in concert. Nor can defendants claim a right to strike under the State Constitution, Art. I, Para. 19, upon the thesis that they are in private employment because teaching can be pursued under private auspices. We rejected the relevancy here of the distinction between "governmental" and "proprietary" functions in Delaware River and Bay Authority, supra, 45 N. J. at 146. When government undertakes itself to meet a need, it necessarily decides the public interest requires the service, and its employees cannot reverse or frustrate that decision by a concerted refusal to meet that need. In any event, teachers are ill-situated to profit from the distinction we have rejected, since the maintenance of a free public school system is mandated by the State Constitution itself. Art. VIII, 4, Para 1. The assertion that a differentiation in this area between a teacher in the public service and a teacher in a private school offends the equal-protection and the due-process clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment seems to us to be plainly frivolous. Nor is the distinction between "office" and "position" or "employment," made in some context, relevant to the subject of strikes by public servants.

Finally defendants say the trial court should not have designated the attorney for the Board to serve as prosecutor. Our rules leave this subject to the discretion of the trial court. R. R. 4:87-4. In the abstract, it might be ideal to name one who is not counsel for a litigant, but realistically it may be sensible and necessary to call upon an attorney already familiar with the case to present it. See Whippany Paperboard Co., Inc. v. Local No. 301, &c., C.I.O., 11 N. J. 153, 166 (1952). Here the attorney did not represent a private client with a dollar interest, but rather a public body. There was no reason to suppose he could not be fair. In fact he was scrupulously so, and defendants say not a word to the contrary. Rather defendants point out that as the trial developed, it became necessary for the prosecutor to testify since he served some of the defendants with the restraining order. The need for that testimony was understandably overlooked when the assignment was made, and no doubt for the reason that no one anticipated defendants would question the fact of service. Defendants did not suggest before trial that the prosecutor might have to testify, nor at the trial did defendants dispute his testimony in the least. They merely insisted, as they could, that the prosecution prove all of the elements of its case. It seems needless to add that defendants do not show they were prejudiced.

The judgments are affirmed.

EXCERPTS FROM THE

NEW YORK STATE PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD'S

RULES OF PROCEDURE

From: Summary of the Rules

Representation Proceedings

When confronted with a request for recognition, an employer must initially resolve the two basic issues cited above: The appropriateness of the unit and of the employee organization, if any, chosen by the employees in such unit. If the employer, after deciding upon what it believes to be the appropriate unit for collective negotiations, determines that the employee organization involved represents the employees it claims to represent within that unit, it should grant recognition to that employee organization. If there is no dissent from this determination, there is no need for the State Board to become involved.

Many issues concerning representation will need to be resolved by the State Board because the parties involved often will be unable to agree upon a resolution of the dispute. A question concerning representation may be brought before the Board in the following ways:

- By a public employer who has received a request for recognition -- Within forty-five days after receiving a request for recognition, the public employer may file a petition for certification with the State Board.

- No response by the public employer to a request for recognition -- In the event that the public employer makes no response to a request for recognition, the party seeking recognition may, after forty-five days, file a petition for certification with the State Board.

  Refusal by the public employer to grant recognition -- Within thirty days thereafter, a petition for certification may be filed with the State Board by the party which is refused recognition by the public employer.

- The public employer grants recognition to one employee organization but a competing organization feels that it is the one that should be recognized -- A petition for certification or decertification may be filed by, or on behalf of, the competing employee organization which has reason to believe that there has been an error either in establishment of the negotiating unit or in granting recognition. This petition must be filed within thirty days after the employer has posted and published notice that it has granted recognition to an employee organization. Such posting and publication is required immediately after the granting of recognition. In reviewing such an act of recognition, the State Board will give weight to the units which the public employer has determined to be appropriate in the light of responsibilities of the employer to serve the public.

- Voluntary recognition granted between April 21, 1967 and October 31, 1967 -- With regard to any recognitions granted between these dates, a petition for certification or decertification may be filed with the State Board on or before November 30, 1967.

- Voluntary recognition granted before April 21, 1967 -- A petition for certification or decertification may be filed between 150 to 165 days prior to the next budget submission date of the employer.

- Upon the expiration of the period during which an employee organization is entitled to unchallenged representation status -- A petition for certification or decertification may be filed during the forty-five days preceding the expiration of this period.

Processing of Petitions By the State Board

Once a petition is filed with the State Board, it will be investigated by the Director of Representation and his staff.

1. Appropriate negotiating unit -- It is recognized that in many cases different parties may be able to argue with varying degrees of logic that different units are appropriate. The complexity of this issue was recognized by the Legislature which included in the Taylor Law a mandate for continuous study of the question. The Law does, however, set forth the following criteria for determination of an appropriate unit:

(a) Community of interest -- This is a most significant element that must be considered in determining the appropriate unit in a particular case. The following will be important in this regard: whether the employees sought to be grouped together are subject to common working rules, personnel practices, environment or salary and benefit structure. A helpful question to ask might be whether any real conflict of interest exists among the employees in the proposed unit.

(b) Power to reach agreement -- Briefly, this means that the public employer who would ordinarily deal with the proposed unit should have the power to act effectively concerning the terms and conditions of employment to be negotiated.

(c) Responsibilities to the public -- The proposed unit must be compatible with the joint responsibilities of the public employer and the employees to serve the public. This criterion means that a proposed negotiating unit might be inappropriate if its structure and composition were found to interfere with providing a service to the public. It takes into consideration the administrative convenience of the employer and perhaps suggests that an excessive number of units might be undesirable. On the other hand, too large a unit might be unwieldy for the negotiation of all possible issues.

To summarize, the following criteria, among others, will be considered in determining the appropriate negotiating unit in each particular case: (a) the manner in which wages and other terms of employment are determined; (b) the method of job and salary classification; (c) interdependence of jobs and interchange of employees; (d) the desires of employees (this is indicative of a felt community of interest); (e) past practices regarding organization and negotiations; (f) the manner in which the employer is organized to do his job; (g) occupational differences; and (h) the number of employee organizations with which the employer might have to negotiate.

2. Showing of interest -- At the outset of the proceeding, the Director of Representation will determine administratively whether the employee organization involved has the support of a sufficient number of employees to warrant further processing of the petition. In making this determination, the following showing of interest requirements will be applied:

(a) In cases where there has been no response by the public employer to the demand for recognition, or where the employer has expressly refused to grant recognition, a showing of interest of 30% of the employees in the unit alleged to be appropriate shall ordinarily be required.

(b) In cases where the petitioner is seeking to review a decision by a public employer to voluntarily recognize an employee organization, a showing of interest of 10% of the employees in the unit deemed appropriate by the employer or alleged to be appropriate by the petitioner shall ordinarily be required.

(c) Where an employee organization is seeking to intervene in a representation proceeding, a showing of interest of 10% of the employees in the unit already claimed to be appropriate or alleged to be appropriate by the employee organization seeking intervention shall ordinarily be required.

The State Board will decide, on a case-by-case basis, what type of showing of interest will be required. For example, dues deduction authorization cards, membership cards, signed petitions, or a combination of these may be acceptable.

3. Exclusivity -- If an employee organization is recognized or certified as exclusive negotiating agent, it must represent all employees within the negotiating unit whether or not such employees are members of the organization. It should be noted that employees cannot be required to join any employee organization.

The alternative to exclusivity is "members only" representation. The Taylor Law mandates that the Board conduct continuous studies into the issue of exclusivity and whether it is desirable in the field of public employment. Pending such studies, the Law allows parties to agree between themselves for exclusivity. However, exclusivity may only be granted to an employee organization that is found to represent a majority of the employees in the appropriate unit. If the parties agree to exclusivity prior to resolution of the question concerning representation and if the Board resolves the question concerning representation in favor of a majority employee organization, then that employee organization will be certified by the Board as the exclusive negotiating agent. If the parties do not agree to exclusivity at this stage and if the issue concerning representation is resolved in favor of a majority employee organization, then the parties may negotiate for exclusivity. The recognition of a minority employee organization for "members only" would ordinarily prevent the granting of exclusive rights to the majority organization during the period in which the status of the recognized minority organization would be protected under Section 208(c) of the Law. This Section assures to recognized employee organizations unchallenged representation status for a period of time that can be determined in accordance with a formula specified. Similarly, the granting of exclusive rights to the majority employee organization would ordinarily prevent the recognition of any of the minority employee organizations during the period of exclusivity. The granting of exclusive rights to the majority organization could be combined with recognition of a minority organization if the exclusive rights of the majority organization and the recognitions of the minority organizations were so restricted as to subject matter so that each has an independent sphere of interest.

4. Certification by the State Board without an election -- To determine whether an employee organization represents those employees it claims to represent, the statute authorizes reliance upon "dues deduction authorization and other evidences, or, if necessary, by conducting an election." Dues deduction authorization and other evidences means membership in an employee organization in addition to proof that such membership is for purposes of representation in collective negotiations.

If an employee organization can demonstrate by dues deduction authorization and other evidences that a sufficient proportion of the employees in an appropriate unit have designated it as the negotiating agent, it will be certified so long as a substantial proportion of the employees in the unit have not authorized a competing employee organization to represent them. In the following table, Column I specifies the minimum proportion of public employees in a negotiating unit which must support an employee organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences for the employee organization to be certified without an election; Column II specifies the proportion of public employees in a competing employee organization which must support the competing organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences to prevent certification without an election.

Column I (Percentage necessary to be certified without an election)	Column II (Percentage necessary to prevent certification without an election)
55	10
60	15
65	20
70	25

None of the foregoing is designed to discourage a public employer from recognizing an employee organization where it is convinced that the employee organization represents a majority of the employees in the appropriate unit.

5. Certification by the State Board after an election -- If an election is held, it will be by secret ballot. If an employee organization is deemed by the State Board to represent those employees it claims to represent, with or without an election having been held, that employee organization will be certified as negotiating agent.

Part 201 Determination of Representation Status Under Section 207 of the Act §201.1 Scope.

The following relates to all public employees except:

(a) Those employed by a government which has acted through its legislative body pursuant to Section 206.1 of the Act and established an impartial agency to administer procedures not inconsistent with Section 207 of the Act (see Part 202 of these Rules).

(b) Those employees employed by a government that has adopted procedures by local law, ordinance or resolution, pursuant to Section 212 of the Act, and with respect to which there is in effect a determination by the Board that such provisions and procedures are substantially equivalent to the provisions and procedures set forth in the Act and in pertinent Rules with respect to the State (see Part 203 of these Rules).

(c) Those covered by Chapter 54 of the Charter and the Administrative Code of the City of New York.

§201.2 Petitions; Filing.

A petition for investigation of a question concerning representation of public employees under the Act (hereinafter called a petition for certification), or a petition alleging that an employee organization which has been certified or is being currently recognized should be deprived of representative status (hereinafter called a petition for decertification), may be filed by one or more public employees or any employee organization acting in their behalf, or by a public employer.

Petitions under this section shall be in writing and signed. Four copies of the petition shall be filed with the Board. Petition forms will be supplied by the Board upon request. Prior to the submission of a case to the Board pursuant to Section 201.7 of these Rules, a petition may be withdrawn only with the consent of the Director of Representation. After the submission of a case to the Board, the petition may be withdrawn only with the consent of the Board. Whenever the Director of Representation or the Board, as the case may be, approves withdrawal of any petition, the case shall be closed.

§201.3 Time for Filing of Petitions.

(a) A petition for certification may be filed forty-five days after a public employer has been asked to recognize an employee organization, if no employee organization has been recognized or certified as majority representative of any of the employees within the unit alleged to be appropriate and if no election has been held under the auspices of the Board or an impartial agency during the twelve months preceding the filing of the petition; provided, however, that the Board may, in its discretion, permit the filing of a petition within twelve months following an election in which no employee organization was certified, providing, however, that the petition may be filed by the public employer within such forty-five days.

Such a petition shall ordinarily be supported by a showing of interest of at least 30% of the employees within the unit alleged to be appropriate.

(b) A petition for certification or decertification may be filed within thirty days after publication of notice that an employee organization has been recognized. Such a petition shall ordinarily be supported by a showing of interest of at least 10% of the employees in the unit deemed appropriate by the employer or alleged to be appropriate by the petition.

Publication is hereby required in all cases of recognition and shall entail the following:

(1) Specification by the public employer of the name of the employee organization which has been recognized, the unit involved for which it has been recognized, and the date of recognition.

(2) Posting of a written notice in a conspicuous place at suitable offices of the public employer for not less than five working days. This shall be accomplished by the public employer within fifteen days after recognition.

(3) Inclusion in a public advertisement in a newspaper of general circulation in the area of the public employer for not less than one day. This shall be accomplished by the public employer within fifteen days after recognition.

(4) Notification of any employee organizations that have, in a written communication within the year preceding the request for recognition, claimed to represent any of the employees in the unit. This shall be accomplished in writing by the public employer within seven days after recognition.

(c) A petition for certification or decertification may be filed within forty-five days before the expiration under Section 208(c) of the Act of the period of unchallenged representation status accorded a recognized or certified employee organization. Such a petition shall ordinarily be supported by a showing of interest of at least 30% of the employees in the unit already in existence or alleged to be appropriate by the petitioner.

(d) A petition for certification or decertification with respect to employees who are represented by an employee organization that was recognized or that entered into a contract with a public employer prior to September 1, 1967, may be filed during a period between one hundred twenty to one hundred sixty-five days prior to a budget submission date of the public employer, provided, however, that a petition for certification or decertification may be filed between November 1, 1967 and November 30, 1967 with respect to public employees who are then represented by an employee organization if such employee organization was first recognized between April 21, 1967 and November 1, 1967. Such a petition shall ordinarily be supported by a showing of interest of at least 30% of the employees in the unit already in existence or alleged to be appropriate by the petitioner.

(e) A petition for certification or decertification which seeks to review a determination of representation status of public employees made under provisions and procedures established by a local government pursuant to Section 212 of the Act may be filed together with a petition for review under Section 203.8 of these Rules, provided, however, that such a petition will not be processed unless the Board determines that the continuing implementation of the provisions and procedures of the local government has not been substantially equivalent to the provisions and procedures set forth in the Act and these Rules. Such a petition shall ordinarily be supported by a showing of interest of at least 10% of the employees in the unit deemed appropriate by the local government or an impartial agency or alleged to be appropriate by the petitioner.

§201.4 Contents of Petition for Certification; Contents of Petition for Decertification.

(a) A petition for certification shall contain the following:

(1) The name, affiliation, if any, and address of petitioner.

(2) The name and address of the public employer involved.

(3) A description of the negotiating unit which petitioner claims to be appropriate.

(4) A statement of whether petitioner seeks exclusive rights of representation within the negotiating unit or units alleged to be appropriate.

(5) The names and addresses of any other employee organizations which claim to represent any public employees within the allegedly appropriate unit. If there is any contract covering public employees in such unit, petitioner shall specify the duration, the parties, and the unit involved in the contract or attach a copy of the contract.

(6) The number of employees in the allegedly appropriate unit.

(7) Whether the requisite showing of interest requirement, as set forth in Section 201.3 of these Rules, is met.

(8) If an employee organization, the date upon which it asked the public employer for recognition.

(9) A statement that the matter is not subject to Section 206.1 or Section 212 of the Act (except a petition filed under §201.3(e)).

(10) An affirmation that petitioner and the employee organization, if any, with which he is affiliated does not assert the right to strike against any government, to assist or participate in any such strike, or to impose an obligation to conduct, assist, or participate in such a strike.

(11) A clear and concise statement of any other relevant facts.

(b) Petitions for decertification shall contain the following:

(1) The name, affiliation, if any, and address of petitioner.

(2) The name or names of the employee organization(s) which have been certified or are currently being recognized by the public employer and which claim to represent the employees in the unit involved, and the expiration date of any contract covering such employees.

(3) Whether such representation is exclusive.

(4) The name and address of the public employer involved.

(5) Whether the employee organization(s) which have been certified or are currently recognized by the public employer have engaged in a strike or have caused, instigated, encouraged, or condoned a strike against any government.

(6) The grounds upon which decertification or annulment of recognition is sought.

(7) A description of the unit, including the number of employees.

(8) Whether the requisite showing of interest requirement, as set forth in Section 201.3 of these Rules, is met.

(9) A statement that the matter is not subject to Section 206.1 or Section 212 of the Act (except a petition filed under §201.3(e)).

(10) A clear and concise statement of any other relevant facts.

§201.5 Notice of Pending Petitions.

Upon the filing of a petition under this part, notice thereof, including the date when such petition was filed, the name and address of the petitioner, the name and address of the public employer involved, and the unit claimed to be appropriate shall be posted by an agent of the Board on a public docket to be maintained by the Board at its principal office.

§201.6 Investigations and Elections.

(a) Ascertainment of desires of parties.

(1) Investigation. Subsequent to the filing of a petition, the Director of Representation shall direct an investigation of all questions concerning representation, including, if applicable, whether the showing of interest requirement, as set forth in Section 201.3 of these Rules, has been met, whether more than one employee organization seeks to represent some or all of the employees in the allegedly appropriate unit, whether there is agreement among the parties as to the appropriateness of the alleged unit, and whether the parties wish the negotiating representative to have exclusive rights of representation. The determination as to the sufficiency of showing of interest is a ministerial act.

(2) Hearing. The Director of Representation may direct a hearing, in which event he or his agent shall prepare and cause to be served upon the parties a notice of hearing before a hearing officer at a time and place fixed therein. A copy of the petition shall be served with the notice of hearing.

(b) Conduct of Hearings.

(1) Hearings shall be open to the public unless otherwise ordered by the hearing officer. At any time, a hearing officer may be substituted for the hearing officer previously assigned. It shall be the duty of the hearing officer to inquire fully into all matters at issue and to obtain a full and complete record.

(2) The hearing officer may, at his discretion, continue the hearing from day to day or adjourn it to a later date or another place, by announcement thereof at the hearing or by other appropriate notice.

(c) Motions.

(1) All motions made during a hearing shall be made part of the record of the proceedings.

(2) Motions before or after a hearing. All motions other than those made during a hearing shall be made in writing to the Director of Representation, shall briefly state the relief sought, and shall be accompanied by affidavits setting forth the grounds upon which they are based. The moving party shall serve a copy of all motion papers on all other parties and shall, within three working days thereafter, file with the Director of Representation the original and three copies thereof with proof of service. Answering affidavits, if any, must be served on all parties and the original thereof, together with three copies and proof of service, shall be filed with the Director of Representation within five working days after service of the moving papers, unless the Director of Representation directs otherwise. The Director of Representation may rule upon motions filed with him or he may refer motions to the hearing officer. He may decide to hear oral argument or testimony thereon, in which case he shall notify the parties of such fact and of the time and place of such argument or for the taking of such testimony. All such motions and rulings and orders thereon shall be part of the record of the proceedings.

(3) Review. Unless expressly authorized by the Board, rulings by the Director of Representation or by a hearing officer shall not be appealed directly to the Board, but shall be considered by the Board whenever the case is submitted to it for decision.

(d) Waiver. An objection not duly urged before the hearing officer or the Director of Representation shall be deemed waived unless the failure to urge such objection shall be excused by the Board because of extraordinary circumstances.

(e) Introduction of Evidence; the Rights of Parties at Hearings.

(1) Any party shall have the right to appear at any hearing in person, by counsel, or by other representative, and any party and the hearing officer shall have the power to call and examine witnesses, and to introduce into the record documentary and other evidence. Witnesses shall be examined orally under oath. Compliance with the technical rules of evidence shall not be required. Stipulations of fact may be introduced in evidence with respect to any issue.

(2) The refusal of a witness at any hearing to answer any question which has been ruled to be proper shall, at the discretion of the hearing officer, be grounds for striking all testimony previously given by such witness on related matters.

(3) Misconduct at any hearing before a hearing officer, the Director of Representation, or the Board shall be grounds for summary exclusion from the hearing. Such misconduct, if of an aggravating character and engaged in by an attorney or other representative of a party, shall be grounds for suspension or disbarment from further practice before the Board or its agent after due notice and hearing.

(f) Report. The hearing officer shall submit an analysis of the record, including his conclusions and recommendations to the Director of Representation.

(g) Determination of Representatives on Consent. Subject to the approval of the Director of Representation, the parties to a representation proceeding may agree on a method by which the Director of Representation may determine the question of representation.

(h) Action by Director of Representation. After receipt of the report and recommendations of the investigator or the hearing officer, or upon consent of the parties, the Director of Representation may direct an election, recommend dismissal of the petition, or otherwise dispose of the matter. The direction of an election may be appealed to the Board within seven days thereafter.

(1) Certification without an election.

As used herein, "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences" means membership in an employee organization in addition to proofs that such membership is for purposes of representation in collective negotiations.

If an employee organization can demonstrate by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences that a sufficient proportion of the employees in an appropriate unit have designated it as the negotiating agent, it will be certified so long as a substantial proportion of the employees in the unit have not authorized a competing employee organization to represent them by executing dues deduction authorizations and other evidences. In the following, Column I specifies the minimum proportion of public employees in a negotiating unit which must support an employee organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences in order for the employee organization to be certified without an election; Column II specifies the proportion of public employees in a competing employee organization which must support the competing organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences in order to prevent certification without an election.

The determination of the proportion of employees in a negotiating unit who support an employee organization by dues deductions and other evidences is a ministerial act.

(2) Direction of an election.

If the Director of Representation determines that an election or elections shall be held, he shall provide that such election or elections be conducted by an agent of the Board at such time and place and upon such terms and conditions as the Board, the Director of Representation, or the agent may specify.

(i) Election Procedure.

(1) Unless otherwise directed by the Board, all elections shall be conducted under the supervision of the Director of Representation. All elections shall be by secret ballot. An employee organization other than the petitioner shall be entitled to be placed on the ballot upon a showing of interest of at least 10% of the employees in the unit found to be appropriate. Whenever two or more employee organizations are included as choices in an election, any participant may, upon prompt request to and approval thereof by the Director of Representation, have its name removed from the ballot; provided, however, that with respect to a petition for decertification, the employee organization certified or currently recognized may not have its name removed from the ballot without giving due notice in writing to all parties and the Director of Representation disclaiming any representation interest among the public employees in the unit. Any party may be represented by observers of his own selection, subject to such limitations as the Director of Representation may prescribe. Any party or the Board's agent may challenge, for good cause, the eligibility of any person to participate in the election. The ballots of such challenged persons shall be impounded. Upon the conclusion of the election, the Director of Representation shall cause to be furnished to the parties a tally of ballots. Within five working days after the tally of ballots has been furnished, any party may file with the Director of Representation four copies of objections to the conduct of the election or conduct affecting the results of the election. Such filing must be timely whether or not challenged ballots, if any, are sufficient in number to affect the results of the election. Such objections shall contain a short statement of the reasons therefor. Copies of such objections shall immediately be served upon each of the other parties by the party filing them and a statement of service shall be filed with the Director of Representation.

(2) An answer may be filed within five working days from service of the objections. One copy of the answer shall be served on each party and the original, with proof of due service and two copies, shall be filed with the Director of Representation. The answer, if submitted, shall contain a concise statement of facts in refutation of the objections.

(3) If objections are filed to the conduct of the election or conduct affecting the result of the election, or if challenged ballots are sufficient in number to affect the result of the election, the Director of Representation shall investigate such objections or challenges, or both, and shall prepare a report and recommendations.

(j) Run-off Election.

(1) The Director of Representation shall conduct a run-off election without further order of the Board when an election in which the ballot provides for not less than three choices (i.e., at least two employee organizations and "neither") results in no choice receiving a majority of the valid ballots cast and no objections are filed pursuant to Section 201.6(h). Only one run-off shall be held pursuant to this section.

(2) The ballot in the run-off election shall provide for a selection among the two or more choices receiving the largest number of votes, the sum of whose votes aggregate at least one more than half of the total votes cast. Upon the conclusion of the run-off election, the provisions of Section 201.6(i) shall govern insofar as applicable.

§201.7 Submission to Board.

(a) Upon completion of proceedings before the Director of Representation, he shall submit the record of the case to the Board. The record shall include the petition, notice of hearing, motions, rulings, orders, stenographic report of the hearing stipulations, exceptions, documentary evidence, any briefs or other documents submitted by the parties, objections to the conduct of an election or conduct affecting the results of an election, and the reports and recommendations of the investigator, hearing officer and the Director of Representation.

(b) Upon receipt of the case, the Board shall proceed either forthwith upon the record or, if it so determines, after oral argument, the submission of briefs, or further hearings, to decide the issues and make such disposition of the matter as it deems appropriate. The Board may designate an employee organization as the exclusive representative of public employees within a negotiating unit if the employee organization has demonstrated that it represents a majority of the employees within the negotiating unit and there has been prior agreement between the public employer and the employee organization or organizations representing a substantial majority of the public employees in the unit that the majority representative should be afforded exclusive rights of representation.

Case No. C-0037

Decision and Certification of Negotiating Representative

On November 30, 1967, the Amityville Federation of Teachers (hereinafter referred to as the petitioner) filed, in accordance with the Rules of Procedure (hereinafter referred to as the Rules) of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board (hereinafter referred to as the Board) a petition for decertification of the Amityville Teachers Association (hereinafter referred to as the intervenor) as the exclusive negotiating agent for the classroom teachers, auxiliary personnel, guidance counsellors, nurse teachers, reading teachers, psychologists, department chairmen, librarians, speech therapists, dental hygienists, and A-V director, employed by the Union Free School District No. 6, Town of Babylon, Suffolk County, and Town of Oyster Bay, Nassau County (hereinafter referred to as the employer).1/ The petition alleges that petitioner requested recognition as negotiating representative on November 8, 1967 and that the employer recognized the intervenor as the negotiating representative on October 16, 1967. These allegations are uncontested, and the petition is clearly timely.2/

On December 11, 1967, an informal conference was held in this matter. Present at the conference was a Trial Examiner of the Board and representatives of all parties. At this conference, the parties entered into a consent agreement which provides, interalia, that the appropriate unit shall consist of 245 employees within the following job classifications: classroom teachers, home school visitor, department chairmen, directors, guidance counsellors, librarians, nurses, and the psychologist.

The consent agreement further provides that an election will be held unless the employee organizations who are parties thereto submit to the Director of Representation (hereinafter called the Director) of the Board within seven days from the execution date of the agreement, "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences" sufficient to satisfy the requirements of Section 201.6(h) (1) of the Rules for certification without an election. The significance and meaning of this Section was carefully explained to all parties by the Trial Examiner prior to their entering into the consent agreement.

On December 13, 1967, the petitioner submitted to the Board 83 "authorization and designation" cards. These cards contain the following information: the name of the employee, the date of signing, the school involved, the position of the employee, the school district, and the home address and telephone number of the employee. The following statement is also included above the signature of the employee: "I hereby designate and authorize the American Federation of Teachers as my exclusive agent and representative for the purpose of collective negotiations with respect to the terms and conditions of employment, the negotiation of collective agreements, and the administration of grievances arising thereunder."

On December 18, 1967, the Director approved the aforesaid consent agreement.

By letter dated December 20, 1967, the intervenor, pursuant to the consent agreement, submitted to the Director 155 "cards" containing the following information: the name of the individual employee and his position, the school involved, the date of execution, and the following statement: "This is to certify that as a paid member of the Amityville Teachers Association, I hereby designate and authorize the ATA as my exclusive representative for collective negotiations under the New York Public Employees' Fair Employment Act."

The Rules elaborately detail the circumstances under which an employee organization may be certified without an election. If an employee organization can demonstrate by "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences" that a sufficient portion of the employees in the appropriate unit have designated it as the negotiating agent, it will be certified as long as a substantial proportion of the employees in the unit have not authorized a competing employee organization to represent them by executing dues deduction authorizations and other evidences.3/ The Rules specifically define "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences" as membership in an employee organization in addition to proof that such membership is for purposes of representation in collective negotiations.4/ Further, the Rules specify (a) the minimum proportion of employees in the negotiating unit which must support an employee organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences for that organization to be certified without an election, and (b) the minimum proportion of employees in the negotiating unit which must support a competing organization by dues deduction authorizations and other evidences to prevent certification without an election.5/ The following illustration, taken from Section 201.6(h) (1) of the Rules is pertinent:

3/ Rules, §201.6(h) (1).
4/ Ibid.
5/ Ibid.

In the instant case, while petitioner's submission of cards is sufficient to constitute a showing of interest, and did indeed satisfy the applicable 10% showing of interest requirement,6/ it is clear from the above that they do not satisfy the requirements for certification without an election nor do they block the certification of the intervenor without an election, since evidence of membership is lacking.

On the other hand, the cards submitted by the intervenor satisfy the requirements for certification without an election in that they specify the two necessary ingredients: (1) membership, and (2) proof that such membership is for purposes of representation in collective negotiations.7/ Since these cards were executed by 55% of the employees in the unit agreed to in the consent agreement (this percentage has been computed without taking into consideration the twenty employees who signed cards on behalf of both competing employee organizations), and since the petitioner has not submitted any "dues deduction authorizations and other evidences", the Board finds that the Amityville Teachers Association is entitled to be certified as the exclusive8/ negotiating agent for the employees in the unit specified in the consent agreement.

6/ Rules, §201.3(b).
7/ These ingredients might conveniently be referred to as "membership plus".
8/ The consent agreement provides that "if an employee organization is certified, it shall be certified as an 'exclusive' negotiating agent".

STATE OF OREGON

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Salem

September 7, 1967

Honorable Richard L. Kennedy
State Representative
761 East 20th
Eugene, Oregon

No. 6345

You have written this office stating that as a result of defeats of many school budgets in the state, questions have arisen concerning the responsibility of the district school board to the elected consultation committee representing the certificated personnel of the district. In this connection, you ask the following questions:

"In the event the district school board and the consultation committee had previously agreed on a salary schedule, is it necessary for the school board to meet again with the committee before adopting formal changes in the salary schedule providing the reason for the change is the defeat of the proposed school budget?

"In the event a district is preparing a second budget to submit to the voters, is it necessary for the board to 'confer, consult and discuss' the matter of salaries and other related economic matters with the consultation committee?

"During the preparation of the second budget, is it possible for either side to declare persistent disagreement and request consultants? It is necessary for the school board to actually appoint consultants and hear the report of said individuals?"

The answers to these questions involve consideration of the extent to which the procedures provided by ORS 342.450 to 342.470 are applicable after defeat of a tax measure submitted to the voters in support of the initial budget adopted by the school board. In opinion No. 6222, dated January 10, 1967 and opinion No. 6231, dated February 3, 1967, this office had occasion to review the consultation procedures provided by these statutes and it was held in opinion No. 6222 that the school board's obligation to observe such procedures terminated upon the budget document being received by the budget committee. In arriving at this conclusion, we said in that opinion:

"There is nothing in ORS 342.470 which specifies the length of time during which a school board is obligated to 'confer, consult and discuss' salary matters, nor is there any designation of the time within which consultants are to be appointed. Lacking specified time limits in the statute itself, our interpretation must be based upon the purposes to be accomplished by the procedures provided for therein. After board determination of the salary item in accordance with the necessities of its budget timetable, we assume that there is no further obligation on its part to meet with the committee. The decision has been made and no purpose would be served by requiring further discussion of the matter. However, until the budget document is prepared and delivered to the budget committee, the board has authority to alter the items therein. Conceivably, a recommendation of consultants could cause modification of the board's decision on salaries during this time. Accordingly, it is our opinion that request for consultants could be made at any time prior to delivery of the budget document to the budget committee."

It was also noted in that opinion that the school board had a duty to prepare the budget document in a timely manner and that ORS 342.460 specifically provides that the obligation to "confer, consult and discuss" does not affect the powers and duties of the school board over the matter of teachers' salaries. We further observed, in opinion No. 6231, that although the legislative design was to obligate the parties to conferences, consultations and discussions on salary or related economic matters, with the objective that agreements might be reached upon such matters through these procedures, there was no absolute requirement that an agreement between the parties be consummated.

We affirm these observations made in our prior opinions and add only that where, as here, an agreement has been reached on a salary schedule through the consultation procedures good faith would seem to require that the school board attempt to secure budget committee approval of the salary schedule and, if this is possible, to provide for the agreed schedule in the initial budget. It further appears that if, in order to balance such a budget, a tax levy in excess of the six percent limitation is necessary, the board shall attempt to secure voter approval of a levy sufficient to meet the salary schedule as agreed upon.

Thereafter, if the voters have defeated a measure to authorize a tax sufficient to balance the budget, it is our opinion that it then becomes the school board's primary responsibility to either prepare a budget which can be balanced by a levy within the district's tax base or to resubmit a tax measure to the voters. In most cases, the budget timetable will require that these steps be taken without delay, particularly if another tax measure is to be submitted to the voters. If, in the board's best judgment, proposed expenditures in the budget must be reduced in order to make a levy within the tax base or to secure voter approval of a supplemental tax measure, then it is the board's prerogative as well as its duty to make such reductions. In making reductions, consideration should be given to all factors affecting the best interests of the school district, including teacher salary schedules, but the ultimate decision concerning the amount and nature of reductions must rest in the sound discretion of the board.

Because of the necessities of meeting the budget timetable and in view of our prior holdings, we are of the opinion that voter defeat of the initial tax measure does not unqualifiedly entitle the committee to renew the consultation procedures provided by ORS 342.450 to 342.470. Matters which have been or should have been the subject of original consultation procedures and which are not affected by proposed board action should not now be the subject of such procedures. Nevertheless, where an agreement has previously been reached, a board proposal to reduce the agreed salary schedule necessarily is a decision that reduction of budgetary items must be made and that such reductions must include reduction of the agreed item for teachers' salaries. Such a decision involves new matter and a consideration of factors not present when the original agreement was made. Voter rejection of the tax measure is not necessarily a direction by the electorate to reduce the agreed salary schedule. The committee has a vital interest in deliberations which lead to a determination that such a reduction is necessary. We therefore conclude that in this situation the committee is entitled to "confer, consult and discuss" with the board the proposed salary reduction and to ask for appointment of consultants in the event of persistent disagreement. This conclusion, we believe, is in furtherance of the legislative purpose and is in harmony with the liberal construction generally accorded social legislation of this type. See 3 Horack, Sutherland, Statutory Construction, p. 395, 7201 et seq.

We repeat that we do not view the right to reopen consultation procedures as unqualified and we confine this opinion to the situation you have described. The "other related economic matters" you mention may or may not be the proper subject of further consultation procedures, depending on whether they are directly affected by proposed board action and whether they were previously the subject of such consultation procedures or should have been and were not. All such procedures are subject to the necessities of the budget and timetable and the committee should act in a timely manner at all stages of the proceedings. The board, in turn, should promptly advise the committee of any proposal to reduce the agreed salary schedule and expeditiously provide a time for conferences, consultations or discussions. Obviously, the time available for such conferences, consultations or discussions is limited, and the services of appointive consultants, if any, would need to be performed before the time set for finalization of the new budget if such services are to be effective.

Within the limitations noted above, we answer your questions in the affirmative.

CERTIFICATED EMPLOYEE-EMPLOYER RELATIONS

INGLEWOOD UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT, INGLEWOOD, CALIF.

and

INGLEWOOD TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA)

4200. Basic Policy. In compliance with Sections 13080-13088 inclusive of the California Education Code, the Inglewood Unified School District recognizes the right of certificated employees to form, join, and participate in activities of employee organizations of their own choosing; provided however, that individuals may refuse to join such organizations, and may represent themselves in relations with the district. The Board of Education shall afford recognized certificated employee organizations the opportunity to meet and confer with the Board of Education or its regularly delegated representative on matters relating to employment conditions and employee-employer relations, and in addition, upon request, to meet and confer on matters relating to the definition of educational objectives, the determination of the content of courses and curricula, the selection of textbooks, and other aspects of the instructional program to the extent such matters are within the discretion of the Board of Education under the law.

POLICY RULES AND REGULATIONS

A. Recognition of Certificated Employee Organizations.

1. Definition of Certificated Employee Organization. Certificated Employee Organization means any organization composed of certificated employees of the Inglewood Unified School District which has as one of its primary purposes representing such employees in their relations with said school district.

2. Procedures for Recognition. The following procedure is hereby established for the recognition of certificated employee organizations:

a. On or before October 15 of each school year, each organization representing certificated employees of the Inglewood Unified School District shall file with the Superintendent of Schools a statement including the following:

(1) The name and mailing address of the organization.

(2) The names, organization titles, and addresses of the officers of the organization.

(3) The number of employees who are members in good standing.

(4) Designation of the names of all officers and/or committee chairmen entitled to represent the organization and its members in negotiations with the Superintendent of Schools and the Board of Education.

(5) Copies of the articles of incorporation, or constitution, the bylaws, and any other written rules and regulations governing the organization. Changes in constitution, bylaws, or other data shall be filed promptly with the Superintendent of Schools when such changes occur.

b. Signed verification of all above information shall be made by the president or secretary of the organization. Information required in paragraph (3) above shall be sworn to under penalty of perjury by the president or secretary of the organization.

c. The Board of Education shall acknowledge the proper registration of certificated employee organizations as set forth in this policy, and shall issue a notice of recognition of such organizations on or before the second regular meeting of the Board of Education immediately following the date on which the organizations file their statement with the Superintendent of Schools.

B. Procedures Governing Employee-Employer Relationships.

1. Operational Procedures.

a. The Superintendent of Schools is hereby designated as an official representative of the Board of Education in all matters of concern to certificated employee organizations.

b. All correspondence and inquiries from certificated employee organizations shall be directed to the Board of Education through the Superintendent of Schools.

c. The Superintendent of Schools shall send official replies to all written requests and/or reports made by recognized certificated employee organizations.

d. Any individual employee or group of employees wishing to make a presentation to the Board of Education shall file a written request with the Superintendent of Schools, in accordance with Board of Education Policy No. 1300 in advance of a regular or announced meeting of the Board of Education, in order that the request may be placed on the Agenda.

2. Organizational Communications.

a. Reasonable use of school facilities for communication to or between members of recognized certificated employee organizations is permitted. Such communications must not interfere with or interrupt the instructional program or work of the employee. Such communications shall not involve the use of students as helpers or as messengers.

b. All official meetings of certificated employee organizations held on school premises shall go through the regular procedure for the use of school premises under the Civic Center Act.

3. Cooperative Development of Policy.

a. All discussions shall be conducted in an atmosphere of mutual respect and courtesy that is characteristic of Board, Superintendent and Staff relationships in the Inglewood Unified School District.

b. The Superintendent of Schools shall share with members of recognized certificated employee organizations any non-confidential information that may be helpful in negotiations or review of changes being considered. Specifically, these shall include:

(1) Accurate data regarding the district's employment practices, financial status, anticipated income, and probable obligations. Whenever possible, this should include both immediate and projected estimates of the above.

(2) Budget schedules and worksheets, and tentative budgets for the ensuing year.

(3) Copies of amendments, deletions, or additions to administrative and/or Board Policies affecting employee-employer relationships. Copies of such proposed variations of existing policies shall be supplied to the recognized certificated employee organizations no less than fifteen days prior to the Board meeting at which such proposals are to be considered.

(4) Any other non-confidential information pertaining to employee-employer relationships as may be requested by the president or principal officer of the recognized certificated employee organization, as an official request of that organization.

4. Procedure for Impasse.

a. In the event of disagreement and/or stalemate over final actions to be taken by the Board of Education on matters specified in Section 13085 of the Education Code, the Board of Education or the recognized certificated employee organization may request that an Educational Review Board be established to conduct a study of the factors producing the impasse or problem.

b. The Educational Review Board shall consist of five members. The Board of Education and the recognized certificated employee organization shall each select two members who are conversant with the problems of public education. These members shall in turn, within ten days, select a fifth member to serve as chairman of the Educational Review Board.

c. Recommendations of the Educational Review Board will be made to the Board of Education and to the recognized certificated employee organization. The final decision on the matters under consideration shall rest with the Board of Education.

C. Establishment of Negotiating Council.

1. In the event that more than one certificated employee organization requests and receives recognition, there shall be established a Negotiating Council, the purpose of which is to arrive at mutual agreement or understanding with the Board of Education on matters of concern relating to basic policy. The term of the Negotiating Council shall be from November 1 to October 31 each year.

2. On or before September 25 of each school year, each certificated employee organization requesting the right to name a representative or representatives to the Negotiating Council shall file with the Superintendent of Schools a request for representation on the Negotiating Council.

3. On or before October 15 of each school year, each certificated employee organization which has filed a request for representation on or before September 25 shall gain recognition by complying with the procedure for recognition as outlined in Section A-2, above, of this policy.

4. If a certificated employee organization fails to file such request for representation, or the verification of membership, by the required dates, it shall not be entitled to membership on the Negotiating Council for the current school year.

5. Representation.

a. For the purpose of representation, a certificated employee shall be counted only once. In the case of multiple memberships in recognized certificated employee organizations, a certificated employee shall be represented fractionally by each organization in proportion to the number of recognized certificated employee organizations to which he belongs, and in no case shall the sum of the several fractions exceed one.

b. The Negotiating Council shall consist of seven members. The number of representatives which each recognized certificated employee organization may appoint to the Negotiating Council shall be such number as bears, as nearly as practicable, the same ratio to the total number of members of the Negotiating Council as the number of members of that employee organization bears to the total number of certificated employees having membership in recognized certificated employee organizations.

6. On or before October 20 the Superintendent shall prepare a Negotiating Council formation report which shall list the following information:

a. The number of certificated employees who are verified to be members in good standing. The Board of Education or any recognized certificated employee organization may request an independent audit for the verification of membership as of October 20.

(1) If any organization shall deny to the auditor access to its records, such organization shall immediately forfeit its right to representation on the Negotiating Council.

(2) The audit shall be completed no later than December 1. Any changes in representation necessitated by the results of the audit shall be reported to the organizations by December 5. Organizations shall make the necessary changes in their number of representatives effective at the next meeting of the Negotiating Council called subsequent to December 5.

b. The number of members of the Negotiating Council, if any, to which each recognized certificated employee organization that filed a request for representation is entitled.

c. The date of the regular Board meeting prior to October 31 on which the report will be submitted to the Board of Education for approval.

7. The Superintendent shall distribute the Negotiating Council formation report to all recognized certificated employee organizations which have filed a timely request for representation.

8. The final formation report, as approved by the Board of Education shall fix for one year the number of representatives on the Negotiating Council to which each recognized certificated employee organization is entitled.

9. Copies of the final formation report, as approved by the Board of Education, shall be posted in a public place, and sent to all certificated employee organizations having members in the employ of the Inglewood Unified School District.

10. On or before October 31, each employee organization entitled to representation on the Negotiating Council shall select its representatives to said council and submit their names to the Superintendent of Schools.

11. The Superintendent of Schools, upon receipt of all names for membership on the Negotiating Council, shall notify all certificated employee organizations represented on the Negotiating Council of the names of the Negotiating Council members, and that the Council is required to hold its first meeting prior to November tenth.

12. The Negotiating Council shall meet on or before November tenth to elect a chairman. The chairman shall notify the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools that the Negotiating Council is legally constituted to meet and confer with the Board of Education or its duly authorized representative.

13. The Board of Education, or its duly authorized representative, shall, upon request of the chairman of the Negotiating Council, meet and confer with the Negotiating Council with regard to matters specified in Sections 13083-13085 of the Education Code.

14. Procedure for Impasse.

a. In the event of disagreement and/or stalemate over final action to be taken by the Board of Education on matters specified in Section 13085 of the Education Code, the Board of Education or the Negotiating Council may request that an Educational Review Board be established to conduct a study of the factors producing the impasse or problem.

b. The Educational Review Board shall consist of five members. The Board of Education and the Negotiating Council shall each select two members who are conversant with the problems of public education. These members shall in turn, within ten days, select a fifth member to serve as chairman of the Educational Review Board.

c. Recommendations of the Educational Review Board will be made to the Board of Education and to the Negotiating Council. The final decision on the matters under consideration shall rest with the Board of Education.

POLICY RELATING TO WORKING RELATIONS

BETWEEN THE BOARD OF EDUCATION AND CERTIFIED PERSONNEL

LINN-BENTON UNION HIGH SCHOOL DIST. #8

ALBANY, OREGON

The Board of Directors of School District U-8J resolves to comply with O.R.S. 342.450 to 342.470 and to establish procedures under which certified personnel other than superintendent may confer, consult, and discuss with the Board of Directors on questions pertaining to salaries and other economic policies affecting professional services.

The Board of Directors will confer, consult, and discuss salaries and related economic policies affecting professional services with a committee of certified personnel elected to represent other such personnel within the district in accordance with procedures established under this policy statement.

Article I. Name of Committee.

Section 1. This body shall be known as the Conference Committee.

Article II. Purpose.

Section 1. The purpose of this committee shall be to establish procedures under which certified personnel other than the superintendent may confer, consult, and discuss, in good faith, with the Board of Directors of School District U-8J on questions pertaining to salaries and other economic policies affecting professional services.

Article III. Membership.

Section 1. Membership on this committee shall be limited to the certified personnel of School District U-8J below the rank of superintendent.

Section 2. This committee shall consist of five teachers and one administrator. One of these teachers will be from each Junior High and two from the senior high school. One administrator will be elected at large.

Article IV. Term of Office.

Section 1. Members of this committee shall serve for a period of three years from the time of the election.

Section 2. At the initial election candidates will be ranked by number or votes received with the two highest candidates serving three year terms, the next two candidates serving two year terms, and the next one candidate serving a one year term.

Section 3. Subsequent to the initial year, the elected member(s) shall serve a three year term of office.

Section 4. Committee members may be re-elected, however, no member shall serve more than six consecutive years.

Article V. Vacancies.

Section 1. Should vacancies occur, they shall be filled for the unexpired term by the person receiving the next highest number of votes at the last election.

Section 2. Should the nominee list be depleted a special election directed by the district clerk shall be held to fill the unexpired term.

Article VI. Nominations.

Section 1. Nominations shall be by petition.

Section 2. The petition may be obtained from the principal's office in the respective buildings.

Section 3. A petition for each candidate must contain the signatures of at least fifteen certified employees of School District U-8J.

Section 4. The prospective candidate shall file the nomination petition with the building principal at least two weeks prior to the election.

Section 5. The building principals shall file the petition(s) with the district clerk's office wherein the candidate's names(s) shall appear on the ballot.

Section 6. The petition form shall be provided by the U-8J District Clerk.

Article VII. Elections.

Section 1. Elections shall be completed by 5:00 p.m. on the first Tuesday in October.

Section 2. The printing, circulating, canvassing of ballots, and the election shall be conducted under the supervision of the School Board of District U-8J.

Section 3. All committee members shall receive a majority of the votes cast to be elected.

Section 4. All certified personnel in School District U-8J are eligible to vote on all candidates.

Section 5. In the event no candidate secures a majority of the votes cast, a run-off election within 10 days shall be held between the two candidates receiving the largest number of votes.

Section 6. The election results shall be certified by the School Board of District U-8J.

Section 7. Campaigning shall not interfere with a teacher's professional responsibility.

Section 8. All voting shall be by secret ballot.

Article VIII. Recall.

Section 1. A recall election of a committee member(s) shall be held within 20 days if a petition is filed with the district clerk bearing the signatures equal in number to 30 percent of the certified staff below the rank of superintendent.

Section 2. Election for recall shall be conducted in the same manner as a regular election.

Section 3. A Conference Committee member shall be recalled by a two-thirds majority of those voting.

Section 4. Vacancies shall be filled in the manner specified in Article V.

Article IX. Responsibilities.

Section 1. The Conference Committee shall represent the certified personnel in District U-8J below the rank of superintendent.

Section 2. The committee shall have the responsibility of conferring, consulting, and discussing in good faith with the district school board on such matters as salaries and related economic policies affecting professional services; however, nothing in this Article is intended to deny any individual access to the School Board for any reason. All school staff members shall have the right to address the School Board on matters that are of personal interest to themselves.

Section 3. The committee shall keep accurate records of the proceedings and make available upon request such proceedings to the certified personnel.

Article X. Resolving Differences.

Section 1. In the event of a persistent disagreement between the School Board and the certified school employees, either party may request the appointment of the consultant board. The consultant board shall consist of one member appointed by the board, one member appointed by the employees and one member chosen by the other two members. Such request shall be in writing and delivered to the chairman of the other party.

Section 2. In the ensuing 5 days the School Board and the certified school personnel shall each appoint its representatives to the Consultation Board.

Section 3. A third representative shall be appointed by the two representatives so selected with 5 days of their appointment.

Article XI. Consultation Board.

Section 1. The Consultation Board shall have 30 days in which to reach a recommendation concerning the dispute.

Section 2. The Consultation Board shall be fact-finding and shall make recommendations to the school board and district certified personnel for reasonable settlement of the disagreement.

Section 3. The necessary expenses of the Consultation Board shall be borne by District U-8J. The form "necessary expense" shall include daily compensation for each consultant not to exceed $25 plus 8 cents ($.08) per mile for required travel.

Article XII. Board Responsibility.

Section 1. Nothing in this resolution is intended to deny or abrogate any of the powers or responsibilities of the School Board that have been assigned to it by any Oregon Law or regulation of the State Board of Education.

PROFESSIONAL COMMUNICATION AGREEMENT

between

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE FORT WORTH INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT

FORT WORTH, TEXAS

and

THE FORT WORTH CLASSROOM TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA)

INTRODUCTION

The Fort Worth Classroom Teachers Association (hereinafter referred to as Association) enjoys an unusually fine rapport with the Superintendent of Schools of the Fort Worth Independent School District (hereinafter referred to as Superintendent) and the Board of Education of the Fort Worth Independent School District (hereinafter referred to as Board). The Association, the Superintendent, and the Board are all interested in promoting the well-being of pupils and teachers and the professional growth of the latter.

Recognizing this good fortune, the Association hopes to insure the continuance of this excellent relationship through this written agreement. The Association feels that a Superintendent and a Board who are willing to adopt such an agreement are granting teachers the status of a profession in fact as well as in name.

The purpose of this agreement is to give teachers a voice in the development of educational policies which affect them and to improve the channels of communication among the Association, the Superintendent, and the Board.

In return, the Association pledges that it will exercise reasonableness and restraint in its requests and will follow professional channels and methods in seeking agreement.

The Association is fully aware of, and readily accepts, the responsibilities embodied in this agreement. The Association intends to work hand-in-hand with the Superintendent and the Board for the betterment of the Fort Worth Public Schools.

The Board, the Superintendent, and the Association agree that the education and the well-being of the children of the Fort Worth Public Schools are paramount in the operation of the schools and will be promoted by all three parties.

The parties do hereby agree as follows:

I. RECOGNITION

The Board will grant exclusive negotiation rights to the Association as long as the Association can substantiate that it represents a majority of the professional teaching staff of the Fort Worth Independent School District. Such substantiation will be in the form of a letter of verification from a local certified public accountant.

The Association will not discriminate in its membership requirements on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, or teaching level or subject.

II. PRINCIPLES

A. Attaining Objectives

Attaining objectives of the educational program requires mutual understanding and cooperation among the Board, the Superintendent and his staff, and the professional teaching personnel. Free and open exchange of views is desirable and necessary, with all parties participating in deliberations leading to the solution of problems of mutual concern.

B. Professional Teaching Personnel

Teaching is a profession requiring specialized qualifications; and the success of the educational program depends to a large extent upon the maximum use of the abilities of teachers satisfied with their conditions of employment.

C. Representation

The Board or the Superintendent (as the Board's chief administrative officer) or their designated representatives may meet and confer with members of the Association and attempt to reach agreement on any proposal or policy affecting the educational program.

Individuals and minority organizations may present their views and recommendations to the Board at regularly scheduled meetings of the Board.

III. PROCEDURES

A. Negotiation Committees

Representatives of the Association may confer with representatives of any other organization prior to initiating negotiation. The purpose of these conferences will be to seek areas of common concern.

B. Directing Requests

Requests for meetings from the Association normally will be made directly to the Superintendent. Requests from the Board or the Superintendent will be made to the president of the Association. A mutually convenient meeting date shall be set within a reasonable period of time.

C. Meetings

Meetings composed of members of the Association Negotiation Committee and the Board or the Superintendent shall be called upon the written request of any one of the parties. Requests for meetings shall contain the reasons for the request, and will be made in writing at least ten days prior to the suggested date of such meeting. Teacher members of the Committee shall be released from school duties to attend meetings. Meetings shall be scheduled to interfere the least with school schedules.

D. Study Committees

The parties may appoint "ad hoc" study committees to research, study, and develop projects, programs, and reports, and to make recommendations on matters under consideration. The committees shall report findings to the parties.

E. Assistance

The parties may call upon competent professional and lay representatives to consider matters under discussion and to make suggestions. Each party shall provide its own necessary clerical assistance.

F. Progress Reports

With the approval of the parties, periodic progress reports may be issued.

G. Exchange of Information

Free and open exchange of information and continuing close communication between the parties are essential in the development of intelligent, accurate, and constructive programs on behalf of students, teachers, and the educational program.

The Board and Superintendent agree to furnish the Association, upon reasonable request, pertinent information such as preliminary budgetary proposals, requirements, allocations, and other information to assist the Association in making recommendations for the development of sound educational programs.

The Association agrees to furnish the Board and Superintendent, upon reasonable request, research information and data, gathered by the Association, that will assist the Board and Superintendent in the development of sound educational programs.

IV. AGREEMENT

When agreement on a proposal or policy is reached, it shall be reduced to writing and, when approved by the Association and the Board, shall be signified by the signing of all parties, and become a part of the official minutes of the Board. Every attempt should be made by both parties to expedite approval. The agreement shall constitute a modification of the Articles of this agreement, and when necessary, provisions in the agreement shall be reflected in individual contracts of school personnel. The agreement shall not discriminate against any member of the staff regardless of membership or nonmembership in the Association.

V. MEDIATION AND APPEAL

A. Board of Education

If agreement is not reached, and members of the Board have not participated directly in the deliberations, the Association representatives and the Superintendent or his representatives may present separate reports to the Board. The procedure outlined in Section III will then be followed to reach agreement with the Board.

B. Advisory Panel

In case of a disagreement about the meaning or application of this agreement, or if an impasse is reached during negotiations, the matter will be submitted to a local Advisory Panel within thirty days after the request of either party to the other. The Board will name one adviser, and the Association will name another. A third member, who shall be the chairman, shall be named by the first two named members.

The Advisory Panel shall have authority to confer separately or jointly with the Board, the Superintendent, and the Association, and to use any other source of information.

The Advisory Panel shall report recommendations for settlement within a reasonable period of time. The recommendations shall be submitted to both parties.

The Association recognizes that under Texas law, the Board shall have and exercise the exclusive control of the public schools within the Fort Worth Independent School District. This agreement in no way attempts to alter or diminish such statutory authority. The final decision will be made by the Board.

VI. COSTS

Costs and expenses incurred by any party will be borne by that party. In the event an Advisory Panel is used, the Association will bear the expenses of its appointee, the Board will bear the expenses of its appointee, and both parties will share equally the cost of the third member. Any additional expenses incurred during mediation and appeal will be shared equally by both parties.

VII. ARTICLES

Agreements reached as hereinabove provided will be attached as Articles.

VIII. DURATION

The provisions of each Article attached hereto shall be effective as of the date affixed to each Article, and shall continue in full force until revised. Either party desiring changes in this agreement shall notify the other party in writing at least thirty days prior to April 1 of any year. Changes may be made at any time by mutual consent.

VANCOUVER SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 37

VANCOUVER, WASHINGTON

and

VANCOUVER EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Board of Directors of Vancouver School District No. 37 concurs:

1) that teaching is a profession requiring maximum utilization of the knowledge and opinions of professionally qualified personnel in the context of challenge under which their services are regularly rendered, and

2) that the attainment of educational objectives of the school district requires a free and open exchange of views between the district's board of directors and its staff of certificated employees in matters relating to, but not limited to: curriculum, textbook selection, in-service training, student teaching programs, hiring and assignment practices, leaves of absence, salaries and salary schedules and noninstructional duties, and

3) that the welfare of the pupils of the school district may be substantially enhanced by the establishment of effective channels and procedures of communication between the district's board of directors and representatives of its staff of certificated employees.

The board of directors does, therefore, adopt this statement of policy under authorization granted by Chapter 143, Laws of 1965, Revised Code of Washington, as follows:

I. RECOGNITION

A. The board of directors recognizes the Vancouver Education Association, hereinafter referred to as the association, as the duly-elected body, representative of all of the K-12 certificated personnel employed, or to be employed, by the board.

B. The association recognizes the board as the elected representative of the people of Vancouver and as the employer of the certificated personnel of the Vancouver School District.

The association recognizes that the board must by law establish all school policies for the district.

C. The purpose of this recognition is the mutual agreement that the parties will negotiate with regard to all matters of future policy adoption or revision and will use professional and educational channels for appeal in the event of impasse.

D. This policy shall not be interpreted to deny the right of a certificated employee to appear before the board on his own behalf on matters relating to his employment relations with the board. In the event such employment relations shall affect other certificated staff members, the association shall have the right to express its considered professional judgment before the board prior to the board's final determination of policy.

II. PROCEDURES

A. POLICY DEVELOPMENT

Notice of any impending or projected policy development or revision must be directed by the superintendent to the association president at least 15 days prior to formal board consideration.

Policy decisions are defined as legislative acts of the board wherein general guidelines are established for use by the board of directors, members of the administrative and/or teaching staff in future specific situations or actions.

Upon timely receipt of notice from the superintendent of intent to enact or revise policy, the association president shall, at least five days before the scheduled meeting of the board, notify the superintendent of the organization's desire to make representations regarding the policy decision.

Failure to give such timely and written notice of intent to make representations shall constitute lack of interest in the matter.

B. DIRECTING REQUESTS

Requests for meetings from the association normally will be made directly to the district superintendent or his representative. Requests from the district superintendent or the board or their representatives will be made to the president of the association. A mutually convenient meeting date shall be set within 15 days of the date of the request.

C. REPRESENTATION

A local organization shown by an election to have been designated to represent a majority of the certificated employees of the school district shall subsequently appoint a maximum of three representatives who shall present themselves at the next regular meeting of the board of directors as the professional negotiations team which shall communicate to the board of directors the views of the certificated employees of the district.

The designated professional negotiations team may, in cases involving specialized or technical matters, select other members of their organization to represent them in their stead.

The board of directors may designate a committee of its members to represent the school directors in professional negotiations discussions.

D. MEETINGS

The district superintendent shall meet when deemed necessary by either party with the association representatives to confer on matters of mutual concern. Policy matters not satisfactorily resolved at these meetings, or matters requiring board action, shall be the subject of negotiation between a committee of the board, including the district superintendent, and association representatives.

Meetings composed of the professional negotiations team, the board, or a committee of the board, and the district superintendent, shall be called upon the written request of any one of the parties. Requests for meetings shall contain the reasons for the request. Teacher members of the negotiations team shall be released from school duties to attend meetings. Meetings shall be scheduled to interfere the least with school schedules.

Official summary minutes shall be kept and clerical assistance provided.

E. ASSISTANCE

The parties may call upon competent professional and lay representatives to consider matters under discussion and to make suggestions. Educational consultants may be used in the deliberations. The presence of consultants should be made known to both parties in advance of any meeting for inclusion on an agenda.

Necessary clerical assistance shall be provided.

F. EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION

Recognizing that the ebb and flow of information is essential to decision making, teaching, and learning, it is necessary that there be a mutual exchange of information relating to topics under discussion which will assist in developing intelligent, accurate, and constructive programs on behalf of the teachers, the students, and the educational program.

III. MEDIATION AND APPEAL

A. ADVISORY BOARD

In case of disagreement about the meaning or application of this policy, or if an impasse is reached during negotiations, the matter will be submitted to an advisory board within 30 days after the request of either party to the other. The board will name one adviser, and the association will name another. A third member, who shall be the chairman, shall be named by the first two named members.

The advisory board shall report recommendations for settlement within 15 days. The recommendations shall be submitted to both parties.

B. THE STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

If the advisory board fails to make a recommendation acceptable to the parties, either party may request the assistance and advice of a committee composed of educators and school directors appointed by the state superintendent of public instruction. This committee shall make a written report with recommendations to both parties within 15 days of receipt of the request for assistance.

Any recommendations of the committee shall be advisory only and not binding upon the board of directors or the employee organization.

VI. COSTS

Costs and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of any individual or advisory board shall be borne by the agency requesting assistance from the state superintendent's office.

VII. MODIFICATION

Either party desiring changes in this policy shall notify the other party in writing at least 30 days prior to April 1 of any year.

Changes may be made at any other time by mutual consent.

VIII. MINORITY VIEWS

A. Any individual or minority organization of certificated employees desiring to represent separate views, recommendations or problems, shall do so first by following procedures adopted by the board of directors for the lodging of complaints and inquiries through proper administrative channels of communication.

B. Failing to receive satisfaction through proper channels of communication, the individual or minority organization may request of the chief administrative officer of the board an opportunity for an audience with the board making that request in writing at least ten days before the scheduled meeting. Such written request shall contain a statement of the reasons for requesting the audience, outlining the problems to be discussed and specifying the points to be made.

C. The chief administrative officer of the board will respond in writing, not less than three days before the scheduled board meeting, inviting participation by the individual or spokesmen members of the minority organization and specifying the date, time and place of the meeting and the amount of time allocated on the agenda for the audience requested. Any audience so scheduled will be limited to matters specified in the request.

Description and Analysis

BARGAIN OVER SCHOOL CALENDAR; ACTIVITIES OF EMPLOYEE REPRESENTING UNIT PROTECTED

In a mid-1967 decision involving charges brought against the Reese (Michigan) Public School District by the Reese Teachers Education Association (NEA), the Michigan Labor Mediation Board found the system "was engaging in certain unfair practices, and ... that it be ordered to cease and desist therefrom." The charges related to a refusal to bargain over certain aspects of the school calendar, and the addition of letters to a teacher's personnel file as a result of the teacher's activities representing the members of the bargaining unit.

The MLMB ordered the letters removed from the teacher's file because the letters constituted interference with the rights of employees under the meaning of the Public Employment Relations Act.

The Board also indicated that the Reese School Board was obliged to bargain with respect to certain aspects of the school calendar, such as length of vacations, time of beginning and end of vacations, and holidays. The bargaining would, of course, have to stay within statutory calendar requirements.

Text of the decision begins on page C-1.

UTILIZE LABOR RELATIONS BOARD FIRST, RHODE ISLAND SUPREME COURT DIRECTS

When in May 1967 the Warren (Rhode Island) School Committee would not execute a negotiated contract for 1967-68 with the Warren Education Association (NEA), the Association attempted to compel the School Committee to execute the agreement by instituting court action. The matter was taken to the Rhode Island Supreme Court which recently rendered a decision on the case.

The Court indicated the association was in error in seeking court action to compel the school committee to execute the contract; the Rhode Island Labor Relations Board has the power to compel the school committee to execute a contract. The labor relations board is provided with authority to obtain speedy judicial action on enforcement, when necessary. The court added:

We are of the opinion that the association has in the teachers arbitration act a very adequate and effective course of relief in this case. The legislature has created therein a remedy for their grievances which significantly enhances their power to bargain with school committees. By petitioning the labor relations board, whose expertise in this sensitive area is unquestioned, the association may well find such assistance so efficacious in solving their negotiation problems that the necessity of any judicial intervention will be averted. If its efforts are unsuccessful in bringing about proper relief, seasonable judicial aid can be swiftly brought to bear on a recalcitrant party through the preferred status which is given to suits filed at the behest of the state labor relations board.

SPECIFIC ARTICLE RELATES TO PRINCIPALS IN DERBY, CONNECTICUT, AGREEMENT

The Derby Education Association, as the recognized organization for negotiation, represents all regular certificated personnel other than the superintendent.

In its agreement with the Board of Education of the Derby (Connecticut) School District, the Derby Education Association (NEA) has included an article relating specifically to principals:

ARTICLE XV

PRINCIPALS

A. Clerical help - Clerical help will be given to every school including the high school. Bradley School, New Irving, Franklin, Lincoln School, and the Reading Consultant will each receive a part time clerk. The high school will receive a full time clerk.

B. Duty free lunch period - The principals will receive a free period during the noon hour for lunch not to exceed thirty (30) minutes, and the principal should be able to use his own discretion in leaving the building at this time.

C. Building control - Each principal should be empowered to administer and supervise his building in the multitude of minor details that arise in the everyday operation of the plant and staff commensurate with his assigned authority and responsibility.

1. Minor repairs that must be made immediately when the superintendent or maintenance man is not available.

2. Supervision of staff (professional and non-professional).

3. Should be a part of decision making concerning staff and building plans.

D. Assist in the selection of certified personnel - Recommend that principals and supervisors take an active part in recruitment and selection of certified personnel with the aim of having the best possible qualified teachers come to Derby to teach.

1. A committee would be responsible for making recommendations to the superintendent regarding selection of personnel.

2. Whenever feasible committee members and superintendent should visit prospective teacher and observe and interview.

3. The principal who has a person assigned to school should have knowledge and consideration of the appointment.

E. Administrative Council to assist in better communication on all levels - it is recommended that a council be set up as a means of maintaining effective communication throughout the school system. This council might also serve as a sounding board for proposals or complaints before they are taken before the Board of Education at a public meeting. The council should be made up of representatives as follows:

1. The superintendent of schools
2. Two Board of Education members (one from each party)
3. One principal
4. One teacher representative from each building
5. One traveling teacher
6. One non-certified personnel (secretary, nurse, etc.)
7. One custodian

F. Educational Conferences - We recommend that the Board of Education encourage out attendance at certain special conferences and meetings both in and out of the state of Connecticut.

1. The Board is requested to establish a fund in the budget to indicate their willingness and encouragement.

2. The superintendent is to be notified in advance (as soon as possible) of personnel's intention to attend these meetings.

3. Establish an equitable arrangement for all to participate.

G. It is requested that a luncheon meeting be held once a month to discuss problems or new ideas with the superintendent, the chairman of the Board of Education, the principals, supervisors, and other educators.

H. Promotions - Consideration should be given to principals already in the system when vacancies occur in positions for which they are qualified.

MORE DETAILED ANALYSIS OF 1967-68 NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS MADE POSSIBLE THROUGH USE OF OPTICAL SCANNING TECHNIQUES

The agreements obtained in the 1966-67 national survey of teacher/school board negotiation agreements were each analyzed for a possible 180 content items; results of the analysis were made available as Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition ($15, Stock #841-24006). The scope of the analysis of the 1967-68 agreements has been broadened substantially to 394 items, the bulk of the increase being in the three areas of group insurance, salary schedules, and leaves of absence. Each of the three areas will be analyzed to provide more specific and useable data; a change in the mode of reporting the information will increase its utility.

The increase in the number of items analyzed has been made possible through the adoption of optical scanning techniques. The coupling of the optical scanning techniques to the use of the NEA Research Division's computer should provide a more useable 1967-68 edition of Negotiation Agreement Provisions. Digest subscribers will be notified when the new edition is being readied for printing; a tentative publication date has not yet been established.

Data and Statistics

TEACHER PLANNING PERIODS SPECIFIED IN NEGOTIATION AGREEMENTS

Teachers have recently shown considerable concern over the availability of time to plan and prepare their lessons as part of the regular school activities. One way of studying the details and extent of such planning or preparation periods is to study the negotiation agreements which have such provisions.

The February 1968 issue of Negotiation Research Digest indicated that 213 of the 398 comprehensive agreements for 1966-67 had such duty-free planning time provisions. Each of these 213 agreements was studied in preparing this analysis; 181 contained specific statements relating to duty-free planning time. The planning time allotments in each of the 181 agreements follow in the accompanying table.

As would be expected, the wording of the agreements varied widely. Thus, the table lists only those systems whose agreements specified amounts of unassigned time which could be used for planning or preparation. Wherever possible, terminology was carried into the table from the agreement in order not to require the making of value judgments.

Agreements in which amounts of time were listed as "relief time," but not specified for planning or preparation, were not included in the table.

"Periods of special area instruction" is used in the table to denote the availability of time blocks to the elementary-school teacher for planning when that teacher's class is being instructed by a special teacher in such subjects as art, music, and physical education. Again, however, the availability of such planning time for the regular classroom teacher had to be specified.

Agreements which listed target dates for implementation of planning periods, goals, or similar indefinite wording, will not be found listed in the table.

Care should be taken not to make quick comparisons of planning times specified, either on an inter- or intra-school system basis, without considering the number of teaching periods, the maximum number of preparations, and the length of the periods. Each of these factors may have an effect upon the number and length of planning periods.

Inclusion or omission of planning time for junior high-school teachers should be considered in the light of different organizational patterns, philosophies, and policies; e.g., a school system which considers its junior high-school teachers to be the equivalent of high-school teachers for organizational purposes, may not make a separate specification for the junior high-school teachers in the agreement.

The table lists only those systems which negotiated a specific duty-free planning time provisions into its agreement. Most other school systems also have planning time allotments for at least their high-school teachers, but they either do not have a comprehensive negotiation agreement or did not negotiate on the subject.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

LABOR MEDIATION BOARD

In the Matter of:

REESE PUBLIC SCHOOL DISTRICT,
Respondent,

and

Case No. C67 D-31

REESE TEACHERS EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,

Charging Party.

DECISION AND ORDER

On July 5, 1967, Trial Examiner, Joseph B. Bixler issued his Decision and Recommended Order in the above matter, finding that the Respondent, Reese Public School District, had engaged in and was engaging in certain unfair labor practices, and recommended that it be ordered to cease and desist therefrom and to take certain affirmative action.

The Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order was issued and served upon the interested parties in accordance with Section 10 (a) and (e) of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended. The parties have had an opportunity to review said Decision and Recommended Order for a period of at least twenty days from date of service thereof on the parties, and no exceptions have been filed by any of the parties to the proceedings.

The Board, after reviewing the Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order and the entire record in the case, hereby adopts the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Trial Examiner.

O R D E R

Pursuant to Section 10 (a) and (e) of the Act, the Board hereby adopts as its Order, the Order recommended by the Trial Examiner and orders that the Respondent, Reese Public School District, shall take the action set forth in the Trial Examiner's Recommended Order. It has been brought to the Board's attention that the Reese Public School District has commenced compliance with the Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order. Therefore, the Reese Public School District shall take only such further steps, if any, that are necessary for full compliance.

TRIAL EXAMINER'S DECISION AND RECOMMENDED ORDER

APPEARANCES:

For Respondent: Merle Grover and Alan Luce

For Charging Party: Foster, Campbell, Lindemer & McGurrin
By: James A. White

The above-entitled matter having come on for hearing before the undersigned trial examiner of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, at Detroit, Michigan, on May 23, 1967, and the entire record having been considered, including briefs filed by the parties, the undersigned hereby makes the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendations to the Board for the disposition of the Case:

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Reese School District (hereinafter referred to as Respondent) is a public employer within the meaning of the Public Employment Relations Act (hereinafter called PERA).

Reese Teachers Education Association (hereinafter called Charging Party) is a labor organization within the meaning of PERA.

The Charging Party alleges that the School District has violated Section 10 (a) and (e) of PERA by: (1) Inserting letters commenting on the conduct of the chief of the Charging Party's negotiating committee when he appeared before the Reese School Board on September 7, 1966, December 7, 1966, and January 15, 1967. (2) That the Reese School District failed to bargain with the Charging Party concerning the school calendar for the school year 1967-1968.

The Letters:

In regard to the letters, all parties agreed that three letters were inserted in the personnel file of Vernon Henrichs on or about February 3 or 4, 1967. The three letters were placed in the personnel file by the superintendent of schools, Dr. Bruce Dunn with the knowledge of the School Board.

The letters were introduced as exhibits and are as set forth below:

Exhibit 1

Re: Mr. Vernon Henrichs

September 8, 1966

During the latter part of last night's regular Board meeting at which the School calendar for the 1966-67 school year was adopted, Mr. Henrichs requested time to comment on the adoption.

In an extremely abusive tone of voice, he accused the Board of Education and the administration of failure to consider his recommendations. Mr. Henrichs told the Board that previous to the Board meeting when he had discussed his recommendations with me that if his recommendations were adopted, he would not file an unfair labor practice. If, however, the Board did not see fit to adopt his recommendations, he would so file an unfair labor practice. The unfair labor practice would constitute the administration's failure to get his prior consent to calling a two-day pre-school conference, which has always been done, and setting the date for the opening day of school.

The September 7, 1966 Board meeting was the first regular Board meeting held after tentative agreement had been reached on August 10, 1966, on major economic issues.

The Board of Education did consider each and every point Mr. Henrichs raised prior to adopting the present school calendar in executive session prior to adopting the calendar in the public meeting. Even though Mr. Henrichs accused them of failure to do so. Mr. Henrichs reiterated his statement to the Board that if his recommendations were not adopted, an unfair labor practice would be filed. Mr. Henrichs' tone of voice and remarks to the Board were irresponsible, untrue, abusive, and communication became impossible after a point.

/s/ Bruce J. Dunn

Exhibit 2

Re: Mr. Vernon Henrichs

December 8, 1966

At last night's regular Board of Education meeting at which the public was in attendance, I was extremely embarrassed by Mr. Henrichs.

Mr. Henrichs accused me of violating tentative agreements by having published the school calendar in the newspaper prior to adoption of the calendar by the Board of Education. This, Mr. Henrichs implied made it impossible for the Board of Education to fairly consider the R.T.E.A.'s objections to certain parts of the calendar.

When I asked what paper this calendar had appeared in, I was told the Reese Reporter. When I stated I did not recall having seen it in print or having authorized the calendar's publication, it was again implied I wouldn't want to remember something of this nature.

Today, I went to Frankenmuth where the paper is published and went through the back copies and could find no edition in which the school calendar had been published.

/s/ Bruce J. Dunn

Exhibit 3

Re: Mr. Vernon Henrichs

January 6, 1967

At last night's regular Board of Education meeting, Mr. Henrichs informed the Board that the statement he made at the previous Board of Education meeting was in error. That only the starting date of school had been published instead of the full calendar.

No apology was given, just a statement to clarify the record.

/s/ Bruce J. Dunn

The questions raised by the facts underlying this portion of the charge are (1) whether Henrichs was engaged in activity protected by PERA when he appeared before the Board on September 7, 1966, December 7,1966, and January 5, 1967, and (2) whether Henrichs' behavior at the meeting, as protected activity, so far exceeded the bounds of proper decorum as to make discipline or the action taken by Respondent for his behavior lawful.

The events involved in this aspect of the charge are almost without dispute. The School District was contemplating the establishment of the school calendar for the years 1966-1967 during the month of August, 1966.

Within a few days of September 7, 1967, Henrichs approached the Superintendent of schools Dr. Dunn and informed him that the teachers represented by the Charging Party desired that December 19, 20, and 21, 1966, be added to the Christmas vacation as provided in the school calendar. After some discussion, Dr. Dunn informed Henrichs that the School Board was meeting on the calendar on September 7, 1967. Henrichs and two other teachers holding office in the Charging Party appeared at this meeting; Henrichs asked to speak. This event took place after the School Board had adopted the calendar in executive session. The record is not clear as to exactly what Henrichs said to the School Board. That he claimed the Charging Party's suggestions had not been considered, and that he raised his voice above a conversational tone is established. There is a question whether he did or did not slam the door when he departed. It is also established that Henrichs did not use any profanity when addressing the Board or at any other time.

Whatever happened at this session was not any worse than the conduct attributed to Henrichs by the Respondent, and this at the hearing, was only described in the vague term "abusive" as used in Exhibit No. 1.

The events at the December 7, 1966, Board meeting are undisputed. Henrichs admits he did make the statement attributed to him in Exhibit No. 2, i.e., he claimed the school calendar had been published. Henrichs admitted the error of this statement, and that he corrected it as stated in Exhibit No. 4 before the Board.

These three Exhibits written on the dates they bear, were put into the personnel file of Henrichs on February 3rd or 4th, 1967, when the collective bargaining between the Charging Party and Respondent was signed. Without passing on the actual significance of the three Exhibits in an employee's personnel file, the undersigned is of the opinion that they must have some effect on the employment status of Henrich and certainly do not enhance his record or they would not have been put in the file.

This, then, brings the second question as stated above under consideration. May an employer effect the status of an employee because of the manner in which he engaged in protected activity, as did Henrichs?

That the appearance of Henrichs before the school Board on September 7, 1966, and December 8, 1966, was an activity in concert with other employees is undisputed. Nor is there dispute that the employees so engaged were seeking to effect a matter touching on their employment--the addition of three additional days to the Christmas vacation period. It further appears that the School Board was of necessity the only place the employees could make this appeal as the School Board member of the Respondent's negotiating team has maintained and testified at this hearing that it lawfully is the School Board's prerogative to set the school year calendar. Further it was the School Board who had set the calendar that the teachers sought to alter.

The undersigned has concluded that Henrichs was engaged in protected concerted activities within the meaning of Section 9 of PERA, when he appeared before the School Board.

The latitude of the protection afforded employees while engaged in concerted protected activities by the National Labor Relations Board is extensive. They cannot be punished for making false or incorrect statements while so engaged unless the statements are made deliberately or with malice. El Mundo Broadcasting Corporation, 108 NLRB 1270; American Shuffle Board Co. 92 NLRB 1272.

In the area of employee representative conduct the NLRB had held the representative must be free to express himself in a natural manner and on a plane of equality with the employer. This principle was rather well stated by a Trial Examiner of the National Labor Relations Board, with approval of that Board, in N. P. Nelson Iron Works, Inc., 80 NLRB 125, 23 LRRM 1130 as follows:

> Unquestionably, it is essential to the accomplishment of this purpose that, in their dealings with the employer on behalf of the employees, the employee-representatives be treated on a plane of equality with the employers rather than as subordinates as they are in the performance of their duties in the plant; that in spite of possible offense to the employer, the employee-representatives be permitted the broadest, frankest, and freest possible statement of their positions and pertinent arguments in such language of vigor and clarity, as comes naturally to them and seems reasonably related to their objectives as employee-representatives, short of inexplicable or prolonged name-calling or threats of physical harm or other illegal action; (Of course, the employer and his representatives possess a corresponding right to freedom in their expressions and arguments. And representatives of either party may forcefully object to the tactics and language employed by the other side so long as they bargain collectively in good faith as required by the Act and the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947.) and, finally, that for the effective exercise of their rights on behalf of the employees, the employee-representatives be protected against discrimination or retaliation by the employer. Only by a full acceptance and observance of these fundamental requirements, can it be hoped that management and labor shall be afforded a reasonable opportunity of coming to grips with, and ultimately solving, the problems which confront them.

It would seem that a union representative cannot be expected to be divested of human emotions such as anger as long as it is not manifested in a manner as would exceed the bounds indicated in the N. P. Nelson Iron Works case quoted above. Thor Power Tool Company, 148 NLRB 1379.

In Sanilac County Road Commission, MLMB 1967 Labor Opinions page 107, Case No. C66 F-68, the Michigan Labor Mediation Board considered a situation where County Road Commission employees appeared before the County Board of Supervisors seeking bargaining with the Road Commission and also made accusations of criminal activity on the part of County Road Commissioners. The appearance was found to be protected activity even though the accusations made were found to be groundless.

In the instant case we do not have employees even approaching the behavior considered in the Sanilac case. The accusation here is only that Henrichs violated some one's vague subjective standard of behavior. The undersigned is of the opinion that the record reveals that Henrichs did not exceed the bounds of lawful conduct and certainly did not conduct himself in a manner which would reflect upon Henrichs' suitability as a teacher or deserving comments on his conduct being inserted in his personnel file and made a permanent part of that file.

The undersigned concludes that in the circumstances of this case, the insertion of the letters by the Superintendent into the personnel file of Henrichs is interference with the rights guaranteed public employees, within the meaning of 10 (a) and (c) of PERA.

This conclusion is reached without any finding of animosity toward the Charging Party or Henrichs on the part of Respondent or its Superintendent. However, intent or animosity is not essential to finding the violations of the Act, for it is sufficient if Respondent's actions had the effect of interfering with its employees freedom to engage in concerted protected activity. American Freightways Co., Inc., 124 NLRB 146.

The 1967-1968 Calendar

The second aspect of the charge is a claim that the Respondent here has failed to bargain concerning the setting of the school calendar for the years 1967-1968, in violation of Section 10 (c) and Section 15 of the Act.

The contention of the Respondent is that the matter of school calendar was covered in the current bargaining contract between the parties in Article V, Subparagraph (c) of that contract. Article V, Subparagraph (c) of the contract reads as follows:

> The Board shall consult with the association to obtain their suggestions which will be given every possible consideration before the Board adopts the School Calendar. This shall be subject to grievance procedures as provided by Article XIV.

Respondent takes the position that consultation on the school calendar took place prior to the setting of the 1967-1968 calendar, and therefore its contractual obligation has been fulfilled.

The Charging Party's position is that the school calendar is a mandatory subject of bargaining and that the contract provision quoted above applies only to the 1966-1967 school calendar and, therefore, Respondent was obligated to bargain with the Charging Party before setting the calendar for the years 1967-1968.

The record establishes that negotiations on the current contract began prior to September 1966 and continued until February 1967 at which time the final contract was agreed upon and signed, when noneconomic provisions were agreed upon. This contract was to be effective from August 10, 1966, until June 30, 1967.

In March, 1967, negotiations began on a new contract for the school year 1967-1968. During the first meeting in March, the matter of the school calendar came up and the bargaining team for the Charging Party suggested that the new 1967-1968 calendar be of similar length to that of 1966-1967. At this meeting Albert Rummel, member of and spokesman for the School Board's negotiating team is said to have told the Charging Party's team something to the effect that they could accept suggestions but could not negotiate the calendar. Rummel admits at one of the meetings that he might have said there was some question in his mind whether the calendar was a negotiable item.

Both parties agree that the Charging Party's negotiation team did present a calendar to the School Board's team at a negotiation session held on March 15, 1967. According to Claude D. Hinman, a member of the Charging Party's team, after this calendar was presented there was a caucus and the Board team, by Rummel, informed them that it was the Board's power to determine the calendar and he made reference to a circuit court decision wherein it had been determined that a School Board could not negotiate away certain rights or authority.[1] There was, however, further discussion of the Charging Party's calendar at a negotiation session held either on March 30, or April 4, 1967. Henrichs was questioned concerning the calendar and various members of the Board team made comments among which was the school bus problem on half days. At this time Henrichs was asked to substantiate the number of teaching days contained in the calendar and it appears that the number claimed could not be established.

1/ Wilson Nickelsetal vs. the Board of Education of the Imlay City Community Schools No. 6 et al - by Circuit Judge Churchill, of Lapeer County, January 3, 1967.

After the discussion of the proposed calendar, the Charging Party's team was invited to attend the School Board meeting on April 5, 1967, by Rummel.

At this meeting the new calendar for 1967-1968 was to be on the School Board's agenda. None of the Charging Party's representatives attended this meeting. As stated by Henrichs "it would not be negotiating" and they were of the opinion that Article V Section c of the contract did not apply to the calendar for the year 1967-1968 but only to that for 1966-1967.

On April 5, 1967, the School Board adopted a school calendar for 1967-1968.

The contentions of the parties to this matter make it necessary to decide whether the school calendar is a mandatory subject of bargaining.

If it is not a mandatory subject of bargaining, then the Charging Party's second allegation must be dismissed as there would have been no duty to be breached by the Respondent. There is a duty to bargain with the representative of the teachers in regard to the calendar; a determination of whether Article V Subparagraph (c) is a waiver of the statutory duty is required.

The undersigned is of the opinion that a School Board under Section 11 of PERA is obligated to bargain with a collective bargaining representative of its employees in regard to certain aspects of the school calendar.[2] Certain aspects are used because this duty to bargain would in at least one area be clearly circumscribed by statutory requirement. This would be the required length of school term in months provided in M.S.A. 15.3375 sec. 575. Within the statutorily required term it seems clear that the length of the vacations, time of beginning and end of vacations, and holidays would be contemplated by Section 11 of PERA, as hours and conditions of employment. The undersigned, however, is of the opinion that he cannot determine, based upon the record in this case as to whether other events set forth in the school calendars presented as exhibits, such as marking period endings, commencement or institute days, are mandatory subjects of bargaining.[3] These matters were not litigated at the hearing.

Having reached the conclusion that at least part of the terms of the School Calendar are subjects for negotiation, we reach the question of whether the right to negotiate on the 1967-1968 calendar has been waived by the Charging Party.

Article V Subparagraph (c), set out above, does provide for less than what is contemplated by negotiation. It obligates the School Board only to consult and give consideration to the Charging Party's "suggestions." The undersigned would find this a waiver of bargaining, but cannot determine on this record the calendar contemplated by the parties to the agreement. As pointed out in the brief for Respondent, there is "no reference whatsoever as to whether the school calendar to be considered by the Board of Education was the 1966-1967 calendar or the 1967-1968 calendar." The undersigned agrees. Nor does the record disclose what the intent of the parties was when this clause was put into the agreement. Under these circumstances a finding that the clause attaches to a school year other than the one coextensive with the agreement would be sheer speculation. The Respondent in its brief argues that as of the 1967-1968 calendar came up during the current agreement, that document governs. This reasoning, however, appears to lack logic as it is no answer if the 1967-1968 calendar had been proposed to the School Board after the June 30, 1967, expiration date of the agreement, as had been the practice of the School Board in past years and in accordance with its codified policy presented as an exhibit.

A second approach by Respondent is that the School Board has fulfilled its contractual obligation (that is, consulted and considered suggestions as to the 1967-1968 calendar) and that the Charging Party has a remedy as provided in the grievance procedure of Article XIV of the current agreement. This argument is at first blush quite persuasive; however, it presupposes the applicability of Article V Subparagraph (c) to the calendar for the succeeding year. This supposition, as noted above, the undersigned has found is without foundation in this record.

The National Labor Relations Board has always approached waivers with caution and has required such a waiver to be clear and unmistakable. C & C Plywood Corporation, 148 NLRB 414 p. 417. This view seems proper whether determining if a waiver exists or its period of applicability. Any other approach would require interpretation of contractual agreements and the policing of contractual agreement by a Labor Board, a function more properly belonging to other tribunals.

The undersigned therefore concludes that the Respondent in the circumstances of this case has not bargained with the Charging Party as required by Sections 11 and 15 of PERA, and has accordingly violated Section 10 (e) of the Act.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

Upon the foregoing findings of fact and conclusion of law it is accordingly recommended that the Board enter an Order that the Public Employer, Reese Public School District shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

   (a) Interfering, restraining or coercing public employees in the exercise of their right in Section 9 of the Public Employment Relations Act.

   (b) Refusing to bargain collectively with the Teachers Education Association.

2. Take the following affirmative action:

   (a) Remove from the personnel file of Vernon Henrichs those documents dated September 8, 1966, December 8, 1966, and January 6, 1967, signed by Dr. Dunn, Superintendent of Schools, and expunging from the records of said Vernon Henrichs all reference thereto.

   (b) Bargain collectively with the Reese Teachers Education Association in regard to holidays and vacation dates to be included in the 1967-1968 school calendar.

   (c) Notify the undersigned in writing within twenty days from receipt of the Recommended Order what steps the Respondent has taken to comply herewith.

The undersigned has not recommended the posting of any notice in this case as the violations found do not show an intent either to disregard the provisions of PERA or to accomplish ends proscribed by PERA, and he is therefore of the opinion such posting would not effectuate the policies of PERA.

Warren Education Association

v.

Richard L. Lapan et al.,
Warren School Committee

O P I N I O N

KELLEHER, J. This civil action in the nature of mandamus was instituted against the defendants in their capacities as members of the school committee of the town of Warren to require the committee to execute a collective bargaining agreement which would embrace salaries, working conditions and other incidents of employment for the 1967-68 school year. The plaintiff is the duly-recognized collective bargaining agent for the certified public school teachers who are employed by the town. The case is before us on the plaintiff's appeal from an order of the superior court which granted the defendants' motion to dismiss the instant complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted under 12(b) (6) of the new rules of civil procedure of the superior court. We shall sometimes hereafter refer to the plaintiff as the association to the defendants as the committee.

The instant complaint is based upon the following undisputed facts. On or about December 22, 1966, the association gave written notice requesting a meeting for the purpose of negotiating a contract for the school year which would begin in September 1967. Pursuant to this request several meetings were held in January and February 1967 between the committee and representatives of the association. An agreement was reached on the contents of a contract for the next school year. The committee advised the association that it wished to defer the formal execution of any agreement until after the annual financial town meeting had been held in the month of May. In the meantime, the association on March 14, 1967, gave its unanimous approval of the agreement which had been reached between its agents and the committee. Subsequent to the financial town meeting, the association made a written request to the committee that it meet with its representatives and formally execute the agreement reached earlier. On May 29, 1967, the acting chairman of the committee notified the association of the committee's refusal to execute the contract. The association thereupon instituted this litigation for mandamus to compel the committee to execute in writing the terms upon which they had orally agreed.

The association bases its complaint upon the provisions of G. L. 1956, §28-9.3-4, which is part of the school teachers arbitration act. This section reads as follows:

> 28-9.3-4, Obligation to bargain.--It shall be the obligation of the school committee to meet and confer in good faith with the representative of representatives of the negotiating or bargaining agent within ten (10) days after receipt of written notice from said agent of the request for a meeting for negotiating or collective bargaining purposes. This obligation shall include the duty to cause any agreement resulting from negotiations or bargaining to be reduced to a written contract, provided that no such contract shall exceed the term of three (3) years. Failure to negotiate or bargain in good faith may be complained of by either the negotiating or bargaining agent or the school committee to the state labor relations board which shall deal with such complaint in the manner provided in chapter 7 of this title.

The association acknowledges that although an action for a writ of mandamus is now controlled procedurally in the superior court by its rules of civil procedure, the legal sufficiency of a complaint in such an action is still to be tested by the same principles which have heretofore governed the issuance of this prerogative writ. Demers v. Shehab, R. I. 224 A.2d 380. Accordingly, a plaintiff in such an action must show that he has a clear right to have done the act he seeks and that the defendant has a clear, legal and ministerial duty to perform without any discretion to refuse. Castle Realty Co. v. Soloveitzik, R. I. 224 A.2d 44. It also must be demonstrated that the law has provided no other adequate remedy. In those situations where it can be shown that there is an adequate administrative remedy available to a plaintiff, it is settled law that he must exhaust such a remedy before judicial relief can be invoked by way of mandamus. Conley v. McCarthy, 84 R. I. 141, 121 A.2d 875.

Before examining the issue of whether mandamus will lie in this particular action, we feel a comment should be directed to the procedural aspects of the hearing held on the committee's motion.

Under rule 12(b) of the superior court's rules of civil procedure, parties on either side of a law suit may submit to the court for its consideration matters outside the pleadings in support of or in opposition to a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim meriting relief. The provisions of rule 12(b) expressly authorize the trial justice either to include or exclude such extra pleading matters in his deliberation on a motion to dismiss; however, if the trial justice freely elects to consider the supplemental information, rule 12(b) provides that a motion is converted into one for summary judgment and should be disposed of according to the pertinent provisions of rule 56. Ewing v. Frank, R. I., filed November 9, 1967.

When a motion is converted under rule 12(b) into one for summary judgment, there is a significant and noteworthy change in the issue presented to the court. No longer is the inquiry of the court focused on a determination of the sufficiency of the complaint to set forth a valid claim for relief, as would be the situation under rule 12(b), but instead a decision must be made, after a review of the entire record, on whether there exists a factual issue contested by the parties, and, in the absence of which, whether as a matter of law one party is entitled to a judgment.

On a hearing on a motion under either rule 12(b) or rule 56, it is not the office of the trial justice to determine any issues of fact. In such cases, all favorable inferences which can be drawn from matters properly before the court accrue to the benefit of the party against whom the motion is made. Thus the pleadings under rule 12(b) and the entire record under rule 56 are scrutinized closely by the court in determining whether the movant has met his burden successfully; and correspondingly all pleadings and evidentiary documents filed by the non-moving party are viewed indulgently by the court. 6 Moore, Federal Practice (2d ed.), ¶56.15, p. 2281. The record in the instant appeal discloses that the above procedure was not adhered to by the trial justice.

At the hearing of defendants' 12(b) motion, the transcript indicates that the trial justice was shown a letter and that its contents apparently influenced him in dismissing plaintiff's complaint.1/ In taking this action the trial justice stated that in his opinion mandamus would not lie under the facts of this case. Although extrinsic matter was accepted by the court at the hearing, the trial justice purported to dismiss the claim under 12(b) (6).2/ Such action is procedural error. Gager v. "Bob Seidel," 300 F.2d 727.

It is elementary that if a trial justice wishes to limit the scope of the hearing on a motion to dismiss under 12(b) (6), he has no right to consider facts except those recited in the pleadings; and he has no right to admit evidence not incorporated in the formal pleadings. In short, he must confine his examination to the well-pleaded facts in applying the substantive law to the allegations pleaded to determine if the complaint properly describes the set of circumstances upon which a court could justifiably grant relief. Resort to anything beyond the pleadings is without sanction or authority and is error. Grand Opera Co. v. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp., 235 F.2d 303.

Even if we were to treat defendants' motion as properly transformable into one for summary judgment under rule 56, our action would have questionable validity since there is respectable authority to the effect that letters alone are not within the contemplated class of documents permissible to be filed under rule 56. Marks Music Corp. v. Stasny Music Corp., 1 F.R.D. 720; 3 Barron & Holtzoff, §1237, p. 164. It also seems to be clear that written documents submitted to and not excluded by a court on motions under rule 56 must be attached to the record and exhibited in full. Taylor v. Royal Ins. Co., 34 F.R.D. 132; 3 Barron & Holtzoff, supra. This allows us the benefit of examining them in the event the ruling of the trial justice on the motion is appealed. In the state of the instant record we can only surmise the contents of the committee's letter.

The test of what a complaint must contain in order to withstand a motion to dismiss under 12(b) (6) has been clearly spelled out by this court in Bragg v. Warwick Shoppers World, Inc., R. I. 227 A.2d 582, and more recently in Buszta v. Souther, R. I. 232 A.2d 396. In both cases we said that in order to justify a dismissal of a complaint under this rule the trial justice, after according the plaintiff the benefit of every inference in viewing the allegations of his complaint in their most promising light, should be satisfied that it is clear beyond a reasonable doubt that the plaintiff could not conceivably prove facts which would qualify him for judicial relief. While the superior court's dismissal of the association's complaint was wrong because the trial justice failed to comply with the proper standards set forth in the new rules of procedure when he considered the committee's motion, we believe that there are other grounds upon which we can and will affirm the ruling of the trial justice. Lancia v. Grossman's of R. I., Inc., R. I. 216 A.2d 617; Ludwee v. New England Motors, 99 R.I. 663, 210 A.2d 131.

The association argues that the decision of the trial justice should be overturned for two reasons. First, they contend that the legislature's use of the word "may" in the last sentence of §28-9.3-4 connotes the idea of permissive recourse to the state labor relations board in disputes arising under the act; therefore, they are not compelled as a condition precedent to seeking relief from the courts to present a complaint to the state labor relations board. Secondly, they assert, even if the statute is construed to mean that a complaint must be filed with the state labor relations board prior to litigation, the remedy afforded by petitioning the board is inadequate in several respects, especially since the board is powerless under our statutory law to compel the committee to execute a written contract encompassing all the terms upon which the parties had orally agreed.

As a preface to our discussion of the statute and the legislative intent behind its enactment, we deem it appropriate to dwell briefly on the history of the teacher-school committee labor relations in the years preceding the enactment of the teachers arbitration act. All we relate are matters of common knowledge.

In years past, work stoppages, or the threats thereof, have plagued several school systems in the state. This court ruled in the 1958 case of City of Pawtucket v. Pawtucket Teachers' Alliance, 87 R. I. 364, 141 A.2d 624, that a public school teacher has no lawful right to strike. Last year we reaffirmed that rule in School Committee v. Pawtucket Teachers' Alliance, R. I. 221 A.2d 806.

The legislature in 1965, keenly aware of the strife and disruption caused by such discordant incidents between school committees and teachers and anxious to provide some remedy in this area of great public interest passed Resolution No. 45 which created a special commission to study and recommend ameliorative legislation in this area of governmental concern. The resolution which delineated the authority of the commission contained a directive from the legislature that the commission formulate a suggested procedure designed to be available in the event of a bargaining controversy between a school committee and teachers. Section 28-9.3-4 of the teachers arbitration act is the direct result of the commission's deliberations and legislative proposals. It is this section we are asked to construe.

The prime issues to be decided on this appeal may be defined as follows: first, whether or not, before seeking judicial aid, the teachers must under the statute initially request the state labor relations board to intervene; second, whether §28-9.3-4 provides the teachers with a plain, timely and effective administrative remedy.

I

"May": Permissive or Mandatory?

As regards the first issue, we believe it was the intent of the legislature to require a complaining party to submit their grievances to the state labor relations board before any judicial remedy could be invoked. Thus, when a breakdown in communication occurs in negotiations between teachers and school committees, the legislature intended, in our opinion, to vest initial jurisdiction of the controversy in the board.

The association argues the use of the word "may" in the section under examination is demonstrative evidence that the legislature intended to permit a party to elect

1/ The trial justice is reported in the transcript as having stated that the contents of a letter sent to the association by the school committee induced him to dismiss the complaint on the basis that the association sought to compel an act which was not ministerial in nature but instead was one which involved discretion; hence, he concluded that mandamus was an improper vehicle for relief under such a set of circumstances.

2/ The fact that the trial justice regarded his decision to be one under rule 12(b) (6) and not rule 56 is made obvious by his permitting the association leave to file an amended complaint. If he had intended to enter judgment under rule 56, it would be inconsistent to allow the filing of an amended pleading.

between filing a complaint with either the courts or the labor relations board. We acknowledge the cardinal rule of construction advanced by the association that in construing statutes a court will attribute to words their common, ordinary and natural meaning. Mount Pleasant Cab Co. v. Rhode Island Unemployment Compensation Board, 73 R. I. 7, 53 A.2d 485. Nevertheless, we are also cognizant of another rule of equal dignity in the canons of construction which provides that a court should construe words of a statute according to their plain meaning unless such interpretation would defeat the discovered intendment of the legislature. Irish v. Collins, 82 R. I. 348, 107 A.2d 455; State v. Nadeau, 81 R. I. 505, 105 A.2d 194. Moreover, a court should not allow itself to be enslaved to the literal meaning of words and on occasion, albeit with due caution, must eschew the literal and ordinary meaning of words in order to better fulfill the evident purpose of the legislation sought to be construed. O'Brien v. Waterman, 91 R. I. 374, 163 A.2d 31; 82 C.J.S., Statutes, §329, p. 651. The present appeal, we feel, is to be included within the rule of the Irish and O'Brien cases.

We readily concur in the association's observation that the verb "may" is connotative of permissiveness, but we recognize occasions when this court has attributed to it a different meaning in order to fulfill better the ascertained intent of the legislature. Such was the situation in Carlson v. McLyman, 77 R. I. 177, 182, 74 A.2d 853, 855, where this court said:

> * * * We concede that the ordinary meaning of the word 'may' is permissive and not compulsive; yet whether it should be given the latter meaning and construed as 'shall' in a given case depends on the intent of the legislature as ascertained from the language, the nature, and the object of the statute.

See also Nolan v. Representative Council, 73 R. I. 498, 57 A.2d 730. As in the Carlson and Nolan cases, we feel the present case is one requiring a purposeful interpretation of the word "may."

Our efforts to ascertain the intent which prompted the legislature to enact the teachers arbitration bill were greatly aided by the published report of the findings and suggestions of the special study commission which we referred to earlier. We have taken judicial notice of this manuscript. 29 Am. Jur.2d, Evidence, §28, p. 65. In our opinion the report, which sheds considerable light on the section under examination, strongly reenforces and corroborates our treatment of the verb "may" as a mandatory and not as a permissive directive of the legislature. In that portion of the report devoted to listing recommendations, we find the following comment of the commission appearing on page 7:

> Once an organization representing the teachers has been certified, the school board should be compelled to bargain or negotiate in good faith with such organization. Failure to bargain or negotiate in good faith could be the subject matter of a complaint against either the teachers' organization or the school board and such complaint should be handled in the same fashion as unfair labor practices are presently handled under the State Labor Relations Act.

The above passage seems to us to represent cogent evidence that the legislature intended that if either a school committee or a teachers association fails to negotiate in good faith, the aggrieved group must commence proceedings before the state labor relations board prior to turning to the courts for assistance.

II

Adequacy of the Remedy

The second issue formulated in this case is whether the teachers arbitration act provides a plain and adequate remedy. If we find that the act does offer such a remedy, then it is clear under our law that the association must explore and exhaust that remedy prior to seeking judicial recourse. Conley v. McCarthy, 84 R. I. 141, 121 A.2d 875.[j/] We have in the past stated that an available remedy which would bar the issuance of a writ of mandamus must be one which is plain, speedy and adequate. Putnam Foundry & Maching Co. v. Town Council, 29 R. I. 422, 67 A. 733. The question of what constitutes a plain, adequate and speedy remedy is not susceptible to application as a general rule but instead must be considered in the circumstances of each case. 55 C.J.S., Mandamus, §17.

There has been no persuasive showing by the association in this case of any facts which would induce us to find exception to the applicability of the general rule as it was announced in the case of Conley, supra. In our opinion the association has in chap. 9.3 of title 28 a plain and adequate relief for their alleged grievances.

It is clear to us from our examination of the statute and from a review of the facts before us, that contrary to the association's assertions, the state labor relations board may compel the committee to sign a written contract formalizing any prior oral agreement reached by the parties at the bargaining table. Section 28-9.3-4 specifically provides that the obligation to meet and confer in good faith includes the duty to reduce any earlier oral agreement to a written contract. Once either party complains to the state labor relations board under this section, the board shall treat the complaint in the same manner as if it were a charge of an unfair labor practice brought pursuant to §28-7-13. We further note that §28-7-26, provides the board with authority to petition the superior court for a decree enforcing their orders. It is to be observed also that §§28-7-25 and 28-7-32 provide that all proceedings either before the board or before the court shall be disposed of in an expeditious fashion. The latter section expressly states that any petition filed pursuant to chap. 7 of title 28 shall take precedence over all other matters on the calendar except those of similar character.

In view of the foregoing, therefore, we are of the opinion that the association has in the teachers arbitration act a very adequate and effective course of relief in this case. The legislature has created therein a remedy for their grievances which significantly enhances their power to bargain with school committees. By petitioning the labor relations board, whose expertise in this sensitive area is unquestioned, the association may well find such assistance so efficacious in solving their negotiation problems that the necessity of any judicial intervention will be averted. If its efforts are unsuccessful in bringing about proper relief, seasonable judicial aid can be swiftly brought to bear on a recalcitrant party through the preferred status which is given to suits filed at the behest of the state labor relations board. To allow the association to bring this action without first pursuing the administrative remedy which the legislature intended they so employ, would be tantamount to redrafting the legislation under study. This, of course, we refuse to do. Our duty is to construe--not to redraft statutes. Moretti v. Div. of Intoxicating Beverages, 62 R. I. 281, 5 A.2d 288.

The order appealed from is sustained, and the case is remitted to the superior court for further proceedings.

In the Izzi case, this court under a substantially analogous set of circumstances, refused to grant a writ of mandamus to a teacher because a plain and adequate remedy had been made available by the legislature.

ARTICLE I

General

A. The provisions of this Agreement shall constitute Board policy for the duration hereof or until changed by mutual consent in writing.

B. Present Board policies not covered by this Agreement shall remain in effect in their present form.

C. Not later than six (6) months prior to the expiration of this Agreement, the Board and the Association agree to negotiate over a Successor Agreement. It is expressly understood, however, that any such agreement shall be binding only to the extent permitted by the laws of the State of Virginia and the United States.

ARTICLE II

Teaching Hours and Conditions

A. Normally the teachers' regular school day begins one-half hour before the opening of school for students and extends to one-half hour after student dismissal.

The above is simply a guideline. Both parties recognize that a certain amount of flexibility is necessary for the most effective operation of the schools.

B. Lunchroom attendants will be employed in the elementary schools in order to relieve teachers of lunchroom duty. It is the policy of the Board that each secondary teacher will normally be allowed an uninterrupted lunch period of 30 minutes to be worked out by the building principal and his staff.

C. Each secondary teacher will have one period per day for conference and planning. To the extent possible, efforts will be made to provide a daily period for conference and/or planning for each elementary teacher. To this end, elementary teachers will not be required to be with their classes during regular physical education classes when such are conducted by the elementary physical education teacher.

D. Principals will make every effort to secure voluntary participation in the sponsoring and supervision of extracurricular activities, such as clubs, musicals, theatricals, etc. for which no additional compensation is received.

E. The Board and the Association agree that continuing efforts must be made to reduce class size. Therefore, they agree on the following goals to be implemented by September 1971, or as soon as possible pending the availability of funds and facilities.

1. The maximum pupil load for regular academic classes in secondary schools will be 125 pupils per day and a maximum of 100 pupils per day in English classes, and

2. The normal maximum class size in regular elementary school classes will be 25 pupils.

F. Instructional secretaries shall be provided in all elementary schools with no loss of instructional staff. Allocation will be made on the existing formula which is one-half instructional secretary for the first 300 students or major fraction thereof and one-half for each 150 students or major fraction thereof above the first 300.

G. Instructional secretaries in secondary schools will continue to be provided with the goal of full staffing in three school years without reduction of the instructional staff. (A committee will be appointed to develop goal and implementation procedures)

H. Assignment of clerical assistants in the libraries of secondary schools will be on the basis of a 1/2 time secretary for each 500 students or major fraction thereof.

I. Requirements for additional course work shall be the same as those required by the State of Virginia for certificate renewal.

ARTICLE III

Teacher Assignment

A. Assignment of teachers shall be made only after every effort has been made to meet the reasonable request and desires of any teacher concerned.

Teachers other than newly-appointed and substitute teachers will be notified in writing, as soon as practicable, of their programs for the coming school year, including the school to which they will be assigned, the classes or subjects they will teach, and special or unusual classes they will have. It is recognized that certain shifts in enrollment may necessitate changes subsequent to such notification but every effort will be made to keep such changes to a minimum.

B. In order to assure that pupils are taught by teachers working within their areas of competence, teachers shall not be assigned without their written consent, except temporarily for good cause, outside the scope of their teaching certificates and/or their major fields of study.

C. No regularly-assigned teacher shall be used as an involuntary substitute except in case of emergency and after every effort has been made to employ a substitute.

ARTICLE IV

Teacher Transfer

A. The Board and the Association recognize that frequent transfers may be disruptive of the education process and optimum teacher performance unless there are specific procedures which guarantee fairness to teachers as well as taking into consideration the over-all interests of the school administration.

B. If a vacancy is created in the building in which a teacher presently teaches, he may apply for reassignment within the building. Such vacancy shall be filled by the Superintendent on the basis of fitness for the post; length of service will be a preferential factor when there is more than one applicant of equal fitness.

C. Teacher-initiated requests for transfer shall be granted when the teacher is qualified and when transfer is considered feasible by the Superintendent. Such requests denied will be reported to the teacher, including the reasons for the denial. The teacher whose request for transfer has been denied may request the reasons for denial in writing.

D. Transfers may be requested by the administration. The teacher should be notified in writing of the intended transfer and given the opportunity to discuss the proposal. Such transfers will be based on advantages to the individual, staff balance, recommendation of supervisor and principal and best interests of the school system. Length of service will be one of the factors considered.

E. A notice announcing impending vacancies in coaching positions will be posted in each school at least 30 days prior to filing any such vancancy.

ARTICLE V

Promotions

A. All vacancies in supervisory and administrative positions caused by death, retirement, discharge, resignation, or the creation of a new position shall be filled pursuant to the following procedure:

1. All vacancies shall be adequately publicized throughout the school system as far in advance of filling the position as possible. (Ordinarily, 30 days in advance but in no event less than two weeks)

2. Said notice shall clearly set forth the qualifications for the positions. (Job description.)

3. Such vacancy shall be filled on the basis of fitness for the post; when two or more applicants are substantially equal in fitness, the length of service in Arlington shall be given prime consideration.

ARTICLE VI

Teacher Contracts, School Calendar and Scheduled Work Calendars

A. Contracts

The Board will continue to execute contracts with individual teachers in accordance with Virginia School Law and section 35-5.04 of the Personnel Policies. All teacher contracts, whether probationary or continuing, shall be for a "10-month contractual period" as specified by the State Board of Education.

B. School Calendar

The School Calendar shall be adopted by the Board after negotiation with the Association. It is set forth in Appendix A which is attached to and becomes a part of this agreement.

C. Schedules of Work

The schedules of work for teachers are based on the adopted calendar and shall be as follows:

1. Regular Teachers

As set forth in the adopted calendar for the regular school session.

2. Summer School Teachers

As set forth in the adopted calendars to include both the regular and summer school sessions.

3. Curriculum Project Teachers

As set forth in the adopted calendar for the regular session plus a specified number of work days, not to exceed 33 days, scheduled by the Associate Superintendent for instruction.

4. Home Economic Teachers, School Librarians, and Visiting Teachers

As set forth in the regular calendar plus five specific days, scheduled by the principal or immediate supervisor.

5. Psychologists, Child Development Consultants, Vocational Office Training, Industrial Cooperative Training, Distributive Education, and other teachers employed on an extended contract and not identified in the preceding paragraphs

As set forth in the adopted calendar for the regular session plus 33 specific days scheduled by the principal or immediate supervisor.

ARTICLE VII

Professional Compensation

A. The salaries of teachers covered by this Agreement are set forth in Appendix B which is attached to and incorporated in this Agreement.

B. Salaries of non-teaching professional personnel (administrators and supervisors) covered by this Agreement are set forth in Appendix C which is attached to and incorporated in this Agreement.

C. Salaries for other compensated activities are set forth in Appendix D which is attached to and incorporated in this Agreement.

D. New teachers will be given full increment credit for previous teaching experience, including both that in Arlington and outside of Arlington. This provision is not retroactive and does not apply to anyone presently employed in Arlington County. (Exception: People with B.A. degree newly employed cannot advance beyond Step 10)

E. Employees with a satisfactory performance record who qualify and retire under the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System or the Arlington County Retirement System are paid for 25 per cent of their accumulated sick leave, based on their salary at the time of retirement.

F. Employees on the regular teachers' scale may elect --at the time they sign their annual contract--to receive their annual salary in either 10 or 12 equal payments.

ARTICLE VIII

Leave Policies

A. Sick Leave.

1. Full-time employees accumulate one day of sick leave per month. Part-time employees who work at least an average of twenty hours per week also accumulate sick leave in proportion to the amount of time worked daily, e. g., a half-time employee accumulates one-half day of sick leave per month.

2. Each employee is credited with one year's accumulation of sick leave as of the date of employment.

3. A new employee is credited with his accumulated sick leave if he is a member of the VSRS and is transferring directly from another school system in Virginia.

4. Sick leave is accumulated without limit.

B. Annual Leave

1. Accumulation of Leave

a. Eligibility

1) Personnel employed on 12-month basis earn 12 days of annual leave during their first year of employment. This is earned at the rate of one day per month. Annual leave may not be taken during the first six months of employment in the Arlington School System except in cases of emergency.

2) Twelve-month part-time employees (those who work less than the normal work week, e.g., 1/2 or 3/4 time) are credited with leave in proportion to the amount of time worked, e.g., a person working four hours per day on a 12-month basis is entitled to 12 four-hour days of annual leave.

3) Employees who work less than an average of twenty hours per week are not eligible for annual leave.

4) Nine and three-quarters, ten, and eleven-month employees do not earn annual leave but are not required to work on school or legal holidays, or on snow days when schools are officially closed.

b. Bonus Days

On the last working day in June of each year, the leave account of each employee is credited with one additional day for each complete fiscal year of continuous service. The maximum number of bonus days is fourteen. Leave with pay, military leave without pay, and leave for educational purposes do not count as a break in continuous service. However, if an employee is granted leave without pay for other reasons for a total of more than twenty working days in any fiscal year, he does not earn a bonus day for that year. Employees newly employed on a 12-month basis are credited with one bonus day of leave for each three consecutive years of previous continuous full-time employment in the Arlington County Schools.

c. Maximum Accumulation of Annual Leave

A total of forty days of annual leave may be carried forward from one fiscal year to another plus one day for each year of completed service from July 1 to June 30, not to exceed fourteen days. Employees retiring or terminating on June 30 will receive pay for up to thirty days of accrued annual leave plus their bonus days.

d. Conversion of Annual Leave to Sick Leave

A department head may authorize conversion of an employee's excess annual (and compensatory) leave to sick leave if in his judgment the excess leave was accumulated for reasons beyond the employee's control, and it was not convenient to grant use of such annual leave earned.

e. Holidays

P-Scale employees will be allowed to take leave not chargeable to annual leave, as follows:

1. On the day after Thanksgiving, and

2. On the last working day before Christmas, provided schools are not in session that day, in which case such leave shall be taken on the first working day after Christmas.

f. Compensatory Leave

P-Scale employees required to work on any legal holiday as defined in Section 35-9.12 of the existing policies will be entitled to a day's compensatory leave, not chargeable to annual leave. Such compensatory leave will normally be taken within 30 days of the holiday worked.

C. Maternity Leave

1. Eligibility

a. To be eligible for maternity leave, a teacher must have been issued a continuing contract by the Arlington County Public Schools. Other employees must have successfully completed their six months' probationary period and have been granted permanent status.

b. Adoption

In addition to pregnancy, adoption of a child constitutes a valid reason for requesting a leave under the procedures of this policy.

2. Criteria for Determining the Termination Date

a. The availability of a suitable replacement.

b. The health and welfare of the employee.

c. The necessity of completing certain phases of the program for which the employee is responsible.

d. The school's reporting period.

e. The employee's consistent ability to perform in her professional capacity and in the best interests of the instructional program of the students involved.

f. The opinions of the attending physician and her immediate supervisor or principal.

3. Duration of Maternity Leave

a. Maternity leave is ordinarily granted initially for the balance of a school year for employees other than twelve months' employees. Twelve-month employees receive a one-year maternity leave.

b. An employee whose assignment is in a school is responsible for the notification of the Personnel Office by April 1 as to:

1) Her desire to return to work the following September, or

2) Her desire to have her maternity leave extended for one year.

c. Other employees are responsible for notifying the Personnel Office one month prior to the expiration of their leave as to:

1) Her desire for employment, or

2) Her desire for an extension of maternity leave for one year.

d. The Assistant Superintendent for Personnel makes the decision as to whether or not the leave should be extended.

D. Personal Leave

1. Full-time employees who do not earn annual leave are allowed one day of personal leave the first year of employment and two days each year thereafter.

2. Such leave is in addition to sick leave.

3. Unused personal leave will be transferred to employee's sick leave account on June 30 of each year.

E. Extended Leave

1. Policy

a. Extended leave for one year (without pay) is granted for the following reasons:

1) Professional, full-time study.

2) Foreign teaching assignments or exchange teaching.

3) Serious illness of the employee or a member of his immediate family.

2. Procedure

The applicant makes a written request to his principal or immediate supervisor. He uses the same procedure and form as that described for a request for maternity leave.

3. Duration

a. Extended leave is granted for one year. It can be extended for an additional year if the employee requests the extension in writing prior to April 1. The Assistant Superintendent for Personnel makes the decision as to whether or not the leave is to be extended.

b. The employee is responsible for the notification of the Personnel Office by April 1 if he intends to return to his position the next school year.

c. Extended leave will count as an additional year of experience for salary purposes only if it is spent in full-time study or full-time teaching. In order to count as a year of experience, the teacher's total outside experience cannot exceed ten years.

F. Disability Leave

1. Policy

a. Permanent Employees

All permanent and probationary employees and limited term employees who are eligible for sick leave and who are temporarily disabled in line of duty receive full pay for the period of disability without charge against their annual or sick leave, subject to the following conditions:

1) Provided that the disability resulted from an injury or illness sustained directly in the performance of the employee's work, as provided in the State Workmen's Compensation Act.

2) If incapacitated for his regular assignment, the employee may be given other duties with the school system for the period of recuperation. Unwillingness to accept such an assignment as directed by the Division Superintendent results in the employee's ineligibility for disability leave during the time involved.

3) A physician selected by the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel determines the physical ability of the employee to continue working or to return to work.

4) Disability leave is limited to 90 working days for any one injury.

5) So long as an employee is on the payroll while on disability leave, sick leave, or annual leave, he must endorse any Workmen's Compensation checks over to the Arlington County School Board and forward them to the Business Office.

b. Temporary and Part-time Employees

Temporary and part-time employees who are not eligible for sick leave and who are disabled in line of duty do not receive disability leave but are paid in accordance with the provisions of the State Workmen's Compensation Act.

G. Military Leave

1. Policy

a. Any permanent employee who leaves his position in order to enter active service in the Armed Forces of the United States can apply for military leave.

1. Any permanent employee who enters the military service in time of war or who is called to the service involuntarily is automatically eligible for military leave.

2. Any permanent employee who volunteers for military service other than in time of war must apply for military leave, using the form and procedure set forth below.

b. Military leave extends to a date 90 days after the expiration date of the employee's initial term of active military service. An employee on military leave is entitled to re-employment provided he applies to the Personnel Office within 90 days of his honorable separation under honorable conditions, and provided further that he is physically and mentally capable of performing the duties of the position. The school system cannot guarantee the employee the same assignment as he had prior to his leave, although it does guarantee a comparable position for which he is qualified.

c. Probationary and part-time employees are not eligible for military leave.

d. An employee required to report for a military physical examination is granted leave with pay for the period required.

e. Any permanent employee who is a member of the National Guard or an organized military Reserve of the United States is allowed leave with pay, not to exceed 15 calendar days, in order to attend training camps. Either calendar year or fiscal year may be used in applying this section, depending upon the current policy of the Federal Government.

f. Requests for deferment are made by the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel.

H. Civil Leave

An employee is allowed time off without loss of pay when performing jury duty, when subpoenaed to appear before public body, commission, or the court (unless he is the defendant and is convicted), when performing emergency civilian duty in connection with national defense, or for the purpose of voting. Any pay received for service performed while on such leave must be endorsed over to the Arlington County School Board.

I. Sabbatical Leave

Teachers, psychologists, principals, administrative, professional, and supervisory personnel are eligible for sabbatical leave after they have served for six consecutive years in the Arlington County Public Schools. Sabbatical leave is not granted for less than one full semester or more than one calendar year. Such leave is not granted more often than once in seven consecutive years. Sabbatical leave is granted upon recommendation of the Superintendent with the approval of the School Board at half salary for the year in which the leave is taken. Employees on sabbatical leave are paid half of the salary they would have received had they remained in their position full time.

J. Leave for Study

Twelve-month employees on the P-Scale are eligible for leave for study with pay at the end of each four-year period of employment. This leave consists of 30 work days and shall be for the purpose of study and professional improvement.

K. Excused Professional Leave

1. At the direction or with the approval of the principal and the Associate Superintendent for Instruction, teachers, principals and Supervisors may be excused from regular duties without loss of pay or personal leave to participate in observations, workshops, meetings, conferences, or other activities devoted to the improvement of curriculum and instruction.

2. Professional leave is granted to individuals attending professional meetings when they have been selected by the Associate Superintendent for Instruction to represent the county at those meetings. Such leave is limited to ten days in any one school year. All full-time professional personnel other than teachers, supervisors and principals apply for this type of leave through their immediate supervisor or appropriate assistant superintendent.

3. Arlington Education Association

Policy

When the need arises, officers and committee chairmen may attend essential local, state, and national meetings. Substitutes may be used on a full or half-day basis, or the building principal may make other arrangements within his staff, at his discretion.

4. Attendance at VEA Convention

a. Principals, supervisors, visiting teachers and school nurses who are members of the VEA are authorized to attend the convention of this organization on the day or days that such meetings of their groups are held. Principals must notify the Superintendent's Office and supervisors must notify the Associate Superintendent for Instruction, in writing, of the date and time they intend to attend the convention. Visiting teachers and the school nurses clear their attendance at the convention with their supervisors.

b. Classroom teachers, assistant principals, counselors, and other personnel who are members of the VEA and who have some responsibility for program are authorized to attend on the date or dates of their program participation. Principals are authorized to obtain substitutes when necessary.

c. Substitutes are authorized for delegates who have been officially selected to attend the VEA Convention. Substitutes are not authorized for the preceding day.

ARTICLE IX

Retirement System

(To be implemented dependent on results of actuarial study now in progress. Language may be changed at suggestion of actuary)

A. Name and Purpose

A retirement system is hereby established, to be known as the Arlington County Public Schools Supplemental Retirement System, for the purpose of providing supplemental retirement benefits for eligible employees who become members thereof and who are members of the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System.

B. Administration

The Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Business and Finance will be responsible for the administration of the retirement system.

C. Eligibility

All employees now members of VSRS and those subsequently employed who become members shall be eligible for participation.

D. Contributions

The Arlington County School Board will contribute an amount sufficient to establish this plan.

E. Retirement

Retirement will be as stipulated under the existing provisions of VSRS.

F. Benefits

Each employee who retires under VSRS shall receive an annual retirement allowance equal to 5/8 of one per cent of the average final compensation times the number of years of creditable service.

Any employee terminating service in Arlington shall receive no benefits under this plan. Any money credited to him while employed shall revert to the retirement fund.

ARTICLE X

Summer School Working Conditions

A. Insofar as it is possible, tentative commitments will be made to applicants for summer school positions by April 15th. It is understood, however, that changes in enrollment may necessitate a change in the number of teachers who may be needed. However, once a contractual commitment has been made, both parties will be bound by the terms of the contract.

B. The salary for summer school employment will be 1/6 of the teacher's salary for the ensuing school year.

C. The salary of teachers in summer school who will not be employed in the Arlington County school system for the ensuing year will be:

1. In the elementary schools 5/7 of 1/6 of the Bachelor's starting salary for the ensuing year.

2. In the secondary schools 6/7 of 1/6 of the Bachelor's starting salary for the ensuing year.

D. Selection of summer school personnel will be made on the basis of those best qualified in the subject matter field and for teaching the type of group to be instructed. However, where two or more applicants are substantially equal in fitness, length of service in Arlington County will be a preferential factor. Those who do not receive summer school appointments will be so notified in writing with the list of the reasons therefor if the teacher so requests.

ARTICLE XI

Discipline

A. The Board and the Association agree that a committee will be appointed by March 1, 1968 to recommend specific plans for dealing with the problems created by disruptive and educationally handicapped students. It is expected that the committee will report its findings by October 1, 1968.

B. The committee will consist of twelve members, four appointed by the Superintendent, four appointed by the Association, and four by the County Council of PTAs. The committee will represent, insofar as is possible, all segments of the school staff.

ARTICLE XII

Teacher Protection

A. Policy

It is the policy of the Arlington School Board to provide all proper and reasonable support to employees in the discharge of their duties in the school system.

B. Funishing Legal Counsel

The Board will furnish legal counsel to employees in defense of legal actions arising out of the discharge of their duties within the scope of their employment in the school system, provided:

1. The employee is not entitled to such legal counsel by virtue of its availability through a personal or group insurance policy.

2. Such counsel, when provided, is selected from a list approved by the School System, provided, however, in the event the School Board has any policy of insurance which would provide legal defense in the circumstances, then the employee must accept legal counsel selected by the insurance carrier unless he pays for his personally selected counsel.

3. If such counsel is furnished in a criminal proceeding and the employee is found guilty, the employee shall reimburse the Board for all costs involved in providing counsel.

C. Reporting of Incidents

It is the responsibility of all employees to report immediately, in writing, to their principal or supervisor all significant incidents of alleged assaults, whether involving situations between pupils or between pupils and employees. It is the responsibility of the principal or supervisor to call promptly all significant complaints of parents, students or others to the attention of the employee or employees concerned when such complaints involve assaults.

D. Absence from Duties for Reasons of Injury

Whenever an employee is absent from school as a result of personal injury caused by an unjustified assault arising out of and in the course of his employment, he shall be paid his full salary for the period of such absence or the balance of that fiscal year, whichever is shorter, without having such absence charged to the annual sick leave or accumulated sick leave.

1. Any amount of salary payable pursuant to this section shall be reduced by the amount of any workmen's compensation award for temporary disability due to the said assault injury for the period for which such salary is paid.

2. The Board shall have the right to have the employee examined by a physician designated by the Board for the purpose of establishing the length of time during which the employee is temporarily disabled from performing his duties and, in the event that there is no adjudication in the appropriate workmen's compensation proceeding for the period of temporary disability, the opinion of the said physician as to the said period shall control.

E. Suspensions Pending Legal Action

If an employee is suspended or temporarily relieved of his duties because of pending legal action, such employee shall receive all pay and other benefits of his position until such action is resolved, but not beyond the end of the current fiscal year. Nothing herein shall impair or preclude the right of disciplinary action pursuant to 35-7.10 of the Personnel Policies of the School Board.

ARTICLE XIII

Grievance Procedure

Policy

It is the policy of the school system and the purpose of these procedures to secure, at the most immediate administrative level, possible equitable solutions to the problems which may from time to time arise affecting the welfare or working conditions of employees. These proceedings shall be kept as informal and confidential as may be appropriate at any level of the procedures. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as limiting the right of any member of the unit having a grievance or dispute to discuss the matter informally with any appropriate member of the administration.

I. Option A - Available to All Employees

A. The employee should first discuss the matter with his principal, division and department heads.

B. If the employee is still dissatisfied, or if he feels that he cannot follow step A, he shall notify the office of the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel, either in writing or by appearing at the Personnel Office in person, stating the reason for his complaint or grievance, including all pertinent facts in the case.

C. The office of the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel shall investigate the complaint and submit a report of his findings to the Superintendent within 30 days.

D. The Superintendent will act upon the report of the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel.

E. The final appeal shall be to the School Board.

II. Option B - Available only to employees eligible for membership in the organization recognized by the Board as representing professional employees. (Arlington Education Association)

A. Procedure

Since it is important that grievances or disputes be processed as rapidly as possible, the number of days indicated at each level should be considered as maximum and every effort should be made to expedite the process. The time limits specified may, however, be extended by mutual agreement.

In the event a grievance is filed on or after June 1, the time limits set forth herein shall be reduced so that the grievance procedure may be exhausted prior to the end of the school term or as soon thereafter as is practicable.

1. Level One - Principal or Immediate Superior

A member of the unit with a grievance or dispute shall first discuss it with his immediate supervisor or principal, either directly or through the AEA Director, with the objective of resolving the matter informally.

2. Level Two - Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Personnel

a. In the event that such aggrieved member of the unit is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level One, or in the event that no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after presentation of the grievance, he may file a written grievance with the PR&R Committee of AEA within five (5) school days after the decision at Level One or fifteen (15) school days after the grievance was presented, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the PR&R Committee shall refer it to the Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Personnel with its findings and recommendations.

b. The Assistant Superintendent shall represent the administration at this level of the grievance procedure. Within ten (10) school days after receipt of the written grievance by the Assistant Superintendent, the Assistant Superintendent shall meet with the aggrieved person in an effort to resolve it.

c. If a member of the unit does not file a written grievance with the PR&R Committee or forward a written grievance to the Assistant Superintendent within thirty (30) school days after the member of the unit knew or should have known of the act or condition on which the grievance is based, then the grievance shall be waived.

A dispute as to whether a grievance has been waived under this paragraph shall be subject to arbitration pursuant to Level Three.

3. Level Three - Superintendent

In the event that the aggrieved member of the unit is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Two, he may file a written request to meet with the Superintendent in an effort to resolve such grievance.

a. The person or persons involved at Level Two shall submit to the Superintendent written documents in support of their positions at Level Two which shall include all factors considered by the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel, the PR&R Committee and the aggrieved.

b. The Superintendent shall schedule a meeting with the aggrieved within ten (10) school days after receipt of request and shall render a decision within five (5) school days after the meeting, notifying the aggrieved of his decision in writing.

4. Level Four - School Board

In the event that the aggrieved member of the unit is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Two, or in the event no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days, after he has first met with the Assistant Superintendent, he may file a written grievance, indicating such dissatisfaction, with the PR&R Committee or the Board within five (5) school days after a decision by the Assistant Superintendent, or fifteen (15) school days after he has first met with the Assistant Superintendent, whichever is sooner. Within five (5) school days after receiving the written grievance, the PR&R Committee shall refer it to the Board. Within ten (10) school days after receiving the written grievance, a Committee of the Board shall meet with the aggrieved member of the unit for the purpose of resolving the grievance. However, the ultimate decision on the grievance at Level Four shall be rendered by the full Board.

5. Level Five - Impartial Arbitration

a. In the event that the aggrieved member of the unit is not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level Four, or in the event no decision has been rendered within ten (10) school days after he has first met with the Board Committee, he may, within five (5) school days after a decision by the Board or fifteen (15) school days after he has first met with the Board Committee, whichever is sooner, present a request in writing to the PR&R Committee or the Board to submit his grievance to arbitration. The PR&R Committee or the Board may submit the grievance to arbitration within fifteen (15) school days after receipt of a request by the aggrieved person.

b. Within ten (10) school days after such written notice of arbitration, representatives of the Board and the AEA or its designee shall agree upon and select an arbitrator or arbitrators at this meeting, a request for a list of five (5) arbitrators shall be made to the American Arbitration Association by the AEA. The AEA and the Board shall alternately strike a name from the list until only one (1) person remains who shall be the arbitrator.

c. The arbitrator or arbitrators so selected shall confer with representatives of the Board, the aggrieved member of the unit, and the PR&R Committee and hold hearings promptly and shall issue his decision not later than twenty (20) days from the date of the closing of the hearings, or, if oral hearings have been waived, then from the date the final statements are submitted to him. The arbitrator's decision shall be in writing and shall set forth his findings of fact, reasoning and conclusions on the issues submitted. The arbitrator shall be without power or authority to make any decision which requires the commission of an act prohibited by law or which is violative of the terms of this Agreement. The decision of the arbitrator shall be submitted to the Board, the aggrieved member of the unit, and the PR&R Committee. The arbitrator's findings are advisory to the Board.

d. The costs for the services of the arbitrator including per diem expenses, shall be borne equally by the Board and the AEA.

B. Rights of Teachers to Representation

1. No reprisals of any kind shall be taken by the Board or by any member of the administration against anyone by reason of participation in the grievance procedure or support of any participant thereto.

2. Any member of the unit or the Board may be represented at any stage of this grievance procedure by any person of his choice provided, however, that exclusive organizational representation shall be provided by the AEA. When a member of the unit is not represented by the Association, the AEA shall have the right to be present and to state its views at all stages of this grievance.

C. Miscellaneous

1. If, in the judgment of the PR&R Committee or the Executive Board of the AEA, a grievance affects a group or class of members in the unit, the PR&R Committee may submit such grievance in writing to the Assistant Superintendent directly and the processing of such grievance shall be commenced at Level Two. The PR&R Committee may process such a grievance through Level IV of the grievance procedure even though the aggrieved person does not wish to do so.

(See additional details and information in PR&R Procedures)

2. Decisions rendered at Levels One, Two, Three and Four of the grievance procedure shall be in writing setting forth the decision and the reasons therefor and shall be promptly transmitted to all parties in interest and to the PR&R Committee. Decisions rendered at Level Four shall be in accordance with the procedures set out in paragraph 5 (c).

3. All documents, communications, and records dealing with the processing of a grievance shall be filed separately from the personnel files of the participants.

4. Forms for filing grievances, serving notices, taking appeals, making reports and recommendations, and other necessary documents shall be prepared jointly by the Assistant Superintendent for Personnel and by the AEA and given appropriate distribution by the AEA so as to facilitate operation of the grievance procedure.

5. The Board reserves the right to file a grievance against the Association or an individual member for what it deems to be unprofessional conduct.

ARTICLE XIV

Group Hospitalization Insurance

Policy

All regularly employed personnel are eligible for enrollment in the group hospitalization program. This is a comprehensive coverage (Major Medical, Blue Cross-Blue Shield Plan). The School Board participates in the financing of the program by contributing 2/3 of the cost for full-time (30-40 hours per week) employees, 1/3 for those working 20-29 hours weekly, and 1/4 for those working up to 20 hours weekly. Family coverage is available.

For those employees who prefer to participate in the Group Health Association plan, the School Board contributes the same dollar amount as it contributes to employees participating in the Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan.

ARTICLE XV

General Provisions

A. It is understood that teachers shall continue to serve under the direction of the Superintendent of Schools and in accordance with Board policies as set forth in the Administrative Manual, as amended, provided that the provisions of this Agreement shall supersede and prevail over any conflicting provisions.

B. This Agreement shall constitute Board policy for the term of said Agreement, and the Board hereby amends its rules and regulations to the extent necessary to give effect to the provisions of this Agreement.

C. If any portion of this Agreement is ruled invalid for any reason, the remainder shall remain in full force and effect.

AGREEMENT

BETWEEN

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION, JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN

AND

THE JANESVILLE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

AGREEMENT

This Agreement entered into by and between the Janesville, Wisconsin, Board of Education on behalf of District No. Jt. I, City of Janesville, and Towns of Harmony, Janesville, LaPrairie and Rock, County of Rock, Wisconsin (Janesville Public Schools), herein referred to as the Board of Education, and the Janesville Education Association, Inc., herein referred to as the Janesville Education Association.

ARTICLE I. RECOGNITION

The Board of Education recognizes the Janesville Education Association as the exclusive representative for the following unit of employees:

All regular full time and all regular part-time certificated teaching personnel employed by the Janesville Board of Education, including guidance counselors and speech and hearing specialists, but excluding teaching principals, per diem teachers, psychologists, interns, recreational directors and all other employees, supervisors and administrators.

It is understood and agreed that an informal election will be held to determine if guidance counselors and speech and hearing specialists wish to be excluded from the unit. A separate determination will be made for each group. If a majority of a group wish to be excluded from the unit, an appropriate modification will be made in the foregoing unit description.

ARTICLE II. BOARD OF EDUCATION'S RIGHTS

Except as specifically modified by this Agreement, the Board of Education retains, without limitations, all powers, rights, and authority vested in it by all laws, rules and regulations, including but not limited to: The right to manage and control school properties and facilities; select and direct personnel; determine, manage and control the school curriculum; relieve employees from duties; take such action as it deems necessary to maintain efficiency in the operation of the school system; determine the methods, means and personnel by which the functions of the school district will be performed. The exercise of these rights shall not be subject to the grievance procedure.

ARTICLE III. NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES

Section 1. The Board of Education and Janesville Education Association to the extent they have a legal obligation so to do, will meet for the purposes of negotiating in good faith at reasonable times in a bona fide effort to arrive at a settlement on questions of wages, hours and conditions of employment. The parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

Section 2. All items proposed to be negotiated for a school year commencing July 1 and ending June 30 shall be submitted to the duly authorized agent of the other party in writing and according to the time table set forth in this Agreement. Negotiations shall be conducted on not less than an annual basis and shall be conducted during the year preceding the one in which the Agreement shall take effect.

Section 3. Time Table. All items proposed for negotiations shall be presented as follows:

(a) The Janesville Education Association shall make its proposals in writing, on or about May 1.

(b) The Board of Education shall make its proposals and counter-proposals in writing, on or about June 1.

(c) Thereafter, meetings shall be scheduled at the convenience of the parties to resolve any areas of disagreement that are raised by the exchange of said proposals and counter-proposals.

(d) The proposals and counter-proposals described above shall constitute the subjects of negotiations. No new matters may be interjected, except by mutual consent of the parties.

Section 4. Each party shall advise the other of the names of persons who shall constitute its bargaining committees, and negotiations shall be conducted between the bargaining committees. The parties shall have the right to change or substitute members of their respective bargaining committees at any time, upon giving the other party written notice in advance of effecting said change or substitution. The parties may utilize the services of attorneys and/or accountants. The parties will make available non-confidential information pertinent to the bargaining issues on reasonable request.

Section 5. Negotiations shall be closed to the public. The parties shall make every reasonable effort to agree on the content of any news releases made during negotiations. Only in the absence of such agreement may the parties make unilateral news releases. The parties will, upon request of either party, participate in mediation with a mediator appointed by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission or a mediator mutually agreed upon between the parties. Where the parties are legally required to do so, they will participate in fact finding procedures pursuant to Section 111.70(4)(e) of the Wisconsin Statutes.

Section 6. When an agreement has been reached on all issues framed for the negotiations as described above, the over-all Agreement shall be reduced to writing for submission to the Janesville Education Association and the Board of Education for approval. When the Agreement is approved by both parties, it shall be considered a final Agreement and shall be signed by duly authorized representatives of the parties.

ARTICLE IV. GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE

A grievance is defined as a dispute concerning the interpretation or application of this Agreement. If any employee covered by this Agreement, or the Janesville Education Association has a grievance, the following grievance procedure steps shall apply:

a. STEP ONE. An aggrieved party shall promptly attempt to resolve the grievance by oral discussion with the principal or principals or supervisor or supervisors of such aggrieved party.

b. STEP TWO. If the grievance is not resolved in Step One, it shall be reduced to writing by the grievant who shall, within ten (10) school days after the grievance occurs, file the grievance with the Superintendent of Schools, and mail a copy to the Janesville Education Association and the principal or supervisor involved. A grievance which is not timely filed and mailed, shall be deemed finally resolved against the grievant. The Superintendent of Schools shall arrange a meeting to discuss the grievance, within ten (10) school days after he receives the written grievance, and subsequent meetings may be scheduled as agreed by all parties. The Superintendent of Schools shall give a written answer to the grievance, to the President of the Janesville Education Association, and to the grievant, within ten (10) school days after the final meeting regarding the grievance.

c. STEP THREE. If the grievance is not resolved in Step Two, the grievant may file the grievance in writing to the Clerk of the Board of Education within ten (10) school days after receipt of the Superintendent's answer. A grievance not timely filed with the Board of Education shall be deemed finally resolved against the grievant. The Board of Education shall consider the grievance in closed session at its next regular meeting, or the following regular meeting or at any special meeting called for that purpose in the interim. The Janesville Education Association and the grievant shall have the right to present their position to the Board at such meeting.

The Board of Education shall within ten (10) school days after the meeting advise the grievant and the Janesville Education Association in writing of the action taken with regard to the grievance.

d. STEP FOUR. If the grievant is not satisfied with the action taken by the Board of Education, he may, within ten (10) days of receipt of written notice of said action, file a written request with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission to appoint an arbitrator to determine the matter and file a copy thereof with the Clerk of the Board of Education. If the request is not timely filed with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission and the Clerk of the Board of Education the grievance shall be deemed finally resolved against the grievant. The Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission shall appoint a Commissioner or member of its staff to act as arbitrator. The decision of the arbitrator shall be final and binding upon the parties. However, the arbitrator shall be limited to determining questions arising under this Agreement and shall not have authority to modify or change any of the terms of the Agreement.

In the event there is a charge for the services of an arbitrator, or for a transcript of proceedings, the parties shall share the expenses equally. Each party shall bear the expense of preparing and presenting its own case.

ARTICLE V. TEACHER'S CONTRACTS

Section 1. The individual teacher's contracts signed between employees and the Janesville Public Schools shall be in the form of Appendix A, which is attached hereto.

Section 2. Every effort will be made to rehire teachers in their same teaching assignment, absent a contrary agreement between a teacher and the Superintendent of Schools. The Superintendent of Schools shall promptly notify any teacher affected by a transfer or change in work assignment.

Section 3. Contracts shall be adjusted in September of each year to compensate for additional credits earned during summer school, extension work, or for any other applicable reason. Advanced approval from the Assistant Superintendent in charge of Instruction is required for professional work to be undertaken which would affect the teacher's salary schedule status.

ARTICLE VI. WORK DAY

The work day shall commence one-half hour before scheduled classes begin and end one-half hour after the last scheduled class ends; except where special problems occur with bus schedules, a comparable work day shall be devised to meet the particular bus problem. It is understood that the work day will vary between schools, depending upon class schedules. Any duties outside the defined work day shall be voluntary, except for employees performing added duties for which they receive differentiated pay or released time. However, it is recognized by the parties that teachers have a professional responsibility to perform services related to and consistent with the over-all aims of the school program outside of the normal work day.

ARTICLE VII. VERTICAL COMMITTEES

The parties approve of the use of Vertical Curriculum Committees in the various subject areas to better coordinate areas of elementary, junior and senior high school education. Meetings of Vertical Curriculum Committees and related curriculum demands shall be held during the defined work day or attendance at such meetings shall be voluntary.

ARTICLE VIII. JOINT POLICY STUDY COMMITTEE

A Joint Policy Study Committee shall be established for the purpose of making suggestions as to general policy for the Janesville Public Schools. The Committee shall be composed of three members of the School Board, three members of the Janesville Education Association, and three School Administrators, including the Superintendent of Schools who shall act as the Executive Secretary of the Committee.

ARTICLE IX. SALARY SCHEDULE

Section 1. The salary schedule in Appendix B attached hereto shall be applicable during the 1968-1969 school year. The Board of Education reserves the right to exceed the salary schedule for employees (new hires or current employees) it determines to have special skills, ability, training, or related work experience. Teachers may be held at their existing level in the discretion of the Superintendent of Schools.

Section 2. Differentiated Pay Schedules for Curricular and Co-Curricular Positions.

(a) The differentiated pay schedule for curricular positions in Appendix C attached hereto shall be applicable during the 1968-1969 school year.

(b) The differentiated pay schedule for co-curricular positions in Appendix D attached hereto shall be applicable during the 1968-1969 school year. However, it is understood that the Board of Education will meet with the Janesville Education Association negotiating committee to review the schedule as it relates to coaches for the 1969 portion of the school year.

Section 3. All payments for services rendered by employees pursuant to this Agreement are contingent upon the collection of taxes and the availability of funds for the operation of Janesville Public Schools.

ARTICLE X. EXTRA DUTY COMPENSATION - SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETIC EVENTS

Scheduled duties performed at the following Senior High School athletic events shall be compensated for at the rate of $10.00 per event.

Football Basketball Track
Swimming Meets

Scheduled duties performed at the following Senior High School athletic events shall be compensated for at the rate of $5.00 per event.

Cross Country
Gymnastics
Wrestling

Where more than one event takes place at the same time, scheduled duties performed at Senior High Athletic events will be paid for at the higher rate. There shall be no pyramiding of rates where more than one event takes place at the same time.

ARTICLE XI. PROFESSIONAL IMPROVEMENT REQUIREMENTS

Section 1. Teachers shall comply with the following professional growth requirements:

(a) Teachers holding a Bachelors Degree shall be required to complete 6 semester hours of approved study in a recognized college or university summer school program for each 4 year interval after receiving such degree. Updating of professional growth shall be completed within 4 years after completion of the preceding 4 year requirement.

(b) Teachers holding a Masters Degree shall be required to complete 6 semester hours of approved study in a recognized college or university summer school program for each 5 year interval after receiving such degree. Updating of professional growth shall be completed within 5 years after completion of the preceding 5 year requirement.

(c) Teachers who do not have a Bachelors Degree are required to make continuous advancement until a degree is obtained. The completion of 6 semester hours of study in a recognized college or university summer school program shall be required during each calendar year.

Section 2. During any four year period, professional staff members shall be reimbursed in an amount up to $200 for approved work toward a higher degree in a recognized summer school for only recognized semester credit hours. Payments shall be paid only for completed semester credit hours and shall be paid according to the following schedule:

COMPLETED SEMESTER HOURS	AMOUNT OF REIMBURSEMENT
6	$200
5	170
4	135
3	100
2	70
1	35

Payments of $100 or more shall be made in two equal installments, in October and February following completion of the credit hours. In order to be entitled to such payments, the staff member must be an employee of the school system at the time the payment is to be made.

Section 3. The Board may permit the following to be used to satisfy the foregoing summer school requirements:

(A) Equivalent credits for completed courses of study in a recognized Extension Division, or by attending Saturday or evening classes in a recognized college or university. No reimbursement shall be paid for such studies.

(B) Eight professional growth equivalency credits by:

a. In-service credits for regular school year term workshops. These may consist of such things as math workshops, science workshops, guidance workshops, mental health workshops, etc. One professional growth credit may be permitted for each 16 hours that a workshop is in session. No reimbursement shall be paid for such studies.

b. In-service credit granted for workshops conducted by the Board of Education during summer vacation time. Two professional growth credits may be granted for each week that a workshop is in session. A week's session is defined as six (6) hours daily for five (5) days a week. Compensation is granted in accordance with the Board of Education specifications for that year's workshop.

(C) Credit granted for service on state committees and other unusual services. Employment experiences which may enrich the individual as a teacher in the judgment of the Board of Education, are included. No reimbursement shall be paid for such services. Conditions for granting credit are as follows:

a. Applications for such credit must be made to the Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Instruction immediately following such experience.

b. The application must be outlined in such form as may be required by the Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Instruction so that evaluation of such a request may be made.

(D) Exchange Teacher Policy. In case any teacher employed by the Janesville Public Schools serves overseas for one school year as a result of being accepted in the Exchange Teacher Program, he or she may receive full professional growth for one full professional growth period of four or five years as the case may be. This must meet the approval of the Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Instruction.

(E) A combination of three credit hours from a recognized college or university, plus four alternative professional growth credits may satisfy the summer school requirement for a four year period.

(F) Once every 12 years a teacher may satisfy the summer school requirement by meeting the following travel requirements:

a. One credit will be allowed for each week of travel and eight credits will satisfy the summer school requirement. Travel may be one eight-weeks trip, one six-weeks trip plus one two-weeks trip or two four-week trips. One week trips may not be used to satisfy this requirement.

b. The following procedures shall apply to travel which shall satisfy the summer school requirement.

(1) By May 1 of the year in which the teacher intends to travel, an outline of the proposed trip(s) must be presented to the Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Instruction who will in turn give it to the Chairman of the J.E.A. Travel Committee. This outline should include (a) approximate number of miles to be traveled, (b) map of the intended trip, (c) places or things to be seen, (d) duration of the trip, (e) the value of the trip to the job the teacher is performing.

(2) By May 15, the J.E.A. Travel Committee will pass judgment as to whether or not this trip has merit enough to be sanctioned. Should the possibility of a trip arise toward the close of school or during the summer, the same required outline should be left with the Assistant Superintendent In Charge of Instruction or with his Secretary. The Board of Education shall make the final determination as to whether credit for the trip will be allowed.

(3) A complete summary of the trip must be submitted after the trip (in booklet form, including pictures, etc.) following the outline submitted. It is desirable that a travelog of the trip be given before a group or groups. The deadline for filing the summary of the trip with the Assistant Superintendent In Charge of Instruction is November 15 following the summer trip.

(4) After the written report has been evaluated by the J.E.A. Travel Committee, it will be placed on file in the office of the Assistant Superintendent In Charge of Instruction until the end of the school year.

(5) If a teacher can obtain semester credit hours for summer travel from a recognized college or university, he shall be reimbursed for such credits according to the schedule set forth in Section 2 above. Otherwise, there shall be no reimbursement.

(6) A combination of one four-week trip which qualifies for credit and three semester hours or four professional growth credits will satisfy summer school requirements.

Section 4. General Procedures

(a) In all instances, approval must be received from the Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Instruction prior to enrollment in a course (either at summer school or extension work), or prior to enrollment in workshops or prior to a trip. Special permission must be received from the Assistant Superintendent In Charge of Instruction prior to enrollment in a course which is not a requirement for a degree or which does not pertain to the teachers subject field.

(b) An official transcript of credits is to be on file in the office of the Superintendent of Schools before summer school expense will be paid and before advancement on salary schedule will be effected.

ARTICLE XII. SABBATICAL LEAVES

Effective during the school year commencing July 1, 1969 and ending June 30, 1970, the Board of Education shall budget sufficient funds for sabbatical leaves for certified professional staff personnel for the purpose of advanced study or research.

The following rules shall govern the administration of this fund:

a. Certified professional staff personnel must have served at least 7 consecutive years in the Janesville Public School system in order to establish service eligibility for sabbatical leave.

b. Either one year's leave up to one-half pay at the base salary schedule or one semester's leave up to one-half pay at the base salary schedule may be granted. In determining one-half pay differentiated pay shall not be taken into consideration.

c. The recipient of a sabbatical leave must agree by written contract to return to the Janesville Public School system and render at least two full years of service following completion of sabbatical leave, or to repay the sabbatical leave fund for amounts received as stated in the contract. The contract shall be secured by a judgment note.

d. Application for sabbatical leave shall be made to the Superintendent of Schools no later than March 1 preceding the beginning of the school year during which it will be taken. In determining if sabbatical leave will be granted, the Superintendent of Schools shall consider the value to both the professional staff member and the Janesville Public School system of the proposed study and/or research.

e. The recipient will not advance via yearly service increments during the period of the sabbatical leave. However, a general salary adjustment during the period of the sabbatical leave shall be applied to the recipient's contract upon return to the system.

f. No more than one percent of the professional staff eligible for sabbatical leave shall receive a sabbatical leave in any one year.

ARTICLE XIII. TRANSFERS AND VACANCIES

A teacher desiring a transfer to a new teaching assignment or to apply for a vacancy within the school system shall make a written request to his principal. The principal shall act upon the request and within ten (10) school days give the teacher written notice of his recommendation to the Superintendent of Schools. If the principal fails to give such written notice within ten (10) days or recommends that the request be denied, the teacher shall have the right to submit a written request to the Superintendent of Schools, with a copy to the principal involved. The determination of the Superintendent of Schools shall be final and binding.

ARTICLE XIV. INSURANCE COVERAGE AND TEACHER RETIREMENT

The Board of Education will continue to make the same payments which are presently being made for medical and hospitalization insurance, life insurance and the State Teachers Retirement Plan.

ARTICLE XV. SICK LEAVE AND ABSENCES

Section 1. "Days" or "school days" in sick leave or absence are counted as contract days including days taught, curriculum days, and other days included within the teacher's contracts.

Section 2. Sick leave may be accumulated to a maximum of 90 days for a 190 day teaching schedule. Professional staff assigned more than 190 days will receive pro-rata additional days leave. Professional staff assigned less than 190 days will receive pro-rata less days leave.

Section 3. When a teacher will be absent from work he shall give notice to his principal or the person designated by the Superintendent of Schools to receive such notice. If the absence is for consecutive days, the principal should be notified of the probable date of return.

Section 4. Professional employees under yearly contract shall be allowed in each school year 10 days of leave at full pay for the following reasons:

a. Personal illness (except that arising from pregnancy)
b. Quarantine

Section 5. Professional employees under yearly contract shall be allowed in each school year a maximum of six (6) days at full pay, when earned, according to the following schedule with the exception of teachers new in the system for their first two years (see Section 6 below). Any combination of the following absences shall not exceed six (6) days in any contract school year:

a. Serious illness or death in the immediate family -- not to exceed 6 school days when earned, with the exception of teachers new in the system for their first two years (see Section 6 below). The interpretation of "immediate family" shall be in the discretion of the Superintendent.

b. Funeral not of immediate family -- not to exceed 2 school days.

c. Graduation of members of immediate family -- not to exceed 2 school days. Wedding of a professional employee or a member of his immediate family -- not to exceed 2 school days.

Section 6. The unused portion of the annual leave may be accumulated to a maximum sick leave including the current sick leave (Section 4) and (Section 5) as follows:

	Reasons set forth in Schedule 4	Reasons set forth in Schedule 5
1st year teaching	10 days	2 days
2nd year teaching	20 days	4 days
3rd year teaching	30 days	6 days
4th year teaching	40 days	6 days
5th year teaching	50 days	6 days
6th year teaching	60 days	6 days
7th year teaching	70 days	6 days
8th year teaching	80 days	6 days
9th year teaching	90 days	6 days

Section 7. The Board of Education may require a physician's certificate or a certificate of a spiritual advisor if treatment is by prayer or spiritual means, as a basis of pay during leave after an absence of 3 days for personal illness, or as it may deem necessary in other cases.

Section 8. In the event the 6 days are exceeded or if death or serious illness of someone not within the listings above requires absence during all or part of a school day, whether or not a substitute is hired, a deduction to the extent of the cost of a substitute for the time involved will be made.

Section 9. Doctor appointments should be made after working hours, except in emergencies.

Section 10. One day's leave with pay for personal illness will be granted for summer school teaching each year and one day's leave with pay for death or illness in the immediate family (lineal relationship) will be granted each year. No cumulative leave is granted for summer school teaching. Notification of absence/leave is to be made to the Director of Summer Session.

Section 11. Leave with pay for professional meetings where the individual receives no compensation, falling on school days approved in advance by the Superintendent of Schools, will be granted as equitably as possible according to grade level or departments. If compensation is received, it will be deducted.

Section 12. All other absences will result in loss of pay based upon the daily rate involved in extent of the contract of the individual whether or not a substitute is hired.

Section 13. No deduction of salary shall be made for absences for accidents occurring in line of duty not to exceed ten days in any one school year. Such amounts shall not be deducted from the ten day personal illness allowance from which all other absences are deducted in computing accumulations.

Section 14. The Board will not grant leave with pay in addition to legal weekly compensation payments in accident compensation cases passed by the Industrial Commission.

Section 15. Every employee of the Board is covered under Chapter 102 known as the Wisconsin Workman's Compensation Act. Generally, under the act a person is entitled to compensation where he is an employee of the Board of Education and at the time of the injury is performing services growing out of and incidental to his employment. While an employee is on the way to work or is on the way home after leaving work he is generally not within the purview of the compensation act. However, there are instances where the job itself will require his presence at a particular place off the school premises. In such instances, it can be said that the school employee is performing services growing out of and incidental to his employment.

Section 16. Leaves before and after vacation period. All professional staff members are expected to be on the job until school closes before vacation periods and on the day school begins after vacation periods. If a teacher is attending an approved summer school program which requires early or late attendance necessary to fulfill requirements of the program, the Superintendent shall determine in his sole discretion whether or not loss of pay shall result. All other absences not covered in the Sick Leave and Absence Policy shall result in loss of pay.

ARTICLE XVI. PUBLICATION OF ARTICLES AND NEWS RELEASES

Section 1. The Board of Education encourages any staff member to publish articles of good quality in professional journals. It is suggested that any writer of such articles referring to the local school system be encouraged to check with the administration for accuracy.

Section 2. It is suggested that staff members clear news releases and publications concerning the education program of the Janesville Public Schools through the Superintendent prior to publication.

ARTICLE XVII. STUDY COMMITTEES

Parties agree to set up Study Committees to review the existing Board of Education policies regarding leaves of absence, including short term leaves of absence, and to study criteria to be used in determining credit for work related experience and special training and further to study the policy regarding outside activity. The composition of these committees will be determined by the parties, except that both parties shall have equal representation and the Superintendent of Schools shall be the Executive Secretary. Each Committee shall report to both parties upon completion of its study.

This Agreement shall have a term for the school year commencing July 1, 1968 and ending June 30, 1969 (the 1968-1969 school year), except that the following articles shall be effective as stated below:

1. The following articles shall be effective immediately upon the execution of this Agreement:

   a. Article I - Recognition
   b. Article II - Board of Education Rights
   c. Article III - Negotiation Procedures
   d. Article IV - Grievance Procedures
   e. Article V - Teacher Contracts
   f. Article VIII - Joint Study Committees
   g. Article XI - Professional Improvement Requirements
      The reimbursement for summer school credit hours provided in Section 2 of Article XI shall be effective starting with summer school for the year 1968.
   h. Article XIII - Transfers and Vacancies

2. The following articles shall be effective at the commencement of the teaching year defined in the teacher's contracts:

   a. Article VI - Work Day
   b. Article VII - Vertical Committees
   c. Article IX - Salary Schedules
   d. Article X - Extra Duty Compensation
   e. Article XIV - Insurance Coverage and Teacher Retirement
   f. Article XV - Sick Leave and Absences

State of New Jersey

Final Report to the Governor and the Legislature

Public and School Employees'
Grievance Procedure Study Commission:

Introduction
Basic Considerations
Recommendations

Introduction

The essential issues confronted by the Commission and its response must be viewed against the background of the conditions unique to New Jersey and the growing nationwide concern with problems arising from increasing organizational activity among public employees. The Commission's frame of reference included a legislative mandate and the State Constitution. In addition, the size and structure of public employment in New Jersey, the extent of employee organization, and the experience of other states and the federal government were factors affecting the definition of the Commission's approach and the development of its conclusions.

Under Chapter 170 of the Laws of 1966 of the State of New Jersey, as amended by Chapter 8 of the Laws of 1967, the Commission was "authorized, empowered and directed to study present procedures for the presentation of grievances by public and school employees and to develop and recommend, if they deem that such recommendations are necessary, a procedure or procedures for the presentation of grievances by public and school employees." Such a procedure "must take into consideration the rights and needs of public and school employees as well as a recognition of the legitimate concerns of the public in the efficient operation of government." To discharge its function, the Commission was directed to "study the respective situations of State employees, county employees, municipal employees, school district employees, employees of State, bistate and local authorities, and all other public employees."

Fundamental to the Commission's task was the provision in the New Jersey State Constitution, Article I, paragraph 19, that "Persons in private employment shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively. Persons in public employment shall have the right to organize, present to and make known to the State, or any of its political subdivisions or agencies, their grievances and proposals through representatives of their own choosing." In the opening phrases of the law establishing the Commission, the Legislature noted that this Constitutional provision "explicity distinguishes between persons in private employment and persons in public employment with respect to the constitutional right to bargain collectively;...."

In undertaking its task, the Commission invited interested parties to present their views. Four days of public hearings were held, and the proceedings were published. In addition several individuals and organizations submitted written statements and communications. A number of public officials and experts in the field of labor-management relations gave the Commission the benefit of their views in executive session.

The Commission undertook its work at a time when problems of labor-management relationships in public employment were being considered by official bodies in a number of states and organizations of public employees were becoming more active. Reports by state commissions in Michigan, New York, and Illinois and legislation in a dozen states provided a basis for identifying critical issues and various ways of dealing with them. Special attention was given to experience in Wisconsin, Michigan, and New York. To supplement information available in published documents from other states, the Commission conferred with officials administering public labor-relations programs in other states.

With this background of experience in other states, the Commission was able to focus on special aspects of public employment in New Jersey. Perhaps the most significant feature of the New Jersey situation is the absence of any general legislation dealing with collective negotiations in either public or private employment, except for the provision of voluntary mediation services in private employment through the New Jersey State Board of Mediation.

In the absence of any procedure for settling disputes in public employment, an interim report was issued in May, 1967, (see Appendix 3) calling on the parties to use any and all available voluntary procedures to assist in resolution of impasses. It also recommended legislation to establish responsibility for collective negotiation on the part of public employers and to authorize the New Jersey State Board of Mediation to enter public disputes at the request of the parties. The interim report did not lead to legislation.

The complexity of governmental structure in New Jersey is illustrated by the 1967 Census of Governmence which reported 1,421 local government units in the State including 21 counties, 335 municipalities, 232 townships, 522 independent school districts, and 311 special districts. Not counted in the total were 83 dependent school districts.

In February, 1967, New Jersey had an estimated 254,000 state and local government employees, including 48,000 in state government and 206,000 in local government. Of the total, 123,000 were in education and 131,000 in other activities, according to data prepared by the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry in cooperation with the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. U.S. Census Bureau statistics showing New Jersey public employment by function and by governmental jurisdiction are shown in the Appendix.

Until recently New Jersey has experienced relatively little activity by public employee organizations directed specifically toward collective negotiations. Of the quarter million public employees about 140,000 were members of public employee organizations in 1967.

The following membership among public employees in New Jersey was claimed by organizations presenting evidence to the Commission:

American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO	3,000
American Federation of Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO	3,000
Association of New Jersey State College Faculties	1,000
New Jersey Civil Service Association	40,000
New Jersey Education Association	57,000
New Jersey State Employees Association	5,000
New Jersey State Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO	6,000
New Jersey State Patrolmen's Benevolent Association and New Jersey State Firemen's Mutual Benevolent Association	22,000

In the Commission's judgment, the number and variety of public employing authorities and the consequent potential for organizational and procedural variation in labor-management relations require a flexible, evolutionary approach to legislation dealing with dispute settlement.

Not insignificantly, there were also about 67,000 federal employees in New Jersey covered by Executive Order 10988 which has since 1962 accorded employee organizations a limited degree of formal representation rights and a system of collective negotiations.

The example of the federal government under Executive Order 10988 stimulated nationwide interest at state and local levels, and the public sector began to evolve through a phase which had previously been experienced in private employment. To the extent possible the Commission has been alert to the applicability and limitations of private sector experience to public employment.

Throughout the period of the Commission's existence, public concern with basic issues of collective negotiations in public employment was mounting, and the activities of employee organizations were becoming more vigorous and widespread. The Commission has been increasingly aware of the need for constructive response by governmental authorities and at the same time impressed by the need for caution and flexibility in an extremely dynamic situation.

The national pace of labor organization and protest activities has been accelerating rapidly. A recent report by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (Work Stoppages Involving Government Employees, 1966) indicated that the nationwide total number of stoppages in 1966 was greater than the four previous years combined. Of 142 stoppages in the United States, none were reported by federal employees, nine involved state governments, and 133 were at local government levels. This concentration of strikes in local government suggests that substantial attention must be given to problems of county, municipal, and other units of local government.

The functional area in which reported stoppages occurred is also significant. Among those for which such detail was provided, there were 54 in public schools and libraries, 36 in sanitation services, 19 in administration and protection services, 17 in hospitals and other health services.

To put the extent of reported work stoppages into perspective they directly involved about 105,000 out of 8.3 million state and local employees, and about 2 days were lost due to stoppages for every 10,000 days worked. The corresponding ratio for private industry was [illegible] days in 1966. The subject matter identified with the reported stoppages was revealing. The major issues in 78 stoppages were salaries and related supplementary benefits. However, organization and recognition disputes were central in 36 cases, and matters of administration were the principal issues in 21 cases. Thus it appears that unresolved disputes are evident in various functional areas and that nonwage issues are a significant element in public sector collective negotiations.

The Commission was faced with the complex task of developing legislative recommendations designed to provide public employees with more effective and equitable procedures for resolving their problems with their government employers. It found that lack of machinery for resolving representation and substantive disputes has been a significant cause of dissatisfaction among public employees.

The other causes were related to compensation and working conditions which were beyond the direct competence and concern of the Commission. However, the importance of adequate wages and terms of employment as a prerequisite for constructive employer-employee relations cannot be over-estimated. Dispute settlement machinery alone cannot cope with these underlying factors, and work stoppages can only be minimized where appropriate attention is given to substantive conditions of work.

Basic Considerations

The fundamental task before the Commission is to identify the most effective way to implement the constitutional rights of New Jersey public employees to organize and to present grievances and proposals through representatives of their own choosing consistent with the protection of the general public interest and the maintenance of stable and effective Civil Service systems. The Commission has considered at length whether the existing grievance procedures under State and local laws and regulations should be supplemented by other procedures for the resolution of disputes affecting public employers and public employees; and, if so, what form these procedures should take. In particular, we are dealing with the issue whether there should be joint resolution of grievances and proposals by public employers and representatives of their employees through collective negotiations and the limits within which a system of dispute settlement should operate.

Since the New Jersey Constitution differentiates between the rights of persons in public and private employment, a prime concern is the difference between collective settlement of disputes in the two sectors. A major issue of public policy is whether the commonly accepted right in private employment to withhold services by concerted action extends appropriately to public employment.

The principal avenues are available to public employees for the redress of grievances and advancement of proposals. One is the redress of individual grievances as provided by existing Civil Service laws and regulations. The second is the traditional practice of interest groups seeking to advance their objectives through direct appeals to legislative bodies and public opinion, including political action with special relevance to wage issues not entirely within the province of executive authority. The third method is collective negotiation on issues amenable to resolution by employing authorities and organizations of public employees.

While these three approaches overlap and are not mutually exclusive, the Commission is concerned with the third approach. It has developed its recommendations in the area of collective negotiations with several fundamental policy considerations in mind.

First, the Commission believes that the Civil Service system must be protected, and the Civil Service procedures for the settlement of grievances must remain available to serve their intended purpose. However, these procedures must be supplemented by other procedures for settling disputes through collective negotiations. As President

Kennedy's task force noted in 1962 in recommending adoption of Executive Order 10988 providing certain collective negotiating procedures for federal employees:

> The task force wishes...to note its conviction that there need be no conflict between the system of employee management relations proposed... and The Civil Service Merit System, which is and should remain the essential basis of the personnel policy of the Federal Government....

Civil Service systems provide an established method of recruiting, selecting, and promoting government employees on the basis of merit. However, Civil Service systems on the whole do not establish a means by which employees acting in concert may promote the collective interests of civil servants. On the other hand, a system of collective negotiations and dispute settlement in public employment is compatible with Civil Service. Implementing legislation should not abrogate, modify, or hinder established Civil Service law, regulations, or procedures in New Jersey.

Second, the Commission believes strongly that the primary obligation for evolving and using appropriate and effective machinery for settling disputes should be placed on public employers and public employees organizations. They should be encouraged to carry out this obligation with the greatest possible latitude for them to develop feasible techniques with a minimum of statutory prescription.

Experience in other jurisdictions has indicated that a flexible approach is most conducive to the constructive evolution of stable employer-employee relationships. New Jersey should take advantage of the opportunity to develop machinery consistent with its history and institutions rather than to adopt solutions that may be appropriate to other state and local governments.

The Commission has considered and rejected compulsory arbitration as incompatible with the intent to place basic responsibility on the parties to achieve a settlement. The availability of mandatory third party determination is inconsistent with the context of a free economy and tends to encourage the parties to shift responsibility or to delay settlement in the hope of a favorable adjudication.

The Commission believes that the parties should have the fullest opportunity to make a voluntary system work, and there is ample evidence from other jurisdictions that compulsion should be a last resort rather than a first. Similarly, the Commission has concluded that experience elsewhere indicates the extreme difficulty of defining and applying effective sanctions, and attempts to specify sanctions, should be deferred until their need and feasibility can be ascertained.

If experience and events prove to the contrary, additional legislative direction can always be provided in response to demonstrated need. But at this early stage of development of public employee organization in New Jersey, a pragmatic approach offers the greatest promise of effectiveness in the public interest. We should preserve and adopt what is usable in the existing structure of labor-management relationships in the State and incorporate it where possible into a new framework to meet the requirements of the public service.

Third, the Commission's recommendations must give substance to the constitutional right of public employees to present "their grievances and proposals through representatives of their own choosing." This significant phrase implies that public employees have substantial rights to collective representation and negotiation, although perhaps not the full right of collective bargaining accorded to persons in private employment. The critical distinction is in the right to strike, which is commonly regarded as an essential ingredient in free collective bargaining.

The Commission has taken careful account of the varying judicial and administrative interpretations related to the legal right of public employees collectively to withhold their services. The Commission on balance believes that neither the public employer nor the public employee has the right to withhold services as a form of coercion to induce settlement of disputes.1/ It recognizes that both public sentiment and judicial opinion may alter over time. This is a contentious issue that is likely to be the subject of continuing legal action.

Governmental employers and employees have a mutual obligation to resolve disputes without interruption of service to the public. Community opinion and the Constitution of New Jersey now support this principle, and the Commission's proposals are predicated on the existence of such a principle in fact and in law. Consequently, the Commission's conclusions and recommendations focus on a system of relationships for resolving disputes compatible with the existing constitutional framework and mindful of the public interest which constrains both public employers and public employees.

The Commission recognizes that unauthorized work stoppages may occur in public employment and effective sanctions may be difficult to administer and enforce. The constructive approach, in the Commission's view, is to provide the fullest and most workable procedure for collective negotiation and resolution of disputes in public employment so that work stoppages will be minimized if not eliminated.

While the rights of persons in public and private employment differ, the Commission holds that the difference should be minimal. The public employer is sovereign, but responsible action by public employees cannot be expected unless they are given the greatest measure of freedom of action consistent with the denial to them of the legal right to strike, As experience in private employment suggests, stable negotiating relationships will benefit both public employees and the general public. Multiplicity of organizations claiming or possessing representation rights for the same group or unit of employees has long been regarded as undesirable. Multiple representation of employees encourages rivalries among employee groups and severely handicaps private and public employers in the development of effective negotiations and stable relationships.

Expert witnesses and representatives of interested employer and employee groups appearing before the Commission were almost unanimous in their opposition to multiple representation within any employee negotiating unit. Michigan, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts have recognized this danger and have sought to minimize it in some fashion, as did the federal government in Executive Order 10988. The New Jersey Department of Civil Service, in its presentation to the Commission, accepted this viewpoint and advocated restriction of multiple bargaining following the pattern of the federal executive order. Both the Illinois Governor's Advisory Commission on Labor-Management Policy for Public Employees

1/ Mrs. Williams, Mr. Kops, and Mr. Miller wish to note their objection to this policy insofar as it denies public employees the legal right to stop work in concerted action. They believe that public employees should enjoy the same rights as persons in private employment and that the prohibition of legal work stoppages by public employees should not be specified in this report or in recommended legislation. They wish to point out that the intent of the Constitution in Article I, para. 19, is subject to dispute and varying legal interpretations, and consequently the Commission should not accept the status quo as a basis for proposals. They believe the legislature has the power to regulate labor-management relations in public employment including the authorization of work stoppages, and that in any event the federal constitution guarantees the same basic freedom to withhold services to all citizens.

and the New York Governor's Committee on Public Employee Relations concluded that multiple representation was inadvisable.2/ The New York report recommended that the matter be left for further study and for settlement by the parties.

The Illinois Report specifically recommended that multiple representation be restricted on condition that individual employees have the right to process their own grievances so long as the settlements are not in conflict with the terms of the pertinent collective agreement. The New Jersey Commission has concluded that a comparable approach is pertinent in New Jersey and consistent with our legal framework.

Fourth, the Commission has sought to provide stability in negotiating arrangements; and for efficiency and equity, to devise a single system for settling disputes which would accord the same services and privileges to all State and local public employees in New Jersey with flexibility to accommodate occupational and institutional differences. As a practical matter wide variations among levels, units, and functions of government make it difficult to provide separate arrangements for a major group of employers or employees without providing similar arrangements for other groups.

And fifth, in devising an agency suited to New Jersey's circumstances, the Commission sought to provide for administrative effectiveness, political accountability, and maximum use of representative panels with a clear tripartite structure. An agency headed by a single executive was regarded as meeting these criteria more effectively than a multi-headed board or commission.3/

In concluding that the administrative agency should be located in the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, the Commission was guided by experience in other states and by the impracticality of creating a new administrative department of the executive branch of State government. The protection and independence of the Civil Service system as well as its function as a general personnel administration for the State make it inadvisable to link the new agency with the Civil Service Department. In reviewing the experience of other states, the Commission found that responsibility for labor-management relations in the public sector is vested either in independent agencies or in special state labor relations or mediation boards, even where their jurisdiction extends only to selected groups of public employees. The relevant New York State agency is an autonomous Board responsible to the Governor although located administratively in the New York State Department of Civil Service. The New York State law does not cover New York City, where the roughly comparable labor relations agency has no connection with the Civil Service system.

In its administrative design, the Commission has sought to include all dispute settlement in one division and to create another administrative division to enforce laws and regulations respecting public employment. The Commission believes that the experience of the private sector in dispute settlement should be applied to public employment when it is relevant and that functions of administration and enforcement that are pertinent only to public employment should be organized separately. Other states such as Wisconsin and Michigan have established a single agency providing dispute settlement services in both public and private employment, and this approach was taken in New Jersey for reasons of efficiency, economy, and flexibility.

New Jersey may be at the threshold of major developments in public personnel administration, but procedures for collective negotiations constitute only one element in an improved public personnel system. The promotion of stable relationships and minimization of personnel turnover require both competitive compensation and skilled management. Experience in other states indicates that these are particularly essential for effective regulation of governmental relations. Competent administrative and mediation talent is costly. Wisconsin has a professional staff of about twenty-five, and New York State already has twice the number, not including New York City. New Jersey may well begin more modestly in size, but must maintain the highest quality from the outset.

2/ In their reports, both issued in March, 1967.

3/ The recently created New York State Public Employment Relations Board has three members, but only the chairman serves full time.

Recommendations

1. The Commission recommends the enactment of legislation to facilitate and encourage the peaceful resolution of disputes in public employment and to require public employers at all levels of state and local government in New Jersey to meet with employees through representatives of their own choosing for the mutual resolution, within the law, of grievances and proposals. This legislation should encourage public employers and representatives of public employees to develop effective procedures for settlement of disputes with maximum flexibility to accommodate the varying needs and circumstances of individual governments, public programs, and professional services. Public employers and employee organizations should be empowered to use the facilities of appropriate public and private agencies and individuals to assist in the peaceful resolution of disputes on a voluntary basis with the mutual consent of the parties.

There is a duty to negotiate, and it is the basic obligation of public employers and public employee organizations to fashion and use their own dispute settlement machinery within the limits set by law. The procedures and machinery recommended below are to be utilized in the event that the parties are unsuccessful in resolving their own disputes, and the proposals are intended to encourage mutual resolution by the parties.

2. For the purposes of the recommended legislation, the terms "public employer" and "appointing authority" include the state of New Jersey and a county, municipality, township, school district, special district, department, board, commission, institution, agency or authority created by any thereof. A "public employee" is any person holding a position by appointment or employment in the service of a public employer, except elected officials, heads and deputy heads of departments and agencies, and members of boards and commissions.

3. Collective negotiations can be effective in public employment despite the fact that executive bodies often lack final authority to determine matters of wages, salaries, and working conditions and are limited to making recommendations to chief executives and legislators. Many issues can be resolved by negotiation between public employers and employee organizations. However, the scope of negotiations should be limited by the discretionary or recommending power of the appointing authority in public employment, which should guide both the definition of negotiating agencies and the range of subject matter considered. Accordingly, appropriate subjects for negotiation include the determination of public employees' terms and conditions of employment, such as salaries, wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment within the power of the appointing authority to determine or recommend.

4. The proposed legislation should protect the right of public employees to join or to refrain from joining organization for the purpose of collective resolution of disputes. Employees should continue to have the option of presenting individual grievances through the established Civil Service procedures or through procedures mutually agreed to by appointing authorities and employee organizations. Disposition of individual grievances should be consistent with agreements or understandings resulting from joint resolution of employment terms by collective negotiations where such may exist.

5. The Commission recommends one general procedure for settlement of disputes applicable to all groups and categories of state and local public employees. A new administrative body, The New Jersey Employment Relations Agency, should be created, headed by a full-time Director of the highest professional caliber, appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate to serve at the Governor's pleasure.

The Agency should have two divisions operating separately: a Division of Administration and a Division of Dispute Settlement. The Division of Administration would be concerned solely with the sector of public employment, and would deal with matters of determinating negotiating units, elections, recognition, certification of representative organizations and definition of negotiable issues. The Division should be empowered to establish and enforce regulations concerning these matters, including procedures for the disposition of unfair practice charges which should not be specified by statute.

The Commission believes that settlement of disputes in public employment can be materially guided by the experience in private employment with the mutual resolution of disputes by employers and employee groups. The Commission further believes that the use of a single division for settlement of disputes in both public and private employment would be more economical and efficient than administration through separate divisions for public and private employment.4/

Accordingly, the Division of Dispute Settlement should be responsible for assisting in the resolution of disputes in both public and private employment. It should be assigned discretionary authority to provide a range of procedures to resolve an impasse in joint negotiations, including voluntary mediation, fact finding, public reporting of fact finding, advisory arbitration, and where acceptable to the parties involved, binding arbitration. Dispute settlement services may be provided by staff mediators and per diem ad hoc specialists are required, including elected and appointed public officials having knowledge appropriate in specific functional areas and being acceptable to the parties. The Division should also continue to make available the voluntary arbitration panel service for grievance or contract dispute settlement now provided by the New Jersey State Board of Mediation.

Under the Commission's plan, the New Jersey State Mediation Board would be abolished and its functions and staff transferred to the new Agency. The New Jersey Employment Relations Agency would be administered through the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry with specific assurance of its managerial and fiscal autonomy and provision for the high level of technical and professional staff required.

For the performance of its work, the Agency should be authorized, subject to available appropriations, to appoint employees as required and to prescribe their duties and fix compensation in accordance with laws and regulations applicable to State employees.

6. The Commission recommends that two panels, one on Public Employment and one on Dispute Settlement in Private Employment, be established to advise the Director of the Agency on matters of policy and to recommend policy changes to the Director, the Governor, and the State Legislature. The members and chairmen of the panels should be appointed by the Governor and should receive per diem compensation and reimbursement for necessary expenses relating to panel activities. A single person may serve as chairman of both panels.

a. The Public Employment Panel should have eleven members: three public members, one of whom would be designated chairman; four representatives of public employers; and four representatives of public employee organizations. The Panel would consider policies of labor management relations in public employment, including matters of dispute settlement as well as administration and enforcement of statutory provisions concerning representation, elections, negotiating units, scope of negotiations, and related matters.

b. The Panel on Dispute Settlement in Private Employment should have seven members: Three public members, one of whom would be designated chairman; two representatives of private employers; and two representative of labor organizations in private employment. The Panel should provide advice on policy matters relating to voluntary settlement of labor-management disputes in private employment.

7. Within the Agency, the Division of Administration should deal with matters of public employment related to determination of relevant groups or units of employees for negotiating, elections, recognition, certification of representative organizations, and definition of negotiable issues. The Director of the Agency should be authorized to promulgate regulations and procedures necessary or desirable for effective administration and enforcement of the proposed statute.

With respect to the conduct of elections:

a. The Agency should be authorized to establish rules and procedures to determine employees' choice of a representative organization, the representation status of an employee organization, a proper negotiating unit, and certification of an employee organization as a representative organization for purposes of negotiation.

b. The Agency should determine the eligibility of individuals or specific groups of employees to participate in representation elections consistent with its determination in specific cases of the appropriate negotiating unit and the statutory definition of public employees.

c. When a majority of employees in a given negotiating unit have indicated by secret election a preference for a specific representative organization, no other organization should be designated, certified, or recognized for the purpose of collective negotiations, but this should not preclude an employee's right to process grievances individually.

d. Designation of a majority negotiating representative should bar a representation election for a specified period to be determined or approved by the Agency. When a representation election results in no designation of a negotiating organization, the Agency should have discretion to fix a time limit on another election.

e. An election should be mandatory to establish the initial arrangement concerning recognition of an employee organization by an employer.

With respect to other matters of administration:

a. A recognized majority organization must represent all employees in the relevant unit who wish to utilize its services for processing grievances whether or not they are members, and settlements negotiated by such an organization likewise must apply to all employees in the unit.

b. The Agency should be authorized to determine, when necessary, the appropriate negotiating unit. In doing so, it shall consider the "community of interest" among employees. Whether determined by the Agency or by the negotiating parties, negotiating units must be consistent with the jurisdiction of the government involved.

c. The subject matter covered in negotiations should be consistent with the discretionary or recommending authority of the public employer.

4/ Senator Stout, Mr. Kientz, and Mr. Kops wish to note their objection to the procedure which places the responsibility for dispute settlement in public and private employment in the same division of the Agency.

d. Dues deduction by an employer should be regarded as a right accompanying designation as a majority representative organization. It may be authorized only for such a majority designated organization and only with the express written permission of individual employees, who may withdraw such permission at any time.

e. The Agency should not intervene in matters of recognition and unit definition except in the event of a dispute.

f. The Agency should be authorized to study and resolve disputes related to appropriate subjects for negotiation and to refer impasses over negotiable issues to the dispute settlement machinery.

g. The duration of a negotiated agreement should not be specified by legislation. This matter should be left to the parties to resolve through negotiation.

h. Negotiated agreements should be written.

8. The Agency should be authorized to establish procedures for settling disputes in public employment, including the definition of an impasse and the time limits for subsequent action such as mediation or fact finding. These matters should not be fixed by statute. The Agency should be given discretionary authority to employ various procedures to resolve an impasse. In the event of an unresolved dispute, it should be authorized to intervene an offer third party mediation on its own initiative.

With respect to mediation services:

a. The Agency should also have authority to provide mediation services from its own full time staff or from panels of individuals serving on a part time basis. Such mediation services should be provided at no cost to the parties. The need for acceptance by the parties of individual mediators should be recognized as a matter of practicality.

b. The members of the two advisory panels should be eligible to participate in settling disputes in public and private employment and should receive appropriate per diem compensation for such services.

c. The mediation staff of the Division of Disputes Settlement should include the present staff of the New Jersey State Board of Mediation and such additional specialists as may be required for disputes settlement in the various fields or functions of government. The specialists should be available for settlement of disputes in subject areas where their particular knowledge or experience may be pertinent, such as education, health services, and protective services.

d. This staff should be supplemented as required by part time specialists compensated on a per diem basis, and officials or administrators of public agencies should be authorized to serve in such capacity when requested by the Agency or parties to a dispute. The assignment to disputes settlement activity of full or part time staff mediators should be at the discretion of the Agency.

To resolve disputes or encourage the parties to reach agreement:

a. The Agency should encourage the parties to use their own procedure for the settlement of a dispute, including fact finding. If they are unable to reach agreement, the Agency should have the discretion to employ appropriate techniques for settling the dispute.

b. In the event of an impasse the Agency should determine when fact finding should begin. It should also have the power to recommend or invoke fact finding, the cost of which should be borne by the parties equally.

c. The Agency should be authorized to determine a terminal date for resolving disputes. The deadline may be related to legally designated budget submission dates or to other significant functional dates such as the expiration of agreements or governmental service schedules.

Determination of a deadline by administrative action rather than by statute allows for the constructive flexibility that is needed in dealing with sensitive and contentious situations. In this, as in other aspects of its recommendations, the Commission believes that statutory procedures should be kept to a minimum. Instead, the Agency should be given wide authority to develop procedures appropriate to New Jersey's needs and to retain sufficient flexibility to respond to circumstances which cannot be fully anticipated.

9. As part of its evolutionary approach, the Commission believes that specific statutory sanctions should be avoided. Enforcement should be sought through the courts as at present. The prevailing public and legal opinion barring strikes in public employment should be expressly incorporated into the statute creating the new agency.

10. The Agency should be empowered directly in cooperation with the Civil Service Commission and other governmental, educational, and research organizations, to develop and apply research and training programs to assist employers and public employees effectively to discharge their obligations.

Effective administration of dispute settlement machinery requires preparation and training for public officials at all levels, and substantial resources for this must be made available. Research and education must be given high priority so that experience can be applied to improve techniques. The best statutes and procedures will not minimize disputes unless public employers and employees alike have both the knowledge and skills required for constructive dispute settlement.

In addition to skills in the procedures of collective negotiation, fuller knowledge and understanding of developing trends in public employment is essential. Adequate communication between public employers and public employees provides a foundation for understanding and a disposition toward accommodation.

Further, increasing employee organization requires a response for the public employer beyond the province of collective negotiation. The organization and functioning of management processes in public employment provide the context in which mutual resolution of disputes takes place. Pressures for clarification of administrative policy and procedure are generated by increasing employee participation, and in turn, the generation and disposition of grievances is in part a consequence of management action. The Commission recognizes the contribution which management at all levels in the public service must make in creating an institutional environment in which a constructive response to the opportunity for participation will be maximized. Consequently, the need for research and the practical application of the findings through training in both general management and in labor-management relations cannot be overstressed.

Description and Analysis

NEW HAMPSHIRE SUPREME COURT APPROVES "UNION SHOP" FOR PUBLIC EMPLOYEES

The Berlin Police Union, Local #1444, of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFL-CIO), sought to test the validity of certain provisions of the contract negotiated with the Berlin Police Commission. One provision tested before the New Hampshire Supreme Court was their "union shop" clause.

In its decision the court stated:

The so-called union shop clause (article 3, section 1) is qualified and limited by its terms. The clause in full reads as follows: "Whenever re-employments are made or the police department hires new employees, they shall within sixty working days become members of the Union Local #1444 by presenting to the police department a proper authorization, approved by the Union president, for the collection of their dues." (emphasis supplied) There is no requirement in this clause, or any other, for maintenance of membership in good standing. This clause, together with the "check-off" clause (article 4, section 1) for union dues, imposes a financial obligation only. The union cannot cause the discharge of an employee, who has resigned from or has been expelled by the union for any reason other than his withdrawal of the check off authorization.

Thus, it appears that the Court approved not a union shop clause which would actually require union membership, but an agency shop clause which requires the payment of union dues, or its equivalent. The Michigan Labor Mediation Board approved the agency shop provision in a January 1968, opinion (Negotiation Research Digest, March 1968, C-1).

Both the Supreme Court and the Michigan Labor Mediation Board have viewed the payment of dues or its equivalent to the union (the representing organization) as a reasonable and proper union security clause. The MLMB, which supervises the administration of the negotiation statute for public employees in the state, summarized the case for the agency shop clause in the following manner:

A requirement that employees pay their share of negotiating and administering a collective bargaining agreement neither discourages nor encourages membership in the labor organization selected by the majority of employees in the bargaining unit to represent them. It is not discriminatory, as the requirement that each employee pay his pro rata share of the costs applies alike to all employees in the bargaining unit, whether they are, or are not, members of the union.

PLANS FOR JUNE 1968 ISSUE OF NEGOTIATION RESEARCH DIGEST

The 1967-68 survey of written negotiation agreements in education is scheduled to be concluded in sufficient time to allow publication of some final survey data in the June 1968 Negotiation Research Digest. Some of the data from the survey planned for inclusion are:

• Data below will be provided by states for both 1966-67 and 1967-68 so that appropriate comparisons may be made.

• The number of school systems with and without agreements, and the number of instructional personnel employed in these school systems.

• Representation of instructional personnel for negotiation purposes by affiliates of the National Education Association, the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO), and independent groups. Tables for number of instructional personnel represented and number of school systems with exclusive representation by each group will be provided.

• A complete listing for each state of all agreements on file in the NEA Research Division depository and verified for 1967-68. The listing will provide the name and location of the school system, the recognized organization(s), the number of personnel represented, national affiliation of the recognized organization(s), and the year an agreement was first filed with the NEA Research Division depository.

Other content in the issue will include the text of the Michigan Supreme Court decision in the case of School District for the City of Holland v. Holland Education Association, which relates to the legality of a court injunction stopping a teacher strike when a collective bargaining agreement has not been signed. The Framingham (Massachusetts) agreement will be published in Section D: Agreements. This agreement is in two parts: Unit A, for the teachers and others in their bargaining unit, and Unit B, for members of the bargaining unit for administrators.

PROCEDURAL AGREEMENTS FROM FIVE STATES

The following agreements are reproduced in Section D: Agreements of this issue:

Agreement	Personnel represented	State	Page
Altoona Area School District and Altoona Area Education Association (NEA)	700	Pennsylvania	D-1
Logansport Education Association (NEA) and Logansport Community School Corporation	243	Indiana	D-3
Marshall Education Association (NEA) and (Marshall) Independent School District 413	102	Minnesota	D-5
Ralston Board of Education and Ralston Teachers Association (NEA)	126	Nebraska	D-8
Miamisburg Education Association (NEA) and Miamisburg City School District	204	Ohio	D-10

Including the five agreements above and the one to be reproduced in the June issue (Framingham, Massachusetts), the Digest will have reproduced in its first volume 25 agreements from 20 states, 11 of which were comprehensive.

MINORITY ORGANIZATION CANNOT INTERVENE IN GRIEVANCE PROCESS

Situation: You are a teacher in the Livonia, Michigan, Schools. The elected bargaining agent is the Livonia Education Association (NEA), but you are a member of the Livonia Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO). You file a grievance which is taken to Step Two of the grievance procedure with the approval and assistance of the LEA. You are apparently satisfied with the disposition of the grievance at Step Two because you do not pursue it further. At this point, and without your knowledge and concurrence, can the Livonia Federation of Teachers file charges against the school system?

No, said the Michigan Labor Mediation Board. The case involved a LFT member writing his interpretation of a clause in the agreement between the LEA and the school system, duplicating it and sending it to members of his staff. The LFT filed charges of coercion because of a letter the superintendent wrote to the LFT member involved. In dismissing the charges, the MLMB stated:

The charge was filed by the Livonia Federation of Teachers (which organization is not the collective bargaining representative of teachers of the Respondent) without the concurrence of knowledge of Ernst. He was unaware that it had been filed until shortly before the hearing on April 10, 1967. He was not a witness at the hearing. Obviously, he did not consider that he had been coerced or restrained by the letter of January 17. The letter contains no direct threats nor any innuendo from which restraint or coercion could be implied.

For the foregoing reasons, it is concluded that the charge is without merit and should be dismissed.

Text of the decision and the trial examiner's recommendations begin on page C-4.

TEACHER FACILITIES PROVISIONS IN 1966-67 COMPREHENSIVE AGREEMENTS

What provisions on facilities for teachers are being included in comprehensive agreements between teacher organizations and school boards? What kinds of facilities are most commonly included in such provisions? To answer these questions, the NEA Research Division analyzed the 1966-67 comprehensive agreements for 12 specific kinds of facilities. However, because of the diversity of clauses and provisions, the table given here can only indicate whether the agreements mentioned one or more of the 12 specific facilities for teachers.

A fictitious example of an article incorporating each of the listed facilities follows:

Article XX

Teacher Facilities

The school board agrees to provide:

1. (a) Storage space in each classroom for instructional materials and supplies; (b) locked storage space for a teacher's personal effects provided the school district shall not be liable in case of theft from such storage space.

2. A suitable desk and chair for each teacher.

3. A workroom for each school for the teachers' use in preparing instructional materials. This workroom shall be equipped with at least a typewriter and a duplicating machine. Additional equipment may be added at a later date.

4. Another room, in addition to the workroom, above, suitably furnished and restricted to staff use for a faculty lounge. Smoking shall be allowed in the faculty lounge.

5. A telephone in each faculty lounge for the reasonable use of the staff. Teachers making toll calls shall record them and be held responsible for such charges.

6. (a) Separate restrooms for men and women, restricted to adult use. (b) Restrooms shall be kept clean and well-lighted.

7. Adequate lunchroom space separate from the children.

8. Adequate paved parking facilities on the school grounds restricted to staff use.

9. All new school construction (or remodeling) with a communication system whereby the teacher may initiate communication with the school office.

10. A soft-drink vending machine for the faculty lounge upon majority request of a school faculty. The faculty organization shall be responsible for the maintenance of said vending machine; profits therefrom shall be added to the faculty organization scholarship fund.

The analysis which follows is the second and last one to be made from the 1966-67 agreements; future analyses will be made from the 1967-68 agreements. Negotiation Agreement Provisions, 1966-67 Edition (Stock No. 841-24006, $15) provided the basic content information on facilities for teachers in agreements by listing the agreements with such a provision to be examined.

SUPREME COURT

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

Coos,
No. 5567

PAUL TREMBLAY & a.

v.

BERLIN POLICE UNION & a.

Argued January 6, 1967.

Decided January 30, 1968.

Petition for declaratory judgment (RSA 491:22) to test the validity of certain provisions of a union contract negotiated on December 13, 1965, between Local Union #1444 of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees and the Berlin police commission. The plaintiffs are Paul Tremblay, the city marshal of the city of Berlin, his assistant, and two police officers Edgar LaPlante and Carl Giordono. The defendants are the Berlin police department Local Union #1444 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and the Berlin police commissioners. The parties submitted an agreed statement of facts and questions of law raised by the pleadings were reserved and transferred without ruling by the Court. (Grant, J.).

The pertinent part of the agreed statement of facts is as follows:

"1. That on December 13th, 1965, the Police Commissioners for the City of Berlin, did recognize the local Union #1444 as the sole and exclusive representative of all employees of the Police Department except the Chief and his assistant, for the purposes of bargaining with respect to wages, hours of work, and working conditions acting under the alleged authority granted to them by New Hampshire Revised Statutes Annotated, Chapter 31, Section 3 Supplement, 'Towns may recognize unions of employees and make and enter into collective bargaining contracts with such unions.'

"2. That on December 13, 1965, the Union and the Berlin Police Commission executed a contract, a copy of which is annexed to the petition.

"3. Article II, Section 1, of the contract recognizes that the Union is the sole and exclusive representative of all employees for the purpose of bargaining with respect to wages, hours of work and working conditions.

"4. Article III, Section 1, of the contract establishes a Union Shop.

"5. Article VII, Section 1, of the contract, entitled 'Vacancies,' provides that the employee with the highest seniority shall be given first opportunity to fill a vacancy providing he is qualified.

"6. Article VIII, Section 1, provides that reduction in force or rehiring shall be done on the basis of seniority.

"7. Article IX, Section 1, provides that temporary employees shall be hired before new employees, provided they can qualify.

"8. Article XVII, Section 1, sets up a procedure for settling grievances, which among other things, provides for an impartial arbitrator, whose decision shall be final and binding on all parties, with the further proviso that this clause shall comply with and be subordinate to the New Hampshire State Law.

"9. Article XXIII, Section 1, provides for payment to officers for appearance in Court and controls the manner in which the officers shall issue subpoenas.

"10. That your Petitioners Edgar LaPlante and Carl Giordono, Police Officers of the Berlin Police Department holding the rank of Sergeant Detective initially refused to give individual written authorization to allow the deduction from their weekly salary of $4.00 per four (4) week period for Union dues as demanded by Article IV, Section 1 of the above named contract entitled, Check-Off, but were finally constrained to sign by the Petitionees Local Union #1444 and the Petitionees the Police Commissioners for the City of Berlin upon information and belief expressed to them by the said Petitionees that their failure to sign the written authorization as demanded by Article IV, Section 1, would result in their dismissal from the Police Force as the Police Department for the City of Berlin was now a Union Shop.

"11. That the Petitionees Local Union #1444 and the Police Commissioners subsequent to the execution of the written contract aforementioned, orally agreed to raise the pay of your Petitioners Edgar LaPlante and Carl Giordono by $5.00 per week. This raise of salary to replace the right of these two (2) Petitioners to overtime pay as stipulated in Article XII, Section 2 of the above contract, and court time compensation as stipulated in Article XXIII, Section 1 of this same contract."

Earl F. Gage (by brief and orally), for the plaintiffs.

Arthur J. Bergeron for the Berlin Police Commissioners, filed no brief.

Broderick, Craig, Bourque & Costikas (Mr. William H. Craig orally), for Berlin Police Department Local Union #1444 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

PER CURIAM. The "right of public employees to join or become members of labor unions is becoming increasingly recognized." American Federation of State &c. Employees v. Keene, 108 N.H. 68, 69. See Anderson, Legal Aspects of Collective Bargaining in Public Employment, in Developments in Public Employee Relations: Legislative, Judicial, Administrative, 128 (Warner [illegible]). The corresponding right of a municipality to [illegible] into a collective bargaining contract with a labor u[illegible] has been recognized by statute since the enactment [illegible] Laws 1955, ch. 255. Manchester v. Guild, 100 N.H. 507, 511. That statute, which is a constitutional exercise of legislative power (N.H. Const., Pt. II, Art. 5; Opinion of the Justices, 101 N.H. 544; Exeter v. Kenick, 104 N.H. 168, 170) reads as follows: "Towns may recognize unions of employees and make and enter into collective bargaining contracts with such unions." RSA 31:3 (supp). In 1962 the city of Berlin passed an ordinance which expressly empowered all present and future city boards and commissions to recognize unions of their employees and to enter into collective bargaining contracts with such unions.

The plaintiffs contend that the police commissioners and the police department employees are state officers and not city officers and therefore the statute authorizing collective bargaining by municipalities (RSA 31:3 (supp) has no application. This contention might have had merit under former legislation where police commissioners were appointed by the state. Gooch v. Exeter, 70 N.H. 413; Gibbs v. Manchester, 73 N.H. 265; Gilbert v. Berlin, 76 N.H. 470; Pollard v. Gregg, 77 N.H. 190. However under more recent home rule legislation (Laws 1963, 275:3) the city of Berlin voted to authorize the mayor and city council to appoint police commissioners instead of their appointment being made by the state. Laws 1963, 275:8. Under this home rule legislation it is clear this police department is managed by the police commissioners who are answerable in turn to the mayor and council of the city (Laws 1963, 275:4-6) who are municipal officials whom the statute authorizes to enter into collective bargaining contracts. (RSA 31:3 (supp)). This conclusion is buttressed by the fact that an attempt to retain appointment of police commissioners by the state was defeated when the home rule legislation was being considered in the Senate. See 1963 Journal of the Senate 946. The power of municipalities to recognize unions of their employees is discretionary and not compulsory and the power resides in the mayor and city council. American Federation of State & c. Employees v. Keene, 108 N.H. 68, 70. This discretionary power was exercised by the mayor and city council of Berlin by its ordinance of December 3, 1962, whereby the city expressly accepted the provisions of RSA 31:3 (supp) and validly conferred upon all city boards and commissions the authority to place those provisions into effect. Therefore we conclude that the Berlin police commissioners had authority to enter into a collective bargaining contract with the union. See Comment, Municipal Employees' Unions; The Climb up Labor's Ladder, 4 Duquesne L. Rev. 137, 141 (1965); Stutz, Collective Bargaining by City Employees; 15 Lab. L. J. 696 (1964); Collective Bargaining for Public Employees; An Analysis of Statutory Provisions, 8 B.C. Ind. & Com. L. Rev. 273 (1967); Gallagher, Municipal Collective Bargaining, An Introduction 11, New Hampshire Town and City, 14 (1968).

This collective bargaining agreement is assailed as being an abdication and surrender of municipal sovereignty and "completely contrary to the public interest." As we read and interpret the collective bargaining agreement it contains certain overriding provisions which are designed to make all delegation of authority to the union consistent with and subject to the ultimate authority of the police commission and mayor and council to manage the police department consistently with the statutory directives. Under the contract the union has agreed that there shall be no strikes, slowdowns, stoppage of work "or any interference with the efficient management of the Police Department." Art. 20, section 1. Thus the interest of the public in having uninterrupted police protection is explicitly preserved. See Manchester v. Guild, 100 N.H. 507, 511. Article 2, section 1 provides that the "Union unreservedly accepts and recognizes the necessity of the Police Department to operate within its budget as set by the City Council." This is an express recognition that the union must operate within the municipal fiscal system and that it is bound by the discretion of the city council. Article 17, section 1 relating to the disposition of grievance procedures and providing for arbitration was specifically amended as follows: "Notwithstanding any provision of the within arbitration clause, the said clause and all provision[s] thereof shall comply with and be subordinate to the N.H. State Law." Additionally in Article 20, section 1 it is provided that "nothing in the...paragraph shall be construed so as to conflict with applicable state laws." These quoted provisions of the contract demonstate the objective of both the union and the city to enter into a collective bargaining agreement that is legal and consistent with all governing state laws.

The plaintiffs contend that police commissioners have lost the power to make rules and regulations. Article 19, section 3 places the responsibility for making regulations for the health and safety of the employees in the police department and the union members agree to comply with them. The provision that either party to the agreement may request a meeting "to discuss such regulations" is unobjectionable. Article 19, section 2 makes explicit what is already implicit in the agreement which is that the police commissioners will abide by the terms of the contract and that other rules and regulations shall not conflict therewith. The commissioners still have "full authority to make and enforce all rules and regulations for the government of the police force." Laws 1963, 275:5.

The grievance procedure clause of the agreement (Article 17, section 1), is attacked as an unlawful delegation of municipal authority to the union. This clause provides, after a series of preliminary procedures, for an impartial arbitrator to be appointed by the state board of arbitration whose decision is to be final and binding on the parties. If that were the end of the matter, it would present a serious question. But, as previously noted, the clause was specifically amended to provide that it "shall comply and be subordinate to N.H. State Law." This amendment subjects the grievance and arbitration procedure to Laws 1963, 275:5 as well as the state arbitration statute (RSA 273:12-27) which contains a provision that a party may give a notice in writing not to be bound by the arbitrator's decision. RSA 273:22. We conclude that Article 17, section 1 is not an unlawful delegation of the city's authority to control the police department. See Norwalk Teachers Ass'n. v. Board of Education, 138 Conn. 279-280; Symposium, Collective Bargaining in the Public Service, 22 Pub. Adm. Rev. 1, 8, 18 (1962); Anderson, The U.S. Experience in Collective Bargaining in Public Employment, in Collective Bargaining in the Public Service; Theory and Practice 21 (Warner ed. 1967).

The so-called union shop clause (Article 3, section 1) is qualified and limited by its terms. The clause in full reads as follows: "Whenever re-employments are made, or the police department hires new employees, they shall, within sixty working days become members of the Union Local #1444 by presenting to the police department a proper authorization, approved by the Union president, for the collection of their dues." (emphasis supplied) There is no requirement in this clause, or any other, for maintenance of membership in good standing. This clause, together with the "check off" clause (article 4, section 1) for union dues, imposes a financial obligation only. The union cannot cause the discharge of an employee, who has resigned from or has been expelled by the union for any reason other than his withdrawal of the check off authorization.

It is argued that this union shop clause of the collective bargaining agreement is invalid as an unlawful delegation of municipal power and is "ultra vires and void." There is no law which prohibits a union shop in this state and RSA 275:1 prohibits any effort to coerce or compel any person into an agreement "not to join or become a member of any labor organization" as a condition of securing or continuing in any employment. The Legislature has declared as a matter of public policy that collective bargaining for municipal employees is a proper public purpose. In making this declaration it has not excluded police departments (as some statutes do) or other public employees in equally essential positions. cf., Laws 1963, 278:1, now RSA 38-A:18, II (supp), which applies to transit employees. Opinions may differ as to the desirability of collective bargaining for public employees but that discretionary decision has been lodged in the municipalities. One city may determine that union recognition results in efficient operation of its departments; another city may decide that public employees should have less rights than private citizens. See Weisenfield, Public Employees-First or Second Class Citizens, 16 Lab. L. J. 685 (1965); Cornell, Collective Bargaining by Public Employees Groups, 107 U. Pa. L Rev. 43 (1958).

In the present case the police commissioners and the union have, in effect, declared in advance under the collective bargaining agreement that union security is a reasonable requirement for the efficient and orderly administration of the police department. Stutz, Collective Bargaining by City Employees, 15 Lab. L. J. 696, (1964). This is a decision they have the right to make because (1) the Legislature authorized it, (2) ultimate control remains in the municipality and the police commissioners to hire and fire personnel and manage the police department, (3) the overriding provisions of the collective bargaining agreement provide that the powers delegated to the union are subordinate to and must be consistent with the powers of the city and its agents in its control over the administration of the police department. Laws 1963, 275:4, 5. See, Comment, Labor Problems in Public Employment, 61 Nw. U. L. Rev. 105, 133 (1966).

Our conclusion that this union shop clause, as construed is valid is equally applicable to the seniority provisions (articles 6-10) and for the same three reasons mentioned in the previous paragraph.

Petition dismissed.

GRIFFITH, J., took no part in the decision.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

LABOR MEDIATION BOARD

In the Matter of:

LIVONIA BOARD OF EDUCATION,
Respondent,

-and-

LIVONIA FEDERATION OF TEACHERS,
Charging Party,

-and-

LIVONIA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION,
Intervenor.

Case No. C67 C-15

DECISION AND ORDER

The Livonia Federation of Teachers, Charging Party, filed an unfair labor practice charge dated March 2, 1967, against the Respondent, Livonia Board of Education, and complaint was issued. The Intervenor, Livonia Education Association, is the collective bargaining representative of the teachers in the Respondent School District, not the Charging Party.

The charge alleged that the Respondent had engaged in unfair labor practices within the proscription of Section 10 of the Michigan Public Employment Relations Act, hereinafter referred to as PERA.[1]

The original charge consisted of two parts, (a) and (b). The (a) charge was withdrawn at the commencement of the hearing. The (b) portion of the charge consisted of an allegation that the Superintendent of Schools of the Respondent, on January 17, 1967, wrote one of the teaching employees of the Respondent instructing him that he had no right to release for general consumption among the teachers of the District interpretations of the collective bargaining agreement between the Respondent board and the Intervenor. The charge further alleges that the contents of the letter constituted a threat to the employee for exercising rights guaranteed and protected under PERA.

A hearing was held on the charge before Trial Examiner, James R. McCormick in Detroit, Michigan, on April 10, 1967, after which briefs were filed by the attorneys for all parties. The Trial Examiner, on June 23, 1967, issued his Findings of Fact, Analysis, Conclusions of Law and Recommended Order, in which he found the Respondent to be guilty of a violation of Section 10 of PERA in that the letter of January 17, 1967, "interfered with, restrained and coerced its (Respondent's) employees within the meaning of Section 10 of PERA in the exercise of their rights guaranteed in Section 9 of PERA." He further recommended, in order to effectuate the purposes of the Act, that the Board enter an order requiring the Respondent to cease and desist from such activities, to post a notice where they are customarily posted on the premises of the Respondent for a period of thirty days, notifying the employees of the Respondent of the findings of this Board regarding restraint and coercion and advising the employees of their rights to communicate their views and criticisms of the collective bargaining agreement and their interpretation thereof, or any other views they may have concerning wages or conditions of employment, without notifying the Respondent board in advance.

On July 13, 1967, the Respondent board, through its attorneys, filed exceptions with this Board to the Findings of Fact, Analysis, Conclusions of Law, Recommended Order and Notice to all Employees of the Trial Examiner.

The Facts which resulted in the filing of the charge are:

Roy E. Ernst, a teacher at Franklin High School of the Respondent, filed a grievance on October 24, 1966, in accordance with the grievance procedure contained in Article XVI of the collective bargaining agreement between the Respondent and the Intervenor. He contended that the Respondent had misinterpreted the agreement by stating that teachers were required to attend certain extra-curricular functions without additional compensation. The grievance was answered on October 27, 1966, by Mr. Ammerman, the building principal, in which he stated that teachers would be expected to attend the Parents Meeting at Franklin High School on November 9 without additional compensation, as that was required under the administrative interpretation of the agreement.

Not being satisfied with the disposition of the grievance at the first step, an appeal was taken by Ernst to the next step in the grievance procedure. Article XVI of the agreement requires that an appeal to the second step of the grievance procedure must be approved by a committee of the Intervenor bargaining representative, and this was done. This committee took the position that the use of the word "expect" was not in accordance with the provisions of the agreement, which provisions it contended provided for voluntary attendance only at extra-curricular activities.

The grievance appeared to be satisfactorily resolved in a meeting between the executive secretary of the Intervenor and the Superintendent of Schools, wherein it was agreed that attendance at extra-curricular functions was not compulsory; but teachers were expected to attend unless unusual circumstances interfered with their attendance.

Subsequently, the principal of Franklin High School sent a communication to the faculty regarding a Parent Night to be held on November 9, 1966. He stated that any teacher who was unable to attend should communicate with him concerning the attendance problem as soon as possible.

No appeal was taken from the disposition of the grievance at the second step, and there is no indication that

1/ Michigan Public Employment Relations Act, 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as amended by Act 379 of the Public Acts of 1965.

Ernst was dissatisfied with the result at that time, or that he had requested the Intervenor to pursue the grievance further. However, after the aforementioned communication by the principal of the Franklin High School, Ernst wrote a letter on November 30, 1966, to the teaching staff, in which he objected to the requirement of the principal that teachers not attending the Parent Night meeting should communicate with him as to the reasons for not attending, and stating that teachers were under no obligation to give reasons for non-attendance.

As a result of this letter, the Superintendent of the Respondent Board of Education called a meeting on December 21, 1966, at which were present Ernst, the Superintendent, the principal of Franklin High School, and representatives of the Intervenor. The purpose of this meeting was to discuss what the Superintendent regarded as improper procedures on the part of Ernst in writing the letter. At the meeting, it was agreed that the Superintendent would secure a legal opinion as to the right of an individual teacher to communicate with other members of the bargaining unit with respect to his interpretation of the agreement. This decision and the subsequent legal opinion received by the Superintendent resulted in a letter written by him, dated January 17, 1967, directed to Ernst, which letter reads as follows:

> Dear Mr. Ernst:
>
> I have referred to our attorneys the matter which we discussed on December 21, 1966, regarding the individual teacher's right for action to release his own interpretation of the LEA-Board of Education Agreement to other teachers by written memorandum.
>
> Our attorneys, concur that no such right exists under the Agreement. It is an Agreement between the Livonia Education Association, as sole bargaining unit for the teachers, and the Livonia Board of Education, and, as such, any interpretations should be agreed upon jointly by official representatives of the LEA and the Board. It appears clear that you do not have the right, nor is it proper administratively for you, to release any individual interpretation of meanings under the contract. There are ways clearly stated for the Association and the Board to reach agreements in regard to interpretations. These methods do not include any reference to interpretations by an individual teacher.

This letter is the basis for the charge of restraint and coercion in violation of Section 10 (a) of PERA.

In its exceptions, the Respondent objects to the statement of the Trial Examiner on page 6 of his Decision and Recommended Order with regard to the rights of employees which are guaranteed by Section 9 of PERA in which he said:

> The instant case has its origin in a grievance concerning a matter which is covered by the collective bargaining agreement and which is clearly a matter affecting conditions of employment - namely the obligation to attend parents' night activities. In defense against the charges, the Board of Education points out that Ernst admittedly was "speaking personally" and was not acting in concert with others, a prerequisite for Section 9 rights. The undersigned rejects this argument as applied here. Ernst was communicating to fellow employees in protest of an existing employer ruling affecting working conditions of all teachers. A rule that an employee does not gain the protective umbrella of more supporters for his views is too anomalous to be maintained. This would result in a holding that an employee who wishes to circulate union authorization cards is not protected until others sign the cards and join in his effort. Organizational activity inherently concerted in nature. Every concerted activity must commence with some individual's personal initiative in communicating his views to others. Whether or not they ultimately are persuaded by him and become his cohorts, his original, as yet unsupported, moves are within the scope of the rights guaranteed by Section 9.

We agree with the Trial Examiner that the writing of the letter to his fellow teachers by Ernst on November 30, 1966, was concerted activity under Section 9 of PERA, which is protected activity under Section 10 (a) of PERA.

The National Labor Relations Board, in several similar factual situations, has found them to constitute concerted activity, protected by Section 7 and Section 8 (a) (1) of the National Labor Relations Act.[2/]

Additional reason is found for the protection of employees in their right to communicate to fellow employees any grievances or complaints they may have in Section 1 of PERA.

> . . .Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to limit, impair or affect the right of any public employee to the expression or communication of a view, grievance, complaint or opinion on any matter related to the conditions or compensation of public employment or their betterment, so long as the same is not designed to and does not interfere with the full, faithful and proper performance of the duties of employ-

2/ In Root-Carlin, Inc. v. NLRB, 93 NLRB 1313, 27 LRRM 1235, (1951), the Board found that organizational activity which in its inception involves only a speaker and a listener is concerted and protected activity. In Salt River Valley Water Users Association v. NLRB, 99 NLRB 849, 30 LRRM 1156 (1952), the Board found that activity by an individual employee for the mutual aid and protection of himself and fellow employees is concerted and protected activity under Section 7 of NLRA. In Schwartz v. NLRB, 55 NLRB 798, 15 LRRM 870 (1945), the Board found that circulating membership cards among employees and urging them to join a union is concerted and protected activity under Section 7 and Section 8 (a) (1) of NLRA. In Pepperidge Farms, Inc. and Local 1, IBEW, AFL-CIO, 134 NLRB 129, 49 LRRM 1338 (1961), where an employee called on other employees to register dissatisfaction with the employer over the amount of work given to "on-call" employees and to encourage those employees to make themselves unavailable for work for the purpose of showing the company how much these employees were needed, the Board found this to be a concerted, protected activity. In Averdey, Inc. and Charles Pagliaite, 144 NLRB 25, 57 LRRM 1261, (1964), the activity of one employee in circulating a petition among other employees for removal of the union business agent was concerted activity, protected under Sections 8 (a) (1) and 8 (a) (3), NLRA. In Mushroom Transportation Company and Charles Keeler, 142 NLRB 123, 53 LRRM 1206, (1963), wherein an employee was discharged because he told fellow employees they were not getting what they were entitled to under the collective bargaining agreement, the employer contending it was not concerted activity but individual discussion with one employee at a time, the Board held that such activity was concerted, saying, "it is an indispensable step to induce a grievance." In Montgomery Ward & Company, Inc. 156 NLRB 5, 60 LRRM 1544 (1965), wherein an employee was discharged for filing a petition with the Labor Department alleging a violation of the Equal Pay Act by the Employer, the Board held that although the presentation of the complaint was an individual act, her discussion of the problem with other employees constituted concerted activity within the meaning of Section 7 of NLRA and was protected activity.

The Respondent also excepts to certain other language in the Trial Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order commencing on page 6 and ending on page 7 thereof, reading as follows:

> The Board of Education next defends the Superintendent's letter on the grounds that it "merely states a legal conclusion that no right exists under the collective bargaining agreement for an individual teacher to release his own interpretation of meanings under the contract." This defense must be taken seriously, for it is a plausible reading of the January 17 letter that it does no more than correctly deny the existence of a contractual right to release individual interpretations of the contract, and no such right is to be found within the four corners of the contract between the Employer and the Association. The right, however, does exist. It is contained within, Section 9 of PERA. It may not be abrogated by contract. It is, ultimately, the right to criticize one's employer or one's bargaining agent, and the right to seek to persuade other employees to join in the criticism or to take remedial action.

We agree with the conclusion of the Trial Examiner that the rights guaranteed by Section 9 of PERA may not be abrogated by the collective bargaining agreement. These rights vest in the employees and their representatives, and any attempt to abrogate them constitutes a violation of Section 10 of PERA.

The Respondent also takes exception to the following paragraph, which appears at page 9 of the Trail Examiner's Decision and Recommended Order:

> Finally, the Board of Education observes that the Superintendent did not so much as suggest that Ernst would be subject to discipline if he repeated his improper act. Thus, it is argued, no "threat" or "coercion" can be found in the case, but rather a bland statement of legal position. The undersigned agrees that the letter is phrased in terms of a statement of the non-existence of certain rights, not in terms of a warning. Nevertheless, the threat of punishment for a recurrence is implicit whenever a highly placed employer representative offically notifies an employee that his conduct has been improper and that he had overstepped his rights. The Employer's argument would, logically, justify a holding that an employer may inform all of its employees that they have no right to organize or to discuss union affairs on their own time or to sign union authorization cards. Certainly such statements would be understood as being coercive and threatening. The same is true of the Superintendent's letter to Ernst, who would have to assume he would risk punishment for any repeat performance.

The Respondent contends that the letter of January 17, 1967, of the Superintendent does not contain any direct threats and is not inherently coercive. We agree with that conclusion.

The letter must be read in the context of the factual background which preceded it.4/

Ernst had filed a grievance over what he regarded as an incorrect interpretation of the collective bargaining agreement. The grievance was processed through the second step of the grievance procedure. It was resolved to his satisfaction at that level when it was agreed teachers were not required to attend extra-curricular activities.

Later, the principal of Franklin High School, in a communication to the teachers regarding their attendance at a Parent Night meeting, directed teachers who were not able to attend to communicate with him regarding their attendance problem. Ernst regarded the requirement of communication as an improper requirement resulting in his letter of November 30, 1966, to the Franklin High School staff.

Ernst's letter was regarded by the Superintendent of the Respondent as an improper communication to the staff because it was made without consultation with the school administration and the Intervenor bargaining representative.

The Superintendent called a meeting at which Ernst and representatives of the Intervenor were present, whereat it was agreed that the Superintendent would obtain a legal opinion regarding the propriety of Ernst's letter. The opinion was obtained, resulting in the letter of January 17, 1967, from the Superintende t to Ernst.

The charge was filed by the Livonia Federation of Teachers (which organization is not the collective bargaining representative of the teachers of the Respondent) without the concurrence or knowledge of Ernst. He was unaware that it had been filed until shortly before the hearing on April 10, 1967. He was not a witness at the hearing. Obviously, he did not consider that he had been coerced or restrained by the letter of January 17. The letter contains no direct threats nor any innuendo from which restraint or coercion could be implied.5/

For the foregoing reasons, it is concluded that the charge is without merit and should be dismissed.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the unfair labor practice charge of the Livonia Federation of teachers against the Livonia Board of Education dated March 2, 1967, is without merit, and is hereby dismissed.

TRIAL EXAMINER'S DECISION AND RECOMMENDED ORDER

APPEARANCES:

For the Respondent: Carl J. Thrun, Attorney, and Keller, Thoma, McManus & Keller By: Charles E. Keller, Attorney

For the Charging Party: Craig & Fieger, By: Bernard J. Fieger, Attorney

For the Intervenor: Ellmann & Ellmann, By: Harvey I. Wax, Attorney

The above-entitled matter having come on for hearing before the undersigned trial examiner of the Michigan Labor Mediation Board, hereinafter referred to as the Board, at Detroit, Michigan on April 10, 1967, and the entire record having been considered, including post-hearing briefs filed by the Respondent and the Intervenor on May 9, 1967, and a brief filed by the Charging Party on May 19, 1967, the undersigned hereby makes the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendations to the Board for the disposition of the case:

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Livona Board of Education, the Respondent herein is a public employer within the meaning of Act 336 of the Public Acts of 1947, as most recently amended by Act 379 of the Public Acts of 1965 (Public Employment Relations Act, M.S.A. sec. 17.455), hereinafter referred to as PERA.

5/ Hendricks Manufacturing Company v. NLRB, 53 LRRM 2831 321 F. 2d 100 (5th Cir. 1963).

Livonia Federation of Teachers and Livonia Education Association, the Charging Party and Intervenor herein, are organizations representing public employees in the State of Michigan.

On March 2, 1967, the Federation filed charges pursuant to sections 10 and 16 of PERA, alleging that the Board of Education had engaged in and was engaging in unfair labor practices within the meaning of section 10 of PERA. During the hearing certain portions of the charges were either formally withdrawn or acknowledged to be unproven and tacitly withdrawn. The remaining allegation, which is disposed of hereinafter, is that the Superintendent of Schools, on January 17, 1967, wrote to a teaching employee, a member of the Livonia Federation of Teachers, instructing him that as a teacher he had no right to release for general consumption among the employees of the District, interpretations of the collective bargaining agreement between the Board of Education and the exclusive bargaining agent (the Intervenor). The charges further allege that the contents of the January 17, letter constituted a threat to the employee for exercising rights guaranteed and protected by PERA.

The Board of Education, in its Answer to the charges and complaint, denied the above allegation. At the hearing it developed that the material facts are not seriously in dispute, and are as follows:

On October 24, 1966, Roy E. Ernst, a teacher at Franklin High School, filed a grievance with his building principal in accordance with the grievance procedure set forth in Article XVI of the collective bargaining agreement between the Board of Education and the Association.

The grievance in substance alleged that the Board of Education had misinterpreted the contract by stating that teachers were required to attend "parents' night and certain other evening events" without additional compensation.

By answer dated October 27, 1966, the building principal, Mr. Ammerman, stated that under administrative interpretation he "would expect all Franklin teachers to attend the November 9 Parent Meeting at Franklin High School without additional compensation. . . ."

The grievant, Mr. Ernst, was not satisfied with the disposition of his grievance at Level One, and initiated the procedures at Level Two of the grievance procedure by referring the matter to the Association's Board of Reference. The Board of Reference continued the procedure of Level Two by forwarding its position, with Mr. Ernst's concurrence, to the Superintendent.

The Board of Reference position was that the use of the word "expect" by Mr. Ammerman in his Level One answer was stronger than is implied in the master contract and is not in the spirit of voluntary attendance. Parent Night should be voluntary but teachers should be encouraged to attend."

Mr. Yates, the Superintendent of Schools, in accordance with the provisions of Level Two, rendered a disposition to the grievance indicating apparent resolution by agreement between himself and the Executive Secretary of the Association as to the interpretation of the contract. This interpretation was to the effect that while attendance at Parents' Night, "was not compulsory", teachers were requested to attend unless "unusual circumstances" interferred "with this attendance. . ." The Superintendent indicated his approval of the principal's requirement that teachers unable to attend because of unusual circumstances communicate with the principal concerning the problem.

Mr. Ernst, the grievant, did not appeal to Level Three of the grievance procedure. However, on November 30, 1966, Mr. Ernst, as an individual, issued the following communication to his fellow teachers:

To: Franklin Staff
From: Roy Ernst
Re: Disposition of Grievance about attendance at Parents' Night, PTA, etc.
Date: November 30, 1966

Mr. Yates affirmed that attendance at Parents' Night PTA, etc. is not compulsory. Therefore, if teachers wish to be volunteers for such activity, article VIF will apply, allowing an early departure on the day they attend an evening activity.

Mr. Yates also stated that teachers not attending Parents' Night gave reasons for their absence.

Speaking personally, I would like to point out that teachers are under no obligation to 'give reasons' and it is degrading to a teacher to require him to do so. On the other hand, you may feel more comfortable if you make your reasons known.

On December 21, 1966, approximately a month after Mr. Ernst had issued his communication, Mr. Yates called an informal meeting at Franklin High School to discuss the memorandum. Present besides Mr. Yates were Mr. Ammerman, Mr. Ernst, and six association representatives. Mr. Yates stated purpose in holding the meeting over the memorandum was to "improve communication, to mention proper and courteous procedures in relation to my (superintendent's) office and any building principal." It was specifically noted that there was no intent to make reprisals against anyone.

Following Mr. Yates' opening remarks, a general discussion was had concerning the appropriateness of a teacher issuing a memorandum without first giving the principal or the superintendent an opportunity to discuss it. Mr. Yates noted that an affront to the administration, or at least a "second guessing" of the administration might result, either of which could be avoided by proper communications between all parties.

Near the end of the meeting, there was an understanding that Mr. Yates would secure an opinion from counsel as to the right of an individual teacher to release his own interpretation of the collective bargaining agreement.

On January 17, 1967, Mr. Yates sent a letter to Mr. Ernst, stating as follows:

Dear Mr. Ernst:

I have referred to our attorneys the matter which we discussed on December 21, 1966, regarding the individual teacher's right for action to release his own interpretation of the LEA-Board of Education Agreement to other teachers by written memorandum.

Our attorneys concur that no such right exists under the Agreement. It is an Agreement between the Livonia Education Association, as sole bargaining unit for the teachers, and the Livonia Board of Education, and, as such, any interpretations should be agreed upon jointly by official representatives of the LEA and the Board. It appears clear that you do not have the right, nor is it proper administratively for you, to release any individual interpretation of meanings under the contract. There are ways clearly stated for the Association and the Board to reach agreements in regard to interpretations. These methods do not include any reference to interpretations by an individual teacher.

ANALYSIS

Section 10 of PERA provides that:

It shall be unlawful for a public employer or an officer or agent of a public employer (a) to interfere with, restrain, or coerce public employees in the exercise of their rights guaranteed in Section 9; . . .

Section 9 of PERA provides that:

It shall be lawful for public employees to organize together or to form, join or assist in labor organizations, to engage in lawful concerted activities for the purpose of collective negotiations or bargaining or other mutual aid and protection, or to negotiate or bargain collectively with their public employers through representatives of their own free choice.

The instant case has its origin in a grievance concerning a matter which is covered by the collective bargaining agreement and which is clearly a matter affecting conditions of employment - namely the obligation to attend parents' night activities. In defense against the charges, the Board of Education points out that Ernst admittedly was "speaking personally" and was not acting in concert with others, a prerequisite for Section 9 rights. The undersigned rejects this argument as applied here. Ernst was communicating to fellow employees in protest of an existing employer ruling affecting working conditions of all teachers. A rule that an employee does not gain the protective umbrella of Section 9 rights unless and until he wins one or more supporters for his views is too anomalous to be maintained. This would result in a holding that an employee who wishes to circulate union authorization cards is not protected until others sign the cards and join in his effort. Organizational activity and protests against general working conditions are inherently concerted in nature. Every concerted activity must commence with some individual's personal initiative in communicating his views to others. Whether or not they ultimately are persuaded by him and become his cohorts, his original, as yet unsupported, moves are within the scope of the rights guaranteed by Section 9.

The Board of Education next defends the Superintendent's letter to the grounds that it "merely states a legal conclusion that no right exists under the collective bargaining agreement for an individual teacher to release his own interpretation of meanings under the contract." This defense must be taken seriously, for it is a plausible reading of the January 17 letter that it does no more than correctly deny the existence of a contractual right to release individual interpretations of the contract, and no such right is to be found within the four corners of the contract between the Employer and the Association. The right, however, does exist. It is contained within Section 9 of PERA. It may not be abrogated by contract. It vests in the individual employee. It is, ultimately, the right to criticize one's employer or one's bargaining agent, and the right to seek to persuade other employees to join the criticism or to take remedial action.

A careful reading of the January 17 letter leaves the overall impression that Ernst is being informed that no right of any kind to communicate criticisms of the employer's contract interpretations to fellow employees exists. The letter refers at one point to rights "under the Agreement", but in other places refers to rights generally. No distinction is made by the Superintendent in the body of the letter. Most persons reading the letter would understand it as a denial of any right to issue individual interpretations. For example, the letter indicates it was not "proper" administratively for Ernst to have done what he did.

The Board of Education also calls attention to the undersigned's previous statement of support for the national policy favoring the channeling of disputes into a grievance procedure, citing Woodward General Hospital, 1966 Labor Opinions 543, 548-549. The national policy favors utilizing the grievance-arbitration machinery to the fullest extent possible. However, such a policy does not dictate that employees who choose to criticize their working conditions, apart from the established grievance machinery, lose the statutory protection of their rights. This point is well illustrated in the instant case, where the Association appears to have acceded to the Superintendent's position and to have "settled" the grievance. Obviously, Ernst was not satisfied, and, rather than pursue the grievance procedure further, without the support of his exclusive bargaining agent, he chose to appeal directly to fellow teachers for support and vindication. While this act had no "status" under the contract, it was protected activity nonetheless. The Board of Education was free to ignore the "open letter" from Ernst to fellow teachers; it was not free to proscribe it. If it were, expression of dissident employee views would be entirely at the risk of the employee. The majority bargaining agent must be afforded preferential status, but not to the extent of silencing minority views.

The Board of Education contends that Ernst's letter to fellow teachers constituted a suggestion that they disobey an administrative directive, as well as an affront to the school administration. An affront it may well have been, but Ernst did not advocate insubordination, or incite teachers to act in contempt of the Superintendent's ruling, albeit he came close to suggesting that. Rather, Ernst may be properly accused of being somewhat self-important in circulating his own interpretation of the contract's meaning, as if he occupied some official status as a spokesman for his peers. Even if Ernst's letter be viewed as a call to arms, the Superintendent's January 17 letter addressed itself not to that question but to the general right to issue statements of views concerning the contract's interpretation.

Finally, the Board of Education observes that the Superintendent did not so much as suggest that Ernst would be subject to discipline if he repeated his improper act. Thus, it is argued, no "threat" or "coercion" can be found in the case, but rather a bland statement of legal position. The undersigned agrees that the letter is phrased in terms of a statement of the non-existence of certain rights, not in terms of a warning. Nevertheless, the threat of punishment for a recurrence is implicit whenever a highly placed employer representative offically notifies an employee that his conduct has been improper and that he had overstepped his rights. The Employer's argument would, logically, justify a holding that an employer may inform all of its employees that they have no right to organize or to discuss union affairs on their own time or to sign union authorization cards. Certainly such statements would be understood as being coercive and threatening. The same is true of the Superintendent's letter to Ernst, who would have to assume he would risk punishment for any repeat performance.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Board of Education, through the act of its Superintendent in notifying employee Ernst on January 17, 1967, that he had no right, as an employee, to communicate to fellow employees his views concerning, or interpretations of, the existing collective bargaining agreement, interfered with, restrained, and coerced its employees, within the meaning of Section 10 of PERA in the exercise of their rights guaranteed in Section 9 of PERA.

The undersigned trial examiner recommends that, in order to effectuate the purposes of PERA, the Board enter an Order as follows:

RECOMMENDED ORDER

Upon the basis of the foregoing Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, and upon the entire record in the case, the public employer, Livonia Board of Education, its Superintendent, officers, agents, successors and assigns, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

   Interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of rights guaranteed in Section 9 of PERA, by notifying employees that they have no right to communicate to fellow employees their views concerning, and their interpretations of, a collective bargaining agreement or anything else affecting wages or conditions of employment.

2. Take the following affirmative action:

(a) Post, at all places where notices to the teaching employees are customarily posted, copies of the attached "Notice to all Employees", said notices to be posted for thirty consecutive days during the regular school year.

(b) Notify the Board, within twenty days of receipt of this Order what steps the public employer has taken to comply herewith.

PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT

ALTOONA (PENNSYLVANIA) AREA SCHOOL DISTRICT

AND

ALTOONA AREA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

PREAMBLE

The Board of School Directors of the Altoona Area School District and the Altoona Area Education Association believe that the development and operation of educational programs of the highest quality, for the benefit of the students and the community, is a common responsibility which requires, for its effective discharge, consultation among the Board, the Superintendent and Administrative Staff, and members of the teaching staff speaking through their elected representative. Since these groups have the same ultimate aim of providing the best possible educational opportunity for all pupils enrolled in the schools consistent with community resources, relationships must be established and maintained which are based upon this common interest and the concept of education as a public trust and as a professional calling.

The Board of School Directors, the Superintendent and the Administrative Staff, and the members of the teaching staff can best attain their common objectives and discharge their common responsibilities if each utilizes the ability, experience and judgment of the other in formulating policies and making decisions that involve matters of mutual concern and which affect the quality of the district's educational program. It is the purpose of this Agreement to set forth the policies and standards governing such matters of mutual concern to the parties.

This Agreement is made and entered into by and between the BOARD OF SCHOOL DIRECTORS OF THE ALTOONA AREA SCHOOL DISTRICT (hereinafter referred to as the "BOARD") and the ALTOONA AREA EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (hereinafter referred to as the "ASSOCIATION").

RECOGNITION

It is recognized that teaching is a profession requiring specialized educational qualifications and that the quality of the educational programs conducted in the public school of the ALTOONA AREA SCHOOL DISTRICT depends primarily upon the quality of the teaching service. It is recognized that the professional preparation of teachers qualifies them to make significant contributions to the conduct of educational affairs of the district and to the determination of policy and program.

The Association, as the organizational representative of the members of the professional staff, recognizes the paramount responsibility of the Board for the operation of the Altoona Area Schools.

The Board and the Association recognize their responsibilities toward each other and the community for negotiating in good faith and seeking agreement on matters of mutual concern. Neither will demean the process, and both recognize that the controlling determinant of policy development and implementation is the quality of the educational program and the welfare of the children.

The Board recognizes the Association as the representative of all professional personnel, employed or to be employed by the Board who are members of the Association.

NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES

The parties hereto recognize that the Board is legally charged with the responsibility of enacting policies governing the operations of the School District. These policies to be most effective must be developed cooperatively by the School Board and the Professional Staff. Attainment of objectives of the educational program of the District requires mutual understanding and cooperation among the Board, the Superintendent, his Staff, and the professional teaching personnel. Free and open exchange of views is desirable and necessary, with all parties participating in deliberations leading to the determination of matters of mutual concern. To this end, the Board and the Superintendent, or designated representatives of the Board and Superintendent, shall meet with representatives of the Association for purposes of discussion in an effort to reach satisfactory solutions to problems of mutual concern. The following procedures are approved:

(a) Matters of mutual concern shall be discussed first by the Association with the Superintendent or by the Superintendent with the Association. In matters pertaining to a particular administrator or supervisor, discussion shall be conducted with the Superintendent and all parties concerned in attendance. If no resolution of differences can be found in these discussions, then either the Association or the Superintendent may refer the points at issue to the Board. A meeting between the Board, or committees of the Board and the Association will be called on written request of either the Board or the Association provided the request for such a meeting contains specific statements of the reasons for such request. Such a meeting shall be held within 15 days of the date on which the request for it shall have been made, except that emergency meetings may be called on 48 hours notice when they are deemed necessary by the Board, the Superintendent, or the Association.

(b) The Board and the Superintendent agree to furnish to the Association's representative, in accordance with their reasonable written request, all available financial and personnel data and such other information as will assist the Association in developing sound recommendations for consideration by the Board and/or the Superintendent.

(c) Full and free discussion of the issues will be encouraged during such meeting in an effort to reach mutually satisfactory understandings.

(d) When such matters as have been satisfactorily negotiated have been adopted as school district policy by the Board, they shall become additions to the personnel policy handbook, a copy of which shall be provided to each member of the professional staff.

APPEAL

In the case of impasse when mutually satisfactory understandings cannot be reached, a Mediation Board shall be established. Such Mediation Board shall be composed of one member appointed by the Board, one member appointed by the Association, and a third member who shall be elected by the Board member and the Association member. The third member of such Mediation Board may be a recognized expert in a field related to the problem at hand, or he may be any qualified and disinterested person from outside the School District. He shall serve as chairman of the Mediation Board. Any costs and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of such Mediation Board shall be borne equally by the Board and the Association.

The Mediation Board shall within 30 days make every effort to propose solutions of points of difference which the parties to the differences may mutually accept. In the process, it may hold hearings and gather such facts as are germane to the issues. If no agreement between the parties is reached out of such recommendations made to them, the Mediation Board shall prepare its recommendations in written form and present them to the Board of School Directors and to the Association for their separate approval.

If either party rejects the recommendations of the Mediation Board, any matters remaining at issue shall be disposed of in accordance with the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in such cases made and provided.

REVIEW AND REVISION

The provisions of this Agreement shall be reviewed annually by the parties to the Agreement to consider any desirable revisions which would make it more effective in the interests of the school community.

PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATION AGREEMENT

LOGANSPORT (INDIANA) COMMUNITY SCHOOL CORPORATION

AND

LOGANSPORT EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

Professional Negotiation Agreement

PREAMBLE

Recognizing that providing a high quality education for the children of the LOGANSPORT COMMUNITY SCHOOL CORPORATION is paramount in the operation of the schools in this corporation, and good morale in the teaching staff is necessary for the best education of children, the Board of School Trustees and the Logansport Education Association do hereby agree as follows:

RECOGNITION

The Board of School Trustees will recognize for the purpose of negotiation proposals, the Logansport Education Association designated Committee selected by the bona fide teachers' association, on behalf of the teachers of the said school corporation. The contracts will still be with the individual teachers. It is further provided that any teacher may present information or proposals to the School Board and the Superintendent.

The Logansport Education Association recognizes that policy formation and adoption is the statutory responsibility of the Board of School Trustees. Policy administration is the responsibility of the Superintendent, however policy is developed through the cooperative efforts of the Board, the Superintendent, and the designated Committee of the Logansport Educational Association.

The purpose of this recognition is the mutual agreement that the parties will negotiate with regard to all matters of common concern and will use professional and educational channels for advice in the event of impasse.

PRINCIPLES

I. Teaching is a profession requiring specialized educational qualifications and preparations.

II. The quality of the educational programs conducted in the public schools of Logansport depends primarily upon the quality of the teaching service.

III. The professional preparation of teachers qualifies them to make significant contributions to the conduct of educational affairs and to the determination of policy and program.

IV. The Board and the professional staff should cooperate in identifying and studying problems which may affect working relations before either group takes an official position.

V. The Board and the professional staff should work together in good faith to reach agreement in the solution of these problems.

ROLE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT

The chief negotiator of problems that pertain to teachers and to the School Board should be the Superintendent. This role befits him because he is the Executive Officer of the School Board and the highest Administrative Officer. In serving children in these two capacities he not only should have full knowledge of problems pertaining to the education of children -- in which both teachers and the School Board have a common interest -- but he should also keep teachers and School Board members well informed on their problems. Thus, in discharging his responsibilities, the Superintendent is expected to keep the professional channels of communication open between the teachers and the School Board.

I
INITIATION OF NEGOTIATIONS

A. It is to be assumed that the Board and the Association will be in continual communication with and through the Superintendent regarding any topics of mutual concern and consideration.

B. If at any time it is determined by either party that a meeting is desired, a request will be communicated in writing stating the topics to be discussed. A meeting will be arranged by the Superintendent within fifteen school days unless another date is mutually acceptable.

II
NEGOTIATION PROCEDURE

A. Representatives of the Board and of the Association will form a Professional Negotiations Committee.

B. The Superintendent will be present at all such meetings and will serve as chairman of the committee. Out of his knowledge of his own school system and practices elsewhere, the Superintendent should be expected to provide information and counsel to both the Board and the Association.

C. When agreement is reached, such agreement will be returned to the respective groups for ratification.

D. Releases of information to news media will be made jointly.

III
MEDIATION OF UNRESOLVED DISAGREEMENT

A. If, after four (4) weeks of negotiations, agreement seems remote, an impasse may be declared by the Board, Association, or the Superintendent. The assistance of competent professional and lay representatives forming an advisory committee shall be called to consider matters under discussion and to make suggestions and give advice.

B. This advisory committee will be comprised of one member chosen by the Board, one by the bona fide teachers' association; these two choose a third person who shall be the chairman.

C. Cost and expenses which may be incurred in securing and utilizing the services of any individual or advisory board shall be shared equally by the Board and bona fide teachers' association, provided such services and costs have been mutually agreed upon.

IV
APPENDIX

Items such as salary schedules, calendar of School Year, leave policies, etc., shall be attached to and become a part of this agreement as they are updated to maintain a status of meeting current needs.

V CHANGES

Either party desiring changes in this agreement shall notify the other party in writing at least thirty (30) days prior to April 1 of any year. Changes may be made at any time by mutual consent.

Policy Adopted May 8, 1967

A POLICY GUIDE TO IMPLEMENT SCHOOL BOARD-TEACHER MEETINGS

INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT 413

MARSHALL, MINNESOTA

and

MARSHALL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

BE IT RESOLVED, THAT THE SCHOOL BOARD OF INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT NUMBER 413, MARSHALL, MINNESOTA, ADOPTS THE FOLLOWING POLICY PURSUANT TO CHAPTER 633, LAWS OF 1967, FOR THE PURPOSE OF PROVIDING AN ORDERLY PROCEDURE FOR MEETING WITH THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S TEACHERS:

1. RECOGNITION

It shall be the policy of the school board to:

a. Recognize members of the teaching staff as professionals trained to provide classroom instruction to the pupils of the district, and to implement the educational program as determined by the school board.

b. Expect members of the professional staff to recognize that the school board has the full power to manage, control and direct the operations of the school district.

2. THE PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYEE

It shall be the policy of the school board that:

a. Only those teachers who are employed by the school district are eligible to meet with the school board or its representatives.

b. Any individual teacher may meet with the school board at reasonable times to express his views.

c. In the event more than one teacher organization exists in the school district each organization of teachers shall upon request be entitled to representation on a Teachers' Council on a basis proportionate to membership.

3. SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS

It shall be the policy of the school board that:

a. The superintendent of schools shall meet with the school board individually concerning his employment with the school district.

b. Other school administrators shall be entitled to meet with the school board on matters concerning their employment.

4. RIGHT TO FORM OR JOIN ORGANIZATIONS

It shall be the policy of the school board that:

a. Any certificated teacher shall have the right to join or not to join, or to form or not to form, any organization of teachers without fear of discrimination.

5. RECOGNITION OF TEACHER REPRESENTATIVES

It shall be the policy of the school board that:

a. When one teacher organization exists in the district the school board will grant recognition to that organization upon a request for recognition in writing to the clerk of the school board by October 20.

b. When only one teacher organization exists in the district the school board, or a committee thereof, which may include its representatives, will meet with a committee of not more than five from that organization, plus its representatives serving in a consultant capacity.

c. In the event that more than one teacher organization exists in the district, and the organization desires recognition by the school board it will make such request in writing to the clerk of the school board by October 20. The request shall include a verification by the president of the organization of the number of teachers belonging to the organization on the date of verification.

d. In the event more than one teacher organization has requested recognition a Teachers' Council will be formed in the district to represent the teacher organizations on a basis proportionate to membership.

e. The school board through its superintendent of schools will notify by October 25 each eligible teacher organization of the number of members it is entitled to on the Teachers' Council.

f. The president of each eligible teacher organization will notify the clerk of the school board in writing by October 31 the names of that organization's members appointed to serve on the Teachers' Council.

g. In the event more than one eligible teacher organization has requested recognition by the school board, and the organizations cannot agree on the proportionate number from each organization assignable to the Teachers' Council, a Teachers' Council composed of eligible representatives may be formed according to the following formula:

1. The number of eligible teachers verified as belonging to the eligible teacher organization shall be divided by the total number of verified eligible teachers belonging to recognized teacher organizations in the district. The ratio shall be rounded off to the fourth decimal.

2. Multiply the ratio obtained for each eligible teacher organization times five computed and rounded to the third decimal point.

3. The school board shall determine and notify each eligible teacher organization of the number of members it is entitled to on the Teachers' Council based on the results of the above computations. Teacher organizations having fractional amounts shall be determined on the basis of ranking from high to low to complete the five-member Teachers' Council. In the event eligible teacher organizations have equal fractional amounts the school board may determine the number each eligible organization is entitled to by lot in the presence of the president of each eligible teacher organization.

h. If a dispute arises as to the verification of membership numbers in the eligible teacher organizations they shall employ a Certified Public Accountant to audit the organization membership lists. The accountant shall certify such audit to the clerk of the school board without revealing names of organization members. Cost involved shall be borne by the challenging organization.

i. Once the school board has determined the number of teachers each organization is entitled to on the Teachers' Council, and has so notified each organization, each eligible organization shall adopt its own procedures for selecting the persons to represent that organization on the Teachers' Council. Each eligible organization shall certify to the clerk of the board in writing by October 31 its representatives on the Teachers' Council. Any teacher organization entitled to membership on the Teachers' Council which fails to name members by October 31 or refrains from participating on the Council shall forfeit the right to membership on the Council until the following October 31 as prescribed by law.

j. The members of the Teachers' Council shall meet within ten days after October 31 to adopt their own rules of procedure and to elect officers.

6. REPRESENTATION

It shall be the policy of the school board to:

a. Determine who its representatives shall be. This may be the school board, or a committee thereof which may include its representatives. The committee may be of such numbers as the board determines, but may be comprised of only the superintendent of schools and other authorized representatives. The committee should include either the superintendent or at least one member of the school board.

b. Recognize that when one organization of teachers exists the group meeting with the school board or its representatives may include its representatives serving in a consultant capacity.

c. Recognize that a Teachers' Council may include its representatives serving in a consultant capacity when meeting with the school board or its representatives.

7. TERMS OF PROFESSIONAL SERVICE

It shall be the policy of the school board that:

a. For the purpose of effort towards reaching an agreement between teacher representatives and the school board only the areas of wages and economic aspects relating to the employment of teachers shall be considered.

b. The school board or its representatives shall meet with the teacher representatives for the purpose of working toward an agreement on terms of professional service on regularly scheduled dates, or at such times as the parties may mutually agree.

c. The school board will attempt to work out an agreement with teacher representatives on terms of professional service prior to March 1.

d. Pursuant to Chapter 890, Laws of 1967, presentation of contracts or amendments to the contract to probationary teachers being re-employed, or to continuing contract teachers, shall be made no later than March 20.

e. When agreement has been reached with teacher representatives on terms of professional service such agreement shall be implemented by the adoption of an appropriate resolution by the board, or by direction to an administrative officer.

8. OTHER MATTERS OF PROFESSIONAL CONCERN

It shall be the policy of the school board to:

a. Meet with teacher representatives at times mutually convenient to both parties on other matters relating to educational policies not requiring an effort to reach an agreement.

b. Adopt as nearly complete as possible, the Annual School Calendar for the next school year prior to March 20 of each year.

9. ADJUSTMENT PANEL

It shall be the policy of the school board that:

a. A request by the teacher representatives for an adjustment panel to consider terms of professional service must be made to the school board prior to March 1.

b. If the adjustment panel conducts informal meetings in an effort to reach agreement on terms of professional service, and agreement is not reached prior to April 1st either party may request the adjustment panel to conduct formal hearings.

c. Any findings of the adjustment panel are only advisory in nature to both parties.

10. SCHOOL BOARD AUTHORITY

It shall be the policy of the school board that:

a. Only the additional powers prescribed by Chapter 633, Laws of 1967, relating to meetings of school boards and teachers will be used. Neither the school board nor teacher representatives may exceed the provisions of the act.

b. In the implementation of Chapter 633, Laws of 1967, all parties should be cognizant of legislative intent in that school boards shall have the full power to manage, control, and direct the operations of the school district.

c. These adopted guidelines may be changed by the school board when necessary to serve the best educational interests of the district.

PROFESSIONAL RECOGNITION AGREEMENT

RALSTON BOARD OF EDUCATION, RALSTON, NEBRASKA

and

RALSTON TEACHERS ASSOCIATION (NEA)

Article I: Agreement

This agreement made and entered into this fifteenth day of January, 1968, by and between the School Board of Ralston, District #54, Douglas County, Nebraska (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") and the Ralston Teachers Association (hereinafter referred to as the "Association").

Article II: Philosophy

The Ralston Board of Education and the Ralston Teachers Association firmly believe that the primary function of the Board and its professional staff is to assure each boy and girl attending the Ralston Schools the highest level of educational opportunities obtainable. The Board recognizes that teaching is a profession; the Board and the Association believe that the objectives of the educational program are realized to the highest degree when mutual understanding, cooperation, and effective communications exist between the Board and its professional staff.

Article III: Recognition

The Board recognizes the Association as the official negotiating agent for all certified personnel employed by the Board. The Association shall submit to the Board by November 1 of each year a notarized statement of the number of active members of the Association. This recognition shall continue in effect so long as the Association's active membership contains more than fifty (50) per cent of the total of certificated personnel.

Article IV: Principles

1. PROFESSIONAL TEACHING PERSONNEL. It is recognized that members of the professional staff require specialized qualifications and that the success of the educational program in Ralston depends upon the maximum utilization of abilities of teachers who are reasonably well satisfied with the conditions under which their services are rendered.

It is further recognized that teachers have the right to join, or not to join the Association, but membership shall not be a prerequisite for employment or continuation of employment of any employee.

2. TEACHER PARTICIPATION. The Board, or designated representatives of the Board will meet with representatives designated by the Association for the purpose of discussion and reaching agreements.

Article V: Areas For Discussion and Agreement

This recognition constitutes an agreement between the Board and the Association to reach understandings regarding employment and relations with certificated personnel on the following items:

1. Base Salary
2. Index Salary Schedule
3. Unit plan to supplement Index Salary Schedule
4. Employment Policy Statements
5. Employment of non-certified personnel to assist teachers
6. Insurance
7. Professional Leave with pay (Sabbatical)

The Association recognizes that the Board is the legally constituted body responsible for the determination of policies covering all aspects of the Ralston School System. The Board recognizes that it must operate in accordance with the statutory provisions of the State of Nebraska. The Board cannot reduce, negotiate, or delegate its legal responsibilities.

Article VI: Procedures for Conducting Negotiations

1. OPENING NEGOTIATIONS. Issues proposed for discussion shall be submitted in writing by the Association to the Board or its delegated representative on or before January 1 of any year. The Board shall have thirty (30) days in which to accept or reject the request in whole or in part and shall give written notice of its decision. If the Board accepts the request, the first meeting shall be held within twenty-one (21) days after such acceptance, unless both parties agree to a later date.

2. NEGOTIATION PROCEDURES. Designated representatives of the Board shall meet at an agreed upon place and time with representatives of the Association for the purpose of effecting a free exchange of facts, opinions, proposals and counter-proposals in an effort to reach understanding and agreement. Both parties agree to conduct such negotiations in good faith and to deal openly and fairly with each other on all matters. Following the initial meeting on any matter (to be set as described above), such additional meetings shall be held as the parties may require to reach an understanding on the issues or until an impasse is reached. Meetings shall not exceed three (3) hours and shall be held at a time other than the regular school day.

A budgetary item not agreed upon by March 15 shall be submitted to a Board of Review as described in paragraph 7.

3. EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION. Both parties and/or the superintendent shall furnish each other, upon reasonable request, all available information pertinent to the issues under consideration.

4. CONSULTANTS. The parties may call upon consultants to assist in preparing for negotiations, and to advise them during conference sessions. The expense of such consultants shall be borne by the party requesting them.

5. COMMITTEE REPORTS. The parties agree that the proceedings of the negotiating committee shall not be released unless such an issuance has the prior approval of both parties.

6. REACHING AGREEMENT. When consensus is reached, covering the areas under discussion, the proposed agreement shall be reduced to writing as a memorandum of understanding and submitted to the Association and the Board for approval. Following approval by a majority of the Association membership and by a majority of the Board, the Board will take such actions upon the recommendations submitted as are necessary to make them official.

7. RESOLVING DIFFERENCES. In case of disagreement about the meaning or application of this agreement or in the event an agreement is not reached by negotiations after full consideration of proposals and counter-proposals, the parties agree to consult a fact-finding board. One member shall be designated by the Board, one member by the Association, and these two members shall select a third who will be chairman. If agreement is not reached on a third member within ten (10) days, a request may be submitted to the Commissioner of Education of the Nebraska State Department of Education to submit a list of five (5) persons deemed qualified to serve as members of such a fact-finding board. Upon receipt of such list, members selected by the parties shall alternately strike names until one remains and this person shall become the third member of the Board. This committee shall act as fact-finders, conferring with both parties and making recommendations for settlement of the issues in question within thirty (30) days. Such recommendations shall receive the good faith consideration of the parties as a method of settling the dispute. All fees and expenses for the Board of Review will be borne equally by the two parties.

8. RIGHTS OF MINORITIES AND INDIVIDUALS. The legal rights inherent in the Statutes of Nebraska for certificated personnel are in no way abridged by this agreement.

Article VII: Implementation and Amendment

This recognition agreement shall become effective upon its approval by the Association and by the Board. It may be amended by mutual consent of both parties with written evidence of said consent being presented by each party to the other.

PROFESSIONAL NEGOTIATIONS POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

MIAMISBURG CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT, MIAMISBURG, OHIO

and

MIAMISBURG EDUCATION ASSOCIATION (NEA)

PREAMBLE

Recognizing that providing a high quality education for the children of the Miamisburg City Schools is the paramount aim of this school district, and that good morale in the teaching staff is necessary for the best education of the children, we do hereby declare that:

I. The Board of Education, under law, has the final responsibility of establishing policies for the district.

II. The superintendent and his staff have the responsibility of carrying out the policies established.

III. The professional teaching personnel have the ultimate responsibility of providing the best possible education in the classroom.

The Board of Education also recognizes that the best interests of public education will be served by establishing procedures to provide an orderly method for the Board of Education and representatives of the Miamisburg Education Association to discuss matters of common concern, and to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement on these matters.

PRINCIPLES

I. Attaining objectives.

A. Attainment of objectives for the educational program of the Miamisburg City School District requires mutual understanding and cooperation among the Board of Education, the Superintendent, his staff, and the teaching personnel. Therefore, free and open exchange of views is desirable and necessary with all parties participating in deliberation leading to determination of matters of mutual concern.

II. Professional Personnel Organizations.

A. It is recognized that:

1. Teaching is a profession requiring the possession of specialized educational qualifications.

2. The success of the educational program depends upon the services of qualified and competent teachers who are reasonably satisfied with the conditions under which their services are performed.

3. Teachers should join organizations for their professional improvement and for the advancement of public education. They are strongly urged to join the Miamisburg Education Association, The Western Ohio Education Association, the Ohio Education Association, and the National Education Association.

III. Recognition.

A. The Board of Education recognizes:

1. The Miamisburg Education Association as the sole representative for negotiations.

2. The Miamisburg Education Association for the purpose of arriving at an agreement on proposals concerning salary welfare provisions, and working conditions.

a. On or before November 1 of each school year a certified list of membership in the Miamisburg Education Association shall be submitted to the Superintendent of the Miamisburg School District.

b. The Executive Committee of the Miamisburg Education Association shall appoint annually, no later than June 1, a committee composed of not more than six members representing the elementary, secondary and administrative staff personnel. (These members shall hereinafter be referred to as the Negotiations Committee.)

3. That the recognition of the Miamisburg Education Association will not prevent any certified professional employee or group of certified professional employees from requesting a hearing to present information or proposals to the Board of Education.

a. Such request shall be presented in writing to the Superintendent of Schools at least five days prior to a regularly scheduled Board of Education meeting. The request shall include names of individuals requesting the hearing and the topic to be presented.

PROCEDURES

I. Initiating steps to agreement.

A. A written request for meetings will be submitted by the Miamisburg Education Association to the Superintendent or by the Superintendent to the President of the Miamisburg Education Association.

1. The subject matter to be considered will be specified in writing.

II. Meetings.

Meetings between the Committee of the Miamisburg Education Association and the Superintendent and/or his official representative(s) will be scheduled for a mutually satisfactory time (within 15 days after the date of the request for a meeting, unless a mutually satisfactory later date is agreed upon).

A. Relevant data and supporting information, proposals and counter proposals will be presented.

B. Consultants may be used if deemed advisable by either party.

C. During the period of consideration, interim reports of progress may be made to the Miamisburg Education Association by its Committee and to the Board of Education by the Superintendent.

D. While discussions are in process, any release prepared for news media shall be approved by both groups.

E. Those items to be considered by the Board shall be requested to be placed on the negotiations agenda.

III. Action.

A. When a negotiations agenda has been established the Miamisburg Board of Education shall meet together with the Miamisburg Education Association Committee and the Superintendent and/or his official representatives in executive session.

1. A written request for informal and formal meetings with the Board will be submitted by the Executive Committee Miamisburg Education Association to the Superintendent and the Board of Education or by the Board of Education to the Superintendent and the Executive Committee of the MEA.

2. The subject matter will be specified in writing.

3. Meetings between the Negotiating Committee of the MEA and the Board of Education will be scheduled for a mutually satisfactory time (within 15 days after the date of request for a meeting, unless a mutually satisfactory later date is agreed upon. The Chairman of meetings dealing with negotiations shall be a person mutually agreed upon.

a. Data and information, proposals and counter-proposals will be presented.

b. Consultants will be called in by either party if necessary.

c. Brief progress reports may be made to the members of the MEA.

d. While discussions are in progress, any news release prepared for news media shall be approved by both groups.

e. The decision of the Board of Education relative to matters on the negotiations agenda will be made at a regular or special meeting of the Board of Education.

4. When a consensus is reached, a joint report is to be prepared by the Board and the MEA negotiations committee, for affirmation by the members of the MEA and the official acceptance by the board. The provisions of the report shall be put into effect by the Superintendent.

B. Board of review.

1. In the event that agreement is not reached with the Board of Education as per Section A above, either the Board of Education or the Miamisburg Education Association may request that a Board of Review be created. This Board of Review will be created within fifteen days unless both parties agree to a later date.

a. The Board of Review will be created in the following manner:

1) The Board of Education will select its member from a list of nominees submitted by any one of the organizations, as follows: National Education Association, Ohio Education Association, Ohio Association of School Administrators, Ohio School Boards Association, or another source mutually agreeable to both parties.

2) The Miamisburg Education Association will select its member from a list of nominees submitted by any one of the organizations as follows: National Education Association, Ohio Education Association, Ohio Association of School Administrators, Ohio School Boards Association or another source mutually agreeable to both parties.

3) The two members selected for the Board of Review shall select a third member from the list of nominees above who will serve as chairman.

b. The Board of Review will have authority to hold hearings and to confer with any parties deemed advisable in seeking to effect a recommendation to the Board of Education and the Miamisburg Education Association.

c. All hearings conducted by the Board of Review shall be in closed sessions and no news releases shall be made concerning progress of hearings.

d. Upon completion of their review, the recommendation of the Board of Review shall be presented to a joint meeting of the Committee of the Miamisburg Education Association and the Board of Education.

e. The Board of Education, in its official and legal capacity, shall take final action upon the recommendation.

COSTS

I. Any cost or expense will be paid by the party that incurs the cost or expense.

INDIVIDUAL GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES

From time to time problems relative to working conditions, assignments interpretation of policies, and so forth will inevitably arise. Most problems should be solved in conference with the principal of the school; or, if the problem involves the principal, the teacher should have a reasonable guarantee that his position will be made known to those in authority above the principal.

I. After discussion with the Principal the teacher or his duly authorized representative should feel free to take the problem to the Superintendent and/or Assistant Superintendent for further study and review.

II. If a satisfactory solution is not reached, then the teacher should request a review by the Board of Education. This request should be in writing, directed to the Superintendent.

III. The Board of Education, in its official and legal capacity, shall reach a final decision.

AMENDMENTS

Amendments to this agreement may be made during May and June of the year of expiration, when there is mutual agreement to amendments by the Committee and the Board of Education. Amendments agreed upon shall go into effect at the beginning of the next agreement.

TERMINATION OF AGREEMENT

This agreement shall continue in force from July 1, 1966 to June 30, 1969 with the Miamisburg Education Association unless another organization petitions the Board of Education for recognition and certifies that said organization has a larger membership than the Miamisburg Education Association. Faculty members may belong to only one organization claiming the right to negotiate.

REMARKS OF FRANKLIN K. DEWALD, MICHIGAN STATE PERSONNEL DIRECTOR, TO AMERICAN FEDERATION OF STATE, COUNTY & MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES
CONFERENCE AT UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND, MARCH 11, 1968

PUBLIC MANAGEMENT VIEWS PUBLIC EMPLOYEE UNIONISM

The current view that public management in America takes of employee unionism is as varied as a perfect rainbow on a warm May day. Color him purple, he's bad; color him pink, he's A-okay.

As you are well aware, public jurisdictions across the nation vary from one extreme to the other in their approach to the public employee revolution of the 60's. Some use bargaining as developed and ritualized in modern industry-labor negotiations; some prohibit bargaining of any flavor, and some even prohibit public employees from joining unions.

The failure of citizens in many cases to heed and recognize the value of the public employee, the tightening squeeze of inflation on his paycheck, the success of industrial unionism in not only obtaining relatively higher wages but in some cases comparable levels of job security for its members, have left many public employees with the feeling of being left behind in society.

Coincidentally, the public employee has witnessed the effective use of civil disobedience in the civil rights arena. He tends toward a similar response in his unhappy identity. He has focused on the value of human and individual rights and become acutely conscious of the restrictions traditionally accepted by public employees, especially on the right to strike.

In other words, the economic as well as social and political climate have been ideal for the birth of public employee militancy.

It is no wonder, then, that 12 million public employees became the new frontier for the union organizer, for militant union tactics, the threat of strikes and disruption, in an effort to replace complacency with action.

In inquiring about the nature of my invitation here I learned it was a "good faith" invitation to hear my personal views as a public administrator on the subject of public employee unionism and on collective bargaining in particular. I expressed a willingness to do so in a spirit of mutual respect, a determination to be forthright, and an expectation that I will be forgiven for my transgressions -- if indeed forgiveness should be required.

CHANGES SUSPECT

I recognize that much of the leadership of many of the public employee unions is militant labor leadership wedded to old, but tried and true formulas, and expert in using them, with little short range incentive to change. To many, collective bargaining is a sacred model, and any proposals for major design changes extremely suspect.

But I propose some modifications not only in the self-serving interests of public employee management and organizations, but in the public interest, which overrides the interests of us both.

I don't intend to get involved today in discussing at length the State of Michigan Civil Service situation, because it is beside the point, is in a state of flux, and is a minor item compared to the broad implications of the subject matter assigned to me.

MICHIGAN PROCEDURES

But for the information of those of you who may not know the Michigan Civil Service Commission has in the past, and is planning in the near future, to make changes in our employee relations policy designed to provide more effective channels of collective participation by employees in the decisions affecting their working conditions. We have in the past and expect in the future to draw heavily on many of the employee relations features of collective bargaining.

The State Constitution and civil service rules establish the Commission as a third-party arbitrator of grievances between employees and their state agency employer, and in a sense state employees in Michigan work under a form of constitutional binding arbitration. The Commission, as a third party, makes decisions on pay rates and fringe benefits after hearing-conferences with both state agency managers and employee groups and organizations.

Commission policy has made some distinctions we feel necessary in public employee relations from the industrial type collective bargaining system commonly used in private industry.

These distinctions do not recognize the strike as a sanctioned tool in employee negotiations, do not authorize exclusive recognition of one employee group to the complete exclusion of others, or formal collective bargaining contracts between a state agency and an employee union, although we do require conference and hearings with recognized employee organizations.

Many provisions - such as formal recognition, dues check off, and formal grievance procedure - are an established part of the Commission's formal employee relations policy and have been for many years.

It is the Commission's feeling that it has a third party responsibility in employee relations to provide the employee with his just due, while at the same time protecting the public interest.

So much for Michigan. Now back to the general subject of public employee unionism and collective bargaining in the public service.

First of all, most of what has been said on this subject has one thing in common: It raises more questions than it answers. Today I'm going to raise a few questions, but I'm also going to venture some answers as well.

LITTLE INNOVATION

The few states that have given this matter serious and detailed attention through task forces or study commissions have relied on "experts" in labor relations from the private sector.

This is somewhat understandable, as few public jurisdictions had expertise in collective bargaining. Many of these men were professionals who counsel labor or private management, and were men who had become too much members of the private labor management establishment. Naturally, they worked within old and tried concepts, were exceedingly timid about innovation, and suggested model laws, policies, and procedures that in most cases could hardly be distinguished from the principles of industrial labor relations law. Where the law did not spell out procedures, state mediators for interpretation then went to the case law of industrial labor relations for answers.

As one might expect, the result has been an effort by these commissions and task forces to transpose the solutions commonly used in bargaining in private industry into the public sector. Generally such solutions have had the vigorous support of union organizations. What we see in many of the so-called "progressive" states or cities is this particular "solution" at work.

BLIND ADHERENCE WILL FAIL

The theme of what I am going to say today is quite simply this: In attacking this problem, a blind adherence by unions or public management to the assumptions upon which private collective bargaining is predicated has already failed in many places where it has been attempted and is bound to fail in other places where it is attempted.

I have no quarrel with public employee unions which advocate a form of collective negotiation, but I do take exception to any which can only see the similarities between the problems of the private and public sector and refuse to recognize the crucial differences. It is here that we part company.

It is my belief that what is needed on both the part of the public employee organization as well as public management is less reliance on the old hidebound concepts and more emphasis on finding new ones for the public good.

We both have been too comfortable with our old notions and should spend more time re-thinking and re-arranging to meet our obligation to the public and the employee.

CONTRADICTION IN PUBLIC THINKING

At the outset, I sense an extraordinary contradiction in public thinking which attempts to separate the use of collective bargaining from the right to strike -- when in fact they are inseparable. Most of the people involved in the dialogue about the subject have been guilty of either an error in semantics, a fuzziness of nomenclature, or purposeful fraud.

Everybody using the term knows it means a method of determining conditions of employment in private negotiations between representatives of the employer and employee organizations. But many conveniently forget or ignore the balance wheel that has made collective bargaining work in the industrial context, and I refer to the strike and the lockout.

In private employment bargaining, both management and the union must weigh the economic risks in terms of pricing the employer out of the market in the face of consumer choice and competition. In the face of these economic restraints, agreement then tends to be compelled by the employees' right to strike on one hand and the employer's right to lock out on the other. Remove one or the other and you take the "wheels off the buggy"; your machinery is instantly out of kilter.

So what we have is the incongruity in many public jurisdictions today of new laws allowing or requiring public employers to bargain collectively -- which also say employees do not have the right to strike. Obviously, the lockout by a public employer is out of the question.

As a result, in many of these jurisdictions union membership is growing rapidly, employees are being forged into bargaining units which are then protected with not only exclusive recognition and the checkoff, but varying types of union security as well.

With this type of organization and a few dollars in the treasury, quite naturally when the employee organization feels its rightful demands are being ignored and union leadership sees no other solution, they are walking out on strike regardless of what the law says. Sometimes the membership is demanding a walkout against the better judgment of union leadership. But all of this is only a natural consequence of the environment initially created by the enabling legislation in the first place. Our political leadership and labor relations experts should not profess surprise at the results, which should have been obvious from the beginning.

This situation will get much worse before it gets better. Some of the settlements resulting from public employee strikes have resulted in substantial gains for union membership as well as a few dearly bought. Another interesting aspect of the problem is that the likelihood for substantial settlements for the union is also inherent in this particular system.

PRIVATE, PUBLIC MANAGER DIFFERENCES

Private managers have different motivations for opposing union demands than public managers. A private manager's compensation is usually closely tied to company profits through bonus, stock option plans, as well as salary. The public manager's salary has nothing to do with profit. The private manager has many options if faced with a strike. He can shut down and use up stored inventory, close up and reinvest in some other business, merge into a conglomerate to withstand demands, etc. Meanwhile, the public does not do without, but rather buys the product from a competitor.

Public managers and the public in general have none of these options in case of a strike in the public service. Most of their services the public cannot buy elsewhere, and most of them the public cannot do without for long or cannot do without at all. When a strike in this context occurs, the pressure of a democratic society to settle exerted on its elected executives is instantaneous and unlike anything experienced by their counterparts in private industry.

In other words, public managers have no balance against a strike in public collective bargaining as it is known in private industry when a service is shut off.

STRIKES A REALITY

In Michigan in 1966, the first full year after our public employee relations act was amended to require collective bargaining by local units of government (but still prohibiting strikes), we had 23 strikes in public employment more than in the previous 20 years. In 1967 we had about twice that many, and friends in the State Labor Mediation Board are fearful of a further increase in number this year. Legislation has been introduced to substantially amend the law to place restraints on public employee unions.

The amendments may or may not pass this year, or even next but will in a matter of time.

The reasons are some I have already stated and others. The public, in states where it is used, is slowly coming to realize that industrial type collective bargaining is far from being a panacea to its public employee relations. They are beginning to understand that strikes are an inevitable and integral part of the collective bargaining process and that accepting one means accepting the other, and that trying to pretend otherwise is a fantasy.

At the same time employee unions pursuing the open season they currently enjoy in the public employee field in many places are moving with understandable preoccupation with the business of organization. In the hurly-burly of competition for recognition as the bargaining agent, there is the tendency to make unrealistic promises to members or would-be members.

Some are learning, and more will learn the hard way that the appearances and the realities of bargaining in government are quite different things. Many members have been encouraged to believe that public management can act like private management at the bargaining table.

CRITICAL POINT FOR BARGAINING

The fact is that the critical point in public bargaining does not occur between the public executive and the union negotiators at the bargaining table, where they are expected to bargain in good faith according to sacred formula. The critical point comes when the legislative branch appropriates funds from the taxpayers' pocketbooks to finance the costs of the bargaining agreement. What is the worth of a public administrator's signature on an agreement when he cannot authorize or guarantee the money, or the changes in an ordinance or law to fulfill these agreements?

The agreement may be used as a lever on an appropriating body, but it certainly is a far cry from the signature of Malcome Denise on last year's Ford Contract.

With few exceptions, the only place the employee organization can get what it wants in a democratic society is from this society's true source of authority - the legislative body, be it the school board, city council, board of supervisors, state legislature, or the Federal Congress. That is where the payoff is now, this is where it was before public employees were organized to bargain collectively, and there it will continue to be unless our form of government is changed.

Economic bargaining and the withholding of services against the true source of power in a democracy, the Legislature, may make them sit up and take notice. But it also will inevitably result in restrictive laws on employee unionism as well as collective bargaining.

It is an axiom in government that like the Almighty, "what the Legislature giveth, it can also taketh away."

Let's be realistic. The Federal Congress and State Legislatures have the final authority to regulate private employee-employer relationships and certainly will not permit this authority to be challenged with public employees. To make such a challenge would merely invite trouble.

COMPROMISE REQUIRED

In summary, it is my original premise that if public managers and public employee organizations are to make any meaningful progress in a lasting solution to our employee relations dilemma, both sides must give some ground.

A ritualistic reliance by employee unions on the industrial collective bargaining concept must be modified. On the other hand, public managers must vastly improve the channels of collective participation by employees in decisions affecting their working conditions. This includes the use of recognition, checkoff, a requirement for conference and negotiation about problems of mutual interest, and a grievance procedure achieved by joint conference and understanding.

I say this because the current wave of militancy and work stoppages, if continued, will result in statutory changes by state legislators in the other direction.

There isn't any question about this. In the private sector The Wagner Act was amended by the Taft Hartley Act to allow the government to step in to seek injunctions if a strike in private industry imperiled the nation's health and welfare, and included other provisions designed to put the brakes on unionism in the private sector. Landrum Griffin, in a different sense, imposed other restrictions. The $700,000 fine slapped on the mine workers in 1946, these and others are part of the handwriting on the wall.

Public confidence in the free collective bargaining process in private industry has fallen in recent years because a few strikes in private industry approached the scope of national discomfort. The Council of Economic Advisers has said the system does not provide sufficient built-in protection for the public interest in the area of wage and price determination.

POOR TIMING

It is a particularly poor time, from the standpoint of the overall union movement, to have the glare of publicity and the glowering of public reaction focused on a new type of strike that shuts off a vital public service. Yet these forces are already set in motion and are on a collision course. It will, I'm afraid, take only a few such strikes of tragic consequence to heat public opinion to the point where legislative bodies will move to put out the fire.

With proper planning and proper leadership in both public management and public employee organizations, we can and should see to it the reaction is not regressive.

When the time comes, it is my hope that in some jurisdictions, including our State of Michigan Civil Service, we will have developed a system worthy of notice and possible emulation - a jurisdiction where healthy employee organization and effective state department management can co-exist in the public interest.

PUBLIC IN THE BACK OF THE BUS

Most of what I've heard or read about collective bargaining in the public service not only has appeared naive by trying to somehow separate strikes from the process; but has been strangely silent about the rights and the role of the most important figure in the triangle -- the public. We have been so preoccupied with self-interest, the public interest has been left riding in the back of the bus.

All that is necessarily good for employee unionism is not necessarily good for the country, just as all that public management wants in employee relations is not necessarily good for the public service.

Unions, when bargaining with a public manager, are really bargaining with the citizen taxpayer of this particular jurisdiction, but he has no seat at the bargaining table. One might say he is represented by the appointed or elected official or officials who sit there, as union members are represented by elected or appointed committee members at the table. Very well, but the citizen frequently not only doesn't know what's going on -- he only hears about his bargain after an agreement is made.

Frequently the news media don't know and can't report to the public what is really going on until after the deal has been made because negotiating is done behind closed doors. One might say the union membership does not really know much about it, either. Very well. But the union membership then has a chance to ratify the agreement by a democratic process of voting. Joe Citizen, on the other hand, has no opportunity to ratify his part of the bargain, even though he will pay for it.

THE PUBLIC MUST BE HEARD

What I am saying is that in this negotiation or bargaining procedure, no one has paid proper deference to what the public thinks about the proposed settlement, in advance of an agreement to which the public is committed.

It is a clear fact the economic self-interest of public employee unions on behalf of their members is adverse to the economic self-interest of the taxpayer. Any workable system established to resolve these differences in public negotiations is going to have to make room for the citizen in the process, make some provision for public hearing prior to approval or ratification by management.

I'm sure public employee unions would shudder at the thought of having all newly negotiated contracts subject to public referendum among the taxpayers -- but don't think for a minute that legislative bodies may not decide this is necessary unless public managers and employee unions agree on a workable system among themselves that gives the citizen a chance to be heard when his voice can have weight in the deliberations.

SCOPE OF NEGOTIATIONS

One of the more interesting facets of the attempt to borrow industrial bargaining techniques by the public service is the matter of the scope of bargaining. Here, apparently, public employee unions don't want to follow the private pattern where unions generally have recognized the need to limit the scope of bargaining where co-determination is incompatible with performance of the managerial function. But in Michigan, for instance, teachers want to bargain with school boards about the curriculum. The use of bargaining power by employees to try and tell public managers how to manage is an abuse of this power. Unless unions and public managers realistically agree the scope of bargaining should be limited to regulating the physical conditions of work and economic matters, I think they, too, will sooner or later be corrected by stiff and restrictive legislation.

BUDGET CYCLE

Perhaps one of the most unrealistic, and consequently most troublesome, facets of bargaining agreements in the public sector has been refusal by some union negotiators to recognize the budget cycle. Understandably, early in the game problems were unavoidable. But from a practical standpoint of the union as well as public managers, it would seem an agreement deadline in negotiations or bargaining should be established which is a given number of days prior to the submission of the budget to the appropriating body.

SYSTEM OF LIMITED NEGOTIATION

I believe that many of the facets of collective bargaining must and will be extended to public employees, but in my opinion the system that will survive will be a system of limited negotiation.

I don't say this will happen tomorrow. I do say it is the system which our democratic society will demand and will evolve in the foreseeable future.

Generally the public employee, in return for the rights of organization, formal recognition, formal grievance procedures, a system of resolving impasses involving forms of mediation and fact finding and a system of checks and balances on unfair labor practices, will have to give certain other things in return.

They will include basic acceptance of: 1) a form of limited negotiation which includes a no-strike pledge; 2) provisions so affected citizens can be heard at a time when their voice can have weight in deliberations; 3) limitation on the scope of negotiation to physical conditions of work and economic matters, generally excluding the manner in which agency managers otherwise accomplish their mission; and 4) a timetable so economic negotiations coincide with the budget cycle.

Employee unions would not have to worry about a lockout. On the other hand, any violation of the no-strike pledge should in turn be handled by clear cut injunctive rights and/or contempt proceedings through the courts and hearings by the government agency involved to determine whether the checkoff and/or recognition should be suspended or terminated. The likelihood of strikes by public employees in this context would be vastly diminished.

PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RELATIONS BOARDS

There is little question that some form of special Public Employee Relations Commissions to direct and handle such matters within the states will have to be created by the states if such a forum does not already exist and operate in an effective manner.

The exact nature of the organization and procedures of such commissions would in itself be the subject of a rather lengthy discourse. These undoubtedly will vary depending on the state and its geographic, economic, as well as political complexion.

I have one final thought, however, that I think deserves exploration.

FACT FINDING BEFORE BARGAINING

One approach to expediting and easing negotiation of economic issues within the states might be the establishment of a state public wage board to determine prevailing wage rates for comparable jobs within the state as a whole, or in the larger, more diverse states by geographic area.

At first blush it might appear like a cart before the horse approach because in a sense it's similar to fact finding before bargaining, at least on wage rates and fringe benefits.
